Dr. G. F. Davidson, Canadian Delegate Outspoken Leader at United Nations

By WALTER O'HEARN

LAKE SUCCESS, NY.—If there is a more outspoken Canadian delegate to any of the United Nations conferences or one more nimble on his feet than Dr. George F. Davidson, reporters here have not yet seen him. Dr. Davidson, Canada's Deputy Minister for Welfare, is a lean, scholarly shy-looking fellow. He does not push himself forward. But when called upon to speak he hits straight out; is never at a loss for words. His clipped sentences reveal a tough and agile mind.

On Tuesday, as our acting chief delegate to the Economic and Social Council, Dr. Davidson cut loose on the co-ordination of the United Nations and the specialized agencies (ILO, ICAO and a host of others) which adhere as planets to its sun.

Dr. Davidson

"It is our view," Dr. Davidson said, "that the procedure for co-ordination of activities still leaves a great deal to be desired."

"It seems to us that in the very nature of the structure, which has been set up which delegates responsibilities with the economic and social field to functional commissions, regional commissions and specialized agencies has within itself the danger of duplicated effort which we are seeking to avoid."

US Supported

Dr. Davidson was backing a proposal of the United States which is designed to step up the work of ECOSCO'S co-ordinating committee and to set up an ad hoc committee to streamline the process of co-ordination. He had a prepared text but he is one of those speakers who prefer to extemporize and he did so with considerable effect—albiet to the dismay of the UN translators who had thought they could rely on the text in front of them. He was speaking on an important topic, far more important perhaps, than it seems.

Endless duplication and waste can occur if ECOSCO and the various tributary bodies, which are devoted to good works but which are not a function part of UN, are not in constant communication. Dr. Davidson gave one instance when he said: "A tendency for delegations to press for the assumption of new responsibilities by the organs to which they are accredited must be overcome."

This can only be done, he said, "if national delegations are aware of the lines of action being proposed by their own representatives in other agencies and commissions." He dismissed the theory that the Economic and Social Counucil itself could do the job of co-ordination, expressing the doubt "whether this Council meeting twice a year and faced with an ever increasing number of agenda items . . . would be able effectively to direct the manifold activities within its competence."

Welfare Agencies

The specialized agencies are, in a large, international sense, welfare agencies. And welfare agencies whether on the local, national or international level, have a tendency to expand their functions. Sometimes, indeed, two or more agencies expand in the same direction. This is the sort of thing that is recognized and combatted on the civic level by the establishment of such collective organizations as federated charities and community chests: It is a factor which the Government of Canada realized in wartime when it officially approved certain auxiliary organizations, such as the YMCA, Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, Red Cross and Canadian Legion and gave a united direction to their efforts and their fund raising.

When this problem becomes international, and particularly when it concerns a host of agencies most of which are new and uncertain of their exact function, the duplication can be enormous. As a top level civil servant who has dealt with these snarls in the national field, Dr. Davidson knows this. The UN Secretariat alone cannot give clear direction to these agencies and set a limit to their exuberance.

His arguments evidently impressed the delegates for they shortly after set up a committee for co-ordination, on which Canada is a member along with Australia, Brazil, China, France, Netherlands, New Zealand, Peru, Poland, the USSR, the United Kingdom and the United States.

Task for McNaughton

As predicted, next Tuesday, February 24th, will see the full dress debate in the Security Council chamber on Palestine. The virtual refusal of the UN Palestine Commission to enter the Holy Land without an adequate military force, has not changed the issue but it has high-lighted it.

As chairman of the Security Council until March 1, General A. G. L. McNaughton will have to wrestle with this topic in a special way. (His suggestion of the Tuesday meeting, yesterday was adopted without demur.). Actually, the Security Council has a deadline of May 15, less than three months away during which they must either wash their hands of partition and leave the whole work of the General Assembly undone and that body discredited before the world; or, within this short period of time set up a United Nations Army.

As always, the special interests of the major powers who would normally send troops to a UN army, as contemplated in the charter, are in collision. As Palestine is a pivotal point in the geopolitical picture, this clash is sharper than usual. The United States is very, very loath to see Russian troops in Palestine. The USSR would feel the same way about an expeditionary force which was strongly American in complement. The favored solution all along has been a "small nation" force. The drawback to this is that most small nations do not want to send troops. Canada is as reluctant as any of them.

Normally, and if these national misgivings could be settled General McNaughton would be in a position where his experience would make the task easy. He knows about all there is to know about the recruiting and training of armies. But the diplomatic considerations will probably prolong the debate until after he has left the chair of the Council. For the Arab countries want their say before anything is decided. They claim that the whole partition idea is illegal—and besides they are going to fight it anyway. For a group that have expressed their willingness to go to arms against the UN, whatever the legality of partition, the Arabs are in a dubious position. This will not stay their eloquence.

Next week will be a tense and uncomfortable one at Lake Success. In the meantime, people are still being killed in the Holy Land.

Convicts Banished To Australia Founded Many Cattle Stations

Addressing the Y's Men's Club at the YMCA Thursday night on "Life On An Australian Cattle Station," W. M. Clipstone, Examiner reporter, spoke of how in the early days, Australia was mainly peopled by convicts sent out from England for the term of their natural lives.

"Captain Cook, an intrepid naval officer and explorer first made a landing on this island continent at Botany Bay, April, 1770. England at that time had lost a lot of her prestige and some of her territory in what is now Virginia, and was hard put to know where she could find another penal colony for her (in those days) felons. So strict was the law in those days that for an offence as harmless as poaching a rabbit on the landed gentry's estate meant the chain gang and banishment from the country for the term of the man's natural life. Thus was started the penal colony at Botany Bay. Even when a man had served his time, he was not allowed to return to England, but could take up a block of land or find work in New South Wales. The manner in which these people were shipped out to Botany Bay in chains, men, women and children, ill-fed, and harshly treated while on the sailing ship that in those days took months to arrive, will always be a blot on England's history. Hundreds died on the way, and the lash was served more generously than their meagre meals.

"Today some of the largest sheep stations in the country, were founded and had their, original ownership in the convicts who had served their time. It is not a proud boast, but it is nevertheless true that the horrors of Berrima Gaol are second only to the more modern Dachau.

Prefer Herefords

"Australia's largest cattle stations today are found in the far north, mainly in Queensland and the Northern Territory. The most favorite breed is the Hereford, commonly known as 'baldies' due to their white head and face. These stock thrive on the vast open territory of the north where to the casual observer not conservant with the country would wonder how stock live where such little feed is seen. The main grasses are kangaroo grass, Mitchell grass and Queensland buckwheat, but to supplement this the cattle find a very good fare in the prickly pear, a cactus growth that covers millions of acres. It is regarded as a pest in New South Wales, as indeed it is, as it provides excellent cover for Australia's greatest curse, the rabbit.

Fear Drought

"Another constant source of worry to the cattle breeder is the ever present dread of drought. In many parts of Queensland it is not at all uncommon for a drought to last from two to three years. In this case the stock that may still be alive are driven to where they might find some sort of feed, and provided with a travelling stock route certificate, the head stockman and the boundary riders (cow hands) will perhaps be on the move for more than twelve months at a time, moving on and on from billabong to billabong (a natural depression where there generally can be found enough soakage for a drink.)

"Australia has some of the largest cattle stations in the world, Victoria Downs Station has an acreage of more than 800,000 acres. Stations of less than 100,000 acres are considered small affairs. These stations are in the real out-back, and far removed from civilization. The station has its own store and from it the station hands can purchase almost anything that they require. Supplies are brought out in wagons with as much as two years' supply. The boundary riders who have their homes near the main homestead, are sometimes away from the main station for a month at a time. They are responsible for keeping the fences in order, although in the out-back where the range is so vast, fencing would almost be an impossibility. One wonders why the cattle do not wander away and become lost in the vast interior, but this is seldom the case.

"Bores are put down and large dams made for water conservation and invariably there is always plenty of good water holes in the creeks. Cattle will always come down to their water holes at set times in the day, and when water is plentiful one always has a rough idea, within a few miles anyway, just where the cattle will be.

Three Roundups a Year

"Generally there are three musters a year, in the spring (September to October) when the spring calves are 'cut out' from the mob for branding. Then again they have an autumn muster (March to April) when an inspection is made for a general 'look-see' in order that weak stock, or stock that has been injured by the marauding dingoes can be taken away. It is too big a task to muster the cattle at the main homestead, so large stock-yards are built at different convenient points on the range and the branding and inspecting is done there. An average station will carry from 25,000 to 35,000 head of stock, though there are many of course that can carry far more than this.

"The main muster is the winter muster, (June to July) when in the north the stock are in better condition to move. This is the time of the year when the main sales are made and all cattle sold are moved on foot to the nearest rail head, sometimes meaning a 'drove' of 400 to 500 miles. The stock travelling at the government-ordered rate of a 14 mile stage per day occasions the animals no hardship and allows them to feed on foot as they travel. The average death rate on these long treks is seldom more than 2 per cent providing good water is found en route.

"All stock are sold on foot at rail head, after which it is obligatory for the train crew (who receive special pay for the work) to water and feed the stock in the wagons."

Speaking of the vast sheep stations, Mr. Clipstone said that very little mutton is exported from Australia in comparison, to the wool. Eighty-five per cent of the sheep in the country are pure bred Merinos.

"These sheep are bred purely for their valuable wool, and is recognized as the finest wool in the world and receives the highest prices. The staple when cut is approximately four to six inches long, but as it is crimped, when pulled out it stretches to nine to eleven inches. Although it may sound peculiar the finest and most valuable wool is grown in the hot dry belts, the Merino appearing to thrive on this type of territory. The sheep are machine shorn and the large shearing sheds built with their expensive machinery, shows what an important industry this is to Australia. When the wether or ewe is a full mouth, or broken tooth, (terms used to show that it has reached its peak wool bearing period) it is killed. The mutton is not regarded as good eating and does not fetch a good price. The best mutton sheep in Australasia, and in New Zealand that specializes in mutton are the cross breds or the pure bred English sheep, such as Suffolk, Cheviot, Hampshire and Shropshire."

The speaker was introduced by G. S. Seabrook, and a vote of thanks was moved by Ray Brown.

"While you're poking about for my appendix, I wonder if you'd mind looking for a threepenny bit I swallowed in 1943?"

PLAN TO PROBE FLOUR INDUSTRY NEXT

Would Give Government More Power Handling Labor Disputes

Labor Congress Proposes Broader Bill Would Apply To Every Industry; Wide Enforcement Power Urged For Board

OTTAWA, Feb. 21 — (CP).—Jurisdiction of the Federal Government in labor disputes would be broadened under a proposed labor code submitted to the Government by the Canadian Congress of Labor and made public today. Proposals in the CCL code are intended to supplant several provisions of the Labor Department's projected industrial relations measure, which Labor Minister Mitchell will introduce in the Commons shortly. The Department's code is identical with that introduced, but not passed, at the 1947 session of parliament.

The CCL code would give the Labor Department much wider coverage than the Government bill. It would apply to every industry under Dominion jurisdiction, all businesses with Federal charters, all Crown companies and similar bodies and the Dominion Civil Service.

Further, it would provide the government could bring other industries under the code by proclamation when it thought such action necessary for the national security.

This would enable the Dominion to act in such cases as the nation-wide packinghouse workers' strike of last year.

Outlaw Company Unions

The union's code also would outlaw "company unions" provide explicitly for the union dues check-off and "union security," and give a union automatic certification as bargaining agency in an industry, without a vote, when it can show a majority of employees.

Where a vote is held, the CCL code would deem a majority of those voting enough for certification. The government measure will call for a majority of those eligible to vote.

The union code would protect unions against court actions of any kind, except as specifically provided in the bill. It defines nine unfair labor practices by employers, and forbids them, as against four in the government legislation.

The National Labor Relations Board would be given very wide powers in enforcing provisions of

Prime Minister Acquitted In Bribe Case

HOBART, Tasmania, Feb. 21—(Reuters)—The criminal court here today acquitted Robert Cosgrove, former prime minister of Tasmania, of charges of accepting bribes while prime minister.

The jury acquitted Cosgrove on 14 counts alleging bribery, corruption and conspiracy after a 3½-hour summing up by Chief Justice Morris.

He told the jury they might believe that James Thomas Sullivan, who said in evidence that he had paid Cosgrove £5,400 ($21,600) for Labor Party funds on behalf of transport operators to save their businesses from state interference was an accomplice whose evidence might be regarded with the greatest suspicion.

The jury must judge whether Sullivan had told the truth or whether he had concocted a story "to save his own miserable business" or because he had animosity towards the premier.

On the law of the case, it did not matter whether a member of parliament or a minister had received money for himself, for party funds or for a charitable object.

The 63-year-old Labor prime minister resigned from office in December after the indictment, believed to be the first in the history of the British Commonwealth filed against a premier still in office.

Lindsay Child Killed By Car

LINDSAY, Feb. 21.—(ENS).—Janette Thibadeau, aged 7, died in hospital Friday afternoon from injuries received when she was struck by a car on Highway 35 just north of Lindsay.

Janette, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grattan Thibadeau, was walking north on the east side of the road with her nine-year-old brother on the way home from school, when she apparently went to cross the road and was struck down. The driver of the car, Joseph O'Leary of R.R. 5, Lindsay, was travelling south toward town at the time, and later told police he couldn't avoid hitting the child when she ran suddenly in front of him.

She was rushed immediately to Ross Memorial Hospital, where she died an hour later without regaining consciousness. Coroner Dr. H. L. Logan says it is not yet known if an inquest will be held.

Frantic Mother Sees Two Children Burned

MISSION, B.C., Feb. 21—(CP)—A frantic mother yesterday helplessly watched her two children perish as fire demolished their one-room shack at nearby Steelhead, B.C.

One of the children, June Helen Funk, was a five-year-old cripple. She perished with her three-year-old brother, Ronald Corey Funk.

The mother, Mrs. P. Funk, heard the screams of her children after she stepped out into the backyard. She rushed back, opened the door only to be greeted by roaring flames. Help was unavailable and she was forced to stand by while the shack was razed.

Plan Save-Power Appeals From Pulpits

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—(CP). — Appeals from the pulpits tomorrow will remind residents of power-shy southern Ontario communities to cut down use of electricity.

The reminders will mark the end of the first week of cutoffs and voluntary power use reductions to meet an emergency brought on by water shortages at generating plants.

In Toronto, Acting Mayor H. E. McCallum said the power shortage may last two months.

"I am told that there will be no relief until the spring breakup, which will increase the water supply. That will take us into the middle of April. I am told the Ontario Hydro may have to make further cuts."

It was learned in Ottawa, however, that neither the Gatineau nor the MacLaren power companies—two major Quebec suppliers of power to Ontario—plan further reductions of power sent to Ontario. Last Sunday night both companies reduced power shipments to Ontario by 4,000,000 kilowatt hours a week each.

The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission said yesterday in its monthly summary that it made a 2.4-per-cent increase in total power generated and purchased in January, compared with the amount for the corresponding month in 1947, but the gain was more than wiped out by a 7.6-per-cent jump in the primary demands for power.

Chinese Reds Take Great Steel City

PEIPING, Feb. 21 — (AP) — Chinese press dispatches indicated today the Communists had captured Anshan, the government's besieged steel city in southern Manchuria.

The press reports said the Communists fought into the centre of the city Wednesday, after which radio contact with Mukden was broken.

Savage, no-quarter fighting raged in the streets, the dispatches reported. Fires could be seen engulfing important buildings. Among these was the office of the giant Anshan iron and steel works.

Russia Evasive About Demands

LONDON, Feb. 21 (AP)—Russia "refused to get down to brass tacks" today on what she wants from Austria in the peace settlement, a British spokesman said.

An American observer at the second session of the big four foreign ministers deputies termed the meeting "not altogether successful."

Russia's deputy was evasive on such questions as the Soviet Union's demand for 25 per cent of the Danube Shipping Company's interests in Austria, the British spokesman said. The point has not yet been reached for assessing the merits of Russia's claims against the Austrians.

Harrowing Day For Canadian Reporter No One Wants To Carry Barbara's Medals

By JACK SULLIVAN

LONDON, Feb. 21—(CP).—Barbara Ann Scott's medals were packed away Friday night in a sunken vault in Ontario House. They will stay there until a special government messenger picks them up and personally delivers them to a Canada-bound plane.

It was a harrowing day for the eight-inch-square packet holding Barbara Ann's Olympic, world and European medals. This courier had looked after it for the last four days. The box almost went begging for someone who would guarantee its transport safely to Ottawa.

"Send it by registered mail," said a Trans-Canada Air Lines official. "We can't give it to the pilot of the plane to deliver personally because he will bump into the customs and a lot of questions will be asked."

"I'm afraid the diplomatic pouch is for letters only," said a high official at Canada House.

But J. P. S. Armstrong, agent-general for Ontario, came to the aid of this harassed messenger. An immigrant plane is scheduled to leave Sunday for the Dominion, and he arranged to have the package placed on board.

Vegetable Ban Stays Until 1949

Promises Commons Restrictions Lifted As Soon As Possible

By GEORGE KITCHEN

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—(CP). — Details of the government's plans to prohibit and otherwise restrict imports of the United States and other so-called hard currency areas were placed before the Commons yesterday as study of the administration's currency-conservation bill neared its end.

With both Finance Minister Abbott and Trade Minister Howe piloting the legislation, the highlight of the discussion was Mr. Abbott's statement that import restrictions on fresh fruits and vegetables likely will continue throughout the year and possibly into 1949.

Mr. Abbott said the government will relax and remove the fruit and vegetable restrictions as soon as the exchange improves sufficiently.

"In other words," he went on, "the government is not prepared to retain these measures indefinitely as a protection to the fruit and vegetable industry. The permanent and continuing degree of protection to the industry is provided, of course, in the existing customs tariff."

Careful Removal

He promised that the controls would not be removed at a time when the action would have "serious or disastrous" effects on the marketing of Canadian produce but could not bind the government to any unconditional guarantee that all produce grown in Canada this year never would face competition from imported goods.

Mr. Abbott made the statement shortly before the chamber, by a standing vote of 43 to 23, rejected a C.C.F. attempt to have fresh fruits and vegetables removed from the list of banned imports.

He said also that he was "satisfied" there would be no shortage of vegetables in Canada this win-

Ask Attorney-General For Kitchener Trial

KITCHENER, Feb. 21—(CP)—Deputy police chief John Patrick said today an appeal will be made to Attorney General Blackwell of Ontario for permission to return Douglas McAvella, 29, of Toronto, and William Campbell, 23, of Hamilton here for trial on charges arising out of the attempted safe cracking of Woolworths store here last Dec. 7.

The pair, along with Eugene Nadon of Montreal, were arrested in Hull late last week and are awaiting trial on illegal possession of firearms and illegal possession of burglar tools. McAvella and Campbell are charged here with armed robbery.

AUSTRALIANS HOIST FLAG—Group Captain S. A. Campbell, centre, leader of the Australian National Antarctic Research Expedition, cheers with his men as the Australian flag is raised on Heard Island, in the Antarctic, 3,200 miles from Melbourne. Other islands in the Antarctic are the objects of a current dispute between Great Britain, Chile and the Argentine. Fourteen Australian scientists will remain on Heard Island for a year. It is 25 miles long, nine miles wide and is inhabited by elephant seals, penguins, ducks and rabbits. There is hardly any vegetation and no trees.

Benes 'Sits Tight' in Crisis

PRAGUE, Feb. 21—(AP).—Communist Premier Klement Gottwald, speaking to thousands at a public rally, today, demanded a new government from top to bottom in this buffer state between Russia and the West. His followers cheered and cried, "We are prepared," and, "Long live the government of Premier Gottwald without the reactionaries."

Gottwald insisted last night that President Eduard Benes, an independent, let him name a new cabinet without the ministers of three parties that turned in their resignations from the coalition government yesterday.

President Benes sat tight in the presidential palace. He had not accepted the resignations and technically his broad national-front government still existed.

His office said he had seen no one this morning nor had he taken any action toward dissolving the constituent National Assembly and calling an election of a new parliament.

The cabinet holds power from a conshtituent National Assembly elected in May, 1946, when the Communists polled the biggest vote. The assembly was set up to serve until a new constitution could be put into effect.

But the belief grew last night that the anti-Communist withdrawals might bring an emergency election of a new assembly even before this constitution could become effective. Some predictions were that the constituent assembly would be dissolved today and an election called within six weeks.

Police Search For Owners Of Stolen Bonds Suddenly Turns To Couple Living In Lindsay

TORONTO, Feb. 21—(CP)—Search for the owner of one of two $$1,000 bonds dramatically recovered by a Toronto policeman posing as a bank accountant who Thursday whipped out a revolver instead of a "payoff," last night swung to Lindsay.

Police headquarters announced that the bond, recovered by gunpoint by plainclothesman Norman Woods in an east-central house "on the fringe of Toronto's underworld," is registered in the name of Minnie Whitehead, Winnipeg.

Late today, Winnipeg police inspector Dave Nicholson said that a Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead of that address have been living at Lindsay for the last two years.

Moreover, he said there was no connection between the bond and the $208,000 bond-security loot stolen from a Winnipeg branch of the Royal Bank of Canada last Oct. 23—the largest bank robbery in that city's history.

Was Pupil of Franz Liszt Scottish Composer Dies

STIRLING, Scotland, Feb. 21 — (Reuters). — Frederic Lamond, well-known Scottish pianist and composer, died here today at the age of 80. He was a pupil of Franz Liszt and was one of the last living links with the great composer. Lamond was famous as an interpreter of Beethoven and competed with Schnabel after Paderewski's death for the title of greatest pianist in the world.

He first made a name in 1893 when he gave a Brahm's concert at Leipzig which was a tremendous success. His fame spread rapidly and for several years he travelled all over the world giving recitals. After the First World War he settled in Berlin until 1937.

At one time he was professor at The Hague Conservatoire.

Priest Dies In Fire Which Burns Rectory

UTICA, N.Y., Feb. 21—(AP)—Rev. Patrick J. Walsh, pastor of St. Paul's Church, was fatally burned early today when fire of undetermined origin damaged a second-floor room of the church rectory.

Father Walsh, who celebrated the 25th anniversary of his ordination into the priesthood in 1938, died about two hours after he was removed from the burning building.

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 21 (AP) —Pope Pius invoked Divine blessings today upon United Nations efforts to "relieve nations from the worry of starvation and from the humiliation of having to ask for charity."

Part of Hong Kong Evidence May Be Published UK Says

OTTAWA, Feb. 21 (CP)—Some parts of the carefully-guarded evidence of the Royal Commission on Hong Kong may soon be made public, it was learned last night.

Other portions of the probe made in 1942, less than a year after the British colony fell to the Japanese, still are regarded as a military secret.

An informed source said the United Kingdom government has agreed to publication of certain portions of the evidence but prefers that other sections remain undisclosed.

This is the gist of the British government's reply to Prime Minister Mackenzie King's request for permission to table the Royal Commission evidence in the Canadian Commons. John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, has asked that it be produced.

Consults Bracken

Mr. King gave some indication of British reservations on the subject when he told the Commons yesterday he wished to show the reply to Mr. Bracken before making a public statement.

It was learned that the United Kingdom government coupled with its reply a reservation that inter-governmental correspondence henceforth remain confidential.

Canada had two regiments—the Royal Rifles of Canada and the Winnipeg Grenadiers—in the unsuccessful Hong Kong defence. Total Canadian strength was 2,017.

Pay System

Hong Kong also has figured prominently in recent Commons discussion of the Canadian army's special Pacific campaign pay. Defence Minister Claxton said yesterday the government has decided it would not be justified to pay "Pacific rates" to Hong Kong survivors. They were not members of the army's Pacific force, for which the special pay was authorized.

A government return earlier this disclosed that none of the 1,625 men who received the pay served in the Pacific theatre of operations.

All Europe Shivers In Wintry Blasts Even Venetian Boatmen Blinded By Snow

LONDON, Feb. 21—(AP).—Snow fell thickly in Britain and Western Europe today. Forecasters said the late winter cold wave would continue at least until the middle of next week. Temperatures in Britain were slightly higher than yesterday's winter minimums, rising to the upper 20's. Berlin reported a minimum of six degrees Fahrenheit. Snow fell the length of the Italian peninsula. In Venice it blinded boatmen, who rigged their gondolas with lights and foghorns.

More community warming halls were opened to shelter children and the aged in fuel-short Berlin. The cold stopped all outdoor reconstruction work in bizonal Germany.

The Paris weather bureau predicted the cold wave, severest of the winter, would not break before Wednesday.

In Britain, unused to heavy snow, drifts piled high and stalled traffic. However, there appeared to be no immediate danger of a general breakdown such as that resulting from last February's near-record freeze-up.

10-Cent Loaf Robs Bakers Claim Made

Don't Feel Inquiry Too Successful On Many Basic Issues

By ROSS MUNRO

OTTAWA, Feb. 21 — (CP). — In its first two weeks, the Commons price committee has started preliminary inquiries into fruit and vegetable prices and launched a full-scale probe into increased bread prices, which is certain to lead to an investigation into flour.

It also has had sketched for it by two high government officials the broad outline of the inflated price situation.

But it really has only got its foot in the door. Weeks and months of work lie ahead of the 16-member committee, sitting in the huge railway committee room of the Parliament Buildings.

Most observers feel that the inquiry so far has not been particularly successful. It ran into a lot of difficulty getting into basic issues on fruits and vegetables and while the bread inquiry was better, the pace was slow.

First witness yesterday in the bread probe was G. A. Meech, vice-president of Loblaws Groceterias of Toronto, who told the committee that 10-cent bread was an "incident of competition."

Can't Subsist

If this loaf alone was sold, the bakers would not be able to subsist and Loblaws itself could not handle bread business on that basis.

Other brands selling at 13 and 14 cents a loaf had to be retailed to make up for the narrow margin of profit from the 10-cent loaf.

Mr. Meech said that a number of fast selling commodities gave Loblaws a higher profit margin than bread.

His company was "unhappy" about the 10-cent bread price because it created price spreads in a staple commodity and was an unstabilizing influence.

The bread probe will continue Monday.

$60,000 Blaze Razes Buildings

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 21—(AP). —Two spectacular fires destroyed a downtown office building and a large grocery warehouse today, doing damage estimated at nearly $600,000 and leaving two persons missing.

Burned were the 60-year-old, five-storey Jackson building and warehouse in the Homewood section.

The Jackson building collapsed about four hours after the blaze broke out late last night. Two adjacent buildings were damaged as blazing debris showered over them and onto the busy intersection. Several firemen were overcome by smoke and one was struck by a brick and injured.

Police sought a missing fireman and a woman cashier of a drug company, both reported to have disappeared after the start of the fire.

Eagle Seizes Child Mother Routs Bird

CARLSBAD, N.M., Feb. 21 — (AP). — A mother told today how she freed her four-year-old son from the talons of an eagle, which her husband later killed with a bed slat.

Mrs. C. J. Reinhart said the child was playing in the yard when the eagle swooped down and seized him by the head. When she reached the boy the huge bird was digging its talons into the child. She ran to the house for a pair of pliers. Returning, she yanked the talons loose and beat off the bird.

Her husband later found the eagle still in the neighborhood and killed it. Reinhart said he was told the eagle had been captured in the Gaudalupe Mountains west of here and had escaped from its captor.

New Meat Price Ceilings Ready To Be Imposed

OTTAWA, Feb. 21 — (CP). — A Prices Board spokesman said Friday night the new meat price ceilings are just about ready for reimposition when the government gives the order to put them into effect.

Explaining a delay in reimposing the ceilings, which were announced January 15, he said the present level of meat prices is "fairly reasonable" compared with what it was when the government decided to return to the price control and that there no longer is a pressing demand for the restrictions.

"We were told to get them ready, and they are just about prepared," the spokesman said. When the government gives the go-ahead signal, the ceilings will be announced.

In mid-January when the government decided to return to controlled meat prices, bacon, beef and other cuts were high above their pre-Christmas level, mainly as a result of the higher rates negotiated in the 1948 food contracts with Britain.

The prices declined to a more stabilized level, however, when it was announced that ceilings were being reimposed.

4,800 Civil Servants To Get Pay Increase

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—(CP). — Salaray increases for about 4,800 federal civil servants, amounting to an estimated $840,000 ayear, were announced today by Finance Minister Abbott.

The raises cover office boys, messengers, telephone operators, review clerks, signal clerks, teletypists and executives' secretaries.

Mr. Abbott said the Civil Service Commission was continuing to study salary rates of those classes for which revisions had not yet been approved, and further statements may be expected from time to time."

Rye futures also showed an easier tone during early trade, but advanced in response to a firmer trend at Chicago. Class two wheat prices were reduced three cents from Thursday.

The United Kingdom was allocated 720,000 bushels of wheat under the Canadian wheat agreement.

Ban On Empty Coffins

OTTAWA, Feb. 21 — (CP). — The ban on the importation of coffins and caskets applies only to "unoccupied" coffins and caskets. Finance Minister Abbott said in the Commons. He said, when the government's import restrictions were announced a conscientious customs officer had asked for a ruling from Ottawa on whether the ban applied to occupied coffins.

Cotton Imports Aiding Britain

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—(CP). — Finance Minister Abbott said last night in the Commons that Canada's cotton import quotas are designed to enable Britain "to send us 10 times the yardage they sent us last year."

He said during committee discussion of the government's emergency exchange - conservation bill that "under existing conditions we are extremely anxious that Canadian importers should see what the British have to offer."

There was no effective quota restriction "for the time being" on British textiles but "an extremely efective one" on United States textiles.

He cited figures on the anticipated boots in cotton imports from the United Kingdom:

"In cotton, which is an important field, they gave us 8,000,000 yards last year and they hope to give us 80,000,000 this year."

published today, said: "The provincial commission requested the municipal commissions of Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, Windsor, and Peterborough to reduce their takings of electric power by specific amounts during specified times, and also requested these municipal commissions to, in the meantime, treat the request confidentially and not to give it to the press prior to notified to all municipalities on Monday."

2-Day Rest

Toronto expected to be free from power cutoffs today and Sunday but will return Monday to its daily schedule of two and possibly three 45-minutes breaks. Starting today the CBC's Toronto area stations, CBL and CJBC, reduce broadcasting time and the stations' power will be maintained as low as possible without interfering with normal coverage. CBL will broadcast from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m., CJBC from 7 a.m. to midnight.

The scarcity sent vigilante patrols into Hamilton streets last night. They checked on merchants who left window display lights burning.

Midland residents were warned to reduce power use 15 per cent or undergo cutoffs next week. A delegation to Toronto Monday will seek concessions for a shipyard where power curtailment has raised the threat of a layoff of 550 men.

Save 75 Million Year With Quotas On US Cars

OTTAWA, Feb. 21. (CP) — The saving in United States dollars through restrictions on the importation of motor cars will amount to $75,000,000 a year, Trade Minister Howe said last night in the Commons.

Speaking as the chamber continued detailed study of the government's currency conservation bill, he said preliminary estimates had placed this saving at $35,000,000 but the figure was moved sharply upwards when the import formula was devised.

Mr. Howe said imports of motor car parts last year amounted to $71,000,000. Imports of motor cars amounted to about $21,000,000.

Mr. Macdonnell said he was interested in knowing how the government had picked $35,000,000 as the figure of possible savings that could be made through the motor car industry.

Mr. Howe said the figure was set at the start of the program, but the government was interested in doing better and there was nothing to prevent them doing that.

The strikes and lockouts sections are aimed at cutting down the time involved in settling the labor-management disputes. Procedure described by the union as simplified would, the CCL estimated, cut by half the delay between the start of a dispute and the time at which a strike could be legally called if settlement failed.

One proposed section would prohibit strikes and lockouts while a union application for certification is pending.

Protests Deletions From Hansard Copy

OTTAWA, Feb. 21 — (CP), — Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) called on Commons members yesterday to stop having sections of their House remarks deleted from Hansard—the official record of debates—merely because they are "ashamed" of them.

His advice was prompted by the deletion from Hansard of an exchange Thursday among Solon Low, Social Credit leader, Maurice Hartt (L—Montreal Cartier) and John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge), which Speaker Gaspard Fauteux said had been done "with the consent of all the members concerned."

"Some things were said which were rather disgraceful," Mr. Knowles said today. "They were remarks about multiple marriages, anti-semitism, and a few things like that, and reference to a member not having sense enough to withdraw . . ."

"I was ashamed that such things were said on the floor of the House," Mr. Knowles said, but he protested against their having been edited from Hansard.

Alberta Dislikes Daylight Time

By The Canadian Press

A bill to ban daylight saving time in Alberta was introduced yesterday in the legislature at Edmonton. Saskatchewan's legislature ended its 10-day Throne Speech debate, the Quebec Legislative assembly devoted a seventh sitting to debate on a housing loan system and Manitoba's legislature discussed education and goldeyes.

Alberta's daylight time bill, a government measure aimed at averting confusion over clock-fixing, would authorize proclamation of fast time only if an agreement is reached with the Federal goveroment or two or more other provinces. Ten other bills, generally containing technical amendments to present legislation, were introduced and the Throne Speech debate opened.

Saskatchewan's Throne Speech debate ended with the C.C.F. government substained 43 to 5 on division after Agriculture Minister I. C. Nollet charged that railways and land companies had plunged prairie farmers into debt. The Throne Speech said legislation would be introduced to authorize municipal taxation of railway property.

50 Delegates Stage Walkout

TORONTO, Feb. 21 — (CP). — Fifty delegates, led by Geocge Harris, secretary of the United Electrical Workers (CIO) yesterday staged a "walkout" during a heated session of the Ontario Federation, Canadian Congress of Labor.

They left the meeting when they were denied privilege of abstaining from voting during a roll-call on a motion to accept the CCF as the Federation's "political arm."

During the subsequent din, the resolution giving full political support to the CCF was carried by a 121-5 vote.

Suppoeters of the Labor Progressive party fought to achieve a compromise that would have by-passed the roll-call vote but CCF proponents insisted on a "yes" or "no" decision.

Later, Mr. Harris said his union and those who walked out would "work vigorously" for election of a CCF government in Ontario.

During its day-long session, the Federation passed a resolution demanding return of price controls and subsidies on par with September, 1946, levels. The meeting also asked re-imposition of the Federal excess profits tax and prosecution of those "guilty of profiteering" since end of controls.

Demand Better Censorship Of US 'Pulp Magazines'

OTTAWA, Feb. 21. (CP) — Members of the three opposition parties joined in the Commons yesterday in calling for a more efficient government censorship of the types of publications entering Canada from the United States, including children's comic books and the so-called "pulp" magazines.

The discussion developed on consideration of an item in the government's currency conservation bill which prohibits the importation of publications falling within the comic and pulp classification.

Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—MacLeod) said he was pleased to see the ban being imposed but regretted that it had taken a dollar shortage to stir the government to action. The ban should be continued indefinitely beyond the currency shortage.

He felt that the federal government had a responsibility in the field of public morals and that the responsibility should not be left to the homes, the schools and the church. Unfortunately, the government was more interested in saving dollars than in saving morals.

R. R. Knight (CCF—Saskatoon) said he had "no great confidence" in the government's method of censoring incoming publications and urged that censorship be made more efficient and not left to customs officers since they could not be expected to have the qualifications.

J. M. Macdonnell (PC-Muskoka-Ontario) said he, too, felt censorship should be "handled wisely, because we must recognize that there is an infinite variety of opinions on the matter." The systems should not be "too rigid or unthinking."

Brantford Plans For Memorial Gathering Dust

Brantford has a forgotten Memorial Community Centre project that has been gathering dust for five years. It is similar in its general features to the Peterborough plans for a Centre with the exception that Brantford did not get around to collecting a fund. Their committee estimated at $375,000 the cost of an arena-auditorium, and proposed that the city council should subscribe $175,000, the rest of the money to be raised by public and private subscription.

They also recommended that $10,650 be provided for the preparation of drawings and that Earl Haig Park be developed as a civic recreation centre. The committee's report has never been studied, but Brantford Lions Club has undertaken the park development.

In the fourth year of the war the city council set up a post-war planning executive. One of its committees was assigned to recreational projects, devoted 18 months to enquiry and planning and submitted recommendations for a "multiple-use civic recreation building": The report has never been received by the city council. It was simply shelved, and last December the taxpayers rejected a municipal arena money bylaw. The committee studied 32 arena and auditorium projects in Canada and the United States, and its conclusion was that a sports arena and community auditorium could be combined.

Their opinion was that a municipal auditorium alone or a hockey arena alone could not be successful financial venture. Apparently the group of Brantford citizens did a thorough and painstaking job. They proposed accommodation for music and drama productions, lectures and forums, industrial gatherings, conventions and so on. The capacity was to be up 3,500 persons.

A composition floor was to be suitable for roller skating, dancing, box lacrosse with provision for making and removing ice for hockey, skating and carnivals, walls and roof acoustically designed for use as an auditorium, electric organ, public address system, kitchen, women's lounges, club rooms, small meeting rooms, bowling alleys, air-conditioning, and various other sections and refinements much in the same hopeful vision of Peterborough and its Centre committee. One of their foresighted observations was that the estimate of $375,000 "might not be applicable by the time any such project might be undertaken."

A review of the project in the Brantford Expositor suggests that the devoted work of the committee deserved a better fate.

Bomb Explodes 50 People Hurt

CAIRO, Feb. 21—(AP)—Fifty persons were reported injured, six seriously, last night when a bomb exploded at a branch of the Moslem Brotherhood Association. Police said they did not know whether the bomb had been thrown or planted.

The noise was heard for five miles. The injuries were caused by flying glass splinters from shattered windows. Some of those hurt were in a passing bus.

The Moslem Brotherhood Association has recruited Arab volunteers for Palestine fighting against Jews.

ASSISTANT TO HOWE — George J. McIlraith, MP, parliamentary assistant to Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, who is to address the annual meeting of the Peterborough West Liberal Association on Tuesday night.

Federal Riding Liberals To Reorganize

Election of a new executive and naming of officers preparatory to a complete re-organization of the federal riding of Peterborough West is on the agenda for the annual meeting of the Peterborough Liberal Association of Tuesday night in the Canadian Legion Hall.

George J. McIlraith, K.C., member for Ottawa West and parliamentary assistant to the Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Reconstruction will be the speaker.

Mr. McIlraith was first elected to the House of Commons in 1940 at the age of 32. He is regarded as a keen student and as one of the best informed younger members of the House. He has shown a particular interest in Canada's scientific research and recently as a part of a radio series "Report from Parliament Hill" delivered a most interesting address on the subject of research and scientific activities and the part the Dominion Government has played in this important work. Mr. McIlraith maintains that the National Research Council as the central and leading organ of the Government in the field of scientific endeavour can be adapted in its activities to meet the growing requirements of peace. In the same address, he pointed out that Canadians are dependent on external trade for about 35 per cent of their gross national income, and since they must produce good products to sell at a price which will compete successfully with other countries they are required not only to know the latest scientific methods and the newest products but also to apply the latest scientific knowledge to the practical problems arising in production.

By way of entertainment, the audience will be favored by several renditions from the Lift Lock City Four, the new Barber Shop Quartet.

Ask Government Dip Into Private Fortunes

By JAMES McCOOK

LONDON, Feb. 21 — (CP). — An aggressive element in the labor party now recommends the government should dip into private fortunes and extract up to 50 per cent as a capital levy.

Cabinet minister give no indication the proposal is acceptable but many of them must remember that it disagrees with the recommendations of a commission appointed by a labor government in 1924.

Its conclusion was that if a capital levy were imposed "the relief from debt which it offers would be insufficient to justify an experiment so large, difficult and full of hazard." The capital levy proposal disappeared from the party platform in 1927.

New advocates say conditions have changed. They argue that 25 years ago governments feared the financial and business structure of the country would be shaken by a levy on capital. The present labor government has brought the Bank of England under public ownership and assumed control over exchange, companies and finance generally which would help to prevent any general disorganization.

Winnipeg Plans To Tax Railway

WINNIPEG, Feb. 21 — (CP) — The City of Winnipeg is moving to repeal oy-law 148 passed by 180 electors in 1881 giving the Canadian Pacific Railway permanent exemption from city taxation.

It was reported today that Monday night council will be asked to consider repealing the by-law and also applying to the provincial government for ratification of such action by declaring that the rule in question is of no force or effect.

The steps were recommended in the interim report of W. P. Filmore, special counsel engaged by the city to investigate the whole qustion of tax exemptions in Winnipeg.

Only one person voted against by-law 148 which exempted the C.P.R. from city taxation in perpetuity, the railway in turn committing itself to mainain its principal stockyards and workshops in the city.

Film Deal

Mr. Howe, dealing with American films, said the government was in the midst of negotiations with motion picture producers in Hollywood which would result in a "very agreeable transaction" and bring Canada "some more concrete return" as well.

He declined to indicate the nature of the negotiations.

Harry Jackman (PC—Toronto Rosedale) suggested the government give priority to British films over American films and Mr. Howe said that if Mr. Jackman could suggest any way of bringing British films to Canada he would consider it.

Intolerance, Prejudice A Menace Speaker Tells Kiwanis Club

"Today we are faced with the pre-eminent fact that if civilization is to survive we must cultivate the science of human relationship, the ability of all people, of all kinds, to live together and work together, in the same world at peace."

Charles S. Watson, director of public relations of Canadian Breweries Ltd., in addressing the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the YMCA, quoted the above saying that was taken from President Roosevelt's radio address and was to be delivered by him. The President died the day before the address could be made.

The speaker played stress on the grave danger of intolerance and prejudice. "In our very land we must begin and sweep out prejudice. 'Prejudice is being down on what your not up on'," he quoted. "It's being down on French-Canadians when you don't know any French-Canadian, for a survey actually showed that 37 per cent of the English-Canadians who dislike French-Canadians have never met one of them"

"On this continent it has been proven over a period of almost two centuries that decent, honorable and well-disposed people can decently and amiably live together whether they are Jews, Methodists, Buddhists, Baptists, Catholics or Quakers," he continued, "and in a world torn by suspicion, intolerance, mistrust and jealousy there is greater need for a program of true and lasting public relations that at any time since time began. Are we fouling our own nest with racial and religious intolerance, hatred and mistrust? Are we breeding bitterness, animosity and estrangemen by our own supid dealing of management and labor, each with the other?

"My whole life," asid Mr. Watson, "is bound up in public relations, business and businessmen must give leadership in putting our Canadian house in order, an essential pre-requisite to our participation in any global housecleaning. The first element of this program must be honesty, but it's a two-way deal and there must be honesty on the part of the worker too. There must be honesty in his leaders, honesty in negotiation, honesty in such fundamentals as the giving of an honest day's work for an honest day's pay." Quoting from Henry Ford, the speaker said that "No wage is too high that is earned."

All Are Important

"To implement our program of public relations, we must remember that the most sensible aim of management and labor should be to produce the most good things for good people by good means. We can do that only if we are mutually confident, friendly trusting and honest." When Andrew Carnegie was asked what was the most important factor in industry, Labor, Capital or Brains, the latter remarked, "Which is the most important leg on a three-legged stool."

"B[illegible]ndustry," the speaker concluded, must have a sense of social responsibility, and recognize and discharge its obligations to the community. It must support to the full the good things of the neighborhood and the nation. Too many business institutions think that they owe no particular allegiance to the communities in which they operate. If they take something out of the community, whether it be sales, manpower, raw materials, or the utilization of the natural resources bestowed upon it by nature, they must put something back into it. Discharging our obligations to the community means, being a good neighbor. We can do this by paying employees fair wages. Giving them good and safe working conditions. Adequate vacations with pay, and supporting worth-while projects of the community, the town, the province and the nation.

No company can bask in the warm unfiltered sunshine of public approval unless it supports all the worthwhile projects of the community, not only with money but with the active and useful help of all its men and women who are able to take part in such affairs.

Mr. Watson was introduced by Jack Allen and a vote of thanks was moved by Al Clarke.

Parents Make Mistakes, Too YPU Discussion Indicates

ROSENEATH, Feb. 21 (ENS)—The discussion at the YPU meeting held Wednesday night had the subject, "Is it ever right to go against parents' wishes?" After discussion the principal findings were: There are two extremes, over-protection by parents when all decisions are made for children, and under-protection when the child is thrown on his own resources without advice or wise restraint. "Let us be frank and round out the picture by saying parents are human and make mistakes." The discussion was led by Miss Aureen Brown.

The meeting was held in the Town Hall, Howard Lemon presided, and Rev. R. C. White read the Scripture.. W. Hydro Power Shortage

The Commission believe that a reduction of 15% in the amount of power used in Peterborough can be accomplished by voluntary conservation on the part of all users, and that an opportunity should be provided to accomplish the necessary reduction.

Providing this reduction can be accomplished and maintained from day to day until further notice, no compulsory power cuts would likely be necessary. However, failure to reach a reduction of 15% will necessitate compulsory action.

Extending George St. Southward

It is good news indeed that the Exhibition Board has shown willingness to work with the City Council in extending George Street through the exhibition grounds into the South End of the city. For too many people the South End is unknown country. Yet south of the fairground there is a residential district which is growing rapidly—though not as rapidly as it will grow when it has direct access to the remainder of the city through the Exhibition Ground, and when the city's principal thoroughfare is extended into its midst. Such an extension will be a tonic to the South End, removing many a source of grievance. And it will be a surprise for many citizens, also, to learn what a thriving community the South End is.

* * *

When it took its stand on the extension of George Street the Exhibition Board also expressed its intention of improving the appearance of the Exhibition Ground, removing the present unsightly fence and putting a wire fence in its place. This will certainly be a forward step, even though it seems a pity that such a large area (and a possible park) should be fenced in at all, simply to keep people out of it during one week in the year. However, a new wire fence and some careful planting of trees and shrubs could improve the appearance of the Exhibition Ground, which is now a dead area in an important part of the city, and a decided barrier between the South End and the remainder of the city. For some time it has been felt that some changes should be made in its appearance and possibly also in its use, and it is good to learn that the Exhibition Board share this opinion.

The De Valera Ends

There is a contradictory comic-opera Irishness about Eamon de Valera and his career. He was born in New York, his father was a Spaniard but his mother was Irish and he fought for the 'wearing of the green', suffering imprisonment, coming under sentence of death and having to escape to exile in his native land—the United States. He was elected to the parliament at Westminister in 1917 but sat in a Dail (or Irish Parliament) in Dublin of which he became President. When the "trouble"—which amounted to an Anglo-Irish war—subsided in 1921 he resigned the Presidency and by 1924 was leading the Sinn Finn as a Republican party with a policy of abstention—this time not from Westminster, but from the Dail in Dublin.

In 1927 he had a new party, the Fianna Fail ('Soldiers of Destiny') and led it to power in the Free State Parliament. He took the oath of allegiance to the King and at the same time explained that the oath was "an empty political formula". After 1932 de Valera became president of the Executive Council and abolished the oath of allegiance to the Crown. He continued, however, to issue passports in the name of King George. He is ardently nationalistic, but was President of the League of Nations Assembly in 1933. He kept Eire (the Free State) neutral during the war, but thouands of Irish young men joined the British forces and fought with courage and brilliance under the banner of the British King. Though neutral, his government was unofficially deporting British fliers, who had come down over Eire, across the Ulster-Free State boundary which does not exist according to the constitution of Eire. In 1945 he seemed to be more sure of Hitler's death than were the heads of other states, for he sent official condolences to Berlin.

Last Wednesday when the deputies of the 13th Dail met they voted 75 to 70 against de Valera's re-election as Prime Minister. The Fianna Fail has the largest representation but de Valera had affirmed that he would not form a coalition government. The high cost of living, hard times in the countryside, a feeling among extreme nationalists that de Valera has been playing cricket with the British during the last year or two, and a sentiment that he has been too long in office in a country uneasy if politics are not politically tempestuous, contributed to his set-back at the polls early this month.

It was not an Ulster Orangeman who stood up on his bench in the Dail when the votes for election to the premiership were announced and shouted: "Thanks be to God I have lived to see this day". Indeed, many Ulstermen and Britishers will be rather regretful that "Dev" is no longer head of the Dail. His anti-British attitude has mellowed in the last decade, for he is realistic enough to know that the Irish economy is inseparable from the British, and that in the late past as well as the uncertain future, isolationism is a blind policy. The times and the moods have changed from the days of the Irish Republican Army and the Black-and-Tans. 'That fellow' is now considered a fairly decent sort, so they say in Ulster, even as they pun about the three stages in Ireland's history—the pagan era, the Christian era and de Valera. The de Valera regime has ended, for the time. It is an indication of Eire's political maturity.

Do Not Let The Figures Frighten Us

For the first time a Federal Cabinet Minister has given a definite figure as an immigration goal. Mr. Gardiner, the Minister of Agriculture, speaking to the Empire Club of Toronto, said that the aim was to secure half a million immigrants from Britain and Europe every year for the next decade. By that time he hoped that the flow would have risen to a million. The Honourable Dana Porter, Ontario Planning Minister, said this week in London (Ontario) that he expected that the population of Ontario will rise by one million in the next ten years:—four hundred thousand by natural increase, six hundred thousand by immigration.

Canada can afford to expand, and her industrial development demands a greater population to absorb the manufactured products. Mr. Gardiner's annual half-million (even if the immigration reaches that level; it will not happen this year) will not mean that Canada will acquire that many new citizens every year. The drain to the United States will continue. It is well to set our sights high, for once Canada's population gets beyond the fifteen million hump, the expanding economy will become more integrated and self-sufficient, and the nation will grow by natural leaps and bounds.

Children In Urgent Need

We offer no excuse for our repeated appeals through these columns on behalf of the fund to aid the children of Europe. There are no diseases of malnutrition among these children, we learn, because such diseases are the result of unwise feeding, whereas the European children are suffering from simple starvation. Peterborough has shown the depth of its humane feeling in many ways during the war years; we know that this city will not fail to do its duty in this instance.

From the Ottawa Citizen we reprint this poem, which touches poignantly upon the point which we have stressed above:

Mothers rise at dead of night
In fear of blankets not quite tight.
"I think I heard a sound" they'll say,
And softly move across the way
To stand by children breathing deep.
("Now I lay me down to sleep")
And smooth the rumpled strands of hair...
Tonight, when you are watching there.
Think on these...on children's faces
In the bitter, barren places,
Can you sleep, who hear their cry?
("Now I lay me down to die".)
Where those other mothers stay
In aching vigil; while they pray
"Not tonight, Lord. Pass him by".

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Palestine partition confronts President Truman with one of the most dangerous diplomatic problems in recent U.S. history", says an American contemporary. Rather a change from the days when Great Britain held the bag alone, isn't it?

The latest scientific guess puts the age of the world at 2,200,000,000 years. And of course it is only during the last million or so that it has suffered from that tiresome, quarrelsome parasite, Man. One of these days the old girl will give herself a thorough de-lousing, and settle down for a few aeons of peace.

A McGill scientist says bluntly that "porpoises have as much fun as people". We don't doubt it for a moment; in fact, we think it is an understatement. We would vacate our editorial chair to live the life of a porpoise any time.

Diary Of A Drama Orgy

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Miserable today with my first cold in twenty months. Let those who lightly accuse me of hypochondria take note that not a sneeze or a hoot has been heard from me for almost two years. My present indisposition is the result of wet feet; I have become so ashamed of my overshoes (which I bought in 1943) that I tried to do without them, and this concession to worldly vainglory has brought me low....Talked this afternoon to a university professor who told me that he recently had the job of overseeing a large group of students who were writing an examination in psychology; at least half of these young sophisticates, he said, had lucky pennies, or rabbits' feet, or ju-ju dolls, or other good luck charms, on their desks as they wrote. This strengthens my belief that education does not really alter character, but merely intensifies it, making foolish people more foolish, superstitious people more superstitious, and of course wise people wiser. But the wise are few and lonely.

◇ ◇ ◇

MONDAY: I see that a statistical clergyman has computed that everybody living today has had 16,777,216 ancestors. This is a figure which puts heart into a man. That so many people lived and died, and knew joy and sorrow, presumably for no greater end than to contribute him to the human race, is a thought to cheer anyone. It also gives everybody a chance to claim a few distinguished ancestors; after all, it is not likely that all among those 16,777,216 were mutts and incompetents. Some must have made a stir in the world; some must have won the esteem of their fellows.

◇ ◇ ◇

TUESDAY: Tried to explain the significance of Lent to some children this morning, but found it hard to make the principle of self-denial comprehensible to them. That one should refrain from doing something one wants to do as a spiritual exercise seems peculiar to a child, and as I agree with them with the heretical half of my mind, I cannot put my full weight into any theological dispute which may ensue....Was asked what I myself was giving up for Lent. "Showy displays of personal prowess such as running upstairs, lifting heavy weights and walking great distances" I replied, without batting an eye....Looked over the year's Valentine displays, which are more degraded in verse, and more vilely spotted with doggies, pussies, and bunnies than usual. Modern love, as reflected in Valentines, in on a depressingly infantile level.

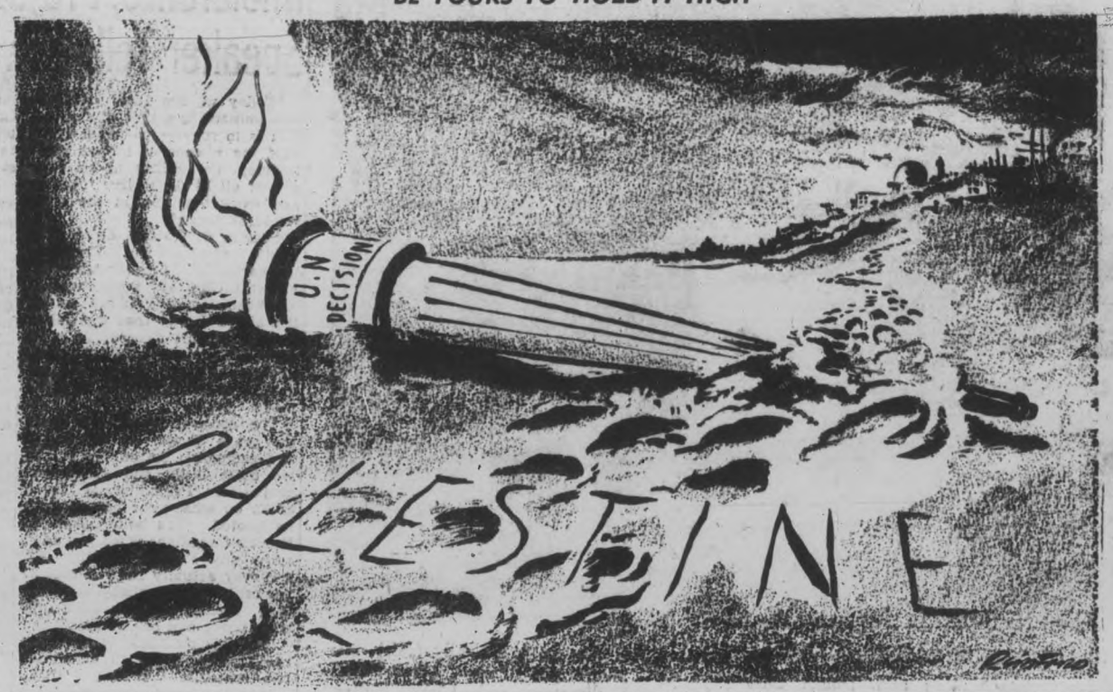
◇ ◇ ◇

WEDNESDAY: To the movies, and when Barbara Ann Scott appeared in a newsreel I set up a great clapping and hullabaloo, hoping to provoke a demonstration in her favour. But my warm-hearted fellow-countrymen must have been sitting on their hands, for no one joined me, and I was made to look like a foolish enthusiast, or a relative of the skating champion. It is my belief that the Second Coming will cause very little popular enthusiasm in Eastern Ontario. ....The film was "The Barber of Seville", beautifully sung. A commentary and explanation of the piece was given by Deems Taylor, who looked and spoke like Edgar Bergen mourning the death of Charlie McCarthy. Nevertheless the music was as fresh and delightful as ever. I believe that Rossini is rather looked down on by modern musicians, but he could write wonderful tunes, and that is a very rare gift. Most musicians today appear to regard a tune as an unfortunate lapse of taste, and get away from it as fast as they can. Let those who do not believe me try to hum a few bars from "Peter Grimes" or some other modern opera.

◇ ◇ ◇

THURSDAY: To Kingston, to attend the Eastern Ontario Drama Festival. All these festivals have many factors in common. The small people are always seated behind the big people, and even the biggest people are apt to find themselves behind middle-sized people who have fuzzy hair or are wearing huge hats; the proportion of coughers in every festival audience is constant, and they whoop up the rags of their lungs with the same revolting relish year after year; the pictures of theological professors on the wall are as disapproving as ever, though as their paint fades they become more remote from the scene; the actors, whether they are playing earls or garbage men, are all linked in the same conspiracy never, under any circumstances, to polish their shoes; doors which opened inward at dress rehearsals show a baffling tendency to open outward at performances; and, among the audience, blood lust against the adjudicator rises hour by hour, as he probes the sore spots, the malformations and the tuberculous lumps of each festival offering with a pitiless finger. It is all fascinating but painful, and in Spain where the bullfight is enjoyed, drama festivals are strictly forbidden as inhumane.

◇ ◇ ◇



FRIDAY: Find time in the midst of the festival to make a hospital visit, and have a chance to observe several internes while cooling my heels in the halls. In the movies, whenever Gregory Gable or Clarke Peck pretends to be an interne, he wears a beautifully fitted white suit which shows his hairy forearms (and if a nurse had wool like that on her arms she would be thrown out of the profession as insanitary, but never mind that) and swathes his neck in a roundabout collar which gives him a fetchingly clerical look. But in real life internes tend to be fellows with no chests, and their pants have been so shrunk by the laundry that they walk as though they were being sawn in two, which is probably the case....A festival actor confided to me today that he awoke this morning with a horrible headache, which was aggravated by a loud fiendish sneering noise near his pillow; as he painfully hoisted one gummy eyelid he observed that the noise was made by a fizzing glass of bromo-seltzer which a kind friend had prepared for him. This just shows what sensitive fellows actors are.

◇ ◇ ◇

SATURDAY: A play about Irishmen, written by a man with a German name, engaged the attention of the festival-goers this afternoon. It made a liberal — not to say prodigal — use of a peculiar type of speech never heard in Ireland, or anywhere but in such plays as this. In this play, if one character said "Good morning" to another, he was likely to get some such answer as this: "Houly St. Pathrick, Barney O'Lunacy, sure an bedad tis yerself is just afther kissin' the Blarney Stone, at all, at all!" I rather like plays in which pretty girls confess their readiness to be loved by anybody at all, and in which old Irishmen cry into red handkerchiefs without any apparent reason, and in which policemen are much wittier than they ever are in real life—but I cannot bear these things when expressed in phoney Irish dialect. If I have to listen to more than one act of such stuff, sure 'an 'tis meself is the boyo that's after throwin' up in the aisle. So I crept from the scene, and refreshed myself by listening to a couple of real Irishmen who were digging a hole in the street nearby, and who conversed solely in grunts.

Letters To The Editor

RESENTS TONE OF HYDRO REBUKE

Sir: So far as I can remember, this is the first time that our local Hydro has run into difficulties, and I am sorry to read in your paper of Thursday that they have lost their heads and their manners because of it. Could anything be more foolish than to threaten the public in the hope of getting them to co-operate in any kind of saving? And when a publicly owned utility threatens the public through the mouth of its manager there is surely something wrong.

Ontario Hydro has made a mess of things and that is all the public knows. No coherent explanation of the mess has been given by anyone, and we need not expect anything of the kind from a semi-government concern, which is expert at blaming everyone but themselves for their failures. But we can protest when we are lectured like a lot of naughty children by our own local Hydro. Public servants should not assume the airs of public masters.

Many people who have been doing their honest best to save power were annoyed by Mr. Dobbin's tone. Personally, I have been saving all the current I can for months—few lights, no heaters, no extras of any kind and not even a front porch light to welcome my friends at night. A lot of my friends have been doing the same, and my section of town looks pretty black after sunset. If the Hydro wants to get ugly about power, I for one, will be ugly too, and will use all the electric current I can get to heat my water, etc.

If Hydro wants to confess that it has landed us in a mess and ask us to help get it out by saving power, that is one thing. But if Hydro wants to lecture and nag us, we, the owners of Hydro and the employers of Mr. Dobbin, are going to resent it.

Yours sincerely, Sir,
WEST-ENDER.

THE COMMON FARMER

Sir: So much today is being stressed on the specialized farming; if all became specialized, what would happen?

Through centuries the common farmer has fed humanity, through wars and droughts, depressions; his instinct has been to produce, to nurture. To do this he must save in the good years to provide against the lean years which he knows from experience always come. But in the last war years it was impossible to do this; ceiling prices on his products, sky high labour, soaring costs prevented, and so that mainstay, the unspecialized producer, has been bankrupt by his own production.

The specialized farmer has kept afloat by manipulations and business deals on purebred cows, the black and white cow had no price ceiling or limit, it was allowed full play. Beef was rationed and ceilinged by request and further discouraged by bony carcases of black and whites. The aristocracy of the bovine world, has been to the common, what the aristocracy of the human was to its common. In the last analysis who shall say which has benefitted mankind most.

As you can see lifing of ceilings was the remedy, and to reimpose on food only will mean disaster for many, if that is done we shall say to our land, "Land you and I shall take a vacation—a rest—a breathing spell—you will be seeded down, young cattle will roam over you, no more hungry hogs will further deplete you. I will mend your broken fences, study that nice new simple (?) income tax book, read the Bible, mark time, until the world comes to its senses".

COMMON FARMER'S WIFE.

DARE HYDRO BREAK ITS CONTRACT?

Sir: In tonight's paper I see that they might cut off the current to the flat-rate water heaters. I know that the Hydro is short of electricity but I hope very much that they do not do that because I have a baby and have a lot of washing to do every day and it would be very difficult to have to heat all the water on the stove. That is another thing. The stove is an electric stove and if they start cutting off the electricity into the house as well as the heater I shall not even be able to use the stove to heat the water.

I am sure that everybody wants to help the Hydro all they can but I don't think they should cut off the water heaters. Mine hasn't been doing very well anyway and I am sure that we don't waste water in our house. We don't use very much in the bath tub because we need all the hot water that heats up these days for the baby's things.

A little while ago I took a look at the card we have which is a contract. On the back there are a lot of "Conditions" and there are ten or eleven for us that say what we have to do and there are sentences about "acts of God". There are only three or so that say what the Hydro has to do. One of them says "interruptions shall in no event exceed 10% of the total number of hours in any month". That is what the Hydro has to do. So they can't cut off the flat-rate water heaters can they? Unless they break the contract. If we have to keep up the contract, doesn't the Hydro? Of course, if they didn't, I am sure I don't know what I could do about it because an ordinary person couldn't sue the Hydro.

Sometimes they frighten me the way big firms especially government ones order people around. I am sure I don't know but they are already putting a lot less current into the heaters than they are supposed to. Please if you print this letter don't use my name, because the Hydro mightn't like it and might take out the heater which I can't do without because of the baby and the children. It's not nice to say that I know because I'm sure the Peterborough Hydro men are Christian gentlemen not like the Toronto men who pulled the switch, but they still might be mean in spite of them being brought up to be decent and thoughtful.

Yours respectfully,
"MOTHER OF THREE".

Ed. Note: Our correspondent is mistaken. An ordinary person most decidedly can sue the Hydro for breach of contract. Hydro is owned by the people and is in no way above the law.

Outdoors

With PETE McGILLEN

ROTARY CLUb at Haliburton is investigating the potentialities of the village as a winter sports centre. They hope to promote and develop the area for skiing and attract American tourists. Preliminary planning is careful and these shrewd business men are feeling their way along hoping to get all the facts before they make a decision. They will invite expert skiers from U. of T. club and Toronto Ski club, along with a few staff members from the Dept. of Travel and Publicity to advise on the suitability of the terrain and the existing accommodation. The Rotary committee has in mind a winter carnival, hockey tournament, dog-sleigh races, speed skating, ski-joring, snowshoe races, in short the whole program of winter sports that have spectator appeal. They hope, too, to build a ski tow and toboggan slide.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

LET'S TAKE A WHACK at analysing the possibilities. First, the terrain is suitable, and snow conditions ideal. That huge hill behind the village is perfect, for jumping, skiing, downhill races. A little work could produce some lovely trails in the area that would take care of the skiers who do not want to tackle dangerous slopes. Second—The highway could be kept open and that's a must. Train service from what I know about it is a dead duck, but buses could be run from Lindsay, Peterborough, Oshawa and Toronto. The covered rink would be ideal for the hockey and ice events. The dog races could be run on Grass lake and down the main street, as could the snowshoe races, and the ski-joring. Now comes the ticklish part—accommodation. There is one hotel in the village. But plenty of lodges within five miles of the village. Unfortunately several of these lodges are the cabin type — that's out. Nobody wants to freeze to death in a stove-heated non-insulated cabin. Skiers and spectators want comfort. Several of the lodges within easy distance could be equipped with central heating plants, and would take care of a great many people.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

WHO WOULD BENEFIT. Revenue would come to the lodges, the hotels, the garages, restaurants, grocery stores, sporting goods stores, service stations, private tourist homes, and the rink. But above all, every resort owner would benefit by increased summer business arising out of the publicity obtained through having winter visitors. I doubt very much if Americans could be attracted in the winter. However Toronto skiers and fun-lovers would flock in droves to the Highlands once the idea took hold, and if the publicity reached them. Peterborough with 35,000 people would provide a lot of customers. The area would benefit tremendously because a winter carnival is something that catches the public fancy and if a few trick events were thrown in, the editors of newspapers would play it up.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

NOW, LET'S LOOK AT THE OTHER SIDE. Such a program would require a tremendous amount of planning, time, and hard work. Merchants would have to donate prizes. Skiers are notorious for their destructive habits, so lodge owners and hotel owners would have to toss a few, hard-drinking, furniture-smashing artists into the street, bag and baggage. If it was made plain to the roisterers from the start that good, clean fun was OK, but vandalism was taboo, then there would be little trouble. The policeman would have to be both tough and sensible, because people on a holiday forget some of the laws they wouldn't dare break back home. Special snowplowing would be necessary, and this would cost money. Money would have to be spent for advertising. A ski-tow and toboggan slide would have to be built, but the toboggan slide would not cost much on that big hill. If a jump could be built, so much the better. It would be a long-term investment, and perhaps some lumberman would donate the timber. Hotels at Minden would have to be tied in to take care of the visitors overnight. Skiers are not heavy spenders, but many people might decide the lodges and hotels were good spots for a week's rest, and that would be an added source of revenue. There should be a hall big enough to hold a dance, that would make money.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

ONE THING I FORGOT. Providing food, accommodation, car service and store service would mean extra work and this would bring money to a great many people who could use it during the lean winter months. The restaurants, hotels and lodges would need considerable extra help. All in all, it looks like a venture that could be a financial success, but the Rotarians and all members of the Haliburton Tourist Association should give some thought to the long-range benefits that would accrue in new business arising out of the publicity and the visits of new customers. If they plan carefully, don't try to do too much the first year, then I feel it would be a worthwhile venture. Much good advice can be obtained from the skiers and the Provincial Dept. officials.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

DEER ARE STARVING in the Crown Game Preserve. Workmen building a hydro line north from the Nepheline Mines through the Apsley area to Haliburton have come across several dead deer in the woods. This sanctuary, one of the largest in Ontario, aside from Algonquin Park, embraces 88 square miles of wooded area. It is a perfect spot for deer, but the animals following an age-old habit yard-up in winter for their own protection. This means they select a section where there is plenty of food, then by tramping the snow, maintain well-beaten paths to the cedars, poplars and birch on which they feed. Unfortunately, the deer have increased to such an extent that the yards are crowded and deep snow has restricted their movements, with the result they have exhausted the food within reach. One, year-old doe is so tame, it bunts the door of one of the hydro camps when it is hungry and the workmen feed it. The hydro men say action must be taken at once, or the deer will starve wholesale.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

BOB McCABE, president of the Peterborough Fish and Game, is waiting for Charles Kingan, chairman of the committee on deer to make his report. Mr. Kingan with Chris Graham and the game overseer visited the area on Thursday and by the time this column appears, action should be underway. The Association will probably take the easiest and most effective method of supplementing the food supply, by hauling in truckloads of cedar trees. This is the food the deer want, and has the vitamins they require to sustain them in excellent health. The cedar trees could be trucked as far as the road is open, then transferred to sleighs and hauled right into the yarded areas. Last winter the same condition existed, but the local Association found out about it too late to do any good. Under the direction and supervision of Charlie Kingan, acting in co-operation with the natives, a close watch has been kept this year, and the situation should be corrected within a week. However, this will cost money, and it is likely many members will say "Why didn't the County Council kick in?"

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

TOURIST RESORT OWNERS are extended a cordial invitation to attend a meeting being held Tuesday, Feb. 24, in Lakefield Memorial Hall. This meeting is sponsored by the Lakefield Chamber of Commerce and Hon. G. Arthur Welsh, Minister of Travel and Publicity with his Deputy, Thos. C. McCall is expected to attend. This attempt to organize the services of the district is commendable, and should stimulate interest and co-operation from the resort owners. Above all, the Lakefield men want tourists to go away as satisfied customers, and they feel that a little well-planned organizing now can contribute plenty to this feeling of satisfaction and happiness. It is to be hoped that Ted Weir, President of the Peterborough Chamber and Jim Dorris, secretary, will also be invited, because the two organizations will go further working together. One thing that is needed is a night information service for the travelling public. When a tourist who has failed to make reservations reaches a tourist area, and finds no person on hand to answer questions, he gets sour.

School of Journalism Pioneering New Field of Education In Canada

By JAMES ENGLISH

Chattering typewriters cease at the shout of "Deadline!" Late stories flood onto the U-shaped copy desk at the front of the newsroom, to be assembled in the final making-up. Re-write men and sub-editors slip out for coffee, their day's work done. The scene is not the city room of a large Canadian newspaper, but the college newsroom of the University of Western Ontario's department of journalism in London, Ontario.

In 1945, under the direction of George W. McCracken, just released from the Wartime Information Bureau in Ottawa, the university pioneered in a new field of education for Canada. A department was set up in which students could proceed to an arts degree, supplemented by practical newspaper training. This spring, the first 27 graduates will leave the university to test their classroom skills in the working newspaper field.

Patterned after similar courses offered in United States colleges, the department aims to give graduates the benefits of a general arts education as well as practical instruction. With this in mind, entrants with senior matriculation are required to spend their first year at the university studying general arts subjects with emphasis on history and economics. During the final two years, practical subjects share only equal status with arts subjects.

In specialized journalism, courses are given in news-writing and reporting. Of special use in this regard are the Canadian and New York wires of Canadian Press which are installed in the department, and the natural news sources provided by the university and its medical school.

Basic principles of newspaper make-up constitute a portion of second year students' work, and once a week the "Fingal Fulminator," named after the rebuilt Air Force building housing the department, is made up.

Third year journalism brings news photography and editorial writing to the fore, coupled with an intensive study of world affairs and advanced make-up.

Included in practical subjects are the history of journalism and law of the press. Dr. J. J. Talman, university librarian, lectures in history of journalism and is planning a book on the history of Canadian journalism, the first such work in that field. Law of the press lectures, stressing libel and copyright, are given by J. F. McMillan, a practising lawyer in London, whose sisters has been for several years a prominent Canadian women's editor.

The study of municipal government as a news source, made during the student's second year, takes him behind the scenes in city council, fire and police departments, and other municipal organizations. Small groups of students work with these various departments during the spring term, learning their methods of operation.

Though only thirty students can be accommodated in the course each year, so far eighty or more have registered for journalism in the past three freshman years. Marks, ability and an aptitude interview provide a basis for selection of the thirty who will enter. Professor McCracken believes the interview to be the major part of selection, since "many find then that they have no realistic view of journalism—they are looking to journalism as a means to an end."

Students are not isolated from working journalists during their training at the university. The UWO Press Club regularly brings special speakers who inform students on various phases of newspaper work in Canada. To date, such prominent speakers as B. K Sandwell, A. D. Dunton and William Hogg have addressed this body. In addition, members of the editorial staff of the London Free Press are frequent visitors and lecturers in the classrooms.

Practical experience during the course is gained not only in the student newsroom, but in summer employment on newspapers across Canada. In the past summer members of both classes worked on the staffs of Canadian dailies and weeklies, in the offices of Canadian Press, in publishing companies and other related jobs.

Students now in second and third year journalism come from all over Canada. British Columbia and New Brunswick have each contributed one, though the majority are from Ontario. Peterborough is well represented, with one student, Jack Cranford, in his senior year; two others, Bob Hatton and Jim English, in second year, and registered in his freshman year for journalism is Jack Brown.

Original sponsors of the department were Arthur R. Ford, editor-in-chief of the London Free Press, and now chancellor of the university, and Fred Landon, Western's vice - president and former librarian. Both men have extensive experience in Canadian newspaper work. Their continued interest in the course has been largely responsible for its success.

Professor McCracken, while admitting the necessity of practical experience, says:

"The student has been exposed to all the theory of news and feature writing. He has had extensive and some intensive practical training in nearly all the forms of news writing.

The result should be that the average graduate will be able to tackle any ordinary reporting assignment or newsroom job without further detailed instruction by a city editor. His progress should be swifter because he has an over-all, realistic picture of everything likely to be required of him in newspaper work. The cub, coming in without such a picture, may take weeks, months, or even years, to acquire it.

There is no substitute for practical experience. We can only give a fraction of that in the classroom. There is no possible way, in the making of a newspaperman, of by-passing this necessity of regular newspaper work, nor will it ever be desirable to by-pass it."

FIRST CHURCH IN LAKEFIELD — This picturesque little stone church was the first church to be built in the village of Lakefield.

Restoring of Old Church Built 94 Years Ago Planned

By F. M. ATWOOD

Christ Church, Lakefield, "this little gem of a Church," on Queen Street, was the first organized "full-time" congregation in the village and was one of the most outstanding examples of inter-denominational co-operation of churches. It was built by the labor of all sections of that pioneer community.

One of the great needs of the early Lakefield settlers was for a place — a permanent building — in which they could worship. For 20 years, they were dependent upon the occasional visits from clergymen, lay readers and laymen. The services were held in the homes.

In 1840, an Irish clergyman named Wolesley, an uncle of Sir Garnet Wolesley, settled in the village. He held services in his own home.

One of the laymen who attended to the conducting or religious services in the village was a "Mr. Hilton," and also there was Rev. Mark Burnham, a circuit clergymen, who held services in Lakefield from time to time. Reports are that his schedule of services was heavy and covered a wide area.

One of the earliest settlers in the district, Colonel Sam Strickland, was perhaps the man who had the most to do in building the first church. Much of the funds for its erection were collected by him in England, with generous donations from friends in Canada. Members of the village council voted a grant, and it is recorded that the village fathers gave willingly of their time in helping with the building.

Col. Strickland said to his neighbours: "Come along, bring your teams and help us . . . when you are ready to build your church, we will help you." With little urging, many members of the community responded and, true to the promise, the members of the Anglican congregation cooperated in building the other churches erected later.

The first resident clergyman of the little church was Rev. Percy Warren, BA, who came from England. Arriving in 1854, he was there to see the completion of the building and officiated at its opening on Christmas Day of that year.

Built of stone, in the Gothic style of architecture, it was dedicated as "Christ Church" by Bishop Stratchen in 1855.

In a little over ten years, the congregation had grown so large that the original building could no longer accommodate it, and the present 200-capacity building was put up in 1866.

Since that time, the old Church has been used as a Sunday School room and Parish Hall for meetings of various church organizations.

Recent years have resulted in neglect of the historic graveyard of the church, containing the remains of many of the pioneers of the community. Men of the parish are now engaged in restoring this graveyard to order. The campaign should be completed by spring.

This month, the Women's Auxiliary of the church marks its 60th anniversary. To commemorate the occasion, it has started a fund for the restoration of the old church interior, planning to first add a much-needed kitchen to the premises. It will be on the north side of the building, where the original vestry stood. The addition will be built of stone, to match the main building.

The drive is to be a memorial to all those who, from the first days of the community, gave faithful service to the work of the church.

Veteran Claims Wolves Wary of Traps

By W. J. COTTRELL

Deer hunting days for George Albert Henry, Marmora's oldest nimrod, are long passed but the retentive memory of this 94-year-old resident supplies the listener with many interesting stories of when he was a worthy rival of Hiawatha.

Albert, with the humor that he has inherited from his Irish ancestory, spoke of when the deer hunting season went a full three months and there was no law forbidding the sale of venison to would-be purchasers. He mentioned that he catered to judges and lawyers in that respect because he thought they made easy money and he had no qualms about accepting payment.

His parents moved from Collins Bay to Madoc Township attracted by the gold rush when Albert was about 10 years of age. They settled near Mullett's Corners. With some 30 other scholars he was educated at the nearby school known as Rigg's School. John Law was his teacher, and Albert says in jocular fashion that he has since never run foul of the law nor been "put in the coop".

It was not long after his school days that he took an interest in shooting. He and a friend used an Evans' rifle and they missed few shooting matches where turkeys and geese were the prizes. They would practise together before the matches so as to acquire the same precision.

Won Nine Turkeys

On one occasion when firing over a 90-rod range, Albert outshone all comers winning nine turkeys and a goose while other contestants got no more than one bird apiece.

"What happened that your friend missed out on high honors?" he was asked.

"I'll tell you," he replied, "they came around before the match with whisky in a pail; I refused and he accepted."

Twenty-two years were spent by the Henrys in the Madoc district, and then they moved to Musclow, eight miles northeast of Bancroft. This meant a further good opportunity for Albert to continue hunting.

300 Pound Deer

The largest deer he ever shot, he stated, was about three hundred pounds in weight. On one occasion he shot a white deer. He told of several stratagems he had tried to get within range of wolves, but on all occasions he had been either outlucked or out-tricked. Many times he tried lying down waiting for them to approach before he opened fire, but this proved unsuccessful.

"After shooting a deer I have placed brush around the carcass. They would steal up to the brush but no further, acting as though they were suspicious of a trap."

"I have never been attacked by a wild animal," he said, "but I have at various times been followed by a lynx. Shortly after I was married, a lynx followed my wife and I on the road through the woods for two miles."

"Yes, I see scenes passing before my eyes yet as I recall those past days," interposed Mrs. Henry. "I wouldn't want to live some of those days over again."

Mrs. Henry is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Castle Hawley, born at Sheffield in the Tamworth district. Her parents moved to Dungannon township and it was at their home that she became the bride of Mr. Henry. Rev. George Scammell, Anglican Mission of Bancroft, performed the ceremony.

Until coming to their present apartments on Forsyth St., Marmora, 10 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Henry spent well over a half century in Musclow.

Two-day Trip

They recall how the journey from Madoc to Bancroft by stage used to take two days with a night stopover at Murphy's Corners. At one time, they remember, Bancroft was not large enough to have an hotel. William Davies kept the boarding house, Charles George and Fred Hawes, the two stores, and another man, a harness shop.

A saw-mill and a grist mill were also there. Those who felt the absence of an hotel visited the one at Bird's Creek which lies between Bancroft and Maynooth.

They saw the lumbering industries come into that district to make Bancroft into the prosperous and attractive village it is today.

Father Lived To Be 100

Mr. Henry could give no reason why he should have attained the advanced age of 93 unless it was the influence of heredity. His father was nearly 100 when he died. He is fond of his pipe and has been smoking since he was about 12 years of age.

While living in the northern part of Hastings County, Mr. and Mrs. Henry made a discovery on the property of a neighbor which has

Song Birds Pay Their Way Destroyers of Insects, Weeds

By J. L. McKEEVER
Kawartha Conservation Association

One wonders how many people have ever stopped to think what Spring would be like without the colour and song of our returning bird friends. Half the joy of the first warm days would be gone if there were no first Robin of the season to see on the lawn and no bird-song to greet us in the Spring morning. The most prosaic among us would almost surely, after a little thought, concede that our birds merit at least some consideration merely because of the colour and music they add to life. However, there may be some for whom all value must be translated into dollars and cents. If this is so, the birds are indeed fortunate as they are beyond any doubt useful to man in the purely economic sense and truly "pay their way".

Much study has been put on the food habits of birds over the past 50 years, both by observation and stomach analysis and the study has proved conclusively that the song-birds are of inestimable value to man; both by eating harmful insects and their eggs and larvae, and by destroying the seeds of noxious weeds. The good that the birds of prey do, as distinct from the song-birds, has already been told in a previous article.

So useful and necessary are birds to successful agricultur ethat H. W. Henshaw, one-time Chief of the U.S. Biological Survey stated "It is more than likely, in fact almost certain, that without the services of birds not only would successful agriculture soon become impossible, but the destruction of the greater part of all vegetation would follow."

Song birds, as is probably well known to most, may be divided roughly into two main groups, the typical seed-eaters such as the sparrows and finches with their short, thick bills adapted to the cracking of seeds, and the insect eaters with their comparatively longer, thinner bills.

As destroyers of weed seeds the sparrows and their relatives are of inestimable value to the farmer and some idea of their potentialities may be gleaned from some of the figures published in various papers issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. For instance, in the stomach of a single Tree Sparrow has been found 700 seeds of Pigeon Grass; in that of a Snow Bunting 1,000 Pig-weed seeds; in that of a Mourning Dove 7,500 seeds of the Yellow Wood Sorrel. The figures are incredible and the list endless but these few will suffice. Probably nearly everyone reading this article has seen for himself a flock of Goldfinches feeding on thistles or mullein.

Figures published for the insect eaters are just as startling. The stomach of a single Cedar Waxwing has been found to contain as many as 100 Canker worms; that of a Chickadee 450 Plant Lice or Aphids; and that of a Nighthawk 60 Grasshoppers. Only such detailed analysis can give quantitative results but almost everyone who has watched birds at all must have been struck by the veritable army of birds which contribute to the protection of our forest and garden trees; the Woodpeckers bore after the harmful grubs and beetles under the bark, the Nuthatches and Creepers explore every nook and cranny of the bark, while Warblers and Vireos seeks insect eggs and larvae on the leaves and twigs.

As a destroyer of insects that breed disease, birds stand in even closer economic relationship to man. Over 500 mosquitoes have been found in the stomach of a single Nighthawk (known to many as the Mosquito Hawk). Swallows and other wing feeding birds also feed on mosquitoes which in larvae form, are also eaten by various marsh-inhabiting birds.

It is impossible in a short article such as this to present more than a bare outline of the facts but it is hoped that what has been said is sufficient to enlist the help of the reader in furthering the protection of such an attractive, as well as useful form of wild-life. The Migratory Birds Convention Act of 1916, which made the killing of Song-birds illegal in the U.S. and Canada, is perhaps their most powerful protector, but to make any law really effective, it must have public support. Parents and teachers may do much to educate boys and girls to appreciate and protect our birds, while no parent should give a boy a .22 air, or spring gun, without first convincing him why a song-bird should not be used as a test of his skill. By winter feeding, the providing of nesting boxes, the planting of copses and shrubs along fields and streams, and the fencing of wood lots against grazing, both town dweller and farmer can play his part in this protection and encouragement of song-birds and in so doing add to the aesthetic and economic wealth of our country.

Oddfellows And Danforths Tie In Overtime Junior B Playoff

Oddfellows and Danforths battled to an overtime 4-4 tie at Omemee last night in the second game of their best-of-three OHA Junior "B" group semi-finals. It went 10 minutes extra time and they couldn't break the deadlock. The Triple Link team had won the first playoff in Whitby, and they will go to Oshawa for the third tilt, Monday.

A fair-sized crowd witnessed a fast, rough tussle on keen ice. Only five penalties were handed out, but there was a lot of slashing, high-sticking and nipping in every inning as the boys turned in a hot, slambang struggle. It was 2-1 for the Weir crew in the first chukker, 3-2 for the visitors to end the second and 4-all going into overtime. Danforths had better condition and practised plays but the scrappy IOOF bunch held their own all the way.

Led Scorers

Dugan and Conlin led the scorers, this pair with Montgomery generally looking good, and the other forwards hustled, also. Pagett was effective the last half especially. Stock and Menzies were strong on defence, and Byers played a bangup game between the pipes. Floyd and Dugan (especially the former) were hurt by high-sticking, and Conlin crashed the goal post hard once. Hall shone for Danforths, with Keeble, Gee and May also prominent on a speedy squad which battled every minute to stave off elimination.

It was fast and even at first and Fidler's penalty for tripping did no damage. Dugan dented the hemp halfway through on Stock's pass in close. The same player came back shortly to score another nice one a close range on a pass from Conlin. Keeble was robbed by Byers as play kept fast and got rougher. With a visitor tripped as he was going in alone, a penalty shot was awarded and Gee scored to make it 2-1. Both sides missed some nice scoring chances.

Tide It Up

Gee put the other side back on even terms again early in the second stanza when he rapped home Pankoski's rebound on Byers' doorstep. They continued to press and had an edge on play a good part of this heat. Montgomery came close and later a Dugan-Conlin thrust threatened. The latter was chased for holding but they didn't score in his absence. Dugan left for a while after getting a stick in the face. Hall was hefted, and then Hinde bashed Gee's pass in as they scrambled around the net to give them a 3-2 margin. Oddfellows fought back until Stock was waved over for boarding.

Danforths pressed hard to open the third, though Stock made a neat try early. Floyd went off hurt and Gault was later given the nod for hooking. Danforths poke-checked nicely and returned with no count. Conlin hurt his side but stayed in the game. Play was fast, rough and rugged. Danforts drove again and went two up when Keeble took a nice pass around defence and picked a corner of the cage. Then the homesters hustled more and Pagett banged in Griffin's assist neatly in close. Hawkshaw almost scored as the puck rolled slowly by the sprawled goalie, and then Conlin tied it up with less than two minutes left on Dugan's pass-out at point-blank range. The Oddfellows had most of the play in the short overtime chukker but couldn't tally, even when Gee went over for holding. It was hot and rough at the finish.

TIED IT UP — Jim Conlin gained the Oddfellows a 4-4 junior "B" tie in Omemee last night with Danforths when he counted the equalizer late in the third period. He also helped on another, as he and Arn Dugan—in on three markers—led the local snipers.

The teams:

Danforth—Goal, May; defence, Fidler and Weatherill; centre, Gee; wings, Pankoski and Gault; alternates, Watt, Keeble, Hawkshaw, Hall, Edwards, Hinde, Lindsay and Moore.

IOOF— Goal, Byers; defence, Menzies and Stock; centre, Conlin; wings, Dugan and Montgomery; alternates, Pagett, Flyod, Collins, Crowley, Vyse, Griffin, Anderson and Brooks.

PCVS Hoopsters Gain Wins In Neat Games

By virtue of a thrilling 32-31 win last night in the PCVS gym the local school Senior B team moved into a tie for first place with Cobourg, the team on the short end of last night's score.

Down 20-16 at half time, due chiefly to the quick breaking of Bevan of Cobourg who counted five times, PCVS slowly whittled down the Cobourg lead and had gone to the front by three-quarter time 26-24. Jamieson tied the score, only to have Tom Taylor of PCVS put his team in front again. Bevan knotted the count again at 32-28, only to have Taylor score two in quick success to put Peterborough ahead 32-28. With minutes to go Jamieson scored on a foul and Bevan on a throw from the side of the hoop. With 11 second left Taylor missed a free throw and as the game ended Archibald fouled Jamieson. The floor had to be cleared to allow the all important throw which was missed, leaving the final score 32-31.

The first game was also a win for PCVS as the Junior B's stayed in the running for group honors by defeating Port Hope High School Juniors 30-19.

Port Hope went ahead early on baskets by Beebe and Anderson but were soon passed as Jopling found the range for three field goals while Ackford and Woodcock had one each. PCVS led 14-7 at the half.

Two more early hoops as the second half opened by Anderson, put the visitors within three points, but the home team came back on baskets by Grant, Jopling, Acford, Stacey, Hamblin and Batchelor, to make victory safe at 30-19.

After an absence of seven years, H. Biersach, S. McNeill, C. Jamieson and J. Jamieson of Wawatosa, Wis., paid a flying visit to the town on Friday. They came down on the noon train. They had been playing in the big open Ontario bonspiel held in Toronto this week and thought they would come on down to visit friends and also visit the Outboard Marine Co., with whom they are connected. It was the first time they had seen our rink since the installing greatly impressed.

They enjoyed a 10-end game with Harry White, P. McArthur, Dr. C. McKee and W. Jackson and, after a hurried trip to the plant, left again on the afternoon train for Toronto.

These boys intend to make this an annual affair. Harry White entertained the boys and, although it was short, they thoroughly enjoyed it all.

Worthy successors to the famed Edmonton Grads of other years—though probably not quite their calibre—the Toronto Montgomery Maids (senior Canadian champion cagers) play Towne Togs here tonight. A 7.30 girls' exhibition in the Collegiate. Togs are awaiting LOBA playdowns. Lindsay males have a Lakeshore League fixture at 8.30 on the same floor tonight with Marines "B" bunch. Should be good hoop entertainment for fans. PCVS senior "A" and junior "A' teams are playing away today in first games of district semi-finals against Whitby and Uxbridge respectively. Results of last nights frays on two fronts should be in elsewhere.

Andy Lytle, a rebel against the player monopoly exercised by pro puck moguls, was dealing with the NHL negotiation lists the other day, and wrote: "One of our friends was pushing off, towing a professional hockey scout, in the direction of a game and a young player at whom they wished to gander. He is a large sized 16-year-old with oodles of mox. En route they encountered the boy's father and the scout was introduced. 'Aha,' he said genially, 'we are on our way to look at your boy. We may place him in our list.' 'Oh, no you won't,' exclaimed the sire; 'you'll make no chattel out of my boy.'

"Is That So?" He Says

The scout insinuated quietly that papa might not have much, if anything, to do about it. If the club liked him they'd smack him down on their list and that tied him up. 'Is that so?' cried the parent. 'Let me tell you, I talked this over with a judge and I also consulted a lawyer. Cost me 25 bucks to find out that if you do any such tampering with my boy I'll bring suit against you.' My friend says the scout walked along after this conversation, a man in deep thought. Finally, he muttered: 'I'm no longer interested in that young man, somehow.'"

Legionnaires play in Kingston tonight and take on the Saints back in Lindsay on Monday evening. It'll be the third tilt of their best-of-five OHA senior "B" group semi-finals. Could be they'd clean it up by Monday, depending on how they make out tonight. In which case they'd go against the Petes next week in group finals. Anyway, the Monday night melee ought to be a not one and rates a big crowd of hockey fans—while the ice still lasts around here. The club didn't jack up admission costs for the semi-finals, though the finals are likely to be a different matter with the clubs concerned. Their expenses have been heavy in this grouping and the gates none too good most of the season. And provincial playdowns cost plenty, too.

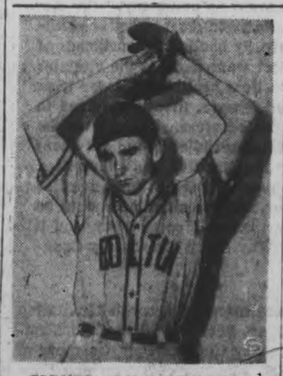
* * * * * *

Classy Contests Seen

It might again be pointed out here that folks in Omemee and Lindsay—as well as Peterborough fans who travel to see their "home" senior "B" scraps—are given fine hockey. Petes and Legion finished the schedule ahead of Kingston and Belleville, two good-sized centres (Kingston is larger than this city) with artificial ice. And a good draw on players. Yet Peterborough puckists are split up into two senior "B" squads and still top their fast group. It took a lot of hard drilling, costing extra mazuma, also, but they showed their heels to the opposition finally. How the playoffs go, of course, remain to be seen—also how the winner will do in playdowns. But they've done well, so far, and the fans can't complain of the calibre of hockey shown.

* * * * * *

Quite a battle those junior "B" clubs—Danforths and the local IOOF-ers—put on last e'en on fast Omemee ice. A fairish crowd on deck, and they saw some speedy, slambang hockey dished up. Not the best hockey in the world but certainly hot and exciting. And rough enough, too. Locals had a 2-1 edge in the first, but faded some in the second to be down 3-2. Danforths went two up then in the third and it looked to be their night. But Conlin sewed it up with less than two minutes to go, and neither could crack the draw in 10 minutes of overtime. Both goalies went well, as Hall, Gee and Keeble stood out for the visitors; and Oddfellows' first line and starting defence. Dugan and Conlin led the scorers.



* * * * * *

Juniors Will Hustle

Juniors usually put on fast hockey and they did it last p.m. Hurried all the way. Condition was in favor of Danforths and some of their plays clicked better — after all, they should as they've been through a stiff schedule, while the rinkless Triple Link team hasn't been playing till now. But the locals have lots of fight and ability and we think they should take the series yet. The play the next game in Oshawa on Monday and, if they come back to Omemee again, they rate a bigger crowd than last night. It's good exciting play all the way with no loafing at all. Whitby and Oshawa open the other semi-final series this evening.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Joe Louis, only seven months a professional, knocked out Lee Ramage in the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout at Los Angeles 12 years ago tonight. The bout was a big step in Louis' climb to the world's heavyweight title which he won from James J. Braddock in 1937.

Clifford Wins

Johnny Clifford, of the Ottawa Ski Club, won the senior cross country race in yesterday's opening event of the central Canada ski championships at Ste. Marguerite, Que. Icy trails slowed competitors and Clifford came in on the slow time of one hour, 37 minutes and 52 seconds. Other events are to be cancelled.

Fifteen-year-old Nelson Porter, one of the Ottawa Interscholastic Ski Union nosed out a local opponent to win the junior cross country event by 19 seconds.

Nurses-Togs Winners In Hoop Tilts

Nurses defeated Neill's in a senior round-robin playoff Girls' Basketball League game, 38 to 32, last night in the YWCA gym. These teams and Normals are in the senior series, with CGE, St. Paul's, Kawarthas and Lock Works in the junior setup, St. Paul's and Kawarthas playing Monday. Towne Togs defeated Belleville 34-22 last night in an exhibition after the playoff.

The first tilt was tight in the first half, with Nurses just edging Neill's 17-15 in hot going Nurses clicked better to run up the count in the final half. Personal fouls to Jean Vass and Evelyn McFadden probably cost Neill's the game, or it at least hurt their chances plenty. Shirley Curtis, Joan Plunkett and Elsie Crawford were best for the winners, while Dot Callan, Jean Vass and Evelyn McFadden stood out for the losers. The teams:

Neill's—J. Vass 9, D. Callan 11, E. McFadden 8, M. Freeman 4, B. Reid, B. Jaquith, D. Gilmour, N. Crowder, F. Floyd, G. Davies.

Nurses—J. Plunkett 13, S. Curtis 17, E. Crawford 6, A. Bowler 2, J. Deyell, M. Flowers, J. Metcalfe.

Referees — C. Gillespie, L. Grose; timer, A. Neiman.

Togs Better

Coach Hilly Yudin's local Towne Togs led the Quinte colleens 18-10 at the halfway mark in their neat exhibition. But Belleville gave them a scare the last part and held them to a 16-12 count. Some good cage work was shown by both sides at times in the lively tussle, both sides missing quite a few free throws. For the visitors, Shirley Marinoff stood out with 10 points, while Jean Bell and Shirley Bennett had five each. Jean Castle led the Togs with nine, as Ruth Hewitt got seven and Jean Vass five. The teams:

Belleville—S. Bennett 5, J. Bell 5, S. Marinoff 10, H. Cook, M. Harquail 2, M. Hinchcliffe, J. Newman, B. Matthews, H. Hikes, M. Tomaso.

Togs—B. Pringle 4, J. Castle 9 B. Csumrik 3, J. Vass 5, J. Caverley 4, R. Hewitt 7, M. Kennedy, V. Rose 2.

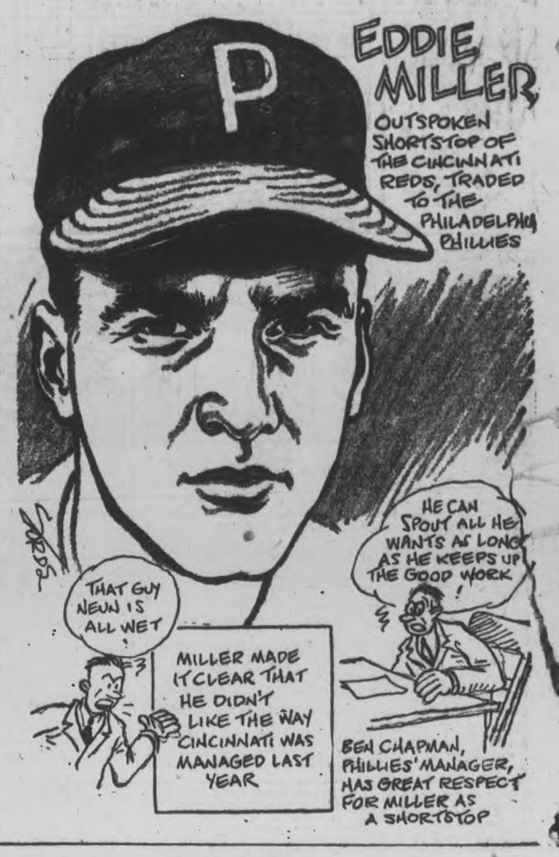
Beau Jack Stalled By Terry Young

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP) —The Beau Jack comeback is stalled. All because of a tough East Side New Yorker named Terry Young and a lone point on the score card of Referee Frank Fullam.

The fight fans' favorite comment—"it could have been a draw" — was appropriate last night. Even the officials were split to say nothing of the crowd of 14,923 which paid $66,317. All agreed it was the best fight of the winter season.

Judge Charley Shortell liked Young and Judge Harold Barnes found for Jack. Each had it 5-4 in rounds with one even. Fullam thought each boy won five rounds. Ruling that Young took his rounds by a wider margin, he gave Terry a thin 6-5 edge in points.



Jack at 26 didn't look like the old bouncing Beau who twice marched to the lightweight crown. Some of the old zip was missing, probably because of his twice-fractured kneecap. At times he leaped and swung with the old abandon, but often he swung, missed and ran into heavy punishment.

TIME LIMIT LIFTED—It will be tag team wrestling again in the Brock Arena ring next Wednesday. The team of Earl McCready and Ben Sharpe, ABOVE, once again meets the team of Wee Willie Davis and the Masked Marvel, but this time there will be No Time Limit so that a definite decision can be assured. A bigger and stronger referee is definitely called for in these wild team bouts. The four-man fracas caught on here with the crowds and Manager Jim Laidlaw reports last week's "house" was the largest of the season. The re-match is expected to bulge the walls a bit.

Kitchener Rink Takes Trophy

TORONTO, Feb. 21 — (CP).— Some 500 weary curlers put away their rocks and brooms, heard the winners declared, and described it as the "toughest" although "most successful" annual, Ontario bonspiel as the curling meet ended early to-day.

The premier Royal York Trophy was captured for the first time in 10 years by a Kitchener rink skipped by C. Asmussen. His vice-skip was C. Schmidt, telegraph editor of the Kitchener Record and veteran sportsman. His other two members were L. L. Shantz and C. Mitchell.

Veteran Tom Beattie and his Toronto Curling Club rink captured the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie Cup; the Seiberling Trophy was won by E. H. Pooler's Toronto Granites; Chatham's foursome skipped by P. Gilbert won its first cup in the 'spiel's 21 years with the North American Life final; B. C. Hall's quartette added the Seagram's Trophy to Kitchener laurels; Hamilton Thistles skipped by W. A. Kennedy won O'Keefe's Cup; and Andy Grant's Toronto Royal Canadians took the Parker Pen Trophy.

Baroudi Dies Six Hours After Knockout

CHICAGO, Feb. 21 — (AP).—Sam Baroudi, 20, New York and Akron, light-heavyweight boxer, died in hospital to-day, six hours after he was knocked out by Ezzard Charles in the 10th and last round of their bout in Chicago Stadium last night. He died without regaining consciousness.

Physicians had diagnosed his injury as a cerebral hemorrhage, but decided against immediate surgery. He had been taken to the hospital after firemen had failed to revive him in his dressing-room.

The young boxer was knocked out for the first time last night when he went to the canvas under the withering attack of Charles, who is ranked the leading challenger to the 175-pound title.

Police had advised Charles to remain in Chicago pending an inquest.

Charles dealt out severe punishment to the New York negro in the final round of their bout in Chicago Stadium, which drew a crowd of more than 11,000. After smashing several blows to the body, Charles, Cincinnati negro, ripped a left to the chin, sending Baroudi to the canvas.

The knockout was one of Charles' most spectacular during a career of punching his way to recognition as the ranking No. 1 challenger to the 175-pound title held by Gus Lesnevich. It was the first time his young opponent ever had been knocked out or spilled off his feet.

Lindsay Wins In Overtime

LINDSAY, Feb. 21.— Pressing strongly in overtime, Lindsay wrung out a hard-won, 3-2 victory over Orono Combines here last night in the first game of the OHA juvenile "B" group, semi-final playoffs.

Armed And Assault Battle It Out On Turf

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 21.—(AP).—Today is the day Armed and Assault fight it out in the Widener. Ten horses are expected to go postward in the $50,000 mile-and-a-quarter classic but every expert on the scene has picked either Armed or Assault to win.

Unsettled was the identity of three jockeys, including the rider of Calumet Farm's great gelding, Armed.

Armed will seek his third straight Widener triumph, a feat no other horse has ever accomplished. Armed also will be trying to make it two in a row over Assault, which he beat in the $100,000 Belmont special last September.

Detroit Ready To Break Jinx

By HARRY ECCLES

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The league-leading Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League haven't won a game in Toronto all season. But if they break the jinx and beat the Toronto Maple Leafs tonight, they're going to gain a four-point advantage over the second place Leafs. By the same token, the Leafs can tie Wings for the lead with a local victory.

Both the teams contesting the league title have two games over the week-end, so the results can be decisive with the schedule rapidly coming to its end March 21. Detroit has just 12 games left, Toronto 13.

Apart from the leaders, Montreal Canadiens tonight entertain Boston Bruins, and Canadiens badly need a victory in their effort to overtake Bruins in the fourth and last play-off spot.

Sunday the Wings are at home to Canadiens, Toronto goes to Chicago and Boston plays at New York Rangers.

The Wings' boss, John Adams, frankly admits that the Leafs are the team to beat so far as Detroit is concerned. But he also said after his team had a work-out in Toronto yesterday that "we've got a good hot club too."

Heated Words Exchanged On Negro Players

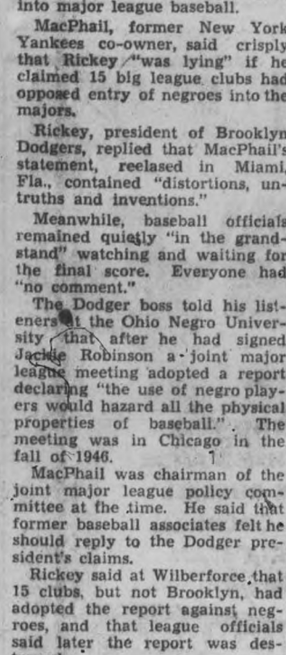
NEW YORK, Feb. 21 — (AP). —Larry MacPhail and Branch Rickey were embroiled to-day in a sizzling word-fest concerning the admittance of negro players into major league baseball.

MacPhail, former New York Yankees co-owner, said crisply that Rickey "was lying" if he claimed 15 big league clubs had opposed entry of negroes into the majors.

Rickey, president of Brooklyn Dodgers, replied that MacPhail's statement, reelased in Miami, Fla., contained "distortions, untruths and inventions."

Meanwhile, baseball officials remained quietly "in the grandstand" watching and waiting for the final score. Everyone had "no comment."

The Dodger boss told his listeners at the Ohio Negro University that after he had signed Jackie Robinson a joint major league meeting adopted a report declaring "the use of negro players would hazard all the physical properties of baseball." The meeting was in Chicago in the fall of 1946.



MacPhail was chairman of the joint major league policy committee at the time. He said that former baseball associates felt he should reply to the Dodger president's claims.

Rickey said at Wilberforce that 15 clubs, but not Brooklyn, had adopted the report against negroes, and that league officials said later the report was destroyed.

In his Miami Beach statement MacPhail said Rickey was lying if and when he said that copies of the committee's report were collected to destroy evidence of some recommendation or proposal having to do with the participation of negroes in the major leagues."

Keene Is Blanked By Warsaw Squad

NORWOOD, Feb. 21 (ENS).—The biggest surprise of the Rural Hockey League schedule, was the defeat of Keene by Warsaw by 12 goals. Although threatening from start to finish, Keene failed to get even one goal.

In last season's games these two teams were not more than one goal ahead of each other at the finish of any game.

Jim Houle ran afoul of Simpson, and came off the ice with a broken shoulder.

Warsaw by luck or good management spaced their goals four to a period. S. Lonsberry from D. Evans, Paterson from I. Watts, Joe Watts from L. Lonsberry, D. Evans from S. Lonsberry. E. Payne and Adamson were gated for roughing.

In the second E. Payne scored alone. D. Evans from Paterson from Joe Watts, and I. Watts from Joe Watts. It was in this stanza that a little battle raged. Stan Lonsberry and Hawkes were having a little sparring bout, when all joined in. There were no spectators on the ice, but one was hit by a Warsaw player's stick. Paterson also received a minor penalty for interference on a play.

Goal getters in the last period were S. Lonsberry alone, E. Payne from D. Evans, L. Donsberry from Joe Watts, and Paterson unassisted. No penalties.

The line-ups:

Warsaw — Goal, Patterson; defence, G. Payne and Don Sharpe; centre, I. Watts; wings, Paterson and Joe Watts; alternates, D. Evans, E. Payne, S. Lonsberry, L. Lonsberry, Simpson.

Keene — Goal, Simpson; defence, Anderson and Adamson; centre, Mackness; wings, J. Houle and J. Wright; alternates, T. McCarthy, J. McCarthy, Kempt, B. Thomson, N. Paudash, N. Musgrove, Acheson, Hawkes.

Referee—Hartley Morrison.
Linesman—Ross Aldred.

Marmora Winners In Series Opener

MARMORA, Feb. 21.—(ENS). —In their opening semi-final game with Stirling at Madoc on Friday evening, Marmora won a hard fought struggle to the tune of 8-6.

Three times was the score tied in the first two periods and, although the game was fast, it was of the cleanest description and only two minor penalties had to be meted out. For the winners, Earl Trumble of the kid line starred, getting three counters, one in each period, while his brother Ken, whom the fans know as "Stubby," topped off a fine performance in scoring twice in quick succession in the third period. The Leonard brothers were also in their usual good form and Gus lot in on the scoring list. The whole of the team combined well to secure the win.

B. Bastedo got three of his team's goals but the Stirling boys as a whole gave a good account of the selves and the issue of the game was left in doubt until the last few minutes.

The attendance was probably the best seen on the Madoc rink this season.

Teams:

Stirling — Goal, Aquino; defence, Armstrong, Utman; centre, D. Bastedo; wings, Stapley, Cook; alternates, Muffitt, Mason, Desjardins, Morton, Twigg, Wright.

Marmora — Goal, Koski; defence, G. Leonard, E. Leonard; centre, Cousins; wings, K. Trumble, Goodchild; alternates, McInroy, E. Trumble, loveless, Doyle, Forestell.

Referee— Herb Payne, Peterborough; linesman, Tom Junkin, Lakefield.

Summary:

First Period

Marmora—E. Trumble (Loveless)	11.30

Dukes Come From Behind Trounce Tigers By 3-1

By The Canadian Press

Although it's no sure indication of what will follow, last night's two Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" playoff games were very closely-matched affairs — just as fans expected them to be. By contrast, the one junior playoff tilt was a walk-away for the winners. The semi-finals between Hamilton Tigers and Toronto Marlboros kept some 10,000 Queen City fans on their feet as the youthful Duke crew came from behind to win their first game of the best-of-seven series "A" playoffs by a 3-1 count. Over at Stratford, the Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen and Stratford Indians battled it out on even terms for two periods without either team marking the score sheet. The Dutchmen finally rang up three goals in the final frame to Stratford's one, and took a 3-1 decision. This was the first game of a best-of-three quarter-final series "B."

Barrie Flyers had little trouble handing Stratford Kroehlers a 5-1 setback in the lone junior playoff tilt of the night.

Hamilton Tigers and Toronto Marlboros skated until the 19:50 mark of the first period before Johnny Conick sneaked the puck past Howie Harvey in the Duke nets after taking a pass from Tom Smelle. Little Ike Hildebrand tied the score early in the middle frame and then both teams played scoreless hockey until the final period.

The Hamilton team tired in the fast going as Marlies went all out to take the lead. Defenceman Harry Psutka scored the winning tally on a pass from Johnny McCormack and then Leo Curik salted the game away with the third Marlboro marker.

Play Fast

Play was fast all the way and surprisingly clean, with only three penalties being called, two against the Tigers and the other against the Dukes. Howie Harvey in the Duke nets played stellar hockey as he turned aside waves of Hamilton attackers.

The Kitchener-Waterloo-Stratford Indians game was a tight, hard-checking tilt all the way, and only a third-period Stratford lapse gave the Dutchmen the chance to rap in the winning goals.

Two periods of scoreless hockey went by as play was closely-matched, and then in the final frame Kitchener went two up on markers by Johnny Blute and Roy Bauer. Mike Dzuira put Stratford back in the game with a goal a few minutes later. Then, with only 27 seconds remaining, Goalie Bob Bindernagel was yanked as Stratford went all out for the tieing goal, only to have the strategy backfire as Bobby Bauer scored on an empty net from centre ice.

BANCROFT, Feb. 21 (ENS). — In the first games of the Northern Hockey League playoffs which are home and home games with total goals to count, the two Bancroft teams emerged winners on poor ice surfaces.

At Apsley, the second-place Rovers upset a determined Apsley squad by a narrow margin of 4-2. Fox and Maxam with a brace of goals each were the Bancroft Rover marksmen while Dungord and Howden notched counters for the home-town Aces. The Rovers will carry a two-goal margin into the next game on Bancroft ice.

Return games will be played off just as soon as the rinks are again in shape for hockey.

NORWOOD, Feb. 21.—(ENS). —Havelock and Westwood played in Norwood Arena Thursday and heavy ice made the going tough for both teams. It was 1-1 at the end of the first.

Westwood was again in the lead after seven minutes of play, Thompson with Mortlock and Mason getting assists. Havelock tied about the halfway mark, Nobes from Green for the second goal of the game. No penalties in this tilt.

ONCE IN 94,000,000 TIMES — Mrs. Michael Walker is shown here in her Syracuse, N.Y., home with her two sets of triplets, after the newest arrivals had come home from the hospital. It has been estimated that not more than one woman in 94,000,000 births could give the world two sets of triplets. The four-and-one-half-year-old triplets (left to right), Patricia, Paul and Peter are shown holding infants Margaret Ann, Martin Stewart, and Mary Cecilia, respectively.

NOTICE TO GAS CONSUMERS

The Commission decided at its meeting on February 13th, 1948, to increase the service charge from 45 cents per month gross to 75 cents per month gross, less 10% prompt payment discount. This will be effective March 1st, 1948.

All consumers will be affected by this raise in service charge.

This is the first increase of any kind in gas rates since the City acquired the Gas Plant in 1929. Three reductions in rates were made between 1930 and 1931.

The reason for the increase is because of the operating loss of $3,294.73 for the Department for the year 1947, which loss was due to the increased cost of labour and materials.

Labor costs increase 30%; Egg Coal, 30%; Boiler Fuel, 75%; Coke 38%; Oil, 75%, during the year 1947.

This increase in rates is only temporary pending the installation of the propane process for making gas. When the new plant is running and costs have been stabilized, the whole rate structure will be reviewed.

PETERBOROUGH UTILITIES COMMISSION

STATEMENT OF
Respective Functions Of The Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario and the Municipal Hydro Commissions with Particular Reference to the PRESENT EMERGENCY

In view of the apparent public misunderstanding of the respective functions of The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of the Province and the Municipal Hydro Commissions in the municipalities, this statement is made to clarify the situation.

The function of the Provincial Commission is to generate or buy electric power and to sell electric power to Municipal Commissions and directly to rural consumers and to certain industries.

The function of each Municipal Commission is to sell to its consumers within the municipality the electric power purchased from the Provincial Commission.

In practice, the Provincial Commission and the Municipal Commissions endeavour to co-operate with each other in the public interest.

By reason of lack of rainfall last summer and autumn and by lack of thaws during the present winter, there has been a substantial depletion of the storage of water necessary to maintain a high level of continuous generation. The resulting loss of production of electric power has taken place in Ontario and elsewhere where power has been purchased both uder contract and in excess of contract commitments by the Provincial Commission. This loss of production of electric energy has become so serious that certain of those who had contracts to supply the Provincial Commission with electric power have been compelled not only to withdraw the electric power they had been supplying in excess of contract commitments, but as well have been compelled to reduce delivery below contract requirements by a further reduction of 8,000,000 kilowatt-hours per week.

As long ago as December 15th, the Provincial Commission notified the Municipal Commissions and indicated to its direct consumers that, in addition to cuts already being applied to direct consumers, It was evident that, unless additional voluntary savings could be obtained, the Commission would be obligated to order the municipalities to reduce their loads from time to time by as much as 15 per cent or more. This notification was given for the express purpose of obtaining greater conservation of power and to enable each Municipal Commission to plan in advance the most equitable allocation of power within the municipality.

The Provincial Commission received notification that the most recent cut of power purchased under contract would be effective on Monday, February 16th. In order to make an equitable reduction of power delivery to all Municipal Commissions, it was necessary for the Provincial Commission to compute for each Municipal Commission the amount of reduction it would be called upon to absorb, after taking into account the amount of conservation already effected by each Municipal Commission since October, 1947. To enable the Provincial Commission to complete the necessary computations and to notify the majority of Municipal Commission of the amount of reduction each would have to absorb by Wednesday, February 16, so that there would be no risk of an actual power stoppage in deliveries by the Provincial Commission. To accomplish this, the Provincial Commission requested the Municipal Commissions of Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, London, Windsor and Peterborough to reduce their takings of electric power by specific amounts during specified times, and also requested these Municipal Commissions to, in the meantime, treat the request confidentially and not to give it to the press prior to the notification to all municipalities on Monday. This was done to avoid statements appearing which might have the effect of creating quite erroneous impressions of the amount of reduction necessary in each particular municipality throughout the Province.

In relation to the reduction of power, each Municipal Commission was faced with entirely different considerations as to how available power would be allocated within each municipality. For this reason, it was not feasible for the Provincial Commission by a general statement to indicate to the consumers in any particular municipality the allocation of available power that would be made by the Municipal Commissions.

The Provincial Commission is delivering to the Municipal Commissions and to its direct consumers all the electric power it is able to generate or buy.

It is the function of each Municipal Commission to determine not only the allocation of power among its consumers but, also what public explanation may be desirable in relation thereto.

Scripture—Acts 2:37-47; Ephesians 4:1-6

By Alfred J. Buescher

Peter talked to the people in Jerusalem, telling them they were to blame for Jesus' crucifixion, which "pricked their consciences," and they begged him to tell them what they should do.

Peter told them "be baptized, every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ . . . and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." About three thousand souls were baptized.

All that believed in Jesus Christ were together and had all things in common: And sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need.

And they "did eat their meals with gladness and singleness of heart, praising God, and having favour with all the people."

MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 122:1

Preaching of John Placed New Outlook on Jewish Race

By REV. E. R. JAMES

In those days came John the Baptist preaching and saying: Repent ye, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand. From that time Jesus began to preach and to say: Repent ye, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand.—St. Matthew 3; 2; 4; 17.

If you are interested in the study of the Gospels you will wonder why John the Baptist and the Lord Jesus both preached from the same text: "The Kingdom of Heaven" and not on personal salvation, as the ideal is today. Let us glance over the centuries before the coming of the Baptist. There was a gap of silence of 400 years between Malachi and John. Perhaps to you 400 years is but a trifle with our modern knowledge of creation. But in our national life it means the period since Shakespeare and Queen Elizabeth. It is the time when the British people advanced into a mighty Empire. We could not afford to overlook those years.

Furthermore for the 600 years before the coming of the Lord Jesus the Jewish people had been under the rule of mighty nations. They had paid tribute to Babylon; Persia, Syria; Greece and Rome. You can understand how devout Jews found it hard to believe that Jehovah loved His people and yet allowed a foreign king to rule over them.

As the result of this disappointment there arose during the 200 years before the coming of the Lord a minor type of prophets who were called Apocalyptists. Apocalypse means that which is hidden. The writers never wrote over their own names but under the names of great teachers of Israel. Thus we find the Book of Enoch, quoted by Jude, verse 9; The Assumption of Moses; The Ascension of Isaiah; The Psalms of Solomon and many others. These prophets professed to lift the veil of the future believing that Jehovah would redeem His people. We have to admire their faith. They poured ou their souls in these writings.

With more or less clearness they taught that Jehovah would send His Messenger—the Son of Man—and bring freedom to His people and that the victorious monarch would sit on David's throne. The minds of the people were completely saturated with this thought and many false Messiahs arose leading away many of the people. Note Gamaliel's reference: "He also perished and as many as obeyed him were dispersed." The Roman government dealt mercilessly with such risings, as you can well understand.

With the above knowledge you need little imagination to realize the sensation caused by the preaching of John the Baptist. Multitudes thronged him and he touched even "the higher ups." St. John tells us of a deputation from Jerusalem to see for themselves. "Who art thou; that we may give an answer to them that sent us?" His answer: "I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness. There is one coming after me greater than I."

Both the Baptist and the Lord Jesus preached that the individual should repend or the political disaster would result. The Jewish leaders and the mass of the people rejected both men and in the brief period of 40 years the fulness of time came and the Roman Government decided to wipe out this troublesome people in the Empire. They mercilessly wiped out Carthage and the same fate came upon the Jewish people when the City Jerusalem, the Temple and multitudes of people perished miserably because they heeded not the day of redemption. What a lesson from a bygone age.

THE LORD JESUS CAME UNTO HIS OWN AND HIS OWN RECEIVED HIM NOT. BUT AS MANY AS RECEIVED HIM TO THEM GAVE HE POWER TO BECOME THE SONS OF GOD, EVEN TO THEM THAT BELIEVE ON HIS NAME.

Fellowship of Early Church Revealed Perfect Harmony

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The international lesson on the above topic for February 22 is Acts 2:37-47, Ephesians 4:1-6, the Memory Verse being Psalm 122:1, "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of Jehovah.")

IS THERE anything more pleasurable and stimulating than fellowship? In home, in school, in our social life, and especially in our church there is nothing more delightful than fellowship. In this lesson we are told of the happy fellowship of the early Christian church, when all shared and shared alike, and lived in harmony.

In our last lesson, you remember that Peter and John were put in prison after Peter had healed a man who had been lame since birth. They were released the next day after appearing before the Sanhedrin, because the priests had seen the result of the miracle and were afraid to detain them longer. However, they were told not to preach Christ any more, but refused to promise.

Peter, immediately began to talk to the people, telling them "God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ." Now these same people, who two months before had been crying: "Crucify Him, crucify Him," felt their consciences pricked, and appealed to Peter and the rest of the apostles, saying: "Men and brethren, what shall we do?"

Repent of Sins

"Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.

"For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call."

Many other things Peter told the people, begging them to "save yourselves from this untoward generation." Many accepted his invitation and were baptized, as many as 3,000 souls.

The people "continued steadfastly in the apostle's doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread and prayers."

All these people, we are told, sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need. Jesus and His disciples had lived this sort of communal life, having a common purse. It must have been a happy community of these newly converted people, happy and enthusiastic over their new life.

"And they, continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meal with gladness and singleness of heart.

"Praising God, and having favor with all the people. And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved."

This is the way all Christian people should live, even if they disagree in certain doctrines. Nothing is sadder than discord in a church which bear's Christ's name. Just as in the home family, working, playing, conversing with love and goodwill—so it is in the church. Differences may arise, but if each and every one remembers that Jesus advocated love—to God and then to man—as the two necessary laws to keep, it could be done. Only is the human body in a healthy state when all its parts are functioning smoothly and normally, in other words, harmoniously. So it would be with the Christian church if differences were forgotten — or kept in the background—and all members lived together in love, loving God and loving each other.

Paul, in his letter to the Ephesians, pleads with them to live the kind of life that preserves this fellowship. He writes: "I therefore, the prisoner of the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called.

"With all lowliness and meekness, with longsuffering, forbearing one another in love;

"Endeavoring to keep the unity of Spirit in the bond of peace.

"There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling;

"One Lord, one faith, one baptism,

"One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all."

'Reds' Take Anshan

PEIPING, Feb. 19.— (AP).—Chinese Communists today fought into Anshan and fall of that important Manchurian steel city seemed certain. Government dispatches said the Reds broke into the city in "overwhelming numbers." Small groups of defenders were making a last ditch stand inside the city—whose output once fed the Japanese war machine. capture of Anshan would extend the Reds' domination of Manchuria.

For the first day in several weeks there were no fire alarms on Friday. The last call received by the Fire Department was on Thursday evening when a chimney fire was reported on Aylmer St.

Some fifteen members of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association attended the Rifle Club this week. A successful shoot was held. Two extra stoves are being put in for the comfort of the competitors.

NO FLAG AT ARMORIES

There is no Union Jack flying atop the mast at the Armories. The pulley that has seen the flag raised every morning and lowered every evening through 40 years, has finally broken; consequently no flag can be flown. Nearly two generations have been raised, and two wars fought in that period. It is a tribute to the workmanship of its maker that the pulley lasted as long as it did.

DUCKS ARE TRAVELLING

It's a bit early to suggest that Spring is just around the corner even though there has been a week of soft weather and high winds. It "took down" the snow and helped fill country wells and cisterns, dried large clothes lines of washings and cleared patches of fast river water from ice. About 60 ducks were seen whistling north today, either to open water spots along the Otonabee River or a workout for their wings for much longer trips to come, soon.

HERE COMES THE STREETCAR — Low wires, low bridges and an eleven-ton load can be a headache to any truck driver, and John Gilmour who hauled this streetcar from Toronto had his hands full. The wheelless car was purchased by H. L. Johnston, Parkhill Road east, to convert into three sleeping cabins. The photographer caught up to the load just as it had turned in Johnston's driveway and was stuck in the snow. 100 of the cars were sold, and some are going to Campbellford, others to Penetang. The low concrete bridge at Green River forced the truck driver to detour, because the streetcar would not clear the top of the

Community Chest Drive To Raise $60,000 Runs From Feb. 27 to Mar. 5

Once again the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund officials are preparing to ask citizens to give generously that local authorized service and charitable organizations may be maintained during 1948. This year the sights have been raised 12 per cent., or $10,000; the sum having been boosted from $50,000 to $60,000. Pledge cards are now ready for distribution and canvassers are picking up their kits ready to swing into action when the opening gun of the campaign is fired on Friday, February 27. By the time it ends on March 5, one week later, it is hoped that every local resident will have had an opportunity to contribute to this fund.

Agencies benefiting from the Community Chest, and the various representatives, are Canadian Red Cross Society, Mrs. Charles Ray; Humane Society, Mrs. M. S. Burnham; Navy League, Percy Moore; Salvation Army, E. C. Braund; St. Vincent's Orphanage, E. J. Wolff; Children's Aid Society, Mrs. J. H. Vernor; YMCA, W. A. Richardson; YWCA, Mrs. Paige Rowell; Canadian National Institute for the Blind, W. C. Hughes; Victorian Order of Nurses, F. J. Overend; Ontario Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation, James Hamilton; and Peterborough Visiting Homemaker Service James Dutton.

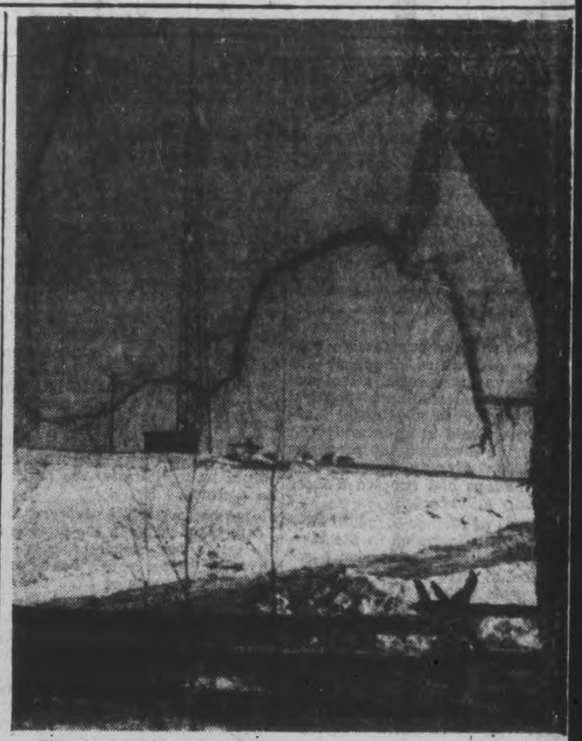
Chairman of the Red Cross and Community Fund Campaign is Ross L. Dobbin who has drawn up four divisions under as many team captains in order to canvass the community to best advantage.

Ian McRae is captain of the Industrial Division with an objective of at least $25,000; Gordon Matthews, Special Names Division, with objective $18,000; Retail Division, W. C. Hughes, with objective $13,000; and Women's Division, Mrs. W. Fanning, objective $4,000.

Good wishes and moral support are not enough to sustain the humanitarian works financed through this campaign. Sixty thousand dollars is the largest amount ever asked for and it will take the loyal support of every person to see it over the top.

Damage Action Decision Given Friday

Litigation arising out of an automobile accident December 16, 1945, between Ernest Payne, farmer, RR 3, Peterborough and Mrs. W. B. Addyman, Peterborough was settled Friday in the Supreme Court of Ontario, Peterborough Court House, before His Lordship, Mr. Justice Wells.



Evidence showed that Payne's car was struck by Addyman's car, driven by W. Addyman, Jr. Payne was turning into a driveway when it was struck by the oncoming car. The jury in its findings decided that Payne was 60% to blame and Addyman 40% to blame.

Mrs. Addyman sued Payne for $5,000, computed from, damage to car, loss of use of car and pain and suffering. Payne on the other hand counter sued for a sum of $5,500 based on similar grounds, and contended that a pain from which he suffered was directly attributed to the injuries received in the accident. Mrs. Addyman who was thrown on the windshield and rear vision mirror sustained a severe cut on the head.

The total receipted bills handed in by Payne amounted to $261.50, and as he was recognized as being 60% to blame he was awarded 40% of this amount, being $104.50. Mrs. Addyman was awarded $300.

His Lordship, on the finds of the jury entered judgment in each action, with County Court costs.

The jury consisted of: Arthur Burrows, 158 Park Hill, Peterborough; Hugh J. Buchanan, 186 Prince St., Peterborough; Ronald Clements, Douro; Amos Hastie, 535 Gilmour St.; William Cathcart, 184 Lock St.; Cecil A. Carveth, 555 McCannan Ave.; Grafton Telford, Dummer; Frank A. Dyers, 508 Murray St.; Laughton Carveth, 479 Sherbrooke St.; Arnold Dafoe, Lot 8, Concession 7, Belmont; Hugh K. Fallis, 745 Wakefield, and Ernest G. Kitney, Otonabee.

She Found It, Mum Burned It; No Banked It Tsk Tsk, 400 Smackers And Nobody Wants It

A police detective's job seems to be just one amazing thing after another.

Take the cast of Acting Detective William Clarke of the city force.

On Thursday, he had the worry of trying to locate some money for its owner.

The next day—Friday—he had the money. But alas now, he has to find the real owner.

It all started last Saturday when an aged lady reported to police that she has lost $435 somewhere in the city. The woman was much agitated over this considerable loss, and in her confusion, was misunderstood by police to mean that the loss had been in cash. Friday, however, she recalled, with the help of some relatives, that the "money" was actually a bank book with a balance entered of $435. (That's been returned to her).

This might appear to clear the whole matter from the books. Not so. It served only to turn an "almost-completed" case into a puzzling mess. Because, in the meantime the police have recovered a sum of the money. That is, it was THE money, now it's just MONEY.

Only clue the police had to the disappearance of this cash was the report of a bystander that he had seen a little girl holding a large bundle of bills in her hand at a George street corner. The girl had been talking to two Examiner carrier boys, and the informant told the police he had overheard the boys suggesting that she turn the money into the police department. She had replied that she first intended to take the money home to her mother. The girl is about 11 years old.

Through the co-operation of The Examiner Circulation Department, the carrier who had made the wise suggestion to the girl was found to be 13-year-old Ronald Coulson, 306 Lewis St. He was able to tell the detectives the address and name of the girl.

Detective Clarke questioned the girl's mother, who admitted her daughter had brought some money home. Producing $80 in cash, which she gave to the detective, she told him the rest of the bills had been "wet and dirty" from lying on the street and that she had burned them. Not satisfied that the money had actually been disposed of in flames—for there were two $100-bills in the lot—and it is not customary to burn such sums, he questioned her further. A 16-year-old daughter entered and repeated the woman's story that the rest of the money had been burned.

Still not satisfied, Det. Clarke waited for the return of the original finder, the little girl. The youngster readily told of bringing her valuable find home, but said that her mother had not burned it. At this, the mother changed her story. A considerable sum of the money, she said, had been banked in her name. This was brought to the station Friday.

So, there the matter stands at present. It appears quite definite that the child found the money innocently and brought it home. The $300 to $400 turned over to the police by the woman is apparently the money found.

The first loser, the elderly lady, is now happy with her bank book intact.

In fact, everybody seems happy about the whole thing except some unfortunate person who is lacking some big moola, and, Detective Clarke. Isn't it funny, all that money missing and nobody hollering?

Two Hobbyists Delight Gladiolus Group

Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt and Mr. Huber Burke of Omemee, who separately combine horticulture and color photography as hobbies delighted members of the Gladiolus Society with a film program of natural beauty Friday night in the office of the Department of Agriculture.

Prior to his chaplaincy overseas, Rev. Mr. Zufelt was minister at Knox United Church in this city, and finds time in his pastoral work to spread knowledge and appreciation of flowers. His film included scenes in Kew Gardens, London, and pictures of 12 gardens in Holland. His talk dwelt on the care and cultre of bulbs, potted plants and some other flowers.

Mr. Burke is a beekeeper whose splendid pictures reflected a sensitive eye for natural beauty not only in the seasons of flowering but even into the months of the two tones of winter. Their joint program was greatly enjoyed. Harold Ball was chairman.

Council Aims At 40 Mills Sits 4 Hours, Cuts Budget

In a four-hour session Friday night the finance committee of the Council clipped the equivalent of two mills off the municipal estimates for this year, resting at roughly 40 mills. Rounding off the rate is not yet completed. The requisition of the Board of Education has yet to come to the Council's hand. If it fits agreeably into the overall 40 mills, the Council may be content with its present scissoring. Otherwise there may have to be some further lopping here and there.

In any case, it was suggested last night, the finance committee will likely go through the budget again, at least once.

The Swanston committee sheared approximately $50,000 off the board of works spending program, reduced the fire department figures by $10,000 and cut the recreation commission $29,000 requisition back to $18,000. After all, in the committee's quest for the dispensables, members were obviously conscious that they are the administrators who are held accountable by the taxpayers at the end of the municipal year.

Cut Fire Estimates

Chief George Smith's estimates for the fire department stood at $110,195 earlier this week after the first canter through the budget. Part of his increase was based on the prospect of engaging six additional men, four of them for the operation of the new aerial ladder. This apparatus may not be delivered for two or three months, and with nearly half of the year gone, the committee considered that the Smith requisition would stand a little planing. The department's appropriation last year was $73,650 and the actual expenditure $74,168.

Board of Health's estimates were left "for another night". They are asking for $29,485 as compared with the appropriation of $21,227 and the expenditure of $23,979. Some of the items appeared to the committee to invite downward revision. Ald. Swanston suggested that the estimates might be sent back first to the Board.

"I don't thing there is much use in sending them back," said Ald. Herbert Young, a new member of the Board. "We might as well let it pass for the present."

Parks department, including rinks, bathing beaches and tree trimming, with Ald. Young chairman, listed its needs at $43,375. The appropriation last year was $30,997 and expenditure $43,903. It was said that later in the year the department received an additional $7,000. The finance committee cut the present allowance to $40,000.

The market calls for $6,200 as compared with the appropriation of $5,893 last year and payments of $5,489.

The police budget of $83,403 as against $63,005 in 1947 and expenditure of $67,254 was accepted in the present examining. Chief Thompson asked the Police Commission for three additional men. Salaries and new equipment are provided in the increase, plus the amount of the yearly "adjustment of the department salaries."

Referring to the item of repairs, Ald. Swanston said: "Possibly the police should have a van for prisoners, instead of getting the doors of cars kicked out."

The $120,390 for the Board of Works does not include the one mill contribution from the Department of Highways. One mill represents $33,000. That means around $150,000 for the board.

The $7,500 item for two concrete water reservoirs in the Downer's Corners area, proposed for fire protection, was rubbed out of the board's tabulation.

The city's charity account is estimated at $29,405. The allowance last year was $21,875 and payments $24,380.

Interest on the city overdraft at the Bank of Montreal was estimated at $2,500 last year. Payments were $6,657 and the present provision as $5,000.

City Clerk Outram said that part of the interest last year was on borrowings to pay for local improvements until the covering debentures were sold.

Ald. Anglesey's industrial committee parted with $500. It was given $4,000 last year, expenditure was $5,206, and for this year the allowance is $3,500. The Peterborough publicity film was revamped at a cost of $1,851, and that vanishing item permitted the reduction.

Served 43 Years As Missionary

Rev. Dr. Walter H. Oldfield who has been a South China missionary for the Christian and Missionary Alliance during the past 43 years, will address Peterborough congregations at afternoon and evening services on Sunday. He will speak to the Christian and Missionary Alliance Tabernacle in the Orange Hall at 3 p.m. and again in the YMCA auditorium at 7 p.m.

Dr. Oldfield is a one-time resident of Peterborough coming here as a layman at the turn of the century after he had worked in the lumber business in Muskoka for nine years. He was employed locally with C.G.E. and the old J. C. Turnbull store (Simcoe and George Sts.).

After several years he felt the desire to be a missionary and attended the Nyack, N.Y. Mission Training Institute. He completed his course and went to China in 1904, just after the Boxer Rebellion. Only one woman missionary had escaped the massacre in the northern part of the country during that wave of "anti-foreign" feeling that swept China.

Dr. Oldfield answered the call for volunteers but was instead sent to southern China to fill an urgent vacancy there. Apart from a couple of trips to America, he and his wife lived in China for 43 years. They returned to this continent in May 1947, and are now living in Toronto.

500,000 X-Rayed

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—(CP). — "More than half a million people are being given an X-ray examination every years for tuberculosis (in Ontario)," Premier Drew said last night in a recorded address prepared for delivery over a network of Ontario radio stations. He drew attention to the fact that the Provincial Department of Health spent some $20,000,000 annually on all services.

G. A. Gillespie Lauds City Trust Record

Says Harmony Prevailed Between Trust And Councils For 25 Years

The City Trust Commission built up a surplus of more than $600,000 during the 25 years he was one of its five members, Mr. G. A. Gillespie said today to the Examiner in response to a question about his experience.

"The City Trust paid out of that surplus $155,000 for the benefit of the taxpayers of Peterborough on projects properly chargeable to them through the city council. At the end of last year, the City Trust showed a surplus in excess of $460,000. Of that sum $300,000 is to be paid to the Civic Hospital when it is built, leaving $160,000 to provide a guarantee of payment of debentures of $1,406,997.66 payable from the present until 1951.

"Although Mayor Ovens and members of the city council say that there has been lack of co-operation by the City Trust, I do not think they can easily pass over those very large amounts proving the concrete way in which the City Trust has co-operated, and always willingly, through the years.

In its operations not one dollar has been lost by poor investments. During my 25 years as a member of the Trust we had as mayors: Roland Denne, George A. Macdonald and James Hamilton, and at no time did we have a difference or unfair criticism until the regime of Mayor Ovens. I say emphatically that instead of lack of co-operation on the part of the City Trust, the boot is on the other foot. Any lack of co-operation was on the part of the council led by Mayor Ovens and Aldermen Dodds.

Not Supermen

"No one connected with the City Trust pretends to be a superman, but they had a precise and solemn duty to perform on behalf of the ratepayers whose affairs they were administering. That duty was prescribed in the private bill which the citizens of Peterborough in 1861, some generations ago, obtained in their wisdom from the government of Ontario. That duty has been carried out through the years by different men appointed by the city council. If any one wishes to read the amended Bill he will find it in the provincial statutes of 1908, page 640.

Ex-mayor James Hamilton has been appointed by the present council in my place. I feel sure he will give the usual good service of all the members who have gone before him, and that he will be true to the obligation which each trustee has had to take in acting for the citizens of Peterborough."

Mr. Gillespie remarked that the people of the city and county had known him a long time, and he felt certain that he retained their confidence in spite of the action of the 1948 council.

"But, it does make a fellow feel a little queer being "fired" after doing a good job," Mr. Gillespie said.

He explained that the public's debentures had been managed well and wisely as reflected by the record of the Commission and the surplus funds which it had accumulated from careful investments. Mr. Gillespie said it was his observation that the sentiment of the ratepayers was with the City Trust in their appreciation of the important part it had performed in the financing and gradual repayment of Peterborough's borrowings.

Mr. Gillespie mentioned also that his civic service had included 40 years as a member of the Chamber of Commerce; eight years as an alderman of the city council. He was also a member of the Ontario Legislature, was for years a director of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, Canadian Dairy Council and other organizations.

Motorists Urged To Obtain Markers

A hint was dropped this week that the Dept. of Highways in Toronto may set the deadline for car markers at the end of February, but no definite word was given. This probably arose from the fact that there has been a decided slump in the sale of car markers during February, although the sale was brisk in January.

J. J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, reported today that only 40 per cent of the markers had been taken up so far. If the deadline is set for the end of the month, then it will be just too bad for the late ones, because the rush will be so great, the clerks will not be able to handle them.

Mr. Dorris urged motorists to get their markers and driver's permits at once, and avoid the long, troublesome queues of other years.—Advt.

Franco Hopeful Of Recognition Optimistic About The Future

By STUART UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MADRID, Feb. 21—(CP)—An expectation that the coming year will see Franco Spain recognized and accepted by the western democracies throbs in this capital today.

"You will see our foreign economic difficulties disappear as now have disappeared all of our supposed international political problems," Foreign Minister Martin Artajo said in an interview in which he discussed the prospects for 1948. Already, he said, several nations had adopted a more friendly attitude.

Hopes of further recognition — and with it inclusion in the Marshall aid program—appear based on belief that the democracies are coalescing in a stern front against Communism. Spain regards herself as a veteran of the anti-Communist struggle, and as such entitled to an honored place if the campaign becomes international.

Some non-Spanish observers here go even farther and say that General Francisco Franco and his followers are tending to base their plans on the probability of war between the West and Russia. Naturally government spokesmen maintain discreet silence on this subject, but one high official said in an interview with The Canadian Press:

"Spain, with its huge inland plateau, would make an ideal airfield."

Another assured me, perhaps over-optimistically, that Spain, as a result of her years-long campaign against Communism, is the only country in Western Europe in which a Communist fifth column does not exist. Her army of 400,000, capable of being expanded to 1,000,000 could guard her as a beachhead in a hostile Europe.

Expressions of doubt that the difference between East and West could lead to war in the near future are met by pointing to the consistently anti - Communist statements of Franco and his henchmen.

"He's been right all along in saying this is a world meanace," is the general attitude.

Vary Opinions.

Even critics of the Franco regime talk about Spain's participation in the Marshall Plan as "inevitable." Left-wingers, however, see it as a sinister alliance with western capitalism. Conservative critics say it is the only way security can be guaranteed in Spain.

"Inflation is becoming so serious that we are headed for a collapse," said a prominent man of commerce. "The United States cannot permit that to happen, with all the ensuing political confusion would entail."

He admitted grudgingly that the effect of such help probably would be to shore up the regime he disliked.

Another argument advanced for Spanish inclusion in the Marshall Plan is along economic lines — that Spain already is a heavy exporter to the rest of Europe, and that with some assistance she could increase these exports and correspondingly lighten the burden of United Statees' contributions.

Larger imports of fertilizers to increase her agricultural output, rolling stock to aid her overworked transport system, 2,000,000 additional tons of coal a year, cotton for her textile mills, cellulose, tin-plate, sugar factory machinery and hydro-electric equipment are some of the things she hopes to receive from this source.

Spanish people largely are uncritical of the Franco regime. They may make cynical little jokes about it, but there is no one to suggest publicly that the present economic hardships are due to its shortcomings.

The newspapers give full prominence to anything that can be interpreted as a softening of the foreign attitude toward Spain. Such reports make warming reading to Spaniards, who nod agreement when government spokesmen declare: "We told you so."

No Tail Lights

Pleading guilty, the following were each fined $2, and $1 costs, for the same type of minor traffic infraction—failing to provide a proper rear light on their cars: Albert Reid, 83 Sophia Street; Allan Davis, 640 Romaine Street; Reg Deeth, 709 Water Street.

MULTITUDE AT IMMERSION OF GANDHI'S ASHES —While 3,000,000 watched, the ashes of the assassinated leader, Mohandas Gandhi, were cast into the waters of the sacred River Ganges, Allahabad, India. The white-painted duck, shown here, bore India's cabinet and leaders, gathered to pay a last tribute as Ramdas Gandhi, the Mahatma's son, poured the ashes, mixed with milk, from a copper funeral urn. Other ceremonies throughout India brought the total of worshippers to over 10,000,000.

Red Cross Busy Agency Active In Peace or War

Indicative of the vast amount of work done in the community by the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society is the fact that it receives one-quarter of the total amount allotted various agencies by the Community Chest Fund. In Peterborough there are 12 agencies benefitting from the fund total of $60,000. The Peterborough Red Cross Society draws $15,000.

To many people, activities of the Red Cross seem somewhat limited to work on the battlefield, but their humane work goes on unabated in times of peace. It remains an active force the full 24 hours of every day. A glance at some of the various branches connected with the Peterborough Branch will give some idea of the work done in the community.

In Ontario there are more than 90 "Loan Cupboards". The Loan Cupboard operating in Peterborough has already rendered a unique and appreciated service to many families in the city with sickness in the home. As its name implies, it is really an enormous cupboard, supplied with all the necessary articles for a sicks room: sheets, bedding, wheel-chairs, blankets, thermometers, hot water bottles, bed pads, dressings, crutches, rubber sheets, in fact anything that may be needed for the care of the sick can be borrowed by any citizen. All that is necessary is a certificate from a doctor testifying that such articles are needed in the sick room and any member of the public may drawn from this Loan Cupboard.

Another important work carried on by the Peterborough Branch is the Blood Donor Service. An average of two transfusions per day are given through this service. Last year 598 transfusions were given and the list of donors is growing monthly. The Peterborough Branch supplies taxis to and from the hospital, so there is no delay in the service and no inconvenience caused those who donate their blood. In the CGE plant along, the Society examined more than 300 potential donors in two days last year. No patient who received a transfusion is charged for the blood and no member of the Red Cross Blood Donor staff is paid. The local branch has been called upon to supply donors to render a service as far away as Toronto and Lindsay. In each of these cases the patients made a recovery.

It should be noted that the Canadian Red Cross Blood Donor Service is now getting into full swing and in a short while it will be possible for everybody in Canada to receive free blood. Peterborough will be one of the main blood centres in Ontario and all hospitals in the province will be supplied with plasma from the main laboratories that are to be set up in Toronto and Kingston.

Well-Equipped Outpost

The organizing of Outpost Hospitals is still another service that falls within the duties of the Canadian Red Cross Society, and again the Peterborough Branch has proved its worth. The Apsley Red Cross Hospital has given a wonderful service to that district and has filled a long felt want.

It was recently taken over by the Peterborough Branch as the Apsley district could not afford to run it. The hospital has been almost rebuilt, a new roof has been put on, new furnaces and an auxiliary heating plant installed, and modern batteries in the basement kept on charge provide for emergency power for the operating room in case of a power failure.

Modern Equipment

A complete X-ray equipment with dark room for developing supplies the hospital needs and also can be used for chest work. A new autoclave supplies the necessary needs for sterilization, while there is a modern delivery table, suitable for operating, a spotlight for operation work, an oxygen tank and other necessities of a well supplied surgery. Last year there were 59 admissions, 16 births, no deaths, 12 minor operations, and 12 X-rays made.

Expenses incurred in taking over the Apsley Outpost Hospital were more than $30000.

The Junior Red Cross is a further example of the work done by the Society. Schools are regularly visited and besides public health taught the youngsters, they are taught to organize Red Cross branches in their own classes.

Health Taught

Swimming and water safety programs are organized by this department of the Red Cross, and classes are conducted in all health matters among the children of the city.

A Nutrition Committee organized by the Red Cross Society in Peterborough is responsible for the various exhibits shown during such health campaigns as Health Week, Dental Week, and Cancer Research Exhibitions.

The Women's Work Committee is responsible for making such articles as surgeon's gowns, pneumonia jackets, hospital gowns, bath blankets, sheets, T-binders, and dressing bags, sent mostly to Outpost Hospitals. Last year more than 200 articles were made for the Apsley Hospital by the Peterborough branch. Nearly 200 articles of clothing were also made for the children of Europe.

Baskets of fruit are sent to hospitals and nursing homes by the Red Cross and last year the patients at Sunnybrook Hospital, Ottawa, serviced in such a manner by the local branch.

Other committees within the activities of the Society are the Civilian Relief Work, and from the Peterborough Branch an outstanding example of the work done was the assistance financially and by goods rendered to the victims of the Coe Hill Tornado disaster, and the Soldiers' Relief Committee.

The work of the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society is never ending.

It is worthy of all support so it may carry on its work of mercy among less fortunate citizens.

Electric Department Shows Net Surplus of $101,150

"The enthusiastic response of the consumers" was given as a major reason for the continuous service given by the Electric Department of the Peterborough Utilities Commission in its annual report.

Average monthly peak power load in 1947 was 22,196 horsepower, an increase of more than 1,500 over 1946. It was stated by the report that the increase would probably have been greater except for the restrictions instituted in November, and the voluntary reduction in the use of power by all consumers.

The Department has reported a surpuls of $101,150.99 for the year, compared to $87,306.44 in 1946. This is the net surplus after all expenses have been paid and reserves set up.

All sources of revenue showed an increase. There was a $23,000 increase from domestic lighting; commercial lighting was up by $8,000. Commercial power sales brought in an additional $17,000.

Power purchased during 1947 cost $40,000 more than in the previous year. Operating costs increased $17,000.

There are now 8,263 domestic electrical consumers, an increase of 140 over last year. The average monthly consumption per consumer was 274 kilowatt hours —nine more than the 1946 average. Net cost per kilowatt hour —about .87 cents—did not vary greatly.

There were 827 commercial lighting consumers, paying an average of 1.3 cents.

Power consumers paid .81 cents per kilowatt hour or $18.39 per horsepower per year.

The report mentioned the new 3,000 kva. unit sub station on Romaine St., which was completed during the year and began service in August. Connecting the station with existing circuits, it was necessary for the department to make extensive construction work on new circuits, principally on McGill and Aylmer streets.

The McKellar housing project and houses on Arndon Ave. made it necessary to make new distribution circuits.

Three thousand horsepower was the total added load handled during the year. Seventy transformers were changed for larger ones.

New switching for the Aylmer St. sub-station and a totalizing meter system (making it possible to read the total load from one chart) were mentioned in the report.

At the request of the Hydro Electric Power Commission, a rotary converter to correct the power factor and control the voltage in the district was installed in the sub station.

Completion of the new plant of the Nashua Paper Company required the building of a circuit down Monaghan Road.

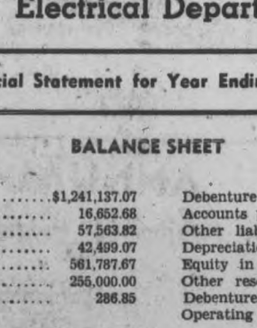
Circuits on Water St. from Charlotte to King were re-arranged to handle the added load at the Empress Hotel and the two new theatres.

Lighting of the lacrosse bowl on Townsend St. was undertaken.

Arrangements have been made for a right-of-way for a new power line to serve the waterworks pumping station and filtration plant.

More than seven miles of new rural lines were constructed for the HEPC and 196 consumers added in the Peterborough district.

During the year 816 three-wire services were connected and 134 others. This work was necessitated, mainly by the construction of new housing, the report said.

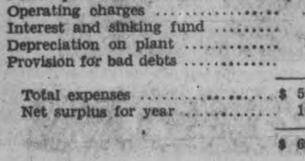


The number of flat rate water heaters continues to grow. Altogether, 403 were connected, making a total of 3,614 in the city, for a total load of 2,700 horsepower.

These water heaters, all controlled from the Aylmer St. substation, are turned off one hour per day except on Saturday and Sunday. A saving of power has been the result of this operation.

Street lighting was improved by the installation of new units on Clonsilla Ave. and some other streets. More would have been done except for the shortage of lighting units.

A new set of traffic signals was installed at Simcoe and George streets.



PAINS IN BACK

Here's a way to relief!

Do you know that one of the common causes of backache lies in the kidneys? When they are healthy they help to filter impurities out of the system—their natural function. When they grow sluggish, these impurities accumulate and the resulting congestion may be one of the causes of backache. De Witt's Pills are specially prepared to help wake up sluggish kidneys. They act directly on these vital organs, helping to restore them to their natural activity. Relief from backache follows as a natural consequence. It is far better to tackle the cause of backache than to go on suffering in a way which is bound to affect your work and happiness. For over half a century De Witt's Pills have been bringing relief to sufferers from backache and we have received countless letters of gratitude. Go to your drug store and obtain a supply to-day.

PRAGUE ORPHANS GET MILK—War orphaned children in Czechoslovakia hold out their tongues for a drink of milk supplied through United Nations relief funds. This nursery in Prague could not operate without help from abroad. In Europe, half the children born since the war are already dead of malnutrition. Plight of those left is desperate. Canadians can help save the children by making their donations to any bank to the Canadian Appeal for Children.

Spain Tackles Tough Problem Of Illiteracy

By STUART UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MADRID, Feb. 21—(CP)—Like a gang of men attacking a huge snowslide with shovels, Spanish government officials are trying to clear away the poverty and ignorance that has weighed on the country for centuries.

Some of their plans for social service and education are as ambitious as any in Europe. The trouble is there aren't enough shovels or men to wield them, and sometimes the men at work are at cross-purposes with their comrades.

Brilliant individual successes have been achieved in the form of modern schools and hospitals, but the task ahead is tremendous.

The most notable advances have been made in the field of social service. The government, which denies workers many liberties which are considered rights in other countries, has extended benefits of various kinds to more than one-third of the country's 28,000,000 inhabitants. Officials say enrolment is increasing steadily.

Health insurance is available to about one-quarter of the population. Family allowances and discounts on various services aid the married worker with children. Marriage loans can be obtained, repayable on easy terms and progressively wiped out by grants for the birth of children.

So far, city and suburban workers have benefitted most from the schemes, but they are being extended steadily to the countryside, where most peasants live contentedly in conditions of squalor that are shocking to western sensibilities.

Employer Pays

The main burden of financing these services falls on employers, who complain the assessments are reflected in the steadily-soaring prices of their goods. Health insurance contributions are divided equally between worker and employer, but the latter pays the entire cost of accident insurance, and five-sixths of a special wage subsidy for married employees.

Spanish officials are sensitive to criticism, failing to agree to suggestions the world might understand them better if it knew more of the country's social problems. At the same time they readily admit that the mass of Spain's workers are too little educated to understand or appreciate the workings of democracy.

One unofficial but reliable source suggested the illiteracy rate is 40 per cent. Another informant with access to authentic information said there are 40,000 illiterate children in the seaport of Valencia (population 750,000) alone.

Principally this is due to the series of upheavals in Spanish politics during this century. Ministers of education bounced in and out of office, making a coordinated plan impossible. Republicans tried to take control of education from the Roman Catholic Church which had the most efficient system. The civil war wrecked what was left of teaching efforts.

Now the France system, in cooperation with the church, is trying to restore the system. More urgent building requirements have delayed the construction of badly-needed schools and poor pay has discouraged teachers, although some have succeeded in carrying through projects that British educationists describe as "models of their kind."

Plumbing Code Not Enforced Supt. Declares

LINDSAY, Feb. 20 (ENS). — Waterworks Superintendent Robert Reynolds last night urged the Lindsay Water Board to enforce the new plumbing code which prohibits the laying of water pipes in sewer trenches. He said when services were installed to the wartime houses on St. Peter Street this rule was ignored. "Persons often do not consult the board before installing services," he said. "And some persons do plumbing work who are not qualified." Members agreed the rule should be enforced.

Mr. Reynolds criticized unsanitary conditions he claimed existed in some local homes, and declared the Board of Health should take action. "These conditions could cause an epidemic, but if this happened people would blame the water," Mr. Reynolds said.

Lakefield High Graduates 21st Class With Honors

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 21—(ENS)—Nearly 500 parents and others attended the anual commencement of the Lakefield High School on Thursday night, at which students of the school presented a program of entertainment. Miss Mary Spencer, one of the graduating students, received top honors, winning the IODE scholarship for highest graduating marks. She was also valedictorian.

Music by the High School Orchestra, under the leadership of Principal R. J. Sutton, was enjoyed. In the orchestra were R. J. Sutton, George Kelly, Greg and Herbert Knox, Tom Birch, Jack Chittick, John Peel, Bill Batten, Jim Sloan, and Charlie Ridpath. The opening chorus was followed by a short address by J. W. Ridpath, chairman for the evening, who commented that this commencement—the 21st — marked the coming-of-age of the Lakefield High School.

General proficiency prizes donated by the High School Board and trophies from individual donors were presented to students obtaining highest standings in their forms. They were: Grade 9, Joyce Mathieson, the Bailey Trophy, presented by Mr. Ridpath; Grade 10, Barbara Hamblin; The Erskine Trophy, presented by F. L. Erskine; Grade 11, George Hatton, the Northey Trophy, presented by Rev. M. R. Hunt; Grade 12, Irma Bullock, the Tanner Trophy, presented by George Tanner; Grade 13, Mary Spencer, the Millage Trophy, presented by E. J. Millage.

Ruth Bullock received the prize for the highest marks in English composition and grammar on the High School entrance examinations, donated by the Catholic Women's League and presented by Mrs. Delledonne. Fire Chief Allan Clark awarded prizes to Zeta Moher and Vivian Clements for their essays on fire prevention. Charles Ridpath and James Sloan gave two violin duets, accompanied by George Kelly and George Ingram. IODE Scholarship of $50 to the Upper School graduate taking the highest marks was awarded to Mary Spencer. Presentations to five pupils taking highest marks on High School entrance went to Joyce Brown, Douglas Darling, Eugene Sabatino, Mary Ann Leonard, and Gilbert Hunter. These awards were presented by Mrs. T. W. Chaplin, education secretary, and Mrs. L. Quackenbush, Regent of the donating body Catherine Parr Trail Chapter, IODE.

Inspector Is Speaker.

K. O. Birkin, Peterborough School Inspector, gave the address of the evening, dealing with world citizenship. "Man has gone through many ages," he said, "the stone age, coal age, iron age, and now, the atomic age. We are at present living in a fearful and wonderful age. The underlying promise of the atomic age is to make life easier for people."

He advised the graduates to always display friendliness.

"The ability to get along with other people is the saving grace for the world."

Principal Sutton gave a review of the year's work.

In the final examinations last year 93 per cent of the pupils in grade 9 passed, 87 per cent in grades 10, 92 per cent in grade 11, 89 per cent in grade 12 and 89.3 per cent in grade 13. This percentage is much higher than the provincial percentage, he pointed out.

At present there are 64 girls and 43 boys attending high school. Of these, 30 come by bus, 18 from Apsley, 6 from the Nepheline Mines and six from Young's Point. Fifty students now enjoy the hot lunches, started at the school last week.

Mr. Sutton stated he had tried to get a commercial course in the school but due to lack of space and teachers had been unable to make progress.

Intermediate certificates, to graduates of grade X were presented by school trustee Allan Clark to: Tom Birch, Noreen Clements, Vivian Clements, Joan Creighton, Eleanor Deck, Betty Delledonne, Leeanna Doubt, Carolyn Ann Erskine, Cameron Freeburn, Barbara Hamblin, Ken McCracken, Rita Maloney, Bernie Moher, Margaret Moher, Ann Samis, Marilyn Windsor, Emil York.

School Trustee

B. Q. Dench presented the secondary diplomas (junior matriculation) to Bill Batten, Bruce Buchanan, Irma Bullock, Jack Chittick, Mary Moher, Marion Sloan.

Miss Joyce Hutt gave a vocal solo accompanied by Mrs. V. Drury.

Dance and Play

Frances Erskine, Carolyn Ann Erskine, Wendy Dunford, Jean Geraldi, and Ann Samis gave several dance numbers accompanied by Joan Graham.

The valedictory address was delivered by Mary Spencer.

A humorous one-act play was presented. The cast was composed of Catharine Robertson, John Peel, Bruce Buchanan, Clayton Hutt, Joyce Hutt, Rita Maloney and Andrew Clements.

Says Man Can Pawn Wife If Dealer Accepts Her

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

LONDON, Feb. 20—(CP).—A pawnbroker discussing the high quality of goods submitted for cash nowadays, said there was nothing to stop a man pawning his wife—providing the wife was willing to be pawned and a pawnbroker was willing to accept "that kind of pledge." Thirteen years ago, he said, an Essex man pawned by agreement his best friends for £2 10s ($10)—but the pledge was redeemed first thing in the morning, the money paid over and the man released.

In accordance with the law, the pawnbroker was bound to maintain the pledge in good condition; so he had to feed the man who was pawned and provide him with a bed as well.

Nowadays, the pawnbroker continued, people are pawning binoculars, cameras, silver cigarette cases, jewellery, valuable portraits and sometimes vacuum cleaners and household utensils.

Clothes, which used to be the chief trade of the pawnshops, are so scarce that few people have any to spare.

"I can remember the time," he said, "when there were long queues every Monday morning of people waiting to pawn Sunday suits and boots. Most of them redeemed their pledges on payday . . . but more often than not were back in the line the following Monday."

Better Social Services

Improved social services, he said, are responsible for a sharp decrease in the number of poor-class clients. These have been replaced largely by black-coated workers and middle-class families with fixed incomes who regularly do business with the pawnbroker.

Whereas 20 years ago, more than 2,000 "uncles" sported the sign of the three golden balls in London streets, today there are fewer than 800 pawnbrokers in London — and only 1,500 in the whole of the British Isles.

But while the volume of goods pawned is down, the value of goods pawned is up. Today "Uncle" will lend you £1 ($4) on an article that, before the war, would have been worth no more than 5s ($1.25).

The would-be pawnbroker in Britain must first find someone to testify to his good character. He must buy a licence costing £7 10s, and he is expected to have at least £5,000 behind him as a "cushion" against slack periods.

On an average, eight out of every 10 pledges are redeemed. The rest are sold at special auction sales — that is if their value exceeds 10s. Under 10s, they become the property of the pawnbroker.

AWARD WINNER — Jacob Burck, editorial cartoonist, has won the Heywood Broun top award for outstanding professional work in 1947. Burck, a Pulitzer prize winner, holds many other distinguished citations, including National Headliners and Sigma Delta Chi journalistic fraternity awards. Most recently, he won first place in a U.S. national radio contest to select the best cartoon depicting the plight of disabled veterans.

Plymouth brings you Still Greater Safety-

WITH—PLYMOUTH SAFETY-RIM WHEELS
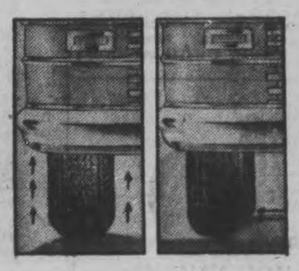
AND SUPER CUSHION TIRES
AT NO EXTRA COST...

SINCE 1941, Plymouth owners have enjoyed the extra safety provided by Plymouth Safety-Rim Wheels. Now, with the new Super Cushion tires as STANDARD equipment on all models, Plymouth brings you still greater safety.



With Plymouth Safety-Rim Wheels it is almost impossible for a tire to twist or pull off the rim in the event of a blowout. Super Cushion tires with 26% more air volume at only 24 pounds maximum pressure provide a "softer" air and cooler running which lessens the chances of a blowout. The combination of these new tires with Plymouth Safety-Rim Wheels will raise the present standards of safety in motoring.

Remember, all Plymouth models are equipped with Safety-Rim Wheels and Super Cushion tires at no extra cost.

Look at these Plymouth Features . . .

New Safety Hydraulic Brakes • Patented Floating-Power Engine Mountings to smother vibration • New Starter with button on dash • Safety-Rim Wheels for blowout protection • New Front-end Sway Eliminator • All-steel Safety Body • New Body Guard Bumper • Hotchkiss Drive to cushion starting and stopping • Lightweight Aluminum Pistons • Wear-resisting Super-Finished Parts • New Gasoline Filter.

Chrysler Engineers have done wonders to cushion their cars against up and down shocks (left). Lateral or crosswise shocks (right) had never been satisfactorily absorbed until Goodyear produced Super Cushion tires. Pillow-like Super Cushions soak up lateral shock and give a surprisingly smoother "cushioned" ride.

Never Replace Theatre Says Director

"We are working toward the Canadian theatre-to-be, which may not come for some years yet," Mrs. Dora Maver Moore of Toronto told members of the Women's Art Association Friday afternoon. Subject of her address given in the green room of the YWCA was "The Art of the Theatre." As founder and director of the "New Play Society" she was most competent to speak on the art.

She said all efforts of Canadian theatre groups are for that goal, but the idea has only been born since the war. Many citizens think the theatre as a building but to Mrs. Moore it is a group of people. "We will be fortunate indeed if we can get a theatre such as the Old Vic in London where the motto is "By the people, for the people." The Little Theatres and amateur dramatic groups throughout Canada are the tributaries from which it will be fed. Craftsmanship is contributory but does not make up the main stream. The theatre she visualizes will mean a full-time professional job for its actors.

"Since its birth in Egypt 5,000 years ago the art of the theatre, has risen and fallen repeatedly, as history shows. There were periods when it was considered vileness and consigned to the devil. The next outbreak would be of religious drama based on the Holy mysteries of the Bible. During the Puritan regime the theatre was considered evil and actors were taken to the whipping post. If was only after Queen Victoria knighted Sir Henry Irving that the British stage was established as legal."

Calling the theatre the "art of human relations" Mrs. Moore said "though it is the most natural profession there is, it is possibly the most difficult." Continuing she said "drama on the screen and radio is good and can be enjoyed, but the mechanical contact cannot replace the expression of human personality and the contact of the eye." She believes, too, that movies is here to stay and should be used for its far-reaching effects in molding our lives.

"We will never have a Canadian theatre unless the public demands it," is the way Mrs. Moore feels. "The desire to be in the theatre is as natural as breathing and is a tributary which will fill the stage." Canadians are full of enthusiasm but many of them do not know what they are missing. She told of a player's group on tour recently who went to some towns north of Vancouver where the residents were amazed to find they were real people and came up on the stage to touch them. There are many others who go about their daily tasks imaging themselves the hero or heroine of a play they have heard.

"Art is a modern exercise. Art sets the standard of quality, even in everyday life" she said in conclusion.

Mrs. Moore's talk was enthusiastically received by her audience who particularly liked her manner. She has been associated with the theatre and theatre people all her life, one of her father's great friends being George Bernard Shaw and another Jas. Bradley. She too performed on the 'boards.' Introduction was made by Mrs. N. D. Seaton, president.

Make it Yourself At Half the Cost

With prices what they are, few office girls or housewives can afford to pay for a new dress in-between seasons. Downtown they see a pretty print in the window and know it would look so smart on, but on learning it is $30, the spark of hope dies quickly.

Instead of being downhearted, the thing to do is make the dress at home. Anyone can learn to make a dress, even if the only thing they did before was sew on buttons or let down a hem. Patience, a little hard work and some expert advice can easily solve the problem. The dress will be made at less than half the cost and there will be a certain pride that comes from making something yourself.

Choose a pattern that is simple and easy to follow. If the directions are too complicated the beginner may become discouraged. A plain bodice with set-in sleeves, small collar and plain uncluttered skirt is a good style to make first. Incidentally, the description fits a number of the latest pattern designs to come out in spring collections. Next select a good print. By that is meant good quality fabric, good taste in color and a design that isn't too big for your height and figure. Never buy anything extreme if you want it to be wearable for at least two seasons.

Prints noticed in one local store today were very lovely. Several had geometric designs, others dark ground with white floral pattern, or large flowers in several colors, and there was a quantity of small design in a full range of colors. There were some particularly attractive stripes, and they had some checked taffeta for swishy petticoats, that could come next on your list of home-mades.

Before going any further, take plenty of time to measure and fit the pattern to your figure. Any good pattern includes instructions for altering.

Cutting out the dress is the most important step of all. It should be done carefully, watching the directions closely and following them to the letter. Pay particular attention to the marks for 'straight of goods' and you will never have a dress hat doesn't 'hang' right. Lay pattern pieces in place and anchor with weights such as cups and saucers. Pinning the pattern down often results in the material being pulled too tight at some points. Make a final check to see they are placed properly on the material, and then cut.

Putting together is just a matter of sticking to directions on the pattern sheet, taking each seam in the order it is mentioned. Some patterns are numbered which make it even easier to follow. Be sure to keep the pattern piece and the material right together until you come to sew on that part.

THE LONG LOOK—In the bag this season is a world of imagination, interesting detail and new lines. To show you what we mean here is a new design, a bag that goes in for length to excellent effect. It is of cashmere with an all-over quilted pattern, is lined with quilted satin and sports a 24-carat gold plated frame.

Rosalind Russell Leading Oscar Hopefuls

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 21 (AP)—Throwing caution in all directions, let's sit down and try to dope the Academy Award winners.

It's just like picking a horse race. You study the condition of the horses (popularity of the actors), the speed of the track (the number of good pictures), and then try to figure the sentimental factors. Of course, a dark horse might sneak under the wire a winner, but let's not think about that.

First of all, the pictures. Scratch "Crossfire" and "Miracle on 34th Street." They may have been entertaining, but they are not the type of prestige pictures that win Academy Awards. I think we can skip "The Bishop's Wife," since not everybody in Hollywood thinks it is an achievement.

That leaves "Great Expectations" and Gentleman's Agreement." Both are excellent in all departments, but the former will suffer in the voting because it was made in England. Choice: "Gentleman's Agreement."

Going Gets Tough

Now it gets tougher. Among the ladies, Susan Hayward is getting much support, but her picture ("Smash-up") was not a smashing success. Likewise, Joan Crawford's ("Possessed") and besides, she has an Oscar already. Dorothy McGuire's "Gentleman's Agreement" role was difficult, but not meaty enough.

Loretta Young in "The Farmer's Daughter" showed the most improvement, and that means a lot in Academy voting. But the part lacked the heavy dramatics afforded Rosalind Russell in "Mourning Becomes Electra." And Miss Russell has been close to an Oscar before. I'll pick Roz.

Lacks Prestige.

Among the actors, John Garfield's entertaining "Body and Soul" lacks the prestige value of more expensive films. Michael Redgrave makes a strong bid with "Mourning" but he faces stiff competition.

It now looks like a neck-and-neck battle among William Powell ("Life with Father"), Ronald Colman ("Double Life"), and Gregory Peck ("G.A."), but because a winning picture often sweeps the slate and because of his great popularity, I'll lay a buck on Peck. But remember—I've been wrong before.

K. R. Killingbeck Wed at Brantford

In the United Church, Brantford, the marriage took place this week of Kenneth Roy Killingbeck, son of Mrs. Killingbeck, Warkworth, and the late Roy Killingbeck; and Grace Margaret Cook, daughter of Mrs. and Mr. William H. Cook, Brantford, with Rev. E. G. Riddolls officiating. Mrs. G. M. Cook played the organ and Mrs. Robert Summerhayes was soloist.

The bride wore a gown of white satin and lace and long train of lace as she was given in marriage by her father. A headdress of orange blossoms held her finger-tip veil and she carried pink and white carnations. Miss Ruth Schertizberg, maid of honor, wore pale blue with headdress of pink. Howard Cook brother of the bride was groomsman. Ushers were Ralph Ashley and Walter Acker, Woodstock.

The grooms mother who assisted at the reception wore paradise blue crepe with black accessories and corsage of red roses. The bride's mother chose grey crepe. To travel the bride donned a grey crepe dress and the hat with black accessories.

Immigrants Start To Learn English Quickly

KIRKLAND LAKE, Feb. 21—(CP)—Canada's post-war immigrants are beginning to take root in Ontario's northland with the aid of special courses designed to teach them the language and customs of their adopted land.

The experiences of three young Estonian hard-rock miners are typical. One of the three, Arve Narvet, 19, learned a little English while a prisoner in Germany.

The other two—Bodo Kynapp, 22, and Endel Grau, 23—were unable to speak any English. Yet, after several weeks of attending night classes under George Dickinson here, all were able to speak the language well enough to order meals in restaurants and enjoy movies.

At Sudbury, 130 immigrants, now working for a paper company at nearby Espanola, attend special classes arranged by Kenneth Young, Northern Ontario supervisor of community programs for the Ontario education department.

At Noranda, night classes are held in English and French for 12 European girls working at Youville Hospital, a large Roman Catholic institution, serving the northern Quebec hinterland.

Reg Fisher, former school teacher now working as an insurance salesman, works in his spare time teaching English to a paper company's immigrant bushworkers.

Kostas Lukoskius, Lithuanian employed by a lumber company at Timmins, expressed his feelings about Canada this year: "After such a long time under the oppressions of east and west neighbors before the war and through the war as displaced persons in Germany, we may once again feel as human beings."

DOUBLE TAKE — Katy Turner looks so good in this fairylandish setting that no one minds looking at her twice. Trees grow out of water in the Cypress Gardens, Fla., and the complete absence of any atmospheric motion short of the gentlest of zephyrs, gives the water the reflective surface of an expensive mirror.

WAR-BRIDE'S HUSBAND MISSING—Alone in a strange country, Mrs. Rene Morris, a former London singer, who reported to police that her husband had left her four months ago but she failed to report his absence fearing she would be deported. 14,350 Children Compete In Toronto Music Festival

TORONTO, Feb. 21—(CP).—Musical children — 14,350 of them—will find scope for their talents at the Kiwanis fifth annual music festival, largest ever held in Canada, when they compete here for $5,350 in prizes and scholarships Feb. 23 to March 6. International and interprovincial in scope, the festival will attract 2,452 participants from outside Toronto. The hopefuls will compete in choral groups, band, soloist and instrumental classes, with the opportunity of going home $200 richer if they win out in the right class. These larger scholarships are awarded to some senior competitors in piano, vocal and church choir groups.

The attraction which has stolen the show in other Kiwanis Festivals is the rhythm band section, made up of kindergarten "jive-artists."

Another feature is Toronto's eight-year-old Nancy Jarvie, competing in junior piano classes for the second time this year despite a slight limp, all that's left of a cast she wore for two years following a tumble off her front verandah.

In one class alone 19 public schools will be represented with 1,050 children.

"The competitive feature of a music festival provides a field of endeaver wherein standards of achievement are established, sportsmanship developed and audience interest stimulated, "said Horace G. Lewis, president of the Kiwanis festival committee.

Adjudicators coming form England are: Alec Redshaw, conductor of The Grimsby Opera, Grimsby; Sidney Harrison of the Guildhall School of Music, London; Dr. Gordon Slater, organist and choirmaster of Lincoln Cathedral.

Other Judges are: Max Pirani, University of Western Ontario; Filmer E. Hubble, University of Manitoba; Martin Boundy, former Bandmaster of the R C A F band overseas.

To Relieve Bad Cough Quickly, Mix This at Home

Here's an old home mixture your mother probably used, and, for real results, it is still a most dependable medicine for distressing coughs. Try it once, and you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) Anyone can do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle, and fill up with syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really splendid cough medicine—more than you could buy for four times the money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time. Children take it without the usual struggle.

This splendid home mixture has a three-fold action. You can feel it take hold at once. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. This explains why it gives such quick relief.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its quick action on throat irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Pinex Is Fast Relief. Easily Mixed. Saves Money.

Of Interest to Women

Shades of Grandma's Day Predict Ruffled Parasols

TORONTO, Feb. 21 — (CP).—Line up for the Easter parade gals—it's not far off according to style setters who anxiously await the pipings of half-awakened spring to plunge women into a world of frothy, pastel frills.

A survey shows women across the Dominion will exhibit even less leg than last season, reduce their waistlines to vanishing proportions and fit their figures into one of the popular silhouettes.

Many department stores are guarding their spring fashion secrets like invasion plans, but enough slipped out to let women know this spring will harken back to the age when women actually were "the weaker sex."

The "new look" still is out in front in Nova Scotia where skirts are moving closer to the pavements every minute. The shoulder bare shepherd neckline, popular last season, is expected to make a return-hit for both spring and summer. Feather and flower bedecked hats come in "ice cream" shades of pastel blue, pink, and beige.

Montreal fashion experts say the "new look" is being modified to fit Canadian women's figures with midcalf skirts not as full as winter predictions. Tall girls are still grabbing the swirl skirt while the short gal prefers straighter lines, but both approve of the wasp-waist stays. Navy blue, varied with pastels is the color story for spring.

Ottawa women have shown no rush to buy out the supply of spring styles, but from the crowds around the dress-goods and pattern counters, it would seem they are trying to save a little money by turning out their own "new look."

It is predicted that fashion's new personality will be "sweetly nostalgic, warmly romantic and delicately ladylike." This result is to be achieved through ruffled parasols, ultra feminine petticoats and gentle shades of pink and violet.

Three popular silhouettes are "the ball," with rib-fitting jacket and flared skirt; "the column," a pencil-slim effect, and "the triangle," with fullness concentrated in the back. Street lengths will be between 13 and 10 inches from the floor while formal attire swings around the ankle or instep. Toronto fashion experts say black is always smart but the only vivid shade which will rival paste! is dynamic red.

Enthusiasm for spring styles on the prairies is slightly hindered by continued cold weather, but the fashion-wise say there's no danger of the long look disappearing. Navy tops the color pageant.

IF HUSBANDS COULD CHANGE—
Wives List Outstanding Flaws In Mates' Make-Up

◇ ◇ ◇

"Supposing," I said to a group of women the other day, "you have a husband who has all of the basic domestic virtues. He is faithful, considerate, kind, generous and a good provider. What alterations would you make in him if you could change him into your heart's desire?"

Dorothy Dix

"Well," said one woman, "I'm lucky. I married a he-angel, if there is any such animal. But if I could make him over, I'd change him from a scatterer into a picker-up. There isn't a vestige of order in his whole system. If he merely passes through a room, it looks as if it had been struck by a cyclone. He scatters his clothes from one end of the house to the other, and he apparently has taken a vow never to hang his hat up.

"He thinks that floors were made to strew newspapers and cigarette ashes over, and that the proper place for shoes is wherever he happens to take them off, and he would have to join the nudist colony if I didn't locate his clean shirts. He never would find them himself. Of course, I wouldn't change him for any other man in the world, but a neat husband must be mighty restful to live with."

Poor Conversationalist

"If I could change my husband, said another woman, "I would make him more talkative. The strong, silent men are fascinating in the movies, but they are a pain in the neck to live with. My husband is as good as gold and gives me everything I want, except conversation. I hear he is the life of the party when he is abroad, but at home I have to corkscrew every word out of him.

"When I wear myself to a frazzle asking him questions about what he has done, whom he has seen and what they said, etc., he just grunts or mumbles something in his beard, or he hands me the newspaper and says: "Read it." And why I don't throttle him, I don't know. Believe me, if he were exchanged for a store dummy so far as being entertaining is concerned, I never would find out the difference."

"If I could change my husband," said another woman, "I would pep him up and galvanize him into action, instead of his being a permanent fixture in an easy chair. Of course, it is nice to have a husband who hasn't a wandering foot, but I would like to compromise on one who wasn't always too tired to take me stepping."

"If I could change my husband, I'd cure him of having the domestic complex," said another woman. "Believe me, of all the faults that a husband can have, the hardest for a wife to endure is to be married to a man who runs the house. He doles out the market money and wants to know what she paid for every potato. He snoops into every closet to see if the clothes are hung up straight. He runs his fingers around every piece of furniture to see if it is properly dusted. He criticizes her cooking. And any woman who stands one of these pests for 10 years has earned her martyr's crown."

"Personally," said another woman, "I wouldn't change my husband in any way. He is good and kind and companionable and laughs with me, instead of at me, and comes up to my ideal in every respect, but I do wish I could have picked out my mother-in-law."

"So say we all," chorused the women.

OMEMEE SCHOOL

Founder's Day was celebrated on Wednesday by the Omemee Home and School Association.

The recent Valenine tea and bazaar in support of the Aid to European Children was pronounced a success. The president, Mrs. R. Clifford, extended thanks to all who helped make it so.

For the March meeting it was decided to have Miss Lewis. REC representative, speak in the interest of Bible vocational schools with a view to organizing a school in Omemee.

The boys and girls of Miss Jones' room sang two bright numbers, "Winter Song" and "Betty Bringle's Pig," and little George Pooley sang "Tick Tock" and "Feeding Birds." Mrs. A. Stephenson gave a reading depicting the lack of understanding which often exists between parents and teachers.

A candle lighting service was conducted by Mrs. G. Robertson, representing national federation, Mrs. R. Clifford, local Home and School Association, Miss N. Skuce, the teachers, and Dean Webb the pupils; reader was Mrs. H. Bent.

At the conclusion a dainty lunch was served, with Mrs. L. M. Curtis and Mrs. J. Woods pouring tea.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, February 22

THE double nature of the holiday, calling for unusual and irregular diversions and avocations, makes the situation a critical one in many respects, since there is a dual inclinations to celebrate. This is an unconventional, unorthodox, even illicit mode of operation or indulgence in which emotions and impulses may be sustained by queer or weird ideas, in which reason and commonsense have little place. Menace in subtle ways, loss of substance, friends, and possibly reputation, are among the dangers.

For The Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be ready to cope with a period of strange and hidden factors, in which the subtle, sinister and quite unpredictable have emphasis. The exceptional and unique, in contacts, adventures and indulgences, may be based on emotions and impulses more fantastic and imaginative than safe and sound. Lures to deflect from the straight-and-narrow path, in practical and constructive affairs as well as in the emotional and spiritual urges, may be the means of regrettable undoing, with far-reaching reactions on life, reputation and happiness.

Shun all illicit and unrealistic adventures.

A child born on this day may have hidden sources of emotional and psychic origin, luring it into fields of indulgence and practices of fantastic and weird promptings, unless early trained and instructed.

For Monday, February 23

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of conspicuous achievement and accomplishment, with the most enterprising and ambitious plans and policies put over with skill, ingenuity, and unflagging energy and aggression. This despite some antagonism, opposition, complications or flare-ups.

Keep plans well formulated, energies well in hand, associates harmonized, then sail ahead toward high success, prosperity and progress, with pleasure as well.

For The Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of golden opportunities for attaining their most ambitious goals and objectives. Their energies and initiative are sharpened by strenuous and aggressive opposition or antagonism. But the power to overcome this will win out, despite flares and opposition, if the mentality and patterns of procedure are keenly etched and adhered to.

Self-reliance, determination, technical skill and also good nature may go far in attaining the most cherished desires and enthusiasms.

A child born on this day is excellently equipped with skills, ingenuity, and genuity, enthusiasm and force of character to attain conspicuous leadership in life, with fulfillment of high hopes and ideas.

Delightful Tea Follows Address

Sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of St. George's Anglican Church, Mrs. L. Ballantyne of Toronto gave instructive suggestions for programs and group work to a large group of women Friday afternoon in the church parlors. She stressed the importance of home-making and said "The woman who makes a home in the true sense of the word, rules the world." She urged neighborly hospitality, especially to brides and young mothers.

She described the ways of living in different parts of Canada from the quaint Maritimes, Quebec with its long narrow farms and handicrafts, through to the Prairies and British Columbia, her choice of habitat. The speaker then enlarged on the difference in the choice of amusements and crafts in these provinces.

Mrs. Ballantyne was introuced by Mrs. E. C. Moore.

With Mrs. S. Park presiding at the tea table, beautifully laid with an ecru lace cloth and centred with pink tulips and matching tall candles, delicious refreshments were served. Convener was Mrs. Robert Arnott assisted by Mrs. G. Rutherford, Mrs. E. Huxley, Mrs. J. Collins, Mrs. J. Ernshaw and Mrs. A. Watkins.

A FRIENDLY HOME — It would be hard to imagine a house with a friendlier character than this. Its sparkling white clapboard walls are in sharp contrast with the dark blue of roof and shutters, and serve to emphasize the homey quality of the house. But we think many will be as enthusiastic about the inside as the outside! To start with, few homes have as fascinating an arrangement of living room and dinette—and don't let that bay window command all your attention! See how the corner fireplace serves as major attraction for both rooms. In the kitchen a breakfast table and two benches cleverly fold away into the north wall. The upstairs den is equipped to pinch-hit as a bedroom. It has a built-in bunk and book shelves, and the walls are attractively finished in natural pine. Rust coloured linoleum is the floor covering in this room.

Before Builder Begins Setting Trim Give Plaster Plenty of Time to Season

Not so long ago wood lathing strips soaked with water so that they would not de-hydrate the paster too rapidly were the rule in house construction. Metal lath, wire lath, insulating plaster bases are more common now than wood strips. They provide the requisite bonding strength and make possible the use of less plaster. Before a builder begins setting his trim the plaster should have abundant time to season. Damp, unseasoned plaster is always far too ready to give up its water content to any piece of wood that is nailed flat against it, and later drying will shrink the woodwork and cause every joint to open and remain open permanently.

If you are building, insist upon having your floors well nailed. Between the sub floor and the hardwood floor a good building paper should be used. You must shut out dampness from your hardwood floors, otherwise they cup and as you look across the floor you will see every narrow board lifting its two corners.

Doors and Windows

A door should be so fitted that it has the same amount of free space all around it. The thickness of a twenty-five cent piece is the rule used by many an old carpenter. Too many doors are too close to the jamb in some places and too far away in others. Then how many times does the householder find that his windows either rattle in their runs or else stick immovably. This is most often due to being planed down too much until they have too much play. One corner gets a little ahead of the opposite one and the sash promptly binds in the frame. The question "What kind of windows?" should be given specially careful consideration before you build. There are windows available that are weather-tight and absolutely trouble free. Ask your lumber dealer about them.

One other thing that should be scrutinized carefully is the finish lumber. If a careful, conscientious builder has been in charge the inside woodwork will have been sandpapered to a smooth even finish. If there has been careless work done you can detect scores of places where mill-run finish has been utilized without any bench work having been done on it at all. This is not right. Scratches, splinter holes, hammer marks, are all too often temporarily hidden by a little artful work with colored putty or wax.

Regarding Fireplaces

If there are to be open fireplaces in your new house, these may be effective or ineffective. It is easy to give the wrong shape to the fire-back and throat. Then the operation of kindling a fire is attended by such annoyances as billows of smoke that come out into the room and roll up to the ceiling. Today's modern efficient metal fireplace units overcome all these troubles without affecting the finished fireplace appearance. Your local hardware dealer will have information on these units to assist you.

Don't forget that the roof of your house is going to shelter you from thousands of gallons of falling water, hundreds of pounds of melting snow, and the sweltering rays of the mid-summer sun, year after year. Give your roof a fighting chance — don't skimp on materials or workmanship.

One of the most important things to watch is the flashing. Many vital spots should be carefully covered by copper or rust-proof flashing.

Wood roofs of the best type are laid with edge-grain shingles. Staining or dipping in creosote gives them greater weather resistance.

Shingles usually come in either 16, 18, or 24 inch lengths. The 16-inch single is laid so that 4½ or 5 inches is exposed to the weather; the 18-inch length is laid 5½ inches to the weather, and the 24-inch length 7½ inches. Greater exposures result in thinner and less enduring roofs.

Of great importance is the use of a rustproof nail, with not more than two nails to a shingle. No nails should be exposed or visible. Make sure the nailheads are not driven into the shingles to destroy the fibre and invite decay.

Asbestos and composition shingles are now very popular and durable. They come in many attractive colors, styles and textures to meet the home builders' demands.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

ALL THE WAY AT ONCE

WHAT is the use of trying a pre-emptive bid—a high one with the intent of shutting out the opponents—unless you make it high enough to accomplish its purpose? The answer to that would seem to be obvious, but it is not to plenty of players. What would be an extremely high bid on one holding is too low on another. In rare spots, a bid of six on your first turn is too low, as a call of seven would be more logical.

(Dealer: East. North - South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	6 ♣	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	7 ♣	Pass	Pass
Dbl	Pass	7 ♠	Dbl

Where the bidding went that way on a duplicate deal—which is about the way it moved at all tables but one—South scored the diamond K and A, gave North a ruff with a third diamond lead, and eventually the heart A scored another trick to beat the contract four tricks. That gave North and South a score of 700 points.

Only at one table did the hand get played by South. He was Capt. Irving K. Woolfe, who did a bit of concentrated thinking before he acted over East's opening 1-Spade.

As he explained later, he realized he might make 7-Clubs if North had two clubs and a singleton, doubleton or blank in diamonds, or if North had the diamond Q, or if North happened to have the A of whatever suit was led, or if North had the diamond J and the Q was doubleton, or if the diamond J and Q were doubleton, or if the defenders guessed wrong in their discards on that long string of clubs, or if North had one club and a blank in whatever suit was led.

With all of those chances, and possibly more about which he couldn't think at the moment, he decided that ability to make a grand slam in clubs was probable. So he bid 7-Clubs over the 1-Spade—too high for West—and East had the temerity to double it on general principles, the Captain redoubling. Then he ruffed the spade lead, laid down the club A and ruffed the third-round diamond in the dummy for a terrific top score.

Your Week-End Question

If all of the strength of the defenders is marked as being in one hand, what type of play or plays is likely to become more important than usual to the declarer?

6—In Memoriam

DODD—In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister Arlene, who passed away February 22, 1946, two years ago.
God so loved little children
That He blessed them tenderly
And said, "Of such My Kingdom is,
Let them come unto me."
So may it comfort us to know
Our little one is there
Where the God of little children
Keeps them happy in His care.
—Sadly missed by mother, dad, Wayne, Sharon and Gary.

DODD—In treasured memory of a sweet little girl, Arlene Dodd, who passed away two years ago February 22.
Our lips need not speak
When our hearts mourn sincerely,
For grief often dwells
Where it seldom is seen.
—Ever remembered Jeanne and Adele Dodd.

ELLIS, Harvey—In loving memory of Harvey Ellis, who passed away February 21, 1947.
Loving and kind in all his ways
Upright and just to the end of his days
Sincere and kind in heart and mind
What a beautiful memory he left behind.
—Lovingly remembered by Joyce and Joe.

ELLIS, Harvey—In loving memory of father, who passed away February 21, 1947.
One year has passed since that sad day,
When the one I loved was called away.
Good took him home, it was His will,
But in my heart he liveth still.
—Ever remembered by his son Henry Ellis and family.

ELLIS, Harvey—In memory of a dear husband, who passed away February 21, 1947.
What would I give to clasp his hand
His happy face to see
To hear his voice and see his smile
That meant so much to me.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife.

ELLIS—In loving memory of a dear father, Harvey Ellis, who passed away one year ago February 21.
One year has passed dear father,
Since you were called away;
How well do I remember
That sad and weary day.
You suffered much, and your murmured not,
We watched you day by day;
We cried and prayed that your dear life
Would not be taken away.
—Lovingly remembered by his daughter and family, Mrs. Leonard Davis, Havelock, Ontario.

JACKSON—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. Lillian Jackson, who passed away February 23, 1947.
God knew that she was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb
So he closed her weary eyelids,
And whispered: "Peace be thine."
—Lovingly remembered by husband, Wilfred and family.

MAHOOD—In loving memory of our dear father, Alexander Mahood, who passed away fourteen years ago Sunday, February 22, 1934.
When evening shades are falling
And we are sitting alone
In our hearts there comes a longing
If you only could come home.
'Tis lonesome here without you, Dad
There is such a vacant place
For we never hear your footsteps
Nor see your smiling face
As we loved you so we miss you
In our memory you are dear
Loved, remembered, longed for always Bringing many a silent tear
To those who have a father
Cherish him with care
There will never be another
To fill his vacant chair.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by sons Wilmot and Bert and daughter Mabel.

MAUDSLEY—In loving memory of Mrs. Edward Maudsley, who passed away February 21, 1947.
The world may change from year to year
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one we loved
From memory pass away.
—Ever remembered by her son William and family.

TINNEY—In loving memory of Rufus Tinney, who fell asleep one year ago today.
One year has passed and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon his grave
May wither and decay
But the love of him who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.
—Remembered by his wife, son and daughter-in-law, Bill and Eva of Toronto.

Market Prices Seen Stabilizing

By The Canadian Press

Prices this week showed indications of stabilizing at the new and lower levels established after the two previous weeks of crashing commodities and slipping securities.

From market activity, it would appear that traders were content to mark time and keep close watch on prices to see whether or not there actually was stability. Fear that another steep decline was in the offing still persisted and, as the week neared its close, there were more market spectators than participants.

In Canada, price news centred on Ottawa where a parliamentary committee investigated rising food prices and the government reimposed mark-up controls on citrus fruits.

Trends on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange followed Chicago movements fairly closed while livestock markets in Canada continued firm although turnover was slow.

On the security markets, Toronto and Montreal industrials showed mild improvement. In Toronto industrials made a good advance on Tuesday but prices eased off the following three days to close yesterday only slightly ahead for the week.

tickled their sense of curiosity ever since. There is a large bed of red granite on this property and at one spot may be seen what looks like the deep imprint of a woman's shoe on the surface of the granite. No one they have met can account for it.

Although his general health and eyesight are not all he would wish them to be, Mr. Henry makes calls in the village. Mrs. Henry too has her daily rounds with a cheery smile and an occasional joke for her many friends.

Postpone Blebiscite

PICTON, Feb. 21 — A vote on proposed purchase of a fire engine and garbage collection in Bloomfield has been called off. The ratepayers were scheduled to vote on the two questions next Monday. An announcement by the village council states: "Due to circumstances beyond our control, it will be impossible to hold the plebiscite on garbage collection and the fire engine by-law as previously announced".

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

M. H. Johnston Elected President Of Swine Producers — Hugh Stewart Buys The V. L. Stanley-Jones Farm On The Otonabee River

Peterborough and Victoria farmers visited this week at Maple in Ontario county the artificial insemination unit now in established operation.

On this trip of enquiry the local delegation was composed of Norman Moncrief, Henry Batten, Stanley Wood, Melville H. Johnston, Henry Sharpe, Carmen Bell, David McNeven, Harry Young, Gordon Staples and Frank C. Paterson.

The Victoria deputation was accompanied by M. H. Winter of Lindsay, county agricultural representative. Interest has been developing in this method of cattle breeding with reports from several other parts of the province that successful results have carried it beyond the stage of experiment.

Holstein Clubs in Oxford and Waterloo counties have formed their own organizations, and the Ontario government last year passed an Act intended to extend by grants the benefits of the new plan to the average dairyman. Financial aid is made available in capital expenditure, purchase of bulls and so on.

Nine counties in eastern Ontario are attached to the new unit at Kemptville. Plans are being considered for another at Belleville. Maple has been operating for 30 months. Another unit has been set up in Essex and still another is projected for the Niagara district, probably at Hamilton.

A group of Peterborough farmers has been enquiring into the artificial insemination plan. Some of them recently attended a preliminary organization meeting at Belleville, but subsequently learned that Peterborough and Victoria might be admitted into Maple membership. Belleville is likely to begin with the Holstein breed. Maple is preparing to advance beyond that stage to accommodate Ayrshire and Jersey breeders.

The next step here and Victoria will be the calling of separate meetings at which the whole question will be discussed and explained. Counties in the Maple group are: York, Halton, Peel and Simcoe. The Peterborough-Victoria deputation was told definitely by the Maple executive that they would be admitted if they sign up for 1,000 cows from each county. That is the essential requirement. The territory to be included in both the Victoria and Peterborough areas would be indicated by a radius of 12 to 15 miles, possibly a little farther, respectively from Lindsay and the city of Peterborough.

Frank Paterson said yesterday that the Maple Association was planning to buy Jersey bulls and are also considering an Ayrshire section. Dairy farmers joining the association pay a life membership of $40 and are charged a service fee of $5. The only apparent mistake the Maple group has made was in underestimating the response of breeders. They realize now that their new barn might have been of larger dimensions.

Apart from that underestimate, the Peterborough deputation was greatly impressed by the Maple plant, the type of animals and the business ability of the executive farmers. On their way home they called at the farm of a breeder named Porter. He has a stable full of Holstein cattle of good constitution "and milky type."

"The Porter herd appealed to our group for their uniformity, their straight and deep lines and good udders," Mr. Patterson said. "The artificial breeding method should make a strong appeal to most dairy farmers, especially those who may be thinking of buying bulls. Apart from other factors they are saved the cost of keeping a sire, around $150 a year and the actual work of caring for it. This plan is not primarily for the show and top breeders, but it can do a lot for the average run of dairy cattle breeders."

Mr. Patterson said the deputation was favorably impressed by the Maple animals and their backgrounds. Breeders receive pedigrees of stock just as complete as in the accustomed natural method.

Matthew H. Winter, commenting at Lindsay, said "I feel that men in the whole milk business would benefit greatly."

Meeting of breeders are being called soon at Lindsay and Peterborough.

GRASSES AND LEGUMES

In a test of 14 varieties of timothy at Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, the recently released variety Climax is heading the list for pasture purposes. This information come from F. S. Nowasad of the forage plants division. "There does not seem to be any difference in the production of pasture from the different varieties of Kentucky and Canada bluegrass. Olds creeping red fescue has been producing slightly more than Duraturf or Refon, but this difference was not significant over a period of two years. But Sturdy and Ensign meadow fescue varieties have outyielded the commercial variety in the hay trials, and Sturdy exceeded all others in the pasture tests. There were five varieties of Orchard grass tested for hay and pasture, but yields so far fail to show any difference due to varieties.

Ladak alfalfa is continuing to give good yields when cut for hay. Grimm remains the most productive if cut for hay and followed by pasture. Ladino clover is showing up well in mixtures which are cut for hay for a year or two. This legume can replace alsike and to some extent red clover in mixtures intended for one year of hay and two or three years of pasture."

SWINE PRODUCERS MEET

Melville H. Johnston was elected president of the Peterborough Swine Producers' Association Thursday. Willard Waterman is vice-president and Bruce Graham of Asphodel is secretary-treasurer. The directors are: Smith township, Elmer Milburn and Milton Clark; North Monaghan, Mr. Johnston and Mr. Waterman; Otonabee, Stephen Elmhirst and W. W. Dawson; Ennismore, Sam Killen and James Gifford; Harvey, Percy Hunt and W. A. Northey; Douro, C. N. Downer and M. Whibbs; Dummer, Gordon Payne and Gordon Hamblin; Asphodel, Bruce Graham and John McColl; Belmont, Chris Steenburgh and Carl Purdy.

Herb. Frey of Sarnia, district director of the Hog Marketing Board for the southwestern counties, reminded the producers they had received from the Ontario government the marketing act they had asked for, but it could not be effective without the co-operation of all the county units. And the county units required the membership of all the swine producers. They should know the regulations of the act, and especially the provision for the protection of the interests of the farmer.

The producer himself should see that the rules of marketing were adhered to by the licensed buyers and processors.

Hogs slaughtered by a license processor, where Dominion government hog grading facilities are available, shall be graded in accordance with the government standards. If they are bought by the licensed processor they shall be paid for on the basis of grade. If they are bought by a licensed "buyer" for resale to a licensed processor the producer must be paid by the licensed buyer on the same basis of grade.

Here is another clause Mr. Frey emphasized: "Every buyer, producer's agent or processor's agent shall place, or cause to be placed, a distinct and specific tatoo mark of identity, approved by the producer, on each hog of each farmer's lot before they are allowed to mix with other hogs."

Those were some of the regulations which the farmer himself must insist on being put into practice. That is one of the elements which the association is stressing. Membership, unit and demand for the rights provided by the Ontario Swine Marketing Act were also emphasized by Mr. Frey.

Of present trade conditions Mr. Frey said marketings were fairly heavy with a surplus for export, but a drastic reduction was expected in the next few months as a result of the heavy liquidation of stock at the end of December. The seriousness of that loss, he said, was partly offset by the probability that the shortage of feed would have weighed heavily on producers. "We need all the feed we can get until the new crop comes in."

The new executive is planning a series of meetings to bring producers generally into the association.

TO BRITISH COLUMBIA

Willowbank Farm on the Otonabee River, easterly from Bensfort Bridge, has been sold by Mr. V. L. Stanley-Jones to Hugh Stewart. It is the former John Collins' farm in Otonabee township, comprising 220 acres with 2½ miles of water front on the north side of the river. The stock includes 60 head of cattle, 200 hens, 12 hogs, and there are several woodlots on the property.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley-Jones are leaving with their children next Thursday for British Columbia. Their plan is to travel in a new trailer dow nthrough the States as far as Memphis, eventually entering California, finally moving north into British Columbia, temporarily staying at Duncan.

"I intend to go into mixed farming, much the same as I did in Peterborough," Mr. Stanley-Jones told The Examiner yesterday. "We are leaving this county with real regret. After the fire several years ago in our former place on No. 7 Highway, I almost decided then to go to California because my parents live there, but we had made so many friends here that we gave up the thought of leaving. However, my brother-in-law had also been thinking of going to the coast, and as I shall be within much shorter distance of my parents, enabling us to see each other now and then, we decided to go, too."

Hugh Stewart said he had no immediate purpose in this purchase. There are two houses on the property with its asset of riverfront, giving it the additional advantage of summer attractions. The residence of Mr. Sanley-Jones is modernly equpped, and the whole estate has many desirable features.

Mr. Stanley-Jones will be missed by his Peterborough friends. He has been active in local farm organizations, including the Federation of Agriculture and the Peterborough Swine Producers of which he was secretary-treasurer until Thursday.

TO OPEN WITH PRAYER

Peterborough Federation of Agriculture decided the other night to open their meetings with prayer. This departure in procedure was inspired by the report of Mrs. N. W. McConkey of the provincial convention in January to which she and Mrs. Stanley Wood were delegates. She referred to an address by Vivian S. Milburn on his visit in December to the Indiana Farm Bureau.

The following paragraph is from Mrs. McConkey's review: "Mr. Milburn said the Indiana bureau did all things well. They financed themselves by a voluntary levy of $5 a farm, and at the time of his visit more than half the 1948 money was in. They were equally interested in social activities and educational programs. What impressed him most of all was the earnestness with which they prayed, and he asked the question: "Why do we at all our public gatherings exclude prayer? Personally, I think a great deal more of a man who has the courage of his convictions in a matter of religion."

The reason Mr. Milburn stressed this, he said, was that it should have its origin at the women's meeting if it was to be introduced. When internal strife, wars and upheavals at present were only among the non-Christian nations, we should be more thankful for our Christianity."

Another subject outlined by Mrs. McConkey was the lack of medical, nursing and hospital services for rural communities as reported by Miss M. Stewart of the Health Study Bureau. Statistics show that 68 per cent of the rural population is served by 29 per cent of the doctors. The hope that more doctors would take up rural practice after the war had not been realized. The greater number of returned doctors had located in the larger centres of population. Mrs. Coughlin of Renfrew said the comparative lack of doctors, nurses and hospital accommodation in her county had reached the serious stage of emergency.

C. N. DOWNER ON SWINE COSTS

Great Britain's agreement to pay a higher price for Canadian bacon was based on facts obtained from their own enquiry into conditions of production here early last year, Mr. C. Newton Downer said to The Examiner yesterday, quoting a statement by Sir Andrew Jones, head of the British Food Mission in this country, at the recent meeting of the Ontario Swine Breeders' Association.

"They found that the Canadian farmer could not continue to produce pork at the export price," Mr. Downer said. "Sir Andrew told us that Britain agreed to paying a higher price for pork on the understanding that the price of barley and other feed grains would not move up accordingly. Britons, he said, pleaded not guilty to charges that their higher offers had caused the mark-up in grain prices. The result was that we got an increase of $4 per hundredweight in the price of pork. At that time barley was selling at 65c a bushel or $35 a ton, and the new price was based on that cost. It was not anticipated that barley would go to practically double that price in the fall of 1947. At the time of the enquiry by the British representatives pork was $25 per cwt, and the increase of $4 brought it up to $29.

Some weeks ago I told The Examiner that the hog producer could not stay in business at the prices he had to pay for feed and the price he got for his pork products. I said there was going to be a big decline in the hog population, and I believe there will not be one-quarter of the hog slaughter in May, June and July that would otherwise have been expected."

Mr. Downer said his own sacrifice of breeding hogs and young litters was general throughout the country. "The president of our Canadian association, Mr. George Huffman of Edmonton, Alta., had 33 brood sows, plus feeding stock and two boars, last year. At the convention he said he had one sow and three pigs. That is why I say there is going to be a lot of missing pigs in this country from May through to July.

It is true that pork advanced 7c a pound to 36c, but against that we have to feed grain at double is price. To balance things for us feed should not be more than $55 a ton. Today coarse grain is $60 a ton. This is one case where figures talk. At that, we have made some slight improvement. Conditions are better than they were with grain at $68 a ton."

HATCHING TURKEYS

"Turkey hatching as farm practice is rapidly disappearing in Ontario and elsewhere in Canada," says J. R. Cavers of the poultry department, OAC. "Turkey poults sold by approved hatcheries across Canada last year were five times more than in 1946.

Turkey growers have looked forward to the day when they could buy day-old poults as readily as day-old chicks. One reason for the delay has been the poor hatches frequently encountered with turkey eggs. The sharp increase in the commercial hatching of turkeys indicates that the situation is improving. Turkey breeders are learning to feed and manage flocks so as to produce satisfactory eggs for hatching."

SNOWMOBILE—Jim Watson of Drinkwater, Moose Jaw garage employee, is shown beside the snowmobile he bought from a Beechy district farmer, and later sold for $475. Made from an old aeroplane body, the snowmobile is equipped with a model "B" Ford engine and whips across the snow-packed prairie at 45 mph without any trouble. A brake handle controls a claw-shaped tailskid, which halts the machine by digging into the ice and snow beneath it. There are two bucket seats inside, and room for more.

Armed Security Police Seize Headquarters Of Czech Socialist Party

Say Russ Minister In Prague Directs Coup As Benes Begins Talks; First Use Of Weapons In Government Crisis

PRAGUE, Feb. 23 (AP).—Communists bidding for supreme power put their security police today before all Czechoslovak government buildings and foreign embassies. Opposition speech was at least partly stifled. Headquarters of the Czech National Socialist Party, one of three which withdrew Friday from the government coalition, was seized by police armed with sub-machine guns.

Czechoslovak Nationals virtually were frozen inside the country by an Interior Ministry order requiring new stamps of approval on valid passports.

Police, directed by Communists heading the Interior Ministry, arrested notable foes of the Communists.

Dr. Zdenek Marjanko, Justice Ministry employee who involved a Communist in the perfume box bomb plot last fall against three Ministers, was jailed.

Police were looking for D. Vladimir Krajina, secretary-general of the Nationalist Socialist party, who directed investigations that uncovered the bomb plot. They seized Zdenek Uhl, president of the Medical Students' Union, and Jiri Ptak, former head of the Engineers' Union.

First Use of Arms

The display of arms was the first since the political crisis started Friday night with the resignation of 12 anti-Communist ministers from the coalition of Premier Klement Gottwald, a Communist. President Eduard Benes was trying in conferences to save the situation.

Communist controllers were in charge of radio and press centres in Slovakia. Armed police surrounded the Czech wireless in Prague.

(In London a foreign office spokesman commented that the presence in Prague of V. A. Zorin, Russian vice-minister of foreign affairs, "recalls the presence of Vishinsky in Bucharest in 1945." Communist Premier Petru Groza seized power in Romania during a visit of Andrei Y. Vishinsky.)

Chinese Reds Closing Trap At Mukden

TSINGTAO, Feb. 23 — (AP). — The Chinese Air Force suddenly cancelled all flights into Mukden today as the plight of that Manchurian city became desperate.

Chinese Communist troops were believed striking an airfield 1½ miles southwest of Mukden where the Chinese Air Force was based. The city has at least two other fields, however, and a commercial airline was continuing evacuation flights.

Six commercial-plane flights were scheduled out of Mukden today—enough, officials here estimated, to remove all remaining foreigners except consular staffs.

Rev. N. O. Dahlsten, a Seventh Day Adventist missionary, arrived from Mukden today and described conditions there as "intolerable."

PEIPING, Feb. 23 — (AP). — Victory-flushed Manchurian Communists today cut the railway to Penki (Penhsihu), a major source of coal for Mukden, which shivered with cold and apprehension.

Chinese government despatches acknowledged fighting at several points on the 35-mile route leading from Penki to Mukden.

The Communist attackers were described as part of the force which three days ago took Anshan, steel mill city 50 miles south of Mukden.

Gales, Cyclonic Rain Lash West Australia

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 23 — (CP) — Gales and a cyclonic rain, sweeping in from the Indian Ocean, lashed western Australia during the week-end flooding thousands of square miles.

A cyclone hit the coast near the pearl fishing town of Broome and left a trail of broken communications and floods as it moved towards the gold-mining area around Kalgoorlie.

A trans-continental express train from Perth was stranded 40 miles west of Kalgoorlie and the 164 passengers aboard were warned to conserve their food supplies. Relief for the train was not expected to get through for three or four days.

Kalgoorlie had its full year's quota of rain in 24 hours yesterday when 10 inches deluged the town.

Floodwaters northeast of Perth have transformed pastoral areas into a huge inland sea.

Four-Year-Old Boy Saves Three In Fire

GUELPH, Feb. 23. (CP)—Four-year-old Terry Rowland was credited with saving the lives of his grandfather and two uncles when fire destroyed the home of Charles A. Rowland, the grandfather.

The uncles, Vincent and Jim Rowland, and the grandfather were sleeping while the grandmother and her two daughters were at church. Soon after the women left, Terry wakened his uncle Jim and told him the house was on fire.

The other two men were aroused and all four occupants managed to escape. The fire had spread so extensively through the two-storey brick dwelling that firemen were unable to save it.

Can't Keep 'Em Down

PAISLEY, Ont., Feb. 23—(CP). — Residents of this Bruce county village will meet tonight to appoint a committee to prepare for the rebuilding of the village's War Memorial Community Centre. The Centre was destroyed by fire on Thursday night, less than a week after it was opened. Loss was $40,000, with insurance of $20,000 being carried. Nearly every area in the district has offered to stage an attraction, with proceeds to be turned over to Paisley.

Say Wholesalers Retaliate Following Probe

OTTAWA, Feb. 23 — (CP). — Wholesalers have begun "retaliating" against some retailers because of their evidence given before the Commons prices committee, it was charged today before the committee.

This accusation was made in a telegram from George Christensen, national director of the foods division of the Retail Merchants' Association, who was a committee witness last week.

Mr. Christensen's wire was read to the committee by Ralph Maybank (L—Winnipeg South Centre), acting chairman, as the body opened another week of investigation into recent rises in Canadian commodity prices.

The retail official also charged he had not received co-operation in his appearance before the committee, and he asked for another hearing tomorrow at which Association witnesses might give further evidence. It was decided to have the committee's steering group work out a time for the appearance.

R. G. Meech, vice-president of Loblaw Groceterias, today resumed evidence concerning bread prices. He said there was no financial tie-up between his firm and Canada Bread.

Commission Chairman H. A. Dyde asked Mr. Meech why there had been an increase from 2.55 to 3.65 cents a loaf in the spread on Canada Bread sold by Loblaws in Toronto between last Sept. 1 and Jan. 27.

Mr. Meech said the price had gone up, and the percentage increase was only from 25.5 to 26 per cent.

Belleville Pair Struck By Train

OTTAWA, Feb. 23 — (CP). — Two Belleville men were injured, one seriously, when their automobile was struck last night by a fast-moving Toronto-bound passenger train at a CPR crossing, a few miles from Ottawa.

The injured are Philip Richardson, reported to be the driver, suffering from serious chest injuries, and Richard Rogers, whose right leg was hurt.

The car was struck by the train's engine, carried a short distance and then flung 50 feet from the tracks. The pool train was delayed an hour.

Charge Soldiers Rob Driver Of $2,200

KINGSTON, Feb. 23— (CP) — George Smyth, 22, told police in hospital today he was slugged at 3.30 a.m. by two soldiers of Barrifield Camp here and robbed of $2,200. Extent of the head injuries was not yet determined.

Smyth, owner of a taxicab service, said he drove the soldiers from a restaurant to the camp and was in the act of making change when he was struck without warning. He estimated he was unconscious an hour and then made his way to the married quarters at the camp and gave the alarm. He collapsed after telling police officers of the assault.

Bomb Blast Kills 52 In Jewish Sector; Fear Toll Will Rise

JERUSALEM, Feb. 23 (AP)—Jerusalem was virtually paralyzed today as gun-carrying Arabs, Britons and Jews patrolled a city made bitter and tense by yesterday's bombing of the Jewish sector, in which at least 52 persons died.

Rescue workers clawing at the wreckage of two hotels, three apartment houses and scores of shops along two blocks of Ben Yehuda street extricated nine more bodies today, boosting to 52 the number of dead. At least 88 injured have been dug from the debris. Hagana workers said there possibly were more victims in the rubble.

Arab leaders said their commandoes set off two truckloads of explosives which caused the blast but Jews seemed convinced that British troops were somehow responsible. Nine British soldiers were killed in retaliatory gun fighting after the explosion and three Jews lost their lives. The death toll for the day thus stood at 64.

One of the dead Britons was identified as Flt. Lt. Graham Douglas Cox, nephew of Col. A. N. Jones of Halifax. Cox was a member of a R.A.F. regiment stationed here.

Streets Mined

Streets were mined and a triple guard stood duty at British security zone gates and at vital administrative and military buildings. Jews worked feverishly to strengthen their own barbed wire and cement block barricades.

All Jewish sections of the city were ordered out of bounds to the military.

Irgun Zvai Leumi, extremist Jewish underground group, proclaimed: "As from today all British personnel, military and police, entering Jewish sections will be subject to execution."

The already crippled civil administration was rendered vir-

Rent Controls Off Cottages

OTTAWA, Feb. 23 — (CP). — The Prices Board last night announced that rent and eviction controls have been lifted from tourist cabins, summer cottages, ski lodges, winter chalets and hunting chalets which now are vacant or may become unoccupied.

Current tenants are still protected by rental regulations and cannot be required to vacate so long as they are well behaved. If a tenant vacates then the accommodation will be free of control.

Officials explained that the type of accommodation covered by the order is considered in the same category as hotel accommodation. Last spring hotel rooms were freed from rent control.

Hold Veteran As Indian Pal Stabbed

Report Two Friends Enjoying Party, Then Quarrel Broke Out

WINDSOR, Feb. 23 — (CP). — A charge of murder has been laid against Robert Craig, 27, following the slaying of a 32-year-old Indian who was stabbed to death during a scuffle at a drinking party here early today.

William Solomon, a Chippewa Indian, died almost instantly from a wound in the heart inflicted by a hunting knife.

Craig, in whose apartment the party was held, was arraigned in city magistrate's court and remanded a week without plea.

Craig was reported to have said he and Solomon had been the best of friends over a period of years and they served together with the Canadian Army in Italy. Police have not yet determined the cause of the argument which led to the fight.

Seven persons, including Solomon and his wife Mary, attended the party. Police said they found five empty wine bottles in the kitchen.

They said indications were that the two men had several drinks and engaged in a quarrel which ended with Craig taking the hunting knife from a drawer. The struggle for the razor-sharp weapon ensued, police believe, and Solomon was stabbed.

Craig's wife, Bertha, 25, is being held as a material witness.

When constables Martin (Bud) Coxon and Russel Reid arrived at the dingy first-floor apartment they found Craig seated in the kitchen.

"Look what I have done, Bud," he said to Constable Coxon when the officers entered and he pointed to the kitchen sink. There police found the weapon with part of the blood washed off by the tap water.

Police had difficulty forcing their way into the bedroom. Solomon had fallen partly under a day bed and one of his legs was braced against the closed door.

Fire Damages Kingston School; No Pupils Hurt

KINGSTON, Feb. 23— (CP)— Damage was estimated at between $6,000 and $8,000 when fire late this morning swept through partitions of the north-side rooms of the 94-year-old St. Mary's Separate School.

Firemen confined the blaze to the one section of the stone structure and main damage was caused to the furnace room, an office and two classrooms.

Cause of the fire is not known. No one was injured in the blaze which broke out while most of the children were in the yard enjoying their morning recess.

Only a few of the children had re-entered the school and these were guided to safety within a few minutes.

Miss Almon Doolan, principal of the school, said she could not say how or where the fire broke out. "I smelled smoke while the children were at recess. One of the boys and I went down to the furnace room, but there was no sign of smoke.

"Then all of a sudden the whole building was filled with smoke, and we called the Fire Department."

Firemen were delayed for a few minutes in the early stage of the blaze when it was found that a nearby hydrant was frozen.

This was the second serious fire in the school within five years. In 1943, extensive damage was caused in the same section.

Royal Mothers Have Audience With Pope

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 23—(AP)—Pope Pius received the mothers of former King Michael of Romania and his fiance, Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma, in private audience today.

Vatican sources said the church's dispensation for marriage of the couple may have been sought.

Anne is a Roman Catholic, while Michael's family belong to the National Orthodox Church of Romania. Under ordinary church procedure, special dispensation is necessary in the marriage of a Catholic to a non-Catholic.

Blind Man Gets 2 Shepherd Dogs

TORONTO, Feb. 23 — (CP). — John Berezanski, a blind man whose two German shepherd dogs died of wounds suffered while defending his garage last Wednesday, now has two dogs to replace Laddie and Sparkie.

Last week he was given another shepherd dog, Yip, to take the place of Laddies, a seeing-eye dog. Then last night a Hamilton girl gave him an eight-months old German shepherd pup.

Stanley Baran, 24, and Robert Simpson, 24, both of Toronto, are scheduled to appear in court today on breaking and entering and theft charges in connection with the garage robbery.

Newsprint Up $6 Ton

QUEBEC, Feb. 23 — (CP). — Price Bros. & Co., Ltd., have announced an increase in the price of newsprint of $6 a ton, effective March 1, a company official said here last night. Price Bros. did not announce an increase January 1 when five other large Canadian newsprint firm announced price boosts ranging from $4 to $6 a ton. Newsprint now sells at $92 a ton in Canada and $96 a ton in New York.

Ease Cutoff Schedules But Will Re-Allocate Power Among Ont. Centres

TORONTO, Feb. 23—(CP).—The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission is embarking on an extensive "re-allocation of available generation," taking power from some municipal outlets that appear to have more than their rightful share and re-routing it to others that appear to be under-supplied, A. W. Manby, assistant general manager of administration for the Ontario commission said today. The aim of the commission was to distribute power on the most equitable basis with special regard to centres of concentrated industries.

"It is quite possible Toronto may have no more than one power cutoff daily from now on," he added.

In Brantford, power saving has been sufficient to permit temporary lifting of all service cuts. Officials said much of the load has been shifted to times when power is plentiful.

London Hydro officials were scheduled to meet today to consider easing the two cuts a day now in effect. They said the decision depended on the amount of voluntary saving.

Hamilton, which has had only one half-hour power cutoff so far, hoped it would not be necessary to pull switches again. The Chamber of Commerce has sparked a conservation drive, backed by "blackout vigilantes" who check stores and other premises for unnecessary use of electricity.

Easing of Windsor's power reduction quota from 12 per cent to eight per cent was expected to help that city keep within its load limits. As in most other cities, the week-end was free from cutoffs but officials said that with the return to production today there was a possibility residential sections would again undergo half hour power breaks.

The first power-saving measures were decreed for Pembroke. Flat-rate hot water heaters will be turned off for a 12-hour period four times a week. Industries have pledged voluntary cuts.

Nab Three Thugs In Wild Chase

WELLAND, Feb. 23 (CP)—Arrested in Toronto early Sunday after a wild automobile chase through city streets, Mickey Metrunitz, 35, Edward Blair, 24, and Michael Stefanyk, 33, all of Toronto, were arraigned here today on charges of breaking and entering with intent to rob, and remanded until Thursday.

They were accused in connection with the break-in Saturday night at the motor vehicles licensing bureau at Fort Erie.

Metrunitz, treated for a police bullet wound in the abdomen in Toronto Hospital Sunday, was able to walk today.

After a fussle in which Metrunitz was shot in the stomach, they fled towards Toronto in an automobile. Early reports said amount of loot, if any, was unknown.

About an hour later, a Toronto police cruiser sighted the getaway car nearing the city's west limits and gave chase.

On west-central Northcote avenue, the car, which police said was driven by Metrunitz, smashed into a police car which was parked as a road-block.

Constable James Cleasby suffered chest injuries when the two cars crashed.

Roof Blazing Before Fire Noticed

Most Of Children In Boarding House Come From Toronto

PONTYPOOL, Feb. 23.—Twenty children, ranging in age from 12 years to 18 months, were rescued from a blazing boarding house here early Sunday afternoon.

Only the brick walls remained today of the two-storey brick dwelling of fourteen rooms owned by M. Bornstein and Joseph Berlin of Toronto. The children were safely removed to private homes in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Callahan of Toronto have conducted for the last year a boarding house for children most of whose parents live in Toronto. Neighbors noticed smoke and fire in the roof of the house at the noon hour Sunday.

Apparently the centre of the fire was near a chimney and might have been due to some defect in the chimney or pipes. With ample warning, the younger children were carried from the house without mishap. The fire was discovered in time to enable the volunteer brigade to get into action early, but they quickly exhausted the water supply in adjacent wells, and the flames finally swept through the entire building.

Neighbors helped in saving of most of the furniture.

8,000 Drivers Lose Licenses

TORONTO, Feb. 23—(CP)—Driving licenses of more than 8,000 Ontario motorists were suspended last year in an effort to keep reckless and irresponsible drivers off the roads, the Highways Department said today.

The Highways Traffic Act provides for suspension of the driver's licence and owner's permit pending proof of financial responsibility. This measure is evoked following a variety of convictions ranging from inadequate lights to manslaughter.

Licenses were also suspended at the discretion of the Highways Minister in the case of motorists convicted of careless driving, driving while intoxicated, reckless and dangerous driving, and theft of motor vehicles.

The Act provides $25-$100 fines with possible imprisonment of 30 days for the first conviction of driving while under suspension and for a repeated offence, fines up to $500 and imprisonment not exceeding six months.

Veteran Of 3 Wars Found Dead In Room

ST. THOMAS, Feb. 23 — (CP). — Frederick George Stanbury, 68, veteran of three wars, was found dead in his Y.M.C.A. room today and it was thought he had been fatally stricken Saturday night.

Born on the island of Malta, he saw active service in the Boer War and World War I, and in the last war was second in command of the army school of driving and maintenance at Woodstock, Ont. He held the rank of colonel.

A member of the mechanical staff of the St. Thomas Times Journal, he is survived by two daughters and a son.

Say 'Ball Of Fire' Hits British Plane

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 23. — (AP).—Crew members of a British European Airways plane which arrived here from London last night said their aircraft was hit by a fall of fire in the air.

The crew members said they saw the flaming sphere hurtling toward them in the midst of a storm. They said it bounced off the nose of the plane, then cut a hole in the rudder, shaking the ship violently.

The passengers didn't see the ball, but felt a bump.

The plane is being repaired before taking off again.

US To Decide On Troops For Palestine

Four Prominent Americans Recommend UN International Force

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP). —The future of strife-torn Palestine enters a crucial week today with a series of top-level state department conferences.

The unprecedented question of whether American troops may be asked to help police the Holy Land and enforce the United Nations plan to split it between Jews and Arabs may be directly involved.

The first decision is to be put into final form at meetings here arranged for State Secretary Marshall, his top policy advisers and Warren Austin, American delegate to the U.N.

The second will be made by the U.N. Security Council which tomorrow takes up the five-country Palestine commission's recommendation that armed forces be provided to keep order in Palestine and make partition possible. Austin will announce the American stand before the Security Council.

Only Small Clue

The only clue to the administration stand was President Truman's report to Congress last week describing the Holy Land question as "on the way to settlement on the basis of two independent states, one Arab and one Jewish."

The President's words appeared to foreclose any possibility the United States might seek to reopen the issue.

If that is correct, the matter of enforcement appears to be the major question for Marshall and Austin to thresh out.

4-Point Plan

Four prominent Americans urged upon the United Nations and the United States today a four-point plan for supporting the partition of Palestine.

The four and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, president of the U.N. Commission on Human Rights; Herbert H. Lehman, former director-general of UNRRA; Senator Thomas (Dem.-Utah), and Sumner Wells, honorary president of the American Association for the United Nations and former under-secretary of state.

The American Association for the United Nations in a statement issued for the four, said they called for:

1. Prompt establishment of a UN international force in Palestine.

2. Activation of this force as soon as British troops leave the Holy Land or earlier, if requested.

3. Invocation, if necessary, of the UN charter provision for measures short of force to maintain the peace.

4. Lifting of the United States embargo on arms in favor of those in Palestine willing to abide by the partition plan.

In a last-minute blast at Britain, the Jewish agency for Palestine charged yesterday that Britain is helping the Arabs in their battle against partition of Palestine into Jewish and Arabic countries.

The agency turned in a 12,000-word memorandum to the Security Council and the five-member Palestine Commission.

A SMILE AND GRANDMA'S BREAD—Jacob Stenger, eight-months-old arrival from Cracow, Poland, flashes a deep smile as he clutches a loaf of bread his grandmother in Poland made for him because she was afraid that the ship he came over on wouldn't have enough food. Jacob's parents were interned in German concentration camps. The Stenger family was brought to Canada by Mr. Stenger's sister, Lily Grosh, of Montreal, who hadn't seen her brother for 18 years.

Uncertainty Slows Up Big 3 Talks

French Would Like German Policy Thoroughly Discussed

LONDON, Feb. 23 (Reuters)—An air of uncertainty as to purpose and scope hangs over the three-power conference on the future of Germany which opens today.

Recent official pronouncements from London and Washington have made it plain that this conference, being held in secret on the ambassadorial level, will not make final decisions. Its conclusions will be referred back to the governments concerned.

There is reason to believe that the French government concurs, but at the same time wishes to see their scope widened to include an examination of allied policy in Germany in general and not confined to the details of zonal administration in the west.

Meanwhile, Great Britain, France and the United States found themselves inhibited by uncertainty on the basic question whether or not to reorganize western Germany without Soviet co-operation — and thus possibly make final the breach in four power government.

Evidence emerging from preliminary meetings between the three delegations suggest strongly that reorganization will not take place through a decision that findings on the conference are only to be provisional.

Even without a decision on policy toward the Soviet Union, the possibility of trizonal fusion in the west, bringing about an economic merged of the French occupation zone with the Anglo-American area, remains the most important topic likely to be discussed.

The question of future international control of the Ruhr, also on the agenda, runs it a close second.

Medical Miracle

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa., Feb. 23—(AP)—A bullet tore holes into Walter Wood's heart, lung, stomach and spleen—but he lived. It took approximately 150 stitches in a five-hour operation yesterday to save the 25-year-old man from death. Hospital officials quoted police as saying "Wood shot himself in a suicide attempt."

Refuse Equipment

Jewish rescue workers refused to use British firefighting and debris clearing apparatus sent to the scene. One of the first British policemen to arrive after the blast was beaten and British correspondents were threatened.

There was no official estimate of the damage caused by the blast. A Jewish source said it amounted to "millions of pounds."

One Arab military source said the explosives were placed by "seven Arab commandoes" in Palestine police uniform. The commandoes had been trained in Syria under Czechoslovak officers."

Reports that the attackers were in uniform increased anti-British feeling among the Jews.

An Arab military leader commented that "the fact the men who bombed Ben Yehuda street wore British uniforms should not be surprising to the Jews. They've been wearing stolen uniforms and driving stolen British trucks on their jobs for six years."

In Tel Aviv armed Jews who attempted to enter Barclay's Bank were driven off by police fire.

In Damascus, Syria, an Arab officer said British intervention in the Hula and Beisan areas of Palestine had checked Arab plans for an early offensive.

Exceed Authority

The arrested members of the Nationalist Socialist party have been accused of exceeding their authority in uncovering the bomb plot and with failing to turn over their evidence to the interior ministry.

In the election campaigning and party strife that has swelled and ebbed in Czechoslovakia for five months, the Communists and their fellow travellers have called for the arrest of Dr. Peter Zenkl, National Socialist deputy premier.

Zenkl and all the other ministers still have parliamentary immunity. So has Krajina, a deputy. Unless the interior ministry rides down the constitutional processes, they cannot be arrested.

Two hours after the seizure, the Czech press agency professed to know nothing of the action. The Ministry of Interior, controlled by the Communists, gave no explanation.

Dr. Dzenek Marjanko, an employee of the Ministry of Justice, was arrested earlier. Marjanko worked for the Ministry headed by Prokop Drtina, a National Socialist and one of the 12 anti-Communist Ministers who resigned Friday.

President Eduard Benes began new conferences in an effort to save the situation.

Since Friday night he has refused Communist Premier Klement Gottwald's demand that Gottwald be allowed to appoint Communist sympathizers to succeed 12 non-Communist ministers who have offered their resignations.

His scheduled meeting today was with leaders of the Slovak Democrats, the dominant anti-Communist party in semi-autonomous Slovakia and one of the three parties that withdrew ministers. The president is an Independent.

Boy Dodges Death On Omemee Street

Gen Hyland, age 3, accompanied by his sister Isabel, 12, darted across Kent St., Omemee, Sunday to his sister on the opposite side in the part of a westbound car driven by a Lindsay man. He was struck by the left front fender and the driver swerved in such a manner that the child was thrown clear of the rear wheel.

He was taken to the office of Dr. George Earle by his parents. The doctor was absent but the little lad survived sufficiently to be taken home and eat a normal supper. His injuries amounted to slight cuts inside the mouth, bruised shoulder and hip. What might have been a very serious accident was probably attributed to the heavy padding of winter clothing that the child was wearing.

Truck Breaks Through Ice But 16 Safe

PELEE ISLAND, Ont., Feb. 23. —(CP).— Sixteen residents of this Lake Erie island were safe at home today, shuddering a little at the realization of how close they came to crashing through the ice into 40 feet of water.

"They might have all been drowned," said Frank Logan, secretary of the Pelee Island telephone system, who made two frantic but unsuccessful attempts to warn the party that a 100-foot split in the ice blocked their path homeward to Pelee.

The 13 men, two women and one child had set out around noon Sunday in four automobiles and a truck on a trip to Put-in Bay on the Ohio mainland.

On the return trip Mr. Logan telephoned to Put-in Bay to warn them of the ice rift. He missed them there and was also too late at North Bass Island, the last stepping off place 12 miles southwest of Pelee.

Just a short distance off the shores of North Pass Island the truck driven by William Lamb broke through the ice and submerged. The five occupants managed to jump to safety.

The party, realizing the ice was unsafe, headed back to North Bass Island.

A telephone call was made to Put-In Bay and Milton Herschberger took off in his twin-engined transport, landed on the ice at North Bass, picked up the stranded Pelee Islanders and brought them safely home.

Cobourg Pays Last Respects To Father Kelly

COBOURG, Feb. 23 (ENS). — The body of Rev. P. J. Kelly, who died last Thursday, were taken from St. Michael's rectory to the church yesterday afternoon, the casket being preceded by altar boys headed by Rev. G. J. Maher. Included in the procession were the Knights of Columbus, the Sodality, and men of the parish. At the church the body was received by Rev. F. K. Malane, after the casket had been borne between the two lines of school children. A service of prayer was held in the church, conducted by Father Malane, assisted by Rev. Francis O'Grady of the Foreign Missions, Scarboro.

Speaking at high mass yesterday, Rev. G. J. Maher told the congregation that Dr. Kelly's long illness terminated Thursday afternoon in the presence of Fathers S. Coffey of Bowmanville, J. J. Guiry of Port Hope, F. K. Malane, and G. J. Maher of Cobourg. "He bore in patience the cross of a long illness. He had the interests of his people at heart and, in his death, his people should have his interests at heart in their prayers. There is no wall between the living and the dead. We have a link through prayer, and prayer robs death of its sting," Father Maher said. "You owe to him the charity of your prayers and from his ivory tower will come his prayers for you. Some time before he died he asked me to thank everyone for him who had helped him in any way," Father Maher told the congregation.

The office for the dead was recited Sunday evening at the church and throughout the night a vigil was kept by members of the Knights of Columbus and the men of the parish. This morning at 10 o'clock Rt. Rev. Bishop Gerald Berry of Peterborough said Pontifical High mass, after which interment took place in St. Michael's Cemetery, Cobourg.

SUN-RAY TREATMENT — Recruits to the British army who on enlistment are considered unlikely to be able to stand up to the normal recruits' training without preliminary building-up and correction of such physical defects, such as round shoulders, slovenly posture, weak feet, poor stamina and under weight, are now being sent to the army physical development centre at Chester, Eng., for eight or nine weeks before going on to normal "square-bashing." Special remedial PT is the main item of the course, and some 95 per cent of all those passing through are upgraded on leaving. Ten thousand recruits a year can be handled at the centre. These recruits are getting sun-ray treatment, part of the building up process.

Victory of 'Wallace Man' Not Surprising In Bronx

NEW YORK.—After a second and third look, the victory of a "Henry Wallace man" in the special Congressional election in the Bronx is not as stunning as might at first have been supposed. The Wallace-backed American Labor Party candidate, Leo Isaacson, got almost twice as many votes as his nearest rival, Karl Propper. Propper had the endorsement, the very active endorsement of Mrs. Roosevelt and Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York. He had the backing at least the official backing of the machine of Ed. Flynn, the most intelligent of the political bosses still practising their trade in America and until this week one of the most powerful. Yet Mr. Propper trailed the Wallace candidate.

This may indicate that the Wallace campaign is gaining steam but it does not indicate to seasoned observers to whom this reporter has spoken that the Third Party movement is going to sweep the country or make even a sizeable dent in the American vote.

It does not indicate this any more than the election of Fred Rose as MP for Cartier a few years ago (Mr. Rose is now otherwise engaged) indicated that Canada as a whole was going to show a big vote for the Labor Progressive party. Cartier is a polyglot, working class district and the Communists in that famous election worked like beavers to get their man in.

The 24th Congressional district, which returned Mr. Isaacson, is also a polyglot working class district with a strong emotional gravitation to the left. If it has elected Democrats in past years they have also had under the peculiar American primary system the backing of the American Labor party, a New York State party well to the left of centre.

Recently the American Labor party high command split very wide open on the question of the Wallace candidacy. Many leaders opposed it, as do most of the leaders of union labor. It was not the first time such a split had occurred in the ALP. In 1940 a group of disgusted moderates broke off and formed the Liberal party, whose tickets usually are found at the foot of the polls. In each of these schisms the ALP remnant that has taken over the name and machinery of the party has moved steadily leftward. These are Mr. Isaacson's official backers and they are Mr. Wallace's backers in this locality.

Favorable Ground

If this special election—equivalent to a Canadian by-election—was the "test" of Mr. Wallace's strength that it has been said to be, it was held on exceptionally favorable ground. Aside from the factors of an electorate predisposed to vote left, as noted above, there is the fact that Mr. Isaacson was well and favorably known in the district. The people who voted for him were not necessarily Communists or followers of the party line but they were admirers of Mr. Isaacson and Mr. Isaacson had workers in every block.

This is important to remember. The big city political machines that were a peculiar feature and often a disfigurement of American life were created in answer to the needs of the succeeding waves of immigrant peoples as they poured into the towns of the United States. One, two and three generations ago only the professional politician was shrewd enough to realize the innocent bewilderment of these people; to know their need of someone to listen to their troubles and to be ready with advice and more tangible aid. The big politicians of the cities—most often Democratic but in some towns Republican—built their reputations on this shrewd understanding of new Americans. The huge blocks of votes they could swing were partly the tokens of gratitude.

The Order Changes

The role of the professional politician today has largely been taken over by a new kind of boss—the professional radical. Boss Flynn is the last of the old regime in New York. The old line politician with his tons of coal, his Christmas turkeys, his fixing of fines and his ready bail money is vanishing and in his stead is emerging the shrewd, city-bred Paladin of the extreme left wing, with his card index file full of needy cases, with his staff of willing workers; with his skill in dramatizing the problems of the underprivileged.

Congressman Vito Marcantonio, whose East Harlem district is only a pebble's toss away from Mr. Isaacson's and who took the stump for the successful candidate, is a good case in point. He runs what amounts to a free legal clinic in his district, and if the poverty stricken Italians, Puerto Ricans and Negroes who live and vote there don't get to see "The Mare" with their woes they get to his sharp-eyed assistants. Because of his political power, Marcantonio is feared by many office holders in police, in the courts and governments. They would not break the rules for him, but neither would they casually offend one of his constituents. As a result Marcantonio, whose vote on the foreign policy of the United States has never been at odds with the Communist party line, has one of the tightest controls anywhere. Tammany braves dead and gone, Richard Croker, Charles F. Murphy, Boss Olvaney would envy the machine he has built.

Cobourg Power Still Too High; More Cuts Today

COBOURG, Feb. 23 (ENS). — There was not the required power reduction through last week's half hour daily shut-off of current and additional steps to reach the required saving in current will be announced today. Diplomats Walk Out On Russian Speaker

VIENNA, Feb. 23 — (AP). — Diplomatic representatives of Britain and the United States legations walked out yesterday on a speech in which the Russian high commissioner to Austria said the western powers are spending millions to foster war against the Soviet Union.

The high commission, Col.-Gen. Vladimir Kourassov, spoke at a meeting marking the 30th birthday of the Red Army.

Charge d'Affaires John Cheetham of Britain later said he had "started to fidget" when Kourassov began to accuse the "imperialist western" powers of having "subsidized Hitler's war."

"When he told the audience that the same powers were now spending millions of dollars to foster another war against the Soviet Union," Cheetham said, "I thought his remarks were too insulting to my country and to the United States. Mr. and Mrs. Mellan felt the same, and we all left the hall together." (Sidney Mellan represented the United States at the meeting).

Whitby Docket Has 19 Cases

WHITBY, Feb. 23.—The longest docket in many years confronts the supreme court winter assizes commencing today. Mr. Jutice A. M. LeBel will preside for the first two weeks, with Mr. Justice Kelly slated to hear the remainder of the session. The three criminal cases, three divorce suits, and 13 civil actions are expected to last at least a month.

First case is the re-trial of Donald Tucker, Oshawa, previously convicted of armed robbery and theft in the narcotics holdup of the Ontario Mental Hospital here last February. Sentenced to six and a half years in Kingston last March Tucker was later granted a new trial by the Ontario Court of Appeal. It is understood that he is not represented by counsel, and it may be necessary for the court to appoint a defense lawyer.

Two bills of indictment are before the grand jury against Harold Phillips Whitby, and motor manslaughter against Gilbert Forget, Ajax. The manslaughter count followed an accident on No. 2 Highway last year in which a man waiting for a bus was allegedly struck down by Forget's truck.

Dangerous Misconceptions About University Education

Mr. E. C. Guillet, the Toronto historian and educationist, spoke to a local group the other evening about education and varied other matters. He gave figures to show that "higher education is largely a matter of finance". In Toronto 90 per cent. of the children of the wealthy go to college and only five per cent. of the children of people in the lowest income group. We do not quarrel with his figures and readily agree that far too many young men and women are cluttering academic halls with little benefit to themselves and to the great detriment of the universities, merely because their parents have the money to send them there.

* * *

Universities are being besieged also by thousands of young men whose parents have scrimped and saved so that they could give their sons what they themselves never had — a university education. Many of these students have no right to be at college. They lack the necessary mental and imaginative power; they are degree-chasers because of their parents' insistence and hopes, and because they think that universities exist to teach trades. They go not to get an education but a technical training which they hope will qualify them for good jobs. It is not, therefore, only the children of the rich who are burdening our universities and driving the enrolment at the University of Toronto up to a disgraceful 17,000. There are not enough rich parents in Ontario to breed that number of students.

* * *

People who state that "higher education is largely a matter of finance" have got hold of the wrong end of the stick. In Canada where inherited wealth is almost unknown, the well-to-do are usually our most able, energetic and intelligent citizens. That is primarily why they are well-to-do. The statement should be this: "Higher education is largely a matter of having chosen parents who have ability and energy". It should further be remarked that such parents transmit their intelligence and force to their children. Therefore these children are, in general, best qualified by breeding and environment to profit from university education.

* * *

Mr. Guillet's figures distort the truth which can be observed in any community and any university in this country. Have the people who hold degrees in Peterborough all had wealthy parents? Do the majority of students at Western, McMaster, Queen's or Toronto come from wealthy homes? Of course they do not. On the other hand, they are not usually the children of very poor people.

* * *

Mr. Guillet recommended that three more universities and numerous junior colleges be established in Ontario, but he did not mention that higher education is not and should not be for the masses. Only a small percentage of the population has the ability to undertake university studies. If universities must admit and cater to the unqualified, they must lower their standards. They would then cease to be institutions for higher learning. They would descend to the miserable status of many American state colleges. There may be a need for a junior college in Northern Ontario, but in general the presence of junior colleges indicates that the secondary schools have failed to give the education they should provide.

"Big Jim" Farley Returns

One interesting feature of United States politics is the custom of paying annual tribute to the political gods of the two traditional parties of the nation. The Republican Party holds a banquet to honour the memory of Abraham Lincoln; the Democrats hold a banquet to honour the memory of Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson. Actually, many such banquets are held throughout the nation, but there is usually a "main" affair held by each party, and during a Presidential year these main events give political observers considerable material for speculation.

* * *

The Republicans have already held their Lincoln Day dinners, and this year there were four "main" events, each of which heard one of the candidates seeking the G.O.P. nomination. These candidates are Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, Governor Thomas Dewey of New York, ex-Governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota, and Governor Earl Warren of California. They sprung no surprises, and the Lincoln Day dinners apparently left the situation in the Republican Party much the same as it was before the diners paid more than usually fantastic prices for their tickets.

* * *

The main Jefferson-Jackson dinner will not be held until Thursday of this week, but the presence—and position—of one name on the guest list has already been hailed as an event of no small political importance. Seated on the dais that evening will be James A. Farley, former national chairman of the Democratic Party, who was almost invariably missing from such occasions during the later days of the Roosevelt Administration. The return of "Big Jim" Farley to the head table confirms the rumours that he will take an active part in the forthcoming political campaign.

* * *

Some observers think that Mr. Farley may take over his old post as Democratic leader in New York State, replacing Edward Flynn of the Bronx, whose appointment made many Democrats unhappy. There is also the possibility that Mr. Farley is aiming for the Democratic nomination for Governor of New York State. Mayor William Dwyer of New York had been looked upon as certain to be the next nominee, but the recent disclosure that he has a serious heart condition alters the picture. And the alteration makes Mr. Farley appear as his party's strongest candidate for a post to which he has long aspired.

* * *

The return of James A. Farley will strengthen the Democrats, both in New York State and throughout the nation. He is a superb political organizer and campaign director. Now that he has re-entered active political life, there is little doubt that he will resume his former high place in the councils of the Democratic Party, both in New York State and in the nation.

Algonquin Story

The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests presided over by the Honourable Harold Scott has been god-father to a nicely bound, printed and illustrated book called Algonquin Story. The author is Audrey Saunders and she has told the story of Algonquin Park from the days of the early French explorers to the present simply, pleasantly and sympathetically. In publishing the book the Department of Lands and Forests probably had its eye on the tourist trade and its ear tuned for the sweet sound of its own horn, but Ontario people who have visited the park, camped along its lakes, and discovered its flora and fauna will read its pages and look at its maps and colour reproductions of Tom Thomson's canvases with reminiscent delight. Schoolboys can read it too: there are enough incidental stories of discovery and hunting and camping to make it lively.

The book is the best value for a four-cent stamp we have seen since a neighbour posted a winning entry in a Save-the-Suds commercial contest and won a free trip to Queen's Park, Toronto.

We should like to pay tribute here to the memory of Alexander Kirkwood, a clerk in the Ontario Department of Crown Lands in the 1870's and James Dickson of Fenelon Falls, a Provincial Land Surveyor in the same period. Their vision of the great area of Algonquin Park as a timber and wild life reserve converted the Legislature of 1893 from its small ways, saved Algonquin from commercial exploitation and gave to this Province its finest natural heritage.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A publisher recommends "the Bishop of London's Lent Book". If the Bishop has any tips about the recovery of lent books, we would be glad to know them.

A food expert says that 65 cents worth of soybean contain as much protein as 1 worth of milk. This had better be kept quiet, or the dairymen will be agitating for a ban on soybean.

"Senator Euler Wages Personal Battle for Removal of Margarine Ban" says a headline. Not entirely personal or lonely; a great many newspapers and hundreds of thousands of citizens are in full agreement with the Senator.

"Of Cabbages and Kings"

By PETER ELIOT

ONE of the most delightful autobiographies to come past my desk is "Between Ourselves" by the well known English actor (who recently recovered from a serious case of pneumonia) Sir Seymour Hicks.

"I remember", he writes, "happening to be with J. L. Toole, famous theatre owner of the 1890's, at Victoria Station one morning and he said casually to me, 'Come into the bar, my boy, and have a bit of fun.'

"I didn't know what he was going to do, but naturally I said 'Yes'. We entered, sat down at a table, and after ordering some lemonade, for he seldom if ever drank alcohol, he sidled up to the counter and when no one was looking, put near a pile of ham sandwiches a gilt-edged card on which was written in large gold letters—'Please take one'—and walked back to me. We hadn't to wait a minute before a man entered and said to the barmaid, 'A bottle of Bass, Miss'. While this was being served his eye caught sight of the card and he immediately availed himself of its invitation and commenced to eat heartily, not stopping until he had made away with half a dozen of the best sandwiches it seemed he had ever tasted.

"WHEN he had finished his drink he said, "How much, Miss?' The girl asked: "How many did you have?' 'Six', said the man with a laugh. 'Oh, well then, that will be two shillings.' 'What do you mean—two shillings for a bottle of Bass?' 'And for the sandwiches', the barmaid replied.

"Then the row began. The manager was called, the man protested. Other customers joined in the argument. One barmaid said he must have put the card there himself. The tumult had reached its height when Toole pushed his way into the crowd, and taking the man's part, advised him not to pay and to leave the refreshment-room at once. This the man did.

The manager then turned on the comedian, who proceeded to have a splendid time giving ridiculous reasons why the man was in the right. But when the barmaid who had served the Bass said she would have to make the loss good, herself, Toole at once handed her five shillings amidst the applause of the crowd.

"The girl was overwhelmed, the onlookers enthusiastic, and the manager who was extremely angry, flounced off with the offending card. He had hardly turned his back, however, before J.L.T. slipped another card of the same kind under the glass case of sandwiches and made a hurried exit.

✧ ✧ ✧

"DIRECTLY we got outside he turned back and watched, waiting for what he hoped would happen, through the glass door which led on to the platform. We hadn't long to wait before the whole situation was repeated. This time it was a dapper youth who ordered a drink, and his eye wandering to the card, he too took advantage of the golden invitation and devoured the sandwiches as his predecessor had done. We didn't wait to see the finale."

✧ ✧ ✧

THE October selection—a happy choice—of the Reprint Society Of Canada is by that greatest of Canadian humorists, Stephen Leacock; his famous "Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town". It is the collection of stories which deals with Mariposa. (I don't know whether you know Mariposa, it is of no consequence, for if you know Canada at all, you are probably well acquainted with a dozen just like it.)

Leacock always shunned the technical jargon of the economists, something rare indeed for the head of the Political Economy Department of a famous University. The preface to his "Sketches" he has written himself and it illustrates his own peculiar way of describing his early career.

"My father", he writes, "took up a farm near Lake Simcoe, in Ontario. I saw enough of farming to speak exuberantly in political addresses of the joy of early rising and the deep sleep, both of the body and intellect, that is induced by honest manual toil. At the University I spent my entire time in the acquisition of languages, living, dead and half-dead, and knew nothing of the outside world. I took to school teaching as the only trade I could find that needed neither experience nor intellect. I have noted that of my pupils, those who seemed the laziest and the least enamoured of books are now rising to eminence at the bar, in business, anr in public life; the really promising boys who took all the prizes are now able with difficulty to earn the wages of a clerk in a summer hotel or a deck hand on a canal boat."

"I HAVE belonged to the staff of McGill University, first as a lecturer and later as head of the Department of Economics and Political Science. As this position is one of the prizes of my profession, I am able to regard myself as singularly fortunate. The emolument is so high as to place me distinctly above the policemen, postmen, street-car conductors, and other salaried officials of the neighbourhood, while I am able to mix with something like terms of equality with the poorer businessmen of the city."

"I enjoy more in the four corners of a single year than a business man knows in his whole life. I thus have what the business man can never enjoy, an ability to think, and what is still better, to stop thinking altogether for months at a time.

✧ ✧ ✧

"MANY people are under the impression that I write these humorous nothings in idle moments when the wearied brain is unable to perform the serious labours of the economist. My own experience is exactly the other way. The writing of solid instructive stuff fortified by facts and figures is easy enough. There is no trouble in writing a scientific treatise on the folk-lore of Central China, or a statistical enquiry into the declining population of Prince Edward Island. But to write something out of one's own mind, worth reading for its own sake, is an arduous contrivance only to be achieved in fortunate moments, few and far between. Personally, I would sooner have written "Alice in Wonderland" than the whole Encyclopedia Britannica."

Letters To The Editor

COMMENDS COMMENT ON SEAWAY

Sir: Thanks goes to you from this reader for your dynamic comments on "The St. Lawrence Seaway" in your issue to hand. By every measurement it does The Examiner credit.

I particularly appreciated the opinion that this plan is "too big for politicians of small imagination"; also your clipt indictment of purely local and regional selfishness: "There is little enthusiasm from Montreal eastward because it would open up Toronto and other inland cities like Chicago, Fort William and Duluth to large sea-going vessels."

It is indeed deplorable to what extent today's 'nickel' can sometimes blot out tomorrow's 'dollar'? Naturally, if the seaway plan could make our Lakehead terminals open to, at least, the cargo vessels of the seven seas, the development would be a very constructive factor in Canada's competitive position in terms of 'world wheat'? It seems to me that this could hardly avoid serving the general welfare of the Dominion? It is certainly a commentary on the efficiency of North American political life if, as indicated by President Truman, "every White House administration for the last twenty-five years has strongly supported the St. Lawrence Seaway project"?

I note that "the cost of the works now being submitted to the U.S. Senate for apróval would amount to $513,884,000". This, of course, is just 'small change' after the gargantuan war expenditures to which our two peoples have been conditioned across the past decade? In this fact I see some hope. I concur in your view that "An enterprise of such vast consequences should not be undertaken without due consideration"; but also that "twenty-five years has been long enough for that consideration...."

In a reference to T.V.A., in his Message to Congress on "The State of the Union" (Jan. 6, 1945) President Roosevelt said: "The T.V.A. which was constructed at a cost of $750,000,000—the cost of waging this war for less than four days—was a bargain!"

LOOKING AHEAD.

WAS THE BANK DESERTED?

Sir: I don't know the circulation figures of your newspaper but in tonight's Note and Comment column on your editorial page, you advised several thousand people that a local bank was ignoring the pleas of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission to conserve electricity.

You state "The bank was deserted and all the lights were on" not "The bank appeared to be deserted"—the bank was deserted.

How do you know? Did you open the door and go in to see? Couldn't it be that some over-worked, undernourished stenographer was quietly having a nervous break-down under her typewriter—couldn't some freckle-faced junior have been on his way to the stationery room in the basement for tomorrow's elastic bands—are you sure that some unbalanced ulcerated teller wasn't in a back room rolling some of the million and a half coppers that the City Fathers have extracted from us through those bottomless, flag bedecked penny pinching monsters which adorn our curbs — or maybe the janitor had just disappeared from view on his way to dispose of today's collection of used envelopes, rubber cheques or the manager's doodle pads. Do you expect us to throw the switch every time our pencil gets dull?

No—I doubt that even so ambitious a man as the enterprising reporter who dug down for this Comment interrupted his belated journey home to family and feebly flickering candles to make a full investigation.

Besides, what bank can afford to burn unneeded lights—try working for one and see.

Yours very truly,
SILAS CLUTCHBILL PEABODY.

BIG CITIES PROTECT PIGEONS

Sir: I noticed articles in the Examiner on Saturday, February 16th and again on February 18th, complaining about the number of pigeons in the city.

Does it not seem rather strange to you, that large cities like Toronto, New York, and London, England, encourage and protect the pigeons, and yet in a small city like Peterborough, the people apparently have little else to do except sit around the tables in the coffee shops and in their homes, discussing ways and means of eliminating these birds. It seems to me there are many more constructive matters that might be discussed. When we have a humane society here, I cannot understand why this cruelty is allowed.

Yours truly,
AN INTERESTED CITIZEN.

Pre-Marital Tests

When parents of a child who had died of malnutrition were charged with criminal negligence in its death, it was found that one was a moron and the other just on the border. Sterilization of such individuals should be carried out. Pre-marital tests might prevent marriage but not their having children, and it is a well-known fact that the chances are almost negligible of such parents producing normal children. We take the utmost care in maintaining the purity of our livestock and of our crops by maintaining high standards of seed, but we are fatally lacking in such precautions when it comes to safeguarding the most precious crop of all, the children. It is not fair that children should be born into a world with which they cannot cope. Sterilization of the mentally unfit would seem to be the humane, the civilized answer. —Niagara Falls Review.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Thus saith the Lord of hosts; Behold, I will save my people from the east country, and from the west country; and I will bring them, and they shall dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and they shall be my people, and I will be their God, in truth and in righteousness. (Zech. 8: 7, 8.)

And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem....

O house of Jacob, come ye, and let us walk in the light of the Lord. (Isa. 2: 2, 3, 5.)

Lenin and Churchill

January 24th was the twenty-fourth anniversary of Lenin's death. The date, January 21, is the same as that on which Pugatchev, the forerunner of Bolshevism, was executed in Moscow in 1775 and Louis XVI was guillotined in Paris.

Lenin would be only seventy-seven if he were alive today, but in Russia he is already a remote and deified figure of whom Stalin is the prophet. Propaganda has to some extent exalted the prophet at the expense of the deceased god. When Moscow was threatened during the war, the embalmed Lenin, who rests in a tomb not unlike the new fortress building of our own Admiralty, was removed for safety to the Urals. An inspired whisper campaign told the Russians that, whereas even Lenin had left the capital, Stalin had remained.

Although there is a plaque over the house in Holford Square, London, which he once inhabited, little is known of Lenin's stay here. Gorki describes how he went with him to a London music-hall and notes that Lenin laughed gaily and infectiously at the clowns and comedians but looked indifferently at the rest of the programme.

It was in London that the Bolshevik Party was born, and of all Lenin's epitaphs the most original and the most striking was written by an Englishman. In his "World Crisis" Mr. Churchill, no lover of Bolsheviks, wrote: "He alone could have found the way back to the causeway. The Russian people were left floundering in the bog. Their worst misfortune was his birth, their next worst — his death."—"Atticus" in Sunday Times, London.

Legless Pitcher's Comeback Subject For New Movie

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23 (AP). —A lanky, one-legged Texan arrives in Hollywood this week for an honor afforded few men—to witness the filming of his own life story.

He is Monte Stratton, six-foot five-inch boy from Greenville, Tex., who made good in big league baseball. Pitching for Chicago White Sox in his third year in the majors, 1938, he was the best right-hander in the league. White Sox Manager Jimmy Dykes said he might become one of the three greatest pitchers of all time.

After the 1938 season, Monte went back to what he liked best next to baseball—hunting. While he was climbing over a fence, a jutting wire pulled the trigger of his rifle. His right leg nearly shot away, he was barely able to crawl for help.

Monte lost his leg above the knee and baseball lost a fine pitcher, The news made headlines, and then Monte lapsed into the oblivion of faded ball players.

Scene Shifts

The scene shifts to Hollywood eight years later. A screen writer, Douglas Morrow, was watching a baseball game at the Sawtelle Soldiers' Home. Seeing the armless and legless spectators, Morrow had the desire to find a film story that would give them home. Then he remembered Monte Stratton.

He could only remember that Stratton was a Texan. So he instructed the long-distance operator to try every Texas city and the ball club thereof for a listing or information of Stratton. After a few hours' search, Stratton was reached in Greenville.

"I'm pitching to-morrow night for the Sherman Club," the Texan said.

Morrow flew to Sherman and watched Stratton pitch and win for the East Texas League team. (In 1946, he pitched nine games in a row without a base on balls.) The writer found that Stratton had kept in training on his Greenville cotton farm and had waited eight years before trying pro ball again. He tried to sell Monte on the idea of a picture.

"Naw," drawled Monte, "I don't want other people lookin' in my winda."

Morrow pointed out that "The Story of Monte Stratton" would inspire new hope for men who suffered the pain of war. Only then did Monte give in. At first he wanted no pay for the story rights. But Morrow explained that he, as writer, the studio (M GM), and the star (Van Johnson) would not be doing the picture on a non-profit basis.

"If you put it that way," smiled the Texan, "I'll take the money."

Plan To Retire Assault At Once

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 23—(AP)—Assault, Texas - bred champion whose fighting heart overcame a club foot to earn $626,620, will be retired from racing effective immediately.

The great chestnut handicap speedster, voted the "horse of the year" in 1946 after winning the "triple crown," will be sent to Robert J. Kleberg's King ranch outside of Lexington, Ky.

It would have been a better ending if Assault had won his last race in a dramatic stretch drive. But he didn't.

Against his arch rival, Calumet Farm's Armed, Assault ran fifth in the Widener classic Saturday, four lengths behind the Calumet horse which came in fourth.

Kleberg said the decision to retire Assault was made after it was found he had burst an osslet in the race. An osslet is a growth on the ankle which racing thoroughbreds sometimes get as a result of the hard pounding on the turf.

Trojanettes Win

Peterborough Trojanettes defeated Apsley girls in a thrilling hockey game played Saturday night at Apsley rink. It was a close and exciting battle all the way. The score was 2-1 for the Peterborough squad.

The first period was scoreless. Half-way through the second frame, Miss Earnshaw put Apsley ahead with a dead-on shot from near the blue line that completely fooled the Trojanette goalie. A few minutes later Joan Dunk got the equalizer on a pass from Linda Jordan. The winning tally came from the same pair just near the end of the period, Joan Dunk getting the goal and Linda Jordan the assist. It was close checking for the remainder of the game with neither team scoring.

There were no penalties handed out by Referee Bert Howden.

Windsor Edges Gens 6-2; Galt Triumphs

By The Canadian Press

Contrary to general expectations, last Saturday's three Ontario Hockey Association playoff tilts—one in the Senior A division and two in the Junior — weren't such closely matched affairs after all, as winning teams outscored losers 30-11.

The widest gap between winner and loser was at Galt where the Rockets handed St. Catharines Teepees a 12-3 trouncing. Windsor had a smaller 6-2 margin over Oshawa Generals and in the lone Senior fixture, Owen Sound Mercurys swamped Hamilton Pats 12-5.

Another feature of the week-end playoff tilts was the strict officiating as officials took the OHA executive committee's orders to heart and clamped down on rough play. Forty-four penalties were handed out in the two Junior tilts and three in the Senior. Of these 44 banishments, the Galt-St. Catharines game had 24, including six majors and two misconducts, while the Windsor-Oshawa tilt had 20 penalties, including one misconduct.

Spitfires led all the way in winning the first game of their best-of-seven semi-final series from the Generals who didn't get on the score sheet until late in the second period. Windsor led 3-0 at the end of the first, upped the count to 5-1 at the end of the second and closed out at 6-2.

Stellar Defence

Galt walked away with the first game of their best-of-three quarter-final with St. Catharines and led 11-0 with just 15 minutes left to play. Stellar defensive work by the Rocket rearguard kept the Teepee forwards well out and forced them to shoot mostly from the blue line. By contrast, the Teepee defence was sieve-like as Galt attackers drove in on Goalie Cec Gruhl.

Big gun for the Rockets was Harry Pidhirny as he blazed four shots into the Teepee nets. Next came Wiggie Wylie and Harry Marchand with two goals apiece, while Art Gualiauzzi, Ken McNally and Sam Mulholland each counted one.

Best man on the ice for Teepees was Topper Toppazzini and although he didn't score, helped on two markers. Gib Service, Fred Hildebrand and Red Sullivan notched the Teepee goals.

A last seven-minute scoring spree caused the wide margin Owen Sound had over the Hamilton Pats in the first game of their best-of-three quarter-finals. With just seven minutes left to play, Jack Ingoldsby and Murray Fife of the Mercurys ran wild as they personally rapped in six goals—two by Ingoldsby and four in a row by Fife.

Legionnaires Defeat Kingston In Second Semi-Final Playoff

Striking savagely at the Saints in Kingston on Saturday night, the Legionnaires racked up an 11-3 win for their second straight victory in as many starts of the OHA Senior "B" group semi-final series. The same clubs clash tonight in Lindsay and a Legion win would put them into the finals.

After a tight first frame Saturday, the Vitarelli pack got rolling to pull away, and it turned into a rout in the open third stanza. It was 3-2 for Kingston in the first, but Legion outscored them 3-0 in the second for a 5-3 lead, and they rapped in six goals without a comeback in the third as the big crowd began riding the home club.

Rather Rough

Play was fast and pretty rough most of the route, with Referee Walsh handing out 15 penalties, seven (including a misconduct) to the losers. They took their one-sided reverse hard in the third and began laying on the gad, but seldom could get a fair shot at the fast-flying Legionnaires. The Kingston defence cracked wide open in the last heat and Legions roamed about at will to pepper Udall. All the winners looked fine in this tilt, playing smartly together and outstepping Kingston. They were solid from the goal out, with almost all in on the scoring, Bob Greenlaw being in on four, as Ernie and Ace Nicholls and Godfrey were in on three each. Cameron figured in on two Saints' markers.

Fans saw some fine fast hockey the initial inning as Saints tried to skate the legs off Legion on the big ice surface. Both sides were flying and both goalies kept on the jump. It was rugged, too, and penalties came often. Rochetta scored early in close from Bob Greenlaw and then Joe was gated for holding. He was back when Cameron batted home Catlin's rebound in a close-in scramble to tie it. Joe Aitkens went off for hooking and H. Greenlaw rapped in his own rebound as they scrambled in front of Udall. Aitkens returned and Ned Vitarelli got it for tripping, with Ohlke again sewing up the score in close, aided by Cameron and Kerluk on neat passes. Ned got back as Belwa was fingered over for boarding. That's when Kingston went ahead when Jack Aitkens took a long forward pass from Stephenson on a breakaway and raced in to score. D. Vitarelli and Stephenson were chased for roughing with Ned Vitarelli following for high-sticking and then Kerluk for tripping near the finish.

Struck Early

Legion struck early in the second chukker and soon had command of the play, though it wasn't too one-sided yet. Bob Parnell dented the twine first on a nice try, skirting the goal and sinking his own rebound as Udall sprawled. Bob Greenlaw followed on a fine pass from Rochetta and hot shot at close quarters to put Legion one up. Ross Nicholls robbed Kerluk and he was really good when H. Greenlaw was penalized for holding. He came on as Doug Mortimer went off for interference. R. Greenlaw was thefted on a breakaway and Ned came close. Doug got back in time to get it again along with Jack Aitkens for roughing. Dootch Vitarelli made it 5-3 near the end, assisted by Parnell and Godfrey, as they were all banging away on Udall's doorstep. Rochetta missed the net on a breakaway at the gong.

Bob Greenlaw started the Kingston rout in the third as he rifled home his own rebound right in there. Crowley blazed in fast to tally on pass from Bob Greenlaw and Godfrey. Ernie and Ace Nicholls got tramping then, with Ernie scoring two within quarter of a minute, assisted the first time by Ace Nicholls and Ned Vitarelli and the next time by Godfrey. The Saints couldn't hold them but tried to bump or slow them as it roughened up. Ross Nicholls went off briefly with a cut on the nose and Rochetta was flattened hard. Ace Nicholls got the last two goals on nifty rushes, assisted once by Ernie and again by Burns. Tom Goodfellow drew a tripping penalty and Jack Aitkens drew a misconduct for arguing too strenuously with the referee toward the conclusion of the struggle.

Undefeated, the young Lakefield steppers were paced by Spike Sloan with four goals, and Coyle and Heffernan firing in three each to star for the evening.

A return team wrestling match has been arranged for the pro mat card at the Brock Arena on Wednesday night. A no time limit go this time betwixt the upstanding pair of Earl McCready and handsome Ben Sharpe on the one part and the villainous duo of Wee Willie Davis and the Masked Marvel on the other. A sell-out crowd saw this mad team match foursome in torrid action here last week, and they'll likely all be back for the rematch. Jim (Goon) Henry is in against Pete Managoff in what should be a warmish semi-final, while large Lee Henning tackles Bill Kusisto (of the gridiron pro Chicago Bears) in the prelim. A tasty dish to set before a mat fan.

OMHA semi-finals start tomorrow night in Omemee with a twin bill featuring local clubs. Local Lions clash at 7.30 with Midland in the first of a two-game (goals counting) provincial bantam semi-final series, return one being Thursday. And the midget Rotarians of this city meet Belleville at 8.30, and 'tis thought this is also an Ontario semi-final series. It's their first game, return one—with goals to count—being in Belleville about Thursday, too. Both Lions and Rotary are in their fourth OMHA round and making a swell showing. No less than 11 PMHA boys last year are up with the IOOF junior "B" OHA club this winter. We hope the OMHA melees in Omemee on the morrow draw a big crowd of fans.

Kingston Vs. Legion

Tonight in Lindsay, Kingston Saints and the Legionnaires have their third OHA senior "B' group semi-final game in their best-of-five series. Legions are up two in as many starts and should clean it up this Monday p.m. to advance into finals 'gainst the Petes. But the Saints will bust their necks in an effort to stay in the hunt, and wipe out that bad reverse in their last start. And they won't pull their punches or carry their sticks too low, either. Both these clubs —with a hearty dislike for each other — play it pretty rugged. It ought to be a hot number on good ice and should pack 'em in again.

* * * * * *

Down in the Limestone City on Saturday night, the Legions yanked the belt off the power plant—better watch the Hydro, boys—in the third period and scored six without a comeback to tote home a nice 11-3 win. While a large and stunned Kingston crowd only broke silence spasmodically to ride the homesters. A fine first frame when the Saints tried to skate Legion into the ice, but the visitors had a good margin in the second, and wound up roaming at will inside a beaten Kingston defence to feed Udall with more rubber than a tire factory. He looked somewhat shell-shocked at the finish.

* * * * * *

In The Pink Now, Eh?

The answer? We figure it was a case of a faster team fooling the scrappy Saints by outlasting 'em — stepping speedier on the big ice than the homesters in the final chukker. And playing better hockey as a team from the goal out. They were nearly all in one the scoring, with Bob Greenlaw, Ace and Ernie Nicholls, and Johnny Godfrey leading snipers. Rather rugged play with 15 penalties handed out and the Saints made it a real fight for over half the tussles. But they couldn't match strides in the third at all, and couldn't even get a good slash in often as Legion turned in their best showing to date. They were right hot this number.

* * * * * *

Lakefield bantams appear to have a fine chance at the OMHA "C" crown this year if they continue their present pace. They won in Gananoque 13-5 on Saturday and should take the return tilt tomorrow at 7.30 handily. They won 11 group games and took out Orono and Deloro in playdowns, and are now in Eastern Ontario finals. Ken Jakin was told that the western winners, Bolton, play the northern champs, Sundridge, next, victor to meet Lakefield a week hence. Everett Sloan, long-time worker for minor hockey, may see his work rewarded this year and Lakefield may get a hockey championship—or at least be finalists—in this year of grace and odd weather. Good stuff.

Re The Basketballers

PCVS junior "A" and senior "A" cagers Saturday carried home neat leads in district semi-finals, return tussles being here this Friday. Senior "A" squad beat Whitby 30-19 whilst the junior "A" basketeers won 42-19 in Uxbridge, so Bev Goulding's teams look set to sweep these series, though the seniors will be shy Paul Welsh for a while as he sprained an ankle. St. Paul's play Kawarthas a girls' round-robin fray at eight tonight in the YWCA. Collegiate colleens' results in Lindsay didn't come through. Montgomery Maids hadn't much trouble taking a win over Towne Togs who looked good the last half, the Canuck senior champs showing a lot of class. And Marines "B" bunch eked out a nice win in a tight fit over Lindsay chaps.

The Wings came back in the next two periods to hold Canadiens scoreless and paste in four more goals. The score, Red Wings 5, Canadiens 2.

Referee—W. Dyer.

Next game: All Stars against the champs, Wednesday, Feb. 25, if there is ice.

Leads Gained By PCVS In Cage Frays

The PCVS boys "A" Basketball teams both brought home leads in their points to count two-game district semi-finals following Saturday's games in Whitby and Uxbridge. The Seniors defeated Whitby, winners of the Western "B" group 30-19, while the Juniors won 42-19 over Uxbridge, Western Junior "B" group winners. The return games will be played at PCVS Friday evening of this week.

The zone defence was used by all four teams and accounted for the comparatively low scoring done by three of them. Both the Whitby and Uxbridge floors were small, the latter being particularly so. The PCVS Junior A squad was thus held in check for better than half the game and led only 14-7 at half time. However, superior ball handling finally paid off as the Peterborough boys ran in 28 second-half points, 17 of them in the last quarter. Griffin and Thompson accounted for 13 points each to lead the scorers. Kester had 10 for Uxbridge.

Quite Close

The Senior game was quite close throughout. The PCVS team had considerable difficulty scoring on the seemingly small Whitby hoops, while the home team spent too many shots attempting to score from outside the Peterborough defence, yet strangely enough all but one of Whitby's eight goals were scored from in close. PCVS led 6-5 at the quarter and 15-9 at the half. Whitby was blanked completely in the third quarter while PCVS could score but one field goal to go with three successful foul shots. Each team counted ten last quarter points for a final 30-19 score. Don Richardson with 10 points and Dave Dibben with nine were the prominent point getters for the winners. Neal with eight, six in the last quarter, and Tom Richardson with five were the leading home team scorers. The victory was costly for PCVS as Paul Welsh sprained his right ankle in the first quarter and may be sidelined for a month.

The Teams—Senior

PCVS—Connell 2, D. Richardson 10, McKee 4, Welsh, H. Dibben 5, D. Dibben 9. Total 30.

Whitby—Neal 8, Shewan, T. Richardson 5, Hood 2, Bracey 4, Sheridan, Gledhill, MacLeod, MacKay, Moss. Total 19.

Referees — DeGeer and McIlveen, Bowmanville.

Junior

PCVS — Griffin 13, Lee 3, Thompson 13, Dinsdale 4, Northcott 4, Sergeant 1, Grafstein 4. Total 42.

Uxbridge — Kester 10, MacPhail, Ball 6, Harwood, Barnhardt 2, Annand, Acton 1, Norton, Shier, Snooks. Total 19.

Six mixed rinks from our club motored up to Bobcaygeon on Saturday to play the first game in the annual contest for the J. G. Harkness Trophy. Two rinks played at 2.00 p.m, two rinks played at 4.00 p.m., and the other two played after the dinner hour.

The Peterborough curlers were the guests of the Bobcaygeon curlers to dinner at the Rockland House and an enjoyable time was spent between games.

We understand that a return game will be played here sometime in March.

We can take a half-dozen more rinks for next Saturday's bonspiel. Schedule calibre.

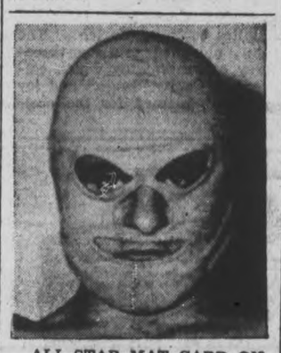
TCS Wallops Old Boys 13-7



PORT HOPE, Feb. 23—Trinity College School firsts defeated an Old Boys hockey team, 13 to 7, in a game which began as a loose and disorganized contest but improved in the second and third periods.

The third period saw Parker, Lawson, Gilbert and Huycke scored for the Old Boys, while Drummond, Kingman, McKinnon, Fullerton and Moffit tallied for Trinity. Best for the Old Boys were Huycke and Laing with sensational work by Gilbert in the nets also featuring, while Fullerton and Kingman were outstanding for the school.

ALL-STAR MAT CARD ON TAP—What shapes up to be the best wrestling card of the season is on tap for Wednesday night at the Brock Arena. Besides the main bout, which is a NO TIME LIMIT affair between the team of Earl McCready and Ben Sharpe versus the team of the Masked Marvel and Wee Willie Davis, two other star bouts will go. In the semi-final, Jim (Goon) Henry will tangle with huge Pete Managoff, and the opener will be between Lee Henning and Bill Kusisto, the latter a member of the Chicago Bears professional football squad. The entire eight wrestlers on the card are top-flight men and the fans should see plenty of action, especialy in that no-time-limit main match team go.

Lions Advance To OMHA Semi-Final Set

The local Lions swept Bowmanville into the OHMA bantam discard at Orono on Saturday when they won 9-2 to take their third-round series by a 25-3 score, and now meet Midland in Omemee on Tuesday in OMHA semi-finals. They have scored 72 in 10 playdown games with 14 against. To date, Pammett leads scorers with 28 points. Ferguson has 18, Stewart 16, Langhorne 15, Spencer 12 and McGrath 11.

The winners ran in two goals for a 2-1 edge the first inning, and had it 5-1 to start the third. Pammett, McGrath and Spencer each counted twice, while Stewart, Langhorne and Ferguson had one apiece. Assists went to Stewart, Pammett, Langhorne, Scriver and Spencer. The victors looked better throughout in a tidy tolt. The teams:

Lions — Goal, Delahaye; defence, Stewart and Byrne; centre, Pammett; wings, Ferguson and Langhorne; alternates, McGrath, Scriver, Spencer, McGillen and Cunningham.

Bowmanville—Goal, King; defence, Bickle and Martin; centre, Masters; wings, Ellis and J. Masters; alternates, Dewell, Brooks, Haynes, Ferguson, McCoy, Sellers and Piper.

Referee — Berardi; linesman, Crombie.

Wings Beat Apsley

On Saturday night Trojan Red Wings of the Peewee League were guests of the Apsley Legionnaires boys' hockey team.

The game was fast on keen ice as the weather was at zero. The Apsley boys could not hold back the fast stepping, smart-passing Red Wings. They fought back hard all the way, but lacked the experience of the Red Wings. Carveth, Trojan goalie, kept the score down for his teammates. Ted Welson, Apsley, got a breakaway and made sure of his shot to score the only goal for Apsley.

Trojan goal scorers: McDougall 4, Herbison, R. Dunn 2, Frizzelle 2, Heffernan, Lundy, Padgett 2.

Referee—Mr. Howden.

The teams:

Apsley—Goal, H. Wagoner; defence, D. Earnshaw, V. Tucker; centre, A. Wagoner; wings, Wilson, Jeff; subs, Young, S. Tucker, Spenceley, Lean.

Trojan Red Wings—Goal, Carveth; defence, Pogue, Herbison; centre, Lundy; wings, McDougall, Padgett; subs, Whatman, Heffernan, E. Dunn, R. Dunn, Clarke, Frizzelle.

Leafs, Wings Deadlocked For First Place In NHL

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Setting the stage for one of the great stretch drives of hockey history, the Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs today are once more deadlocked for the National Hockey League leadership. Leafs got back on even terms with the Wings by their victory over the Detroit squad Saturday and each team chalked up another triumph Sunday night. But the Leafs have one more game left than Detroit, 11 games to 10 for the Wings, and that extra game might well mean the league title.

Right now the Leafs and Wings are closer than ham and eggs. Leafs beat Wings 3-2 Saturday at Toronto, while Boston Bruins were beating Montreal Canadiens 3-1. On Sunday the Leafs edged Chicago Black Hawks 3-2, Wings topped the Canadiens 4-3 and Boston were walloped 4-1 by the New York Rangers, who alone hold third place.

Incidentally the Rangers are still only two points ahead of Boston, but the latter in the fourth and last play-off spot is drawing farther away from the two bottom teams. Montreal in fifth position now is seven points back of Boston and Chicago is 11 points back. For Montreal and Chicago the play-off picture is just about fogged out.

The five weekend games saw close hard-checking hockey all the way with penalties at a minimum except in the Toronto-Chicago game, and they were all minors. But they also produced heroes of the night.

Klukay Stars

At Toronto Saturday it was hard-working Joe Klukay, Toronto stalwart whose specialty is killing off penalties, who fired what proved to be the winning goal against Detroit. Pete Horeck's Detroit goal was matched by Sid Smith of Toronto in the second period, and bashing Bill Barilko made it 2-1 for Toronto in the third.

Klukay snared a loose puck to score cleanly for Toronto's third goal with an assist from Syl Apps, and in the six minutes remaining Turk Broda in the Toronto nets lost only one more, to Red Kelly.

There were 14,567 fans on hand for the Detroit-Toronto clash, but only 11,230 turned out at the Montreal Forum where the Bruins played a close-checking game which made the Canadiens look powerless, especially with the Bruin defence and goalie Frankie Brimsek at their best.

Spoil Shutout

Woody Dumart, Grant Warwick and Don Gallinger rolled up a 3-0 lead for the Bruins before Murphy Chamberlain spoiled a shutout for Brimsek when his pass-out slipped into the net off a Boston skate.

At Chicago Sunday 16,649 saw the Leafs ahead after the first period but margin never more than a single goal. Young Emile Francis turned in a great game in the Chicago nets but his forwards couldn't get the tying counter. Syl Apps put Toronto ahead in the first five minutes, and after Bill Mosienko tied it, Nick Metz scored Toronto's second.

The middle frame was half gone when Ted Kennedy scored Toronto's third goal, and Red Hamill got Chicago's second while the Leafs were down to four men through penalties. Howie Meeker, Toronto forward, was crashed heavily into the boards by Bill Gadsby and forced out of the game.

Gadsby accused Ted Kennedy of high-sticking and cutting his forehead in the last minute of the game, but the other players kept them apart. The game's 14 penalties were evenly divided between the teams.

Week-End Stars

(By The Canadian Press)

Frankie Brimsek, Boston goalie who turned in a fine effort in stopping 37 shots Saturday as Bruins whipped Montreal 3-1.

Joe Klukay, Toronto, who scored what proved to be winning goal as Leafs shaded Detroit 3-2 Saturday.

Jim McFadden, Detroit, who scored once and set up another counter as Wings edged Canadiens 4-3 Sunday.

Tony Leswick, Ranger forward who fired two goals as New York beat Boston 4-1 Sunday.

Maurice Richard, Montreal, who returned to form Sunday with two goals as Canadiens lost to Detroit.

Barons Capture 2 Weekend Tilts

(By The Canadian Press)

With 10 league games left to play, Cleveland Barons today were given an even chance of walking off with top honors in the American Hockey League's western circuit.

The red-hot Barons, who have two games in hand over the leading Pittsburgh Hornets, moved to within three points of Pittsburgh over the week-end by sinking Springfield 9-1 Saturday and Providence 7-5 yesterday. Cleveland now has won 13 straight.

Meanwhile the Wasps were held to a 2-2 draw by the faltering Hershey Bears Saturday. The third-place Buffalo Bisons split a twin bill with St. Louis Flyers, dropping a 4-3 decision on Saturday but coming back to win 7-4 Sunday.

Indianapolis Caps dropped a close 4-2 verdict to Philadelphia on Saturday but came through last night with an 8-5 triumph over Springfield.

New Haven thumped Washington Lions 10-3 in the only other week-end tilt.

THEY DON'T MIND COLD—A way to beat shortages of building materials has been found by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, which has two camps for construction workers in Brant County. The men—more than 75 of them—declare they have never felt the below-zero cold while living in "houses" made of canvas on paper board. At left is one of the camps. A cook's helper, Tom Anderson of Madoc (right), calls workmen to supper in a dining hall built of same materials as the huts.

Steel Boosts Puzzle Experts

By The Canadain Press

The opposing forces of deflation and inflation—low and high prices—are well illustrated by the actions of grains and steel.

Grains have fallen drastically since Feb. 4, but steel last week boosted its semi-finished product by $5 a ton, thus bolstering the idea that the grain drop is not an indication of any threat of oversupply in the American economy.

Steel's action has drawn questioning looks and is an inflationary influence, and yet it might have caused more of a sensation if it had dropped its prices. A drop would have been interpreted as an indication of a decrease in general industrial activity.

Sharp price moves, in whichever direction, causes anxiety, but an optimistic view is that the demonstrations given by grain and steel that counter-price influences exist, may be one of the best hopes that the price situation will level off calmly.

Little explanation is given of the steel move. Benjamin F. Fearless, president of United States Steel, said semi-finished increases announced by its subsidiary, Carnegie-Illinois, "should not be understood as indicating any trend in general steel prices."

On the other hand the magazine Steel, published in Cleveland, comments that a general upturn in steel prices appears to be in the making, and sees it as anticipatory to a wage increase.

50 Planes Search

FLINT, Mich., Feb. 23.—(CP).—Fifty planes have flown more than 350 air hours in a search for Dr. C. K. Murray, Flint dentist, and his pilot, Ivan E. Martin, who have been missing in their small aircraft since last Thursday. They took off from Houghton Lake for Flint with fuel for three hours and have not been heard from since. The search is being made over a large area in Ontario, east of Lake Huron, and in Michigan.

Civil War In Yemen

Old Masters Are Discovered Not the Same When Cleaned

LONDON, Feb. 23.—(CP).—Art experts at Britain's National Gallery, cleaning up 75 of their old masters, have discovered that "The Drunken Silenus," attributed for nearly three centuries to Peter Paul Rubens, apparently is only a "workshop" piece in which Rubens had little, if any, part.

Under the layered skin of blackened varnish they found other shocks, too.

The whole figure of a kneeling visionary, for example, was painted out in the foreground of Francisco Ribalta's picture of "Christ Bearing the Cross."

Philip Hendy, gallery director, said "The whole character of the picture had been further altered by a deep-toned varnish."

Some other "improver" of the masters was found to have painted some trees into one of Ruben's most famous canvases, "The Judgment of Paris." The trees were removed, revealing the sunlit far horizon Rubens painted.

Probably to meet some obscure demand for modesty, another retoucher covered the abdomen of Silenus with a flowing robe.

The experts now attribute most of the work on Silenus to Van Dyck because of the similarity in style and color with that known to be his during the early period when he worked in Rubens' studio. They said, "the sky and landscape seem to be merely worshop painting such as is to be found in many kinds of pictures from Rubens' workshop."

Feared Critics

Exhibition of the changes was expected to start a row with art critics who twice previously had spoken sharply during the 10 years' time the cleaning has been in progress.

So, before the refurbished works were put on show, officials carefully built their defences. But the critics received the cleaning kindly.

The London Times even suggested more picture be cleaned to remove "the false impression of the character of old masters which the present condition of many of the nation's pictures must encourage."

The tradition of good painting is not so secure in England that we can afford to have the main source of it contaminated by removable dirt," it added.

The learned Manchester Guardian was equally approving.

As guidance to their approval they had "before" and "after" photographs of the great paintings, views of some paintings left half-dirty and half-cleaned plus a detailed explanation of the careful, scientific methods used in the job.

The clean and dirty squares on the partly-cleaned paintings contrasted sharply. Blues and greens particularly were brilliant where cleaned; in the dirty patches they were smoky, almost black.

The extensive job of cleaning the old masters, which has been going on for 10 years, has been confined to early purchases by the gallery--paintings that were dirty when bought. Nowadays, however, new acquisitions are cleaned as they are bought and put on view only after rehabilitation.

Ask College Fee Cut 50 Per Cent

TORONTO, Feb. 23 — (CP). — A 50-per cent reduction in university fees was urged Saturday, in a resolution passed at the closing session of a convention of the Ontario Federation of the Canadian Congress of Labor.

The Federation suggested the fees cut could be made up by increased grants to the universities. It also favored an extensive system of scholarships and bursaries to assist children of farmers and workers who desire university education and possess ability to undertake it.

Other resolutions asked for establishment of a university in northern Ontario, support of northern municipalities who seek a larger share of the provincial mining tax, a provincial-Federal housing program and provincial subsidization of milk to permit its sale at 10 cents a quart.

YWCA Is Haven of Security To Girls Away From Home

A portion of contributions to the Community Chest Fund campaign, commencing February 27, is marked for support of the Young Women's Christian Association. The YWCA has long been known as a home away - from - home for all women, regardless of race or creed. But there are many right here in Peterborough who do not realize the invaluable services that go with this organization.

During 1947 there were 1,825 applications to the local secretary, Miss Leta Brownscombe, for rooms and employment. No woman was ever turned away, and there is no doubt that any recommendations made by her are acceptable. In addition, 135 girls were in residence during the year, and 101 transients were accommodated in the building at various times.

Aggregate figures in the health education and swimming departments for the past year are startling. Gymnasium attendance was 13,883 and swimming was 6,650, with an additional 500 taught to swim at outside points during the summer months. There were 1,443 girls registered in 16 gymnasium and dancing classes, basketball and badminton. These entries cover a total Y membership of 943 girls of which 454 are juniors.

In the girls' work department there are 1,007 registrations in 16 clubs or educational groups, and there were 344 club meetings in the year. In addition, 700 were enrolled in joint projects of YWCA, YMCA and So-Ed. At the camp on Stony Lake 134 girls were trained in outdoor and group activities.

These girls come to the Y primarily for training, and secondly for fellowship. They must be supervised by competent women who have specialized training and experience, who must be paid adequate salaries. True, they have volunteer assistants who help in their spare time, but staff members are always on hand.

The cost of administration and upkeep in all these fields is high. The YW's revenue comes from a membership fee of $1.00 per person each year, plus scheduled rates paid for class instruction, and board receipts. Also rental charges paid by 55 city organizations who used the facilities for meetings or socials, showers and wedding receptions.

Balance sheet for 1947 shows a deficit of $247.32. It would have been 20 times greater had there not been a capital and bequest account to draw on for $4,166.70, the cost of special repairs to the building.

Generous help from the Community Chest enables YWCA to help your daughters.

Jail Despicable Thief

TORONTO, Feb. 23 — (CP) — "Most despicable," was Magistrate T. S. Elmore's comment yesterday as he sentenced Thomas Laurie, 27, to six months. Laurie was convicted of assaulting George Bookmeyer, 78-year-old blind man and stealing a radio from him.

How Much Is Your Eyesight Worth?

In Peterborough City and County there are 72 persons who would pay almost any amount of money if it were possible that their sight be restored; as well as others whose sight has been impaired by accident.

These people or a number of them, have become useful citizens through the teachings and help of the Canadian Institute for the Blind.

In Peterborough an association called the Peterborough Advisory Board to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind maintains a Braille Library and a "Talking Book Library", books which have been recorded being played on a specially adapted machine.

The Association maintains contact with all people registered with the Association — Services practically all those who are registered with them — Administers concessions employment and maintains a "Home Teaching Service". At present there are five blind people employed in industrial firms in this city.

The Association also provides at least one picnic a year, sends Christmas boxes. The IODE supplies a lunch at the Blind picnic — and the people at Fee's Landing do much to help at this affair.

Brantford Decides To Build 200 Wartime Houses; Spend $22,265 For Lots

terms of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for the erection here of 200 houses to rent at $37.50 a month, Brantford council Friday night authorized purchase of $22,265 of sufficient property for 111 building lots as preliminary to negotiations with the same corporation. Brantford is asking for 100 of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation's houses this year. Cost to Brantford is indicated in the following paragraph from the Expositor of Saturday: "City Engineer G. H. Richards told the council that to the $202 cost per lot for land purchase would be added approximately $648 for improvements, bringing the total cost of each improved lot, for land and services, to $850.

Circumstances here are closely in parallel with those facing Brantford.

"We have reached the bottom of the barrel as far as any city-owned lots are concerned," Mr. Richards said. "All we can do is go out and buy sites—and we get a better purchase price if we intend to put all our houses in one spot."

City Treasurer E. A. Danby said Brantford council would pay not more than $600 a lot, amortized at two per cent over a 10-year period. In lieu of taxation Central Mortgage would pay grants of $70, $75 and $80 a year, according to the types of houses built.

Mr. Danby estimated the Corporation's yearly grants would amount to $7,500, and the city would actually receive some $820 after $6,680 was deducted for principal and interest on the cost of land and improvements.

Mr. H. S. Longhurst, district administrator in Peterborough for Central Mortgage told The Examiner today that the need of houses here was still acute. He has a list of 700 applications, and estimated that probably 500 of them reflected the continuing extent of the local requirement of housing accommodation.

Part of the pressure on the local council in its approach to the persistent housing problem has come from the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion.

108 Children Compete In Ski Events

Nearly 200 children together with a sprinkling of parents attended the Junior Ski School meet held Saturday morning at Kemp's Slope.

Believed to be the first attempt to teach a large body of school-children the fundamentals of skiing in this province, the Junior Ski School was approved by the Board of Education, supported by the Recreation Commission, and organized and instructed by the Peterborough Ski Club.

Some 82 boys and 26 girls participated in Saturday's giant slalom competition and received awards according to their various age groups. The giant slalom was a combination downhill run and slalom with the two factors of time and proficiency being judged.

Directly in charge was a committee consisting of Robert White, Eric Westby and Mollie Craig. More than a dozen Ski Club instructors supervised the races.

Ski Club members expressed themselves as "delighted" with the proficiency shown by the children, many of whom had never been on a pair of skis until this winter.

Jack Dane, Recreation Director, handed out awards to the winners. Prizes included cable harness, mitts, ski clamps, wax, binding, ski poles, and other skiing equipment.

Winners of the Giant Slalom included:

Boys 13 and over— Geo. White, Chane Carter, Myles Finnie.

Boys 11 and 12—Grant Reader, Harold Pullyblank, Barry Hollingsworth.

Boys 9 and 10—Ross Dobbin, Raymond Larry, Brook Rye.

Boys 7 and 8—Car White, Allen Wood, Harry Gravelle.

Girls 13 and over—Esther Robinson, Jean Jolly.

Girls 11 and 12—Margaret Dobson, Arlie Protherstone.

Girls 9 and 10—Alice Burnside, Elizabeth Myles.

Girls 7 and 8—Lorna Myles.

Girls' Cadet Unit at PCVS Frowned On By Committee

Estimates of the supervision committee of the Board of Education were struck on Saturday afternoon. Total amount approved by the committee was $21,060, an increase of $5,255 over last year. This committee looks after the purchase of books, equipment and other furnishing in the class rooms. The increase in the estimates was accounted for by the new equipment required for the opening up of the new rooms in the Queen Mary and Confederation Schools.

The committee also recommended to the board the purchase of an oba and a set of tympani instruments for the PCVS band.

On account of the present very unsatisfactory condition of cadet training in Ontario it was decided to recommend against the formation of a girls' cadet corps at the PCVS.

Committee approved of setting aside extra classrooms at a $1.00 per classroom to organizations renting the auditorium. Smoking facilities at the collegiate, when the auditorium is rented, came up for considerable discussion and the committee decided to recommend that proper facilities be provided subject to the approval of the Fire Underwriters Association

Immediate following the Supervision committee the Health Committee struck its estimates at $700 the same as last year.

A discussion on state of the deer throughout the local game district is expected to highlight the Monday night meeting of the Fish and Game Assoc. which meets in the Peterborough Bridge and Crib Club at 8 p.m. Films will also be shown.

WHERE IS THE BULB SNATCHER

Mrs. James O'Neill, 666 Romaine St., had just reason to complain to the floral company when a white hyacinth plant she received a year ago bloomed again, but this year a yellow daffodil. The experts are baffled and suggest Mrs. O'Neill got her tubers mixed during the past year.

KENNEL CLUB MEET

Two films were shown, and a demonstration of breed standards was given at the monthly meeting of Kawartha Kennel Club held last week. Some 60 members and guests were present. George Hill handled the breed demonstration for Labradors; Walter Wood, for Chesapeakes; and James Shook, for Alsatians. Lessons in dog training were begun Sunday afternoon in the Drill Hall, Exhibition Park.

THREE FIRE ALARMS

Two chimney fires and a plugged chimney were responsible for fire alarms over the week-end. Early on Saturday evening the first chimney fire was reported from 508 Parnell St., residence of C. J. Reilly. The second was at 8.10 a.m. Sunday from 592 Division St., residence of Mrs. Jessie Smith. A plugged chimney that caused smoke to reverse and fill the premises resulted in a visit by firemen in the mid-afternoon to 542 Armour Rd., residence of Joseph McCarthy.

CANDLES AND LAMPS IN DEMAND

Apparently many people are taking a pessimistic view in this present power shortage, and are expected an outright switchoff to be made. Local retailers report a large boom in the sale of candles and lamps. One dealer says the demand for coal-oil lamps is up at least 50 per cent, and the gasoline lanterns are also being sought after though on a reduced scale.

SHABBY TREATMENT

The City Fathers and Mayor of Belleville will not be too nappy over the treatment some of their citizenry showed visiting members of the Lakefield Sea Cadet hockey team. While the boys ate lunch in the Bay of Quinte centre, hockey sticks were stolen from a station wagon parked in front of a restaurant. The Lakefield lads had just won over the Gananoque entry in the first of the Eastern Ontario bantam championship playoffs.

BETTER SHARPEN RAZOR

To those gentlemen who like to lean back in a barber-chair and doze in a leisurely fashion while the barber skims off their beards, this warning is addressed. Better sharpen your razor, gents, because on Wednesday morning there will be a big "Closed" sign hung on local barbershop doors. The Peterborough Barbers' Association is taking the half-day off to journey to Toronto for a bit of an outing. Chief entertainment will be Wednesday night's hockey game between Leafs and Bruins at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Power Users Cooperating Dobbin Reports

Users of electricity in the city have co-operated beautifully with the Peterborough Utilities in reducing the amount of electricity being used throughout the city, Ross Dobbin said this morning, but he added substantial reduction must still be made to reach the required low figure of 261,000 kilowatt hours.

Since last Monday, there has been a steady decline in the amount of power used, but still the average for the five-day period ending Friday night was 294,000 KWH. This average must be reduced to 261,000 KWH.

Mr. Dobbin said the manufacturers are making changes aimed at further reducing the amount required, and merchants in downtown Peterborough are cooperating admirably. He believes that further reductions can be made in the homes of the city if the citizens use only the lights they require, and do not burn stoves, and heaters unnecessarily.

Mr. Dobbin was anticipating further improvement this morning, and felt there was little danger of a cut-off if everyone continued to cooperate.

Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission announced over the week-end that one or two industries would likely be asked to work on Saturday instead of on Monday, and this would benefit the entire picture. Apparently several people have asked why street lighting is not reduced. In reply to this query, Mr. Matthews said "From a safety standpoint at this time of year, our street lighting is not any more than adequate."

On Saturday and Sunday there is no shortage of electricity because most industries are closed, also offices, and many stores and other places of business. In the short the period of conservation starts Monday morning and ends Friday night.

WINS SCHOLARSHIP — Cadet R. C. Longmuir, RCAF, whose home is in Havelock, has been named winner of the scholarship at Royal Roads, the Royal Canadian Navy and the RCAF college. This award is given by the RCAF Benevolent Fund to serving airmen and is a two-year course at the Royal Roads officers' training college in British Columbia. There are nine such scholarships given each year.

Special Names Seek $18,000 In Big Drive

An objective of $18,000 has been set by the executive of the Red Cross and Community Fund for the Special Names committee headed by Gordon S. Matthews. With a total objective of $60,000 the campaign will get under way on Friday. The opening dinner, which is being provided by one of the Peterborough industries will be given the workers in the cafeteria of the Canadian General Electric Co. at six o'clock.

The speaker will be ex-mayor Robert Saunders of Toronto and recently appointed chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission. All branches of the campaign special names division, industrial division, retail division and women's division have completed their plans. Canvassers have been appointed and in most cases these have received their cards.

Those taking part in the Special Names drive to raise $18,000 under the chairmanship of Mr. Matthews are Messrs. Robert Abbott, Lionel Browne, Douglas Carlisle, C. S. Cummer, Vernon Dawson, Orley DeGraw, R. L. Dobbin, R. R. Faryon, G. K. Fraser, M.P., G. A. Gillespie, R. M. Glover, Fred Hills, John R. Marshall, Ian F. McRae, T. A. Mackay, Gordon Munroe, W. A. Richardson, J. E. Sullivan and G. Harry Thompson.

Suitor Strikes Girl, Pushes Her Into Snowbank Two Men Who Interfered Fined For Assault

Two youths were found guilty of common assault, and similar charges against two others were dismissed after two hour's conflicting evidence of an affray on Lansdowne St. Feb. 7. All four had been charged with assault occasioning actual bodily harm. The two convicted of the lesser charge were Kenneth McConnel, 27 Lansdown St. and Elgin Nurse, 1 Lansdowne St. Charges were dismissed against Gerald Nurse, 2 Lansdowne, and James Hoy, RR 9, Peterborough.

Evidence given by Leslie Hewitt, 223 Prince St., was that the four had administered a beating to him on the evening of the 7th which had resulted in a blackened eye and a broken leg. He had come to the house at 27 Lansdowne, he said, in a taxi with two girls, Aileen Hogan and Marie Aldrick, both of whom room at the house.

He admitted that he had quarrelled with Miss Hogan who had "rejected" him last October. He had been angered because of the profane language she had used, he said, and had pushed her in a snowbank. When he had been about to return to the taxi, the four men had come out and proceeded to administer the beating, Hewitt said. They had "all taken turns," he said, and told of the four hitting and beating him, kicking him while he was lying on the ground.

He admitted, under questioning of defence counsel W. J. A. Fair that he had thrown a beer bottle through the window of the McConnel home last Christmas, and that police had warned him to stay away from those premises. He also admitted that, following the fight, he had returned to the beverage room and had been drinking there that night. He had not gone to the doctor about his leg until the next morning, he said.

He disagreed with Mr. Fair that the interference of the four on behalf of the girl had been "gallant."

Evidence was given by Dr. Donald Whyte that the small bone of the leg had been fractured.

Donald Moorly, the taxi driver, told what he had seen of the affray. He was unable to positively identify who had landed any specific blows.

Argued All Afternoon

Miss Hogan, called as defence witness, said that Hewitt had met her and Miss Aldrick in the beverage room that afternoon. When they arrived at the Lansdowne address, she had refused an offer to go out with him that evening. At this, he struck her and knocked her down twice, she said.

The other girl, Miss Aldrick, said the two had been "arguing back and forth all afternoon," and also said Hewitt had knocked the girl down after striking her. She added that when the accused youths had come out of the house, Hewitt had made the "first swipe" which started the battle.

Elgin Nurse, one of the accused, said Hewitt had tried to kick him first, and he had struck back.

James Hoy, another accused, denied having taken an active part in the affair. (The charge against him was dismissed).

Gerald Nurse told the court that he had not even been present on the occasion, and his case was also dismissed.

Kenneth McConnel admitted striking Hewitt, but said he had done so when the complainant had tried to go into the house. He had been told by Miss Hogan, he said, that Hewitt had "beaten her up."

Defence counsel Fair argued that there had been provocation in the assault, caused by Hewitt's treatment of the girl and his attempted entry of the house.

Crown counsel V. J. McElderry termed the assault "brutal and vicious."

The two convicted men were each fined $10 and costs of $10.25.

Car Stolen Here Burned On Highway

PORT HOPE, Feb. 23.—After a restful sleep at the Queen's Hotel the other night, Mr. Peter J. Mather of Peterborough dressed and leisurely ate his breakfast.

However, the world did a loop for Mr. Mather. When he went to get his car, which he had parked in the lot at the rear of the hotel, the car was gone.

Since then the police have been on the lookout for a blue Chevrolet coach, radio and heater, with license number 9N620.

Friday they found it—a mass of charred ruins along the roadside near Newtonville. The assumption is that the thieves set the machine in motion by shorting the wires, and the shortage set it afire, causing its destruction.

Protests Letting Gas Plant Contract

Brantford Firm Reports No Chance Given To Bid On Job

In letters to Mayor Ovens and The Examiner, the Brantford Engineering & Manufacturing Co. complain that they were not given an opportunity of bidding on the propane gas plant for which the Utilities Commission let the contract to the Salem Engineering Co.

At a recent meeting of the Commission the company's letter, demanding that the contract be held up and that they be given a chance to bid on the job, was considered. It was said that reports had come from Brockville, where the company had done certain work some months ago. The import of that information was mentioned among the Commissioners, and on its substance the Commission decided not to reply to the Brantford firm.

A paragraph from the company's letter of protest was: "We feel that you have been unfair to us, and far more serious than that, unfair to the citizens of Peterborough, and think it is imperative that you place a "hold" on the present contract until we have submitted a proposal.

We do not want to embarrass your Commission or Mr. Dobbin, but if we are not given further consideration, it may be necessary for us to make an issue of this matter. Since Salem Engineering Co. is a reputable concern: we do not believe they would hesitate to give you the opportunity of asking us for a competitive tender, and since the contract was placed only a week ago, they would not have been put to any undue expense, should there be a cancellation."

"In addition to the two propane plants which we have built for the cities of Brockville and Guelph, we have also completed a propane plant for Geo. Weston, Ltd., at Longueuil, Que., and are, in fact, the only Canadian concern to build such plants in eastern Canda."

Could Save Money?

The Brantford company's letter of Sat., Feb. 21, was: "We are very surprised that we have not had the courtesy of a reply to our letter of Feb. 9, and unless we have a reasonable answer within three days we intend to take action.

You realize that in issuing this contract without asking us for a competitive bid, you have possibly authorized the expenditure of from $5,000 to $10,000 of your taxpayer's money, unnecessarily, as we definitely know that our estimates on previous contracts have been lower than those of other concerns, by approximately this amount.

We are sending a copy of this letter to your mayor, as well as to your newspaper." The letter is signed by William Sterling, general manager.

The Examiner has published the course of action of the Utilities Commission beginning with its decision to get a report on the present plant with recommendation of changes for the purpose of economy in gas production. Costs of labor, coal, oil, coke had advanced last year. The Commission was facing a loss on the 1947 operations, and finally was peremptorily informed they could not get any more crude oil from the company in Toronto with whom they had considered themselves established as a customer.

The Utilities Commission recognized that they were facing a situation of emergency towards the close of 1947. The severance of their oil supply was a final blow. They had reached the stage at which Mr. Gordon S. Matthews remarked to his two associates: "We've got to do something drastic if we are going to stay in the gas business."

The Commission engaged D. H. Thorburn of Toronto, who is associated with the Salem Engineering Co., to examine the Peterborough gas plant and to report his findings and proposals.

The use of liquid propane in gas production was decided as the only way of relief. The Commission made certain investigations itself. Some of the members went to Brockville and examined that city's plant, and also certain work which was done there. This, apparently, was one of the jobs referred to in the Brantford company's letter.

No Oil In Sight

The Commission then obtained estimates of cost with acute concern for the element of time because at the end of January there were only 10,000 gallons of oil in storage at the local plant, and none in sight. The Commission had appealed to Peterborough dealers and also to local manufacturers hoping that their influence might open some oil cocks. Those sorties off the beaten track of the oil business brought no results. In the meantime the Commission spent some weeks studying the Thorburn report, finally decided they were "staying in the gas business", and asked the Salem Company for an estimate of the cost of the changes they proposed as an effective solution of the Commission's pressing problem. One phase of it was the fact several of Peterborough's industries are the largest consumers of gas. Economy both for the industrial and domestic consumer was sought by the Commission, and also the Commission had no time to waste.

The Commission had been following gradual changes in the gas industry, but did not become actively interested in the propane alternative until in January they were suddenly notified by their Toronto dealer that they could not get any more crude oil. These are circumstances which have been reported from the progress of the Commission toward the letting of the contract to Salem Engineering Co.

Ont. Schoolboys Shine At Track Meet

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—(CP)—Canada has new track honors today by virtue of the brilliant display during the week-end of an inexperienced team of eight Ontario schoolboys in the national track and field championships.

The boys won six medals competing against some of the finest runners in the United States as 500 contestants from 79 schools gathered for the interscholastic event held in conjunction with the National Amateur Athletic Union Union indoor track and field championships.

In the senior event, however R. M. (Bob) McFarlane, Canada's 440-yard champion and top Olympic track hope, was eliminated in a final heat of the feature 600-yard run after placing second in a preliminary heat.

The schoolboys team, first sent from the Dominion to the annual event, won one first place, two second, one third, two fourths and a seventh despite the fact only two of the team had competed indoors before.

Lloyd Percival of Toronto's Sports College, who coached and financed the schoolboy team, hailed the victories as a proof of the theory that Canadians with the proper training can compete with the world's best in track and field events.

The 20 points garnered by the Canadian team was half-point more than that of the winning team from boys high of Brooklyn, N.Y. However, the Canadians were recognized only as representing the individual schools which they attend.

Employees of the civic-owned transportation system called the strike unexpectedly Saturday morning. They are asking higher wages.

Old tram cars, dangerously overloaded, were providing the island's only means of public transportation.

(The Canadian Press erroneously reported Saturday the strikes had occurred in Port of Spain, Trinidad.)

If Labor Elected Second Time Will Continue Nationalization Plan

By JAMES McCOOK

LONDON, Feb. 23—(CP).—Labor Government policy for a second term of office—their present term normally expires in 1950—is almost certain to include further nationalization, The Canadian Press learns.

The Bank of England, fuel industries and transport have been brought under public ownership in major enactments of the Attlee administration since it took office in 1945. Iron and steel probably will be nationalized before the present parliament dies in 1950.

Party planners now have turned to other fields. Their studies include:

1. Water: Although provision of water is largely a public service a substantial private interest remains in pipelines and other properties. Droughts and floods, with difficulties for urban as well as rural residents, have emphasized the need of an integrated national water policy, Labor supporters say.

2. Land: Town planning and agriculture legislation has given the National Government wide authority over land use and development. This may be sufficient to carry through most Labor land policies, but party men never forget the statement of Town Planning Minister Silkin:

Land Nationalization

"The Labor Party believes ultimately in land nationalization, and is pledged to work towards it."

3. Chemicals: Labor adherents say the vast chemical industry must be considered an integral part of the planned economy desired by Socialists. They say the Government should have control rather than private enterprise.

"Of course, final decisions have not been made because the next 2½ years, with experience of industries and services already nationalized, will be a guide to the future," a labor source said.

A hint of further nationalization requirements may be given in party booklets now under preparation, with the hope that the feeling of party supporters will be clearly expressed before firm policy is announced.

Sideswiped By Truck Car Goes Into Ditch

TORONTO, Feb. 23 — (CP). — Mr. and Mrs. E. Roy Orr and their 13-months-old son, David, of suburban New Toronto, were injured Saturday night in a traffic accident near Cooksville, a few miles west of here. Police said the Orr car was sideswiped by a milk delivery truck and knocked into a ditch.

Provincial Police reported that the truck was driven by C. S. Stafford, 39, of nearby Clarkson, who told him the steering wheel went out of control.

Mrs. Orr suffered a fractured left shoulder, head cuts, shock and bruises; the baby, brush burns on the forehead; and Mr. Orr, an executive of a Toronto manufacturing firm, cuts and bruises.

Seven Killed In Accidents Over Weekend

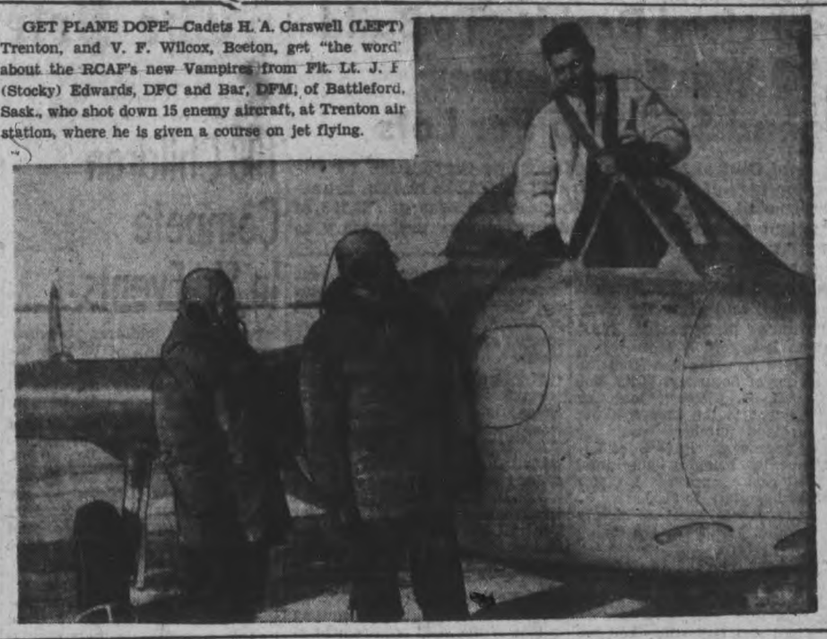
By The Canadian Press

Seven persons lost their lives in week-end accidents in Eastern Canada, a Canadian Press survey showed today. Four died in traffic mishaps and burns, suffocation and asphyxiation took one life each.

Two traffic fatalities involved automobiles and trains. Emile Casavant of Montreal was killed and 74-year-old Napoleon Lavigne of the Montreal suburb of Ville Jacques Cartier suffered head injuries when Casavant's old-model car stalled on a level-crossing in the path of a Canadian National Railways train. In the other mishap, Umbert Papetti, 27, of St. Catharines, was killed and his parents and wife, Olga, were injured when the car Papetti was driving was in collision with a CNR train at Niagara Falls.

A two-car collision in London, killed Wayne Smith, three, and injured Mrs. Margaret Esler, 23, and Mrs. Betty Hexter, 21. Police charged Mrs. Esler with dangerous driving.

George Raisbeck, 15-year-old drug store delivery boy, was killed when knocked from a bicycle in east-end Toronto. Police said the driver of the vehicle which hit him did not stop.



Aubrey V. Van Buskirk, 48, died of suffocation Saturday night when fire destroyed his home at Pugwash, N.S. His wife and four children escaped.

Gas fumes escaping from a water heater asphyxiated Gerald Boyd, 25, at St. Catharines.

Vincent McTearne, 16, died in Toronto 24 hours after he was burned in a fire and explosion at a paint plant.

Mine Union Men Deny Charges

TORONTO, Feb. 23 — (CP). — Spokesmen for the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (C.I.O.) Saturday criticized a statement attributed to C. H. Millard, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.), that Communists from the United States have crossed the border to take a hand in mine union activities in Canada.

Speaking at the annual convention of the Ontario Federation of the Canadian Congress of Labor, delegate Mike Solski of the Sudbury local of the mine union said the internal affairs of the mine union were the business of its members. The union's contracts proved it could look after itself, he added.

Later the mine union in a letter to Prime Minister Mackenzie King expressed opposition to a suggestion that union organizers suspected of being Communists be barred from coming into Canada on union business. The letter said any effort to impede union work in the gold mine field would reduce production.

SAVE ELECTRICITY!
YOU CAN SAVE ELECTRICITY
The tremendous post-war growth of Ontario's industries has resulted in unprecedented demands for hydro-electric power. To keep these industries producing, every one of us must cut down our use of electricity. You can save power by turning off all lights in rooms not in use . . . by switching off electric stoves and other appliances as soon as you are finished with them. Use electrically heated water sparingly . . . do not use electric heaters or grates. Police Use Ruse To Catch Youths

DETROIT, Feb. 22 — (CP). — By gunpoint and ruse, Detroit and Windsor police ended what they called a "night of crime" Saturday when they arrested two Ontario youths.

In custody today are Harold Souchie, 19, of Windsor, and Peter Tarasick, 22, of St. Catharines.

Police here said Souchie admitted that he and his companion made repeated trips from Canada to commit armed holdups in the Detroit area, and that they robbed two taxi drivers of a total of $24 Saturday night.

In a subsequent chase, Souchie drove off in an automobile while Tarasick fled on foot. The former abandoned the car and was later captured on a bus.

At headquarters, officers persuaded Souchie to telephone Tarasick to arrange a meeting in Windsor. When Tarasick arrived at the rendezvous Windsor and Detroit police captured him.

Buck Private With DSO, Bars Worried Military Policemen

MONTREAL, Feb. 23—(CP).—Forty-two years in khaki is a long time in any man's life, but when that 42 years is spent winning a DSO and two bars, rising from the rank of buck private to brigadier, then starting again at the bottom, it's news.

Spread through three major wars and numerous Indian uprisings, that briefly is the career of 64-year-old A. T. James, now a resident of Montreal.

Mr. James is the man who worried army military policemen with his DSO and bars on a non-commissioned officer's uniform during the Second World War. He holds 17 decorations.

Born in Cardiff, Wales, the son of a construction engineer, Mr. James began his military career at 16 when he joined up for the Boer War.

In 1914 Mr. James was in the trenches with the crack Grenadier Guards with the rank of sergeant. He was commissioned in 1918 in the then-new Tank Corps, and fought with them in France. A year later he fought in North Persia with the Indian Cavalry.

In the Mesopotamia uprising of 1920, Mr. James, now a major, won his DSO. He was awarded two bars to the decoration in north-west frontier fighting in India in 1922 and 1923. By this time he was a colonel.

Decorations "Lucky"

Mr. James credits his decorations to the "brave men who fought under me. Only the lucky ones are decorated; the unlucky ones are buried," he says.

As an acting brigadier, Mr. James left the army in 1935 and came to Canada with his wife and four daughters.

Then came the Second World War, and former Acting Brigadier James stepped out of a recruiting station—Private James, DSO and two bars.

He rose to acting corporal, then, after Dunkerque was made sergeant. Soon he was a company sergeant major and had completed the job of organizing supplies for the 1st Canadian Petrol Company.

In 1942 he transferred to the Veterans Guard of Canada and served at headquarters on Trafalgar Square, London.

Mr. James was discharged when the war ended and made plans to return to South Africa, but when a job was offered him in Montreal, he accepted.

Now he says he is happy in Montreal and too busy to think about his exceptional military career.

Watson Named Commissioner

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—Appointment of William P. Watson as livestock commissioner for Ontario was announced Saturday by Agriculture Minister T. L. Kennedy. Mr. Watson succeeds Louis O'Neill, who died recently. His promotion from the position of associate director is in line with Col. Kennedy's policy of filling the key posts in his department with men old in experience but fairly young in years.

Born in Beverley Township, North Wentworth, 45 years ago, Bill Watson graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, in 1923 and joined the department that year as field man. In the two decades that have elapsed, he has visited every township in Ontario and gained an intimate knowledge of livestock problems in each.

He was president of his year at OAC and headed the College Royal, an agricultural show staged by the students, in 1928. He was editor of the college's year book in his final year.

His extra-departmental duties included the livestock superintendency of the Guelph Winter Fair and the Western Fair, London, for many years. He has also acted as secretary of the Ontario swine breeders', sheep breeders', horse breeders' and cattle breeders' associations.

A member of the international judging team at the Chicago fair in 1927, Mr. Watson has been active in judging since that time. He is considered one of the top authorities on swine on the continent.

MP's Confident Session Completed Before July

OTTAWA, Feb. 23—(CP).—Some members of the Commons are confident the work of the session will be completed before the end of June and that it will be unnecessary for parliament to adjourn for July and August. They said Prime Minister Mackenzie King's announcement Friday that a two-month summer recess would be taken if the work was not finished by the end of June gave members a prorogation date at which to aim. Members now could judge how much time to spend on different pieces of legislation.

Another factor that likely will contribute to the June adjournment is the question of money. Members like others are feeling the pinch of high living costs and at the rate their indemnities now are being paid it is estimated their full $6,000 will be paid by mid-June.

If they adjourned for two months and returned in the fall to continue the session, they would not receive additional money unless some special provision was made.

Will Speed Work

Some method of speeding work may be devised by the small committee appointed last week to study Speaker Gaspard Fauteux' suggestions for changes in House rules.

With all parties having equal representation on the committee, it is expected it will make better headway than previous committees which were much larger and which failed to agree on changes.

Wheat Price

The Government is expected to announce to the Commons this week the amount by which it plans to increase the initial price paid to Prairie farmers for their wheat upon delivery to the Canadian Wheat Board.

The initial price now is $1.35 a bushel and the expectation is that the Government will increase this by 25 cents a bushel or more to around $1.60. As the increase is to be made retroactive to the 1945 crop year, this will bring an estimated $200,000,000 in cash to the pockets of Prairie producers, based upon their deliveries in the last three crop years.

The increase will be put into effect through an amendment to the Canadian Wheat Board Act. The Government already has moved a resolution preliminary to the enabling Bill.

Demand Military Aid For China

DETROIT, Feb. 23. (AP)—Senator Robert Taft (Rep.-Ohio) today called for American military help for China.

He termed President Truman's $570,000,000 assistance plan a "relief program" which "will completely fail to solve the problem" of Communist pressure.

Taft said State Secretary Marshall had been "unwillingly forced" into drafting the aid program sent to Congress last week.

"The truth is," Taft said in an address before an economic club luncheon, "that Secretary Marshall does not like the Chinese and has no interest in their problems."

The Ohio Senator, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said:

"Unless vigorous action is taken immediately, all Manchuria will be lost to Communism."

BITTER...

So would OUR children, if they had to fight for meals in the garbage, had to face the winter in rags—without schools, without hope. That is how millions of children in our world are growing up today. No wonder their minds grow embittered and suspicious.

They are the future. They must have food, clothing and education, if we are to assure a healthy, peaceful world for OUR children.

IF THEY ARE NOT SAVED, OUR WORLD IS LOST

Canadian Appeal for Children must raise a minimum of $10,000,000 if we in Canada are to contribute our share to meet the desperate and urgent needs of the world's children.

British Spring Models Feature Trim Waistline

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 23 — (CP) — Heedless of austerity restrictions that tend to keep their models off the home market, London designers went all out for the "new look" in their spring shows, sloping shoulders, nipping waists and accentuating hips and stomachs.

Pleating, both pressed and unpressed, gathering and bustle effects were used liberally to create the desired silhouettes. In this respect, short-jacketed suits with full skirts and all-round box pleating, caught only by the waist-band, were very popular. The length of suits and woollen dresses ranged from 10 to 14 inches from the ground.

Boleros, capes and jackets were popular. Jaeger's "batwing jacket" in check was shorter in front than behind, starting just below the bustline and falling in a natural curve to a low waistline. The sleeve, starting from the waist narrowed to an ordinary wrist width. It was pleated at the shoulder, a design repeated in some of the full-swing swagger coats, giving a roomy jaunty look.

Many coat desginers favored the "Arab tent" look but others, such as Arthur Creed, used straighter, pleated lines so that the garment could be worn loose or belted. Dressy coats were tight-bodiced with full and pleated skirts.

Digby Morton used a new flat, flounced effect in pleated skirts, by horizontal tucking before pleating. This gave the desired silhouette without unnecessary fullness. With some of his suits he used a jumped with neck cut low all around and turnover collar.

Victori Stiebel's dresses had tightly fitted bodices, buttoning to the neck or arranged in folds round a deep decollete. He introduced the washerwoman skirt, this being a double skirt with top folded in front and tucked kirtle-wise into the waist.

Artisst-Inspired

Molyneux favored the "Renoir" silhouette — tight-fitting bodice, buttoned down the front, and rounded neck-line with frilled lingerie.

Hartnell stressed tent-like overcoats, bell-sleeves and pumpkin skirts. This skirt is made detachable and can be worn round the shoulders in cape effect leaving a straight, plain skirt.

Charles Creed in his tweed suits used two innovations. With straight-skirts, knife-pleated at the back only, he cut away the centre back jacket from the waist downwards, showing the pleating as far as the waist. Another suit had a rolled collar to the waist and double-breasted buttoning from the waist to foot of jacket.

In afternoon two-pieces the long three-quarter length jacket effect was popular, either straight with hip-padding or fluted in apron effect. These often had bobble trimming on the yoke, neck or skirt and jacket hems.

Occasionally wide petersham or satin trimmings were used in the same way with large bows at waist, hip or back of the jacket, sometimes also on the skirt.

Notable in some of the younger styles were the white pique schoolgirl or Quaker collars. In these the pleating or fluting was often started from the hips instead of the waist and boleros were used equally with jackets.

North Monaghan S & A Doings

Regular meeting of North Monaghan Social and Athletic Society was held Monday, February 16 with 35 members in attendance. James Joiner, president, was in charge. A group of teen-age members asked permission to hold a dance every second Saturday night in the school auditorium. It was decided to have a committee consisting of James Joiner, Gordon Simmons and Doreen Linsey approach the School Board at their next meeting and in the meantime contact some of the parents with a request to chaperon these dances. It was suggested that printed membership cards be issued and only one member and their friend to be admitted on the card.

On Wednesday night, Dave Brown and Philip Giannini, senior badminton and table tennis conveners, had 28 members in attendance, and had to make use of some of the Juniors' games to keep everyone bury.

Friday night Mr. and Mrs. Eric McKinstry, junior recreational conveners had 23 youngsters in attendance from 6 p.m. until 8.00. Mrs. Fred Sanders helped supervise. Some of these youngsters are getting quite proficient with the badminton racquet.

After the Juniors left, the weekly euchre was conducted under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sanders, social conveners. There were 12 tables filled and first prizes were chickens. Prize winners were: ladies first, Mrs. L. Millard; ladies second, Mrs. L. Hartman; consolation, Mrs. A. Davies; men's first, Mr. R. Leach; second, Mr. Alf Johnston and consolation, Mr. Bob Sheppard.

Assisting Mrs. Sanders to serve lunch were Mrs. Ray Clements, Mrs. Earl Druery, Mrs. Eric McKinstry, Mrs. C. H. Porter, Messrs. Ernie Simmons, Bill Sheppard and Eric McKinstry.

DOROTHY DIX

CHOICE OF TWO LOVES
Girl Measures Suitors In Terms Of Good Times

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I wish to ask your advice on a love problem. I have two loves. The first is tall, thin and undernourished looking. He is sweet but dumb, especially about love. On dates he is slow and very seldom shows me a good time. He doesn't dance, drink or smoke. He has a motorcycle to which he pays more attention than he does to me. Yet I still love him. Sometimes more than I do the other love in my life.

Dorothy Dix

On the other hand, the second man is kind, considerate, attractive, and he gives me all the love and affection I could expect from any man. He has a car and spends all of his free time taking me to places to which I would like to go. He takes me to dances and never fails to show me a good time. I love him also.

Since I love them both equally, which one should I take? My future happiness depends upon your choice.

BEWILDERED GIRL.

✧ ✧ ✧

AUSWER: As I am not personally involved in the love affair and do not have to choose between the two Romeos, I am compelled to throw your problem back into your lap. However, it strikes me that the thing that fires your fancy is not the men themselves, but what each can give you in the way of a good time. Practically your choice seems to be between a motorcycle and a car.

Congeniality Key Factor

Inasmuch as you are a grown woman, it is strange that you do not seem to think of love as an emotion that draws a man and woman together and that makes them feel that they will find happiness in congenial companionship. After all, it isn't very long that you want to dance and go to parties and tear around on motorcycles. With time comes the desire to settle down and have a home and family, and that is what sensible people marry for, not for a brief whirl of excitement that makes the decision of a husband depend upon which appeals to you more—a motorcycle or a second-hand car.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My husband and I had four years of happy marriage. Then he renewed his association with an old girl friend. Now our marriage is about to go on the rocks, though I still love him and he says he could never find a better wife than I am. He promises to give up this girl, but he never does it.

I am thinking of leaving him, but I hate to do it because I want our child to have both parents with her. So I have thought of getting my husband to bring the girl to live in our home so I could show her what she and my husband are doing in breaking up my home. What is the best step to take?

ANSWER: You certainly are the most optimistic woman who ever lived if you think for an instant that you can reform your husband and his mistress by bringing her into your home to live. I suppose you imagine that she will be so touched by the spectacle of a sad-eyed wife having her home broken up and her husband taken from her, and a poor little baby being made fatherless that she will turn from her evil ways and henceforth walk the straight and narrow path.

Don't you realize that the woman and your husband know exactly what they are doing and its consequences, and it doesn't touch their hardened consciences at all? So all that you would do by bringing the woman into your house would just be to make it easier for them to carry on their liaison. Don't be silly. Keep the woman out of your house as if she were a poisonous snake, and deal with your husband as you think best.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a boy of 15 and would like very much to go out with a girl I know who is of the same age, but my relatives say that a girl matures faster than a boy and that I should go out with girls about two years younger than myself. Does it make any difference about the girl's age?

A DOUBTFUL BOY.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Not at all. But I think it is a good thing for a boy of 15 to go out with a girl who is older than he is because she is more sophisticated than he and can teach him his way around socially—how to dance, how to conduct himself at parties, how to help a girl off and on with her coat, and all the little social observances that are as much a part of a boy's education as his schooling.

For Tuesday, February 24

EXCEPTIONAL opportunities for the attainment of most advanced goals and creative ambitions of scope and magnitude are shown by this day's lunar and mutual espects. There are unusual elements for success in any project well-organized, carefully executed and regulated by sound tactics, reason, study and good judgment. Offsetting this is danger from over-acting, overstepping the bounds of logic and common sense, by excessive enthusiasm, strenuous and tactless methods.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is have splendid prospects for the attainment of high goals and objectives, with scope and ideas for creative work beyond the mediocre. Initiative, enterprise and concentrated efforts should be built upon and expanded by reason, logic and practical techniques if the solid support of those in influential places is to be counted on. Capital, good will, budgets and essentials depend on this, and might be negatived by false moves, errors, excessive zeal or miscalculation. Calm judgment and sound practice should win out.

A child born on this day may have excellent prospects, born of enterprise, initiative and aggression, with practical creative urges. A tendency to overdo may work against its solid progress.

QUESTION: I have to organize a church supper and would appreciate it very much if you could tell me how to make baked beans and mashed potatoes for a large number of people.

Convener.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I hope other readers who are connected with church and societies with large memberships will clip these recipes as they are not easily located.

Baked Beans (for 70 people)

Soak 4 quarts washed pea beans in cold water for 10 hours. Drain. Cover with fresh cold water, add 8 tablespoons salt, simmer until almost tender. Drain. Add 2 teaspoons soda, 1 cup molasses, ½ cup sugar, 2 teaspoons each mustard and paprika, and 2 pounds chopped fat salt pork, and 3 quarts boiling water. Bake in shallow, greased pans at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 1½ hours. If possible serve with tomato catsup.

Mashed Potatoes (for 50 people)

Fifteen lbs. potatoes, 1½ to 2 quarts scalded homogenized milk, ¼ cup salt, ½ cup butter. Pare potatoes, wash and boil in boiling salted water until tender. Drain, then mash until very smooth. (You should entice a man to help you with this mashing.) Add remaining ingredients and beat until light and fluffy over low heat for about 10 minutes, or until thoroughly heated through before serving.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: We have a farm and killed a hog for our own use and as a result I have quite a bit of lard and thought I might make some doughnuts as a treat for the children. I have lost my mother's recipe and would be grateful to you if you would print one in your paper. Betsy.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER:

Doughnuts

(cake doughnuts—not yeast)

Sift together 3½ cups flour, 4½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg, mace, and 1 teaspoon salt. Cream 3 tablespoons lard or shortening until light and add 1 cup sugar, while craming. Add 2 eggs and beat until very light. Sift in the sifted dry ingredients alternately with 1 cup milk. Add enough additional flour (not more than ½ cup) to make a soft dough that is possible to handle. Chill at least 1 hour. Roll out or pat on floured board to ½-inch thickness, then cut out with floured doughnut cutter; form the trimmings and centres into a large ball and roll out and cut as before.

Fry in fat of 370 deg. Fahr. on both sides until golden brown, turning them only once. It requires about 3 to 5 minutes to fry 4 doughnuts in a pan just large enough to accommodate them with about 1 to 1½ inches hot fat. Lift out of fat by inserting fork through hole, and drain on crumpled paper towels. Dredge with powdered sugar when they are cool. Twenty-four medium-sized doughnuts.

Write again if you would like me to print a recipe for yeast doughnuts.

Directions

Waldorf Salad is made of equal parts finely chopped celery and dessert apple with about one-quarter proportion of nuts— usually walnuts, but almonds are very good—plus mayonnaise.

Blueberry Cake

Sift together 3 times 1¾ cups sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt. Cream ¼ cup shortening until creamy and smooth, then gradually add 1 cup sugar to it while creaming. Add 1 egg and beat well. Sift the dry ingredients into the butter mixture alternately with ½ cup milk mixed with 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sprinkle 1 cup fresh or frozen blueberries with 1 tablespoon flour, and fold these into the batter. Bake in greased 8x8x2-inch pan at 350 deg. Fahr. for 60 minutes. If baked in loaf pan it requries 75 minutes.

Clam Chowder

Saute 4 slices chopped side bacon in hot frying pan with 1 medium-sized chopped onion until both are transparent and golden. Add 1 can clams and liquor (or use 1 pint of fresh clams if you are lucky enough to find them), 3 cups raw potatoes cut in ½-inch cubes and simmer 15 minutes until potatos are tender. Add 3 cups whole milk or homogenized milk, salt and pepper to taste. Heat through and serve with some kind of toast or crackers. This chowder is thick and nourishing enough to be a main course.

Orange Bavarian Cream

One and one-half tablespoons gelatine, ½ cup cold water, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 2-3 cup sugar, pinch salt, ½ cup boiling water, 2 cups orange juice, 1 cup heavy cream, whipped. Soak the gelatine in the cold water 4 or 5 minutes. Add with lemon juice, sugar and salt to boiling water and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Chill until it just begins to congal, then stir in the orange juice, and carefully fold in the whipped cream. Chill until set. Garnished with segments of orange, free of membrane, when serving. If desired, this may be chilled in individual moulds lined with lady fingers.

Power Shortage Blamed On Drew

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 23.

Charging that the present shortage of power was caused by the short-sighted policy of the Conservative Government during their present tenure of office, E. B. Jolliffe, provincial leader of the CCF Party, addressing a gathering of 250 party members, Saturday said, "Mr. Drew opposed the development of the Upper Ottawa Valley both in 1943 and for several years after his party came to power."

"Now they are going ahead with it," said Mr. Jolliffe, "but it won't be ready for another three or four years and some of you people are going to be out of a job because of it."

He also stated that all HEPC commissions knew well in advance that power cuts would be necessary during the past week, but claimed that they were asked to keep it confidenial. "This was because the Huron by-election was coming up on Monday," Mr. Jolliffe declared, "and if the word had been known in advance the Tories might not have received such a favorable vote."

Mr. Jolliffe also said that gas shortages were the result of the greed of private companies in over-selling their product and not being able to supply enough gas for industry. "They blame it on the cold winter," he said, "but we have had cold winters before."

Wanted Lodging Nabbed On Old Count

Faulty memory was the undoing of Edward Desautel, no fixed address, when he sought overnight lodgings at the police station Friday night. He was accorded a hearty welcome by the force, for a warrant for his arrest had been issued last August when he had failed to appear on a charge of illegal consuming of liquor. He had forgotten the matter, he told police. They had not.

When brought up before Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, the accused at first pleaded not guilty, and was remanded until February 23. A few minutes after court had been adjourned, however, he asked that his plea be changed and the court was resumed to fine him $10 and costs of $2.50 or 12 days in jail.

Upon reaching Greenwich Island (2), President Videla laid claim to it on behalf of his country, which has a weather station there. Since this island lies in the South Shetland group (A, inset), which Britain considers to be hers, the controversy may reach the U.N. Security Council. Bootleg Mining Booming In Cape Breton Fields

GLACE BAY, NS, Feb. 23—(CP). — Bootleg mining, for generations a barometer of industrial strife and depression in the Cape Breton's soft coal belt, again is booming. But this time it is a mark of both prosperity and unemployment. Although the coal industry is operating at capacity, Cape Breton Island with 4,400 jobless is one of the worst pockets of unemployment in Canada and unemployed miners' sons and others have found bootleg mining a profitable business.

Scores of bootleg pits reopened during the 1947 Maritime coal strike are doing a thriving business and it was reported on Saturday that plans are being made by police to seal them with dynamite.

The war against bootleg mining is as old as the coal industry itself. Records show that as far back as 1748 the Governor sent troops from Halifax to Cape Breton to stop the practice.

During the 1909 strike when the United Mine Workers waged an unsuccessful 18-months struggle for recognition bootleg pits were opened by striking miners.

Many Battles

The "Burnt Mines" were the scene of many pitched battles and police attempted to halt operations by dynamiting the crop pits. Though many pits were sealed other openings were made under cover of night.

During the depression years of the last decade bootleg mining again became a roaring buusiness. Hospitals, schools, churches and householders purchased the illegal fuel openly.

End of the depression combined with a police drive effectively halted operations. The Nova Scotia Government then passed legislation making bootleg mining illegal, whether on one's own land or not.

During last year's strike bootleg mining was revived, but later brought to a halt, for the most part, by action of the UMW.

However, on the north side of Sydney Harbor, bootlegging coal now is a major business, and it has been estimated that 300 persons are dependent on the operations, in addition to truck operators who move the fuel to market.

Schools, Roads, Jump Havelock To 55 Mills

HAVELOCK, Feb. 23—(ENS)—Havelock's tax rate for 1948 has been set at 55 mills, an increase of 13 mills over the 1947 rate. The provincial subsidy of one mill will reduce the rate to the taxpayer to 54 mills.

The increase in the school rates and a new item of road expenditures accounts for the major part of the increase. The village rate is almost two mills lower, but a two mill rate for street expenditures for which there was no provision last year, evens up the expenditures.

The public school rate is up almost five mills and that of the high school almost two mills.

Following is a detailed statement of the break-down of the rate. Listed first is the mill rate for 1948, followed by the amount. In brackets is the 1947 mill rate:

County rate, 11, $4,444.66 (10); street lights, 4, $1,616.24 (4); direct relief, 1, $404.06 (1); Board of Health, .50, $202.03 (.50); Park Board, 2, $808.12; High School, 2.475, $1,000.05 (.76); Public School, 17.41, $7,034.68 (12.69); village rate, 10.375, $4,192.13 (12.05); street expenditure, 2, $808.12, (none); road expenditure, 4.24, $1,713.21 (none). Total, 55, $22,223.30 (42).

Yemen Leader Slain By Killers In Car

CAIRO, Feb. 23. (AP)—A dispatch to the Cairo newspaper Al Ahram today said the Iman of Yemen was slain in his capital at San'a last Tuesday by assassins who fired from an automobile.

The dispatch, from San'a, said the 82-year-old ruler, Yehia Hamid El Din, died along with his prime minister, a grandson, an aide and the driver of the car. Dispatches to Aden last Thursday told of the Kuman's death, but gave scant details.

Arab League investigators were en route to Yemen today to look into a civil war reported in progress there in the wake of the old Kiod's death.

The dispatch said three of the Iman's 16 sons took refuge in the palace in San'a but were followed by troops supporting the new regime. Two of them were killed.

Yemen is known to the outside world chiefly for its production of Mocha coffee.

Father, Son Arguing Fall Under Train

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (AP). — Locked in struggle, Royal Lefkowsky, 60, and his 27-year-old son, Felix, fell to death under a train from a midtown subway station platform last night.

Police quoted the son as saying before he died: "I pushed my father—he's no good—when he fell, he held on to me and I fell with him."

The father died instantly. The son's legs were mangled and were amputated before he died in hospital.

Th operator of the train, Magnus Waagenes, told police he saw the two men struggling on the platform as the train approached the station.

Cause of the fatal argument was not known.

Waagenes and a guard, Dominisk Scrivani, went under the train and applied improvised tourniquets to the younger man.

MONTREAL, Feb. 23.—(CP). —The Secretary of State has granted eight leaders of the prewar Fascist movement in Quebec who are suing the Federal government for $1,000,000 damages for their wartime internment the right to waive their cases heard by the Exchequer Court.

Pilot Nine Days On Raft Doesn't Know Mate's Fate

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Feb. 23 — (AP). — Mexican flier, Esteban De Leon, 26, weak after nine days at sea on a rubber raft, told on Saturday how his companion was lost after their plane crashed in the Gulf of Mexico.

The flier related his story on the arrival here of the Panamanian freighter, Roatan, which rescued him.

De Leon said pilot Neil Womack, 37, was lost from the bobbing, wave-tossed raft sometime during the second night after the crash.

The twin-engined DC-3 the men were flying crashed Feb. 10, within five minutes of its destination, Ciudad Del Carmen, Campeche, Mexico. It had taken off from Brownsville.

The two managed to get onto the rubber raft the plane carried.

De Leon said Womack became delirious on Feb. 12 and was obsessed with the idea that his wife was waiting for him and all he had to do was step from the raft to greet her.

"Sometime in the night I was awakened when he shouted my name, but by the time I became fully awake Womack was gone from the raft," De Leon said.

Doesn't Know Fate

"I do not know whether he fell from the raft or was seized and dragged from it by a shark.

"I shouted his name until I was exhausted, but neither saw nor heard him again."

De Leon said he had no water during the nine days on the raft. For food he had only a bird and two fish he managed to catch.

De Leon and Womack were flying seafood from Yucatan Peninsula to Texas and New Orleans.

"Suddenly the left engine began to miss, and immediately caught fire. The right engine quit running and was started down real fast. We levelled out and stalled about 200 feet above the sea," De Leon said.

"The plane fell in from that altitude. I received a few bruises, but Womack was unhurt."

De Leon said he believed the plane remained afloat less than a minute and remembered little of the days after Womack's disappearance.

"All I know is that the sun beat down unmercifully upon me each day, and that from time to time I either went to sleep or lost consciousness."

1,500 ARABS START OFFENSIVE — Approximately 1,500 Arab warriors are reported to have started a powerful drive in northern Palestine in an attempt to cut the Holy Land in two. They are reported to be concentrating their strength to re-open a corridor from the Trans-Jordan frontier to the Nablus-Tulkarm triangle and military observers in Syria, say that such a drive, if successful, will pose a strong Arab spearhead at Tel Aviv. Meanwhile the Jews in southern Palestine keep constant watch to guard off Arab attacks on outlying farms or sabotaging the reservoirs which are all-important to both farming and to life in the great dry area. This photo shows a group of Haganah youths on guard with their dogs at a defence post inside one of the Jewish settlements in the Negeo, desert area in southern Palestine.

Restoring Fleet

LONDON, Feb. 23 — (AP) — Britain's merchant fleet is nearing restoration despite "unparalleled wartime losses," the Chamber of Shipping of the United Kingdom said last night. In 1939, the mercantile fleet stood at 17,750,000 gross tons. Despite the losses, the tonnage at the end of 1947 was 16,000,000 excluding 1,000,000 tons of returnable tonnage.

2 Young Brothers Die In Apartment Fire

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—(AP).—Two young brothers died and their parents and baby sister were burned severely early today when fire swept their apartment.

The boys, Harold May, Jr., six, and Michael, five, were pronounced dead after a police emergency squad had worked over them with inhalators for more than two hours.

Harold May, 37, his wife, Anna, 29, and Karen May, 14 months, were in serious condition in hospital.

Six In Family Fire Victims

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 23 — (AP)—Six persons in one family —four of them children—perished early today when flames swept their 16-room house.

Dead were H. Alan Gregg, 40, his wife, Ann, and their four children—Susan, 9; H. Alan, Jr., 8; Peter 3, and Thomas, 10 months old.

The only one to escape as flames raged through the rambling three-storey wooden house was the family maid, Edna Roper, 29. She was injured critically, firemen said, when she apparently toppled through a second-storey window.

At least a dozen firemen and the department's fire chaplain, Rev. Thomas Tierney—were overcome attempting to rescue the trapped family.

The whole inside of the house was a roaring inferno before the firemen got there, deputy chief Henry Kilfoyle said.

All six members of the Gregg family were found in their second-floor bed rooms.

TWO PLAYS GAIN VALUE

TWO KINDS of plays take on additional value when the declarer knows that one of the two defenders holds all the important high card strength of his side. One is the squeeze whereby with a winning card in one suit the declarer can give the strong opponent an impossible choice between relinquishing a winner in one or another different suit. The second of these plays is the throw-in, which forces the certain winner of a particular trick to lead away from some important card in the same or another suit.

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 NT	Pass	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 ♥
Pass	3 NT	Pass	Pass
Dbl

South was complimented later for having made "a very sporting bid." He had nothing in his hand except what looked like a stopper in each suit other than North's hearts, and was bargaining largely on the fact that all of the opposition's real strength was bunched in one hand. That fact proved to be worth enough to him to make his No Trump game against the opposition of an original 1-No Trump hand.

West opened his diamond 2, the 5 going on from dummy, the Q from East and the K from South. With three tricks sure in that suit, plus probably four in hearts, South had to wangle two more from the black suits. He led the heart 5 to the second trick, West playing low and the 8 going to the Q. The diamond 8 came back to the J. Now, to make safe diamond returns impossible for East, he scored the A and then ran the heart A, K, 9 and 4, discarding on the last three of them the spade 4, club 3 and club 7, and East tossing off the spade 8 on the last of them.

Now South threw East in with the spade J to the K. No matter how East now played, he could take no more than two more tricks, so that his total was four and South had his game. His return would give the declarer either two club tricks or a club and a spade.

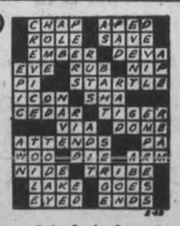
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Why is an opening lead from the Q-9-7-2 of the dummy's suit likely to give the declarer what might be called a "synthetic finesse"?

6—In Memoriam

ELLIS—In loving memory of Mr. Harry Ellis, who passed away 1 year ago February 21, 1947.
The rolling stream of life rolls on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile,
Of one who once sat there.
—Son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Ellis and family.

HENDREN — In loving memory of my dear wife, Mildred Anna, who passed away in Vancouver General Hospital, February 23, 1945.
Her thoughts were all so full of me,
She never could forget,
And so I think that where she is
She must be watching yet.
The angels keep their watch up there,
Please, God, just let her know
That I, down here, do not forget—
I love and miss her so.
—Fondly remembered by her loving Husband, Howard Hendren, 8861 Oak Street, Vancouver, B.C.

JACKSON—In loving remembrance of Mrs. Wilfred Jackson, who passed away one year ago February 23, 1947, and also Mrs. Harold Harrison, who passed away July 20, 1946.
In memory of sisters, with whom
Our path has had to part,
Who yet is never far from us,
But always close in heart,
Whose cherished memory lives on
To comfort us today,
We keep our dear ones in our thoughts
Each step along life's way.
—Ever remembered by sisters and brother.

PEARSON—In loving memory of a dear mother, who passed away five years ago
Her life is a beautiful memory,
Her death is our silent grief,
She sleeps in God's beautiful garden,
In the sunshine of perfect peace,
So we leave her in God's keeping
The rough road safely o'er,
And our dear mother we loved so dearly,
Has only gone before.
—Ever remembered by Dora and Howard.

Rev. Dr. Oldfield Heard Sunday

For 43 years a South China missionary, Rev. Dr. Walter H. Oldfield, Toronto, addressed three Peterborough congregations on Sunday and told of his many years of service in that country in peace and war. During World War II he was decorated by the Chinese government for his Red Cross work and unstinting aid to the suffering people in that area. He was treasurer of the South China Red Cross organization for many years.

Dr. and Mrs. Oldfield returned to this continent last May. Lack of nourishing food had left him in a weakened condition and he was forced to return home to recuperate. The couple are now living in the Toronto surburbs.

He told how the upbringing of children in China today differs from the Canadian. Instead of the carefully thought-out toys available for children in this country, the Chinese child he says pulls around a live bird or an animal on the string. When these creatures die, often as a result of mistreatment, another one is substituted. Children witness the sanguine spectacle of public executions, he said, and thus become hardened to death and suffering.

Speaking of the war he said that certain towns were bombed three or four times a day for as much as several weeks. Suffering, bomb damage, and damage by fire were "terrific," he said.

With headquarters in Wuchow, Kwangsi province, he told of the difficulty of keeping together the Bible school work for young Chinese Christians.

Despite the hardships and danger of the last year of the war in China, he pointed out that from the standpoint of converts it was the most fruitful during his ministry—500 Chinese were baptized.

Dr. Oldfield, who resided in Peterborough for several years at the beginning of the century, went to China in 1940, just after the Boxer Rebellion.

Illustrating the extent of inflation in China, he told of a case where $15, (American) had been sent to a Chinese who converted it into more than $1,000,000 (Chinese).

Bus Service Now Extends To Cameron St.

Effective today Peterborough will enjoy a considerably improved bus service, covering practically every section of the city.

Those who will benefit most from the new service will be the residents in the far south western corner, where a new service will operate to be known as the Monaghan Road South Route. This service will leave Simcoe St. every half hour from 6.30 a.m. to 11.30 p.m. and will leave McMahon's Store, Cameron St., at 6.45 a.m. to 11.45 a.m. ever half hour Monday to Friday. Saturday schedule will be slightly altered, when the bus will leave Simcoe St. every half hour from 6.00 a.m. to 11.30 p.m. and from Cameron St. every half hour from 8.15 a.m. to 11.45 p.m.

This new service will be a distinct advantage to residents in the south-west district who work at the CGE, both for transport to work on the early shift and transport home. CGE employees are advised to board the south bound bus at five minutes past the hour at the Monaghan side of the factory.

Charlotte St. West service is also improved and the following additional runs have been arranged: Busses will leave Simcoe and George Sts. at 7.15 a.m. and run every half hour throughout the day until 11.15 p.m. They will leave Western Ave. at 7.30 a.m. and every half hour throughout the day until 11.15 p.m. Monday to Friday. It should be noted that the Saturday schedule will remain the same on this route, leaving Simcoe and George Sts. at 7.45 a.m. and from Western Ave. at 8 a.m. and every half hour until 11.15 p.m. and 11.30 p.m. respectively.

The Sunday service which has been considered inadequate for some time is to be improved also. Effective from last Sunday the service will now be a twenty minute service from 9.50 a.m. to 10.50 p.m. from George and Simcoe Sts. The service will run on George St. North, George St. South, Jackson Park, Byersville and Nicholls Park routes.

A report from the Peterborough Bus Lines office on King St. reveals that it is evident the public took full advantage of the new Sunday service, and comments by the passengers showed that this long-looked for improvement in the Sunday service was appreciated by both church-goers and other passengers who might wish to visit friends in other parts of the city.

Born At Keene Mrs. J. Campbell Was 104 Sunday

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 23.—(CP). —Mrs. James H. Campbell today "stayed up" beyond her regular retiring time and said she was very disappointed that there was not enough snow to allow her to take a horse-drawn cutter ride to celebrate her 104th birthday.

Recalling that early Canadians "went to bed with the chickens," Mrs. Campbell said:

"There is something different about this day and age . . . but there is something nice about getting old . . . you get lots of attention."

As she received telegrams of congratulations—many from Peterborough County where she was born — Mrs. Campbell said she wasn't too disappointed about not having the cutter ride because promise of more snow might make the trip possible in the future.

She has been sitting by a window at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Brady, watching the weather and hoping for clear skies and a fresh light snowfall. Despite her age, her clear and active memory recalls the early days of her life at Keene village near the north shore of Rice Lake.

The centenarian is in excellent health, although her eyesight and hearing are failing.

Born at Keene, she is the daughter of the late Robert and Effie Eddington. She married Mr. Campbell at Roseneath, Ont., in 1864 and he died in 1904. He was a soft-drink manufacturer in Peterborough.

Neil O'Brien, 207 Stewart St., was fined $7.50 and $2.50 costs when he pleaded guilty to causing a public disturbance in a George St. restaurant. The court was told the accused had been causing an uproar in the restaurant about one o'clock Sunday morning.

Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, told the accused: "If you want to celebrate, a restaurant is not the place to do it."

Vincent Dwyer, 124 Hazlitt St., was fined $50 and costs of $2.50 on his guilty plea to a charge of being drunk in public and as a second offender.

Carl Smith was also fined $50 and $2.50 costs for being a second offender on a drunk in public charge.

Louis R. Taylor, Curve Lake, was fined $10 and $6 for being drunk in public in Lakefield.

James E. Noggin, Curve Lake, pleading guilty to being drunk in public, was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

LONDON — A broadcast course in religion for public schools was suggested in a resolution passed by the executive of the Middlesex Ratepayers Association.

Senate Group Busier Than Judge Handling Quebec Divorce Cases

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA, Feb. 23 — (CP). — In this steadfast citadel of majority rule, it is paradoxically true that the man who launches more laws than probably any other 10 men in parliament is a political opponent of the Government. Furthermore, he does it day after day and seldom is mentioned in the papers. He likes it that way.

He is Walter Morley Aseltine, BA, KC, the 61-year-old lawyer-farmer from Rosetown, Sask., who heads the divorce committee of the Senate. He was appointed to the Upper Chamber by Conservative Prime Minister Bennett in 1933 and became committee chairman in 1945.

Daily he announces decisions of vital importance to couples in Quebec for he and his 12 colleagues are, in fact, the divorce court for that province, the only one without.

The decision emerges behind closed doors and no reporter is allowed entry.

Without extra pomp or pay, they conduct what Senator Aseltine estimates to be more legal work than any judge in the land. Last year, for instance, they recommended 348 divorces, each launched in the Senate as a bill and ultimately enacted as a separate law by consent of both houses. The figure is expected to exceed the 300 mark again this year.

Public Duty

Senator Aseltine says that neither he nor his aides like the work they do four days a week but they consider it a public duty.

"We think the less publicity given divorce the better," he says, "because most of the members of the committee are against it on principle. But we do unravel a lot of hopeless tangles that are helping nobody."

With three as a quorum, the committee usually splits into two sections with Senator Aseltine presiding over one and Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative Leader, over the other.

In the Senate, far less partisan than the Commons, it is not too exceptional for an Opposition member to head a committee in this way.

They average about 14 decisions a sitting day, unless they run into tangles on one of the five per cent of contested cases. The record for a case is seven minutes. In 1947, 2.9 per cent of the petitions were rejected.

Editor Bribes Soldiers

JERUSALEM, Feb. 23—(Reuters).—A military court yesterday heard testimony that a British editor approached two British soldiers and offered them "a little present" if they would let themselves be gaged and tied up while arms were removed from their camp. Henri Martin Dickson, a red-bearedd Scot, is charged with soliciting the two soldiers to dispose of arms to the Arabs.

CROWDS FLOCK TO THREE RIVERS —Provincial Police took special precautions recently when crowds thronged courthouse and milled about outside as interest ran high in the case of Fernand Grenier, charged with the murder of 15-year-old Rita Lafontaine, whose body was found last month hanging by her scarf from a schoolhouse fire escape.

Soaring Prices Keep Spaniards On Peseta Hunt

By STUART UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MADRID, Feb. 23 —(CP)—If you know any good wisecracks about the high cost of living, export them to Spain where prices are moving steadily upward.

They'll be appreciated by hard-working Spaniards, whose grumble in smart boulevard cafes and country markets is the same: the money runs away faster then it comes in.

The trend has been accelerated in recent months. More and more money is in circulation, but it buys less. An unofficial but unquestionably accurate estimate is that the buying power of the peseta is one-fifth what it was in 1935.

Now the government has ordained that notes in circulation this month must not exceed 28,000,000,000 pesetas (approximately $3,052,000,000 at official exchange rates). This is seven times the number of notes in circulation in 1935, and an increase of nearly 7,000,000 pesetas in a year.

"Every day I go to market I seem to get less," complained a housewife.

"Materials and labor are becoming so expensive I predict building will have to cease within three months," said a business man. "People cannot pay the rents it is necessary to demand in order to meet construction costs."

Some financiers think the only solution to the situation is a quick devaluation of the peseta. Now, for trade purposes, only 10.95 peseta are exchanged for $1. But in European black markets a dollar bill may get you 30 or 40.

Government Cautions

Several times there have been rumors that devaluation was at hand, but always the government drew back. Some people say it is a case of Spanish pride, although already there has been a concession in that respect, with a more generous exchange rate for tourists.

Others say that Gen. Franco, who takes an active interest in economic affairs, is holding out because he expects aid under the Marshall program to save him. But business men complain that time means money. Britain, they say, took only one-third of what it would have liked from the current orange crop due to the high price, leaving Spain with 200,000 tons to sell elsewhere.

Meanwhile thousands of Spaniards meet the situation in the most practical way they can—by doing as many jobs as possible. Even clerks, professors and civil servants have two and sometimes three sources of income.

Some turn to the black market as a source of riches, taking part in the thriving sidewalk trade that covers every scarce small article from bread rolls to fountain pens. Well-to-do housewives complain their maids are forsaking them because they can make more money in this pavement racket.

Unofficial indices on the base mid-1936 equals 100, put the cost of-living level last May at 422, compared with 405 in December, 1946, and 274 in 1945. The monthly average of wholesale prices rose from 162 in 1940 to 311.2 in 1945 and 388.6 in 1946. The national debt in 1947 was an estimated 54,800,000,000 pesetas, almost double the 1941 figure.

Suggest Pension For Disabled

TORONTO, Feb. 23 — (CP) — A pension for disabled persons confined to their homes was suggested by Dr. W. S. Kirkland, president of the Society for Crippled Civilians, at the Society's annual meeting last night.

"A great many persons are too seriously disabled to leave their homes for employment," he said. "It is even difficult to find any kind of work that the majority of them can do at home with their stiffened hands or twisted bodies.

"They should have a pension the same as the blind. They should not have to depend upon members of their families for the necessities of life; neither should they be subjected to constant humiliation through having to accept relief."

He added that in a training centre operated by the Society 254 persons find useful employment in reconditioning contributed merchandise for further sale. Annual receipts and earnings had grown from $6,379 in 1935 when the Society was organized to $137.341 in 1947.

20 Greeks Executed

ATHENS, Feb. 23 — (AP) — Twenty persons, including a woman, were executed in Athens today. Nine were convicted by an Athens military tribunal Feb. 17 of being involved in the killing of a policeman and plans to assassinate Greek political leaders. The others were found guilty of having been members of a Communist execution squad which killed hundreds of civilians near Athens in the 1944 civil war.

Try To Break Petrillo Ban

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23 (AP)— The first attempt to break through the Petrillo recording ban was seen today by musicians, but recording companies said it was no such thing.

Bandleader Ike Carpenter disclosed he had received notice from standard radio transcriptions to report for a recording date next Wednesday. His manager, Hal Gordon, said he was awaiting word from James C. Petrillo, American Federation of Musicians (AFL) chief, before making any commitment. Petrillo's ban against union member recording has been in effect since Jan. 1.

Louis B. Teegarden, secretary and general counsel for Standard Radio, leading supplier of transcriptions to radio stations, said he sent letters to Carpenter and three other groups asking them to appear for recordings.

"We're caught in the middle," declared Gordon. "We stand liable to an injunction if we don't record, and we're liable to expulsion from the union if we do record."

But a spokesman for a major record company, who asked that his name be withheld, threw this light on Standard Radio's move:

"It's just a technical gimmick to get the company off the legal hook on their personal service contracts.

"Other recording companies may send out similar letters soon. Our own company has been studying the idea."

Deny DP Workers Causing Trouble

TIMMINS, Feb. 23. (CP) — James Hundevad, woods manager of the Smooth Rock Falls division of Abitibi Power and Paper Company, Saturday denied a Timmins report published in Toronto that a small percentage of the thousands of displaced persons who have found mining, lumber and bush jobs in Northern Ontario "is creating a dissension which threatens at any time to flare into bloody internal war."

"I shouldn't say there have been no complaints but there has been no actual trouble," said Mr. Hundevad. "It's a cock and bull story. A lot of the men like the bush and intend to stay in the business."

Mr. Hundevad said there were 15 Europeans "who are tradesmen and not suited for bush work" who were not considered good workers and who were being removed shortly. They would be transferred, probably to Montreal clothing industries.

As to the report which said that some of the men grumbled about the weather and the hard work, he said: "All bush work is hard. Some of the lads kick about going out in weather 40 below zero. It's a little colder than they're used to in Europe. But some of them are very good men."

Charge NHL Players Bet On Games

Hint 2 With Bruins In Gambling Ring; Adams Plans Probe

DETROIT, Feb. 24 — (AP). — Police Commissioner Harry Toy said today that information had reached him connecting two National Hockey League players with an ex-convict suspected of heading a gambling ring.

Toy said he was seeking a "complete report of the whole affair."

Earlier, the Detroit Times, in a copyrighted story, said police had information that "at least two" National Hockey League players made "substantial" bets on games in which they played.

One player, the newspaper said, bet $550 against his own team.

The Times said the two players were members of Boston Bruins.

Toy said he did not know the names of the two players involved in the report which reached him.

Toy said Art Ross, manager of the Boston team, called him from Toronto today to seek information. Toy said he gave Ross the following statement:

Some Contact

"We have been investigating James Tamer and some information did come to the police department which had reference to some hockey games, indicating some contact between Tamer and two hockey players. It wasn't of sufficient strength, however, to base an accusation."

Tamer, 36, is a convicted bank robber, who was returned to Southern Michigan prison last week as a parole violator.

The police commissioner said the two hockey players made the connection, if there was one, from another city, while Tamer was in Detroit, presumably by telephone.

In Boston, owner Weston Adams of the Bruins said "we are going to run this case down all the way."

"If there is anything in it we certainly want to know about it," he added. "I did not believe any members of the Bruins or, for that matter, any other National Hockey League player is involved in this case."

US Willing To Consider Palestine Force

Must Drop Prejudice McNaughton Warns UN As Session Begins

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 24 — (CP). — The United States today declared its readiness to consult on creation of an international force for Palestine if the United Nations Security Council voted for such a force.

The United States specified that any U.N. force must be "directed to keeping the peace and not to enforcing partition" of the Holy Land.

The United States position on the vital Palestine problem was laid before the Security Council by chief American delegate Warren Austin.

"If the Security Council should decide that it is necessary to use armed force in maintaining international peace in connection wih Palestine," Austin said, "the United States would be ready to consult under the charter with a view to such action as may be necessary to maintain international peace."

He declared that such consultation would be necessary in view of the fact that no agreements have yet been reached by U.N. members as to how armed forces should be made available for peace enforcement.

Raps Prejudice

When the council met to consider the Palestine problem, Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, president for this month, urged that it must be "constructive, unprejudiced and realistic" in reaching a solution.

Summoning the council into session, Gen. McNaughton declared: "We have a right to urge, indeed I think to insist, that nothing should be done in Palestine itself or in other countries whose feelings are deeply engaged in this matter which will complicate or embitter a situation already tense and explosive.

"Those who ignore this advice and go against it are not merely reducing the chances of peace in Palestine. They are trifling with the far wider issue of peace in the world, and are prejudicing the whole future of the U.N. as an organization capable of maintaining security by collective action."

One Perishes: 5 Missing Found Safe

Say Furnace Blast Caused Fire; Spreads Very Rapidly

QUEBEC, Feb. 24 — (CP) — Death toll in an early morning fire which destroyed five buildings in Quebec's famed mountain hill today was set at one after five persons originally believed missing were found safe.

Mrs. Blanche Mercier, 49, died when she was overcome by heat and smoke near the exit of the three-storey apartment building where the fire started, apparently after a furnace explosion.

Fire Chief R. Beaulieu, who estimated loss at $175,000, said there were no further reports of missing persons after Mr. and Mrs. Leon Barakatt and their three children turned up. Barakatt said he and his family were the first to leave the burning building.

When firemen entered the building they found Mrs. Mercier unconscious almost at her door to the street and safety. A faint spark of life remained when she was reached. She was carried in her night clothes to the front steps of a building away from the fire and adminsitered the last sacrament of the Roman Catholic church.

Firefighters were summoned by bus conductor F. Fesbescquets who was returning home from work. He reported that he saw several persons in the house where the fire started and could hear them calling for help.

A few minutes after the arrival of the fire reels, the side wall of the apartment house collapsed.

Some 200 firemen battled the fire, and at times, the heat forced them to kneel down in attempts to get close to the houses and direct their hoses on the blaze.

Dies After Rescue

Mrs. Mercier was found unconscious almost at her door to the street and safety. A faint spark of life remained when she was reached. In her night clothes she was carried to the front steps of a business building out of reach of the fire and there she died after a priest administered the last sacraments of the Roman Catholic church.

Seven hours later it had spread to other buildings, jumped the

Bayonets Guard Headquarters

PRAGUE, Feb. 24—(AP).—A score of Czechoslovak security police, armed with bayonetted rifles, entered the headquarters of the Social Democratic Party late today. About 10 riflemen remained in the offices of the National Socialist Party, whose headquarters were seized and searched yesterday. Most of the party secretariat staff was back at work. The police said they were assigned as a defence guard. They said that similar guards were on duty at Communist party headquarters.

Communist Premier Klement Gottwald predicted victory for his party within hours, or days.

A hint of Gottwald's proposed new government was given in the makeup of the Prague "action committee," formed last night.

It listed Alois Peter, deputy chairman of parliament, and Rev. Josef Plophart, a Roman Catholic priest and member of parliament, as representing the Catholic People's Party. Former Premier Zdenek Fierlinger, a Left-Wing Social Democrat, and Dr. Oldrich John, chairman of the constitutional committee of parliament, were listed as Social Democrat members.

President Eduard Benes is under heavy pressure to let the Communists reorganize the Cabinet with their own men.

Gottwald's statement came as Social Democrat Left Wingers accepted an invitation to negotiate with the Communists on forming a new government.

Significantly, the Social Democrats also approved an agreement to join in forming action committees which the Communists hope will supplant the present National Front groups. These groups now include anti-Communist parties.

Gas Explosion Levels 5Business Buildings Use Bulldozers To Reach Screaming Victims

POCAHONTAS, Ark., Feb. 24 — (AP). — Five business buildings were levelled here by an explosion believed to have been caused by escaping butane gas, and at 10 o'clock the entire business block was burning furiously.

Two men are known to have been in one of the buildings when the explosion occurred, and several others may have been trapped by the explosion and fire, firemen said. The two could be heard screaming for help and an effort was being made to reach them with a bulldozer.

Dallas Rowden, grocery manager said:

"I was looking right at the stores across the street. Three of them just blew up completely. A grocery store attached to them was badly damaged."

He said he understood one man, Bob Allen, had been rescued from the debris. A couple who operated a shoe shop escaped with minor injuries.

A hardware storehouse, a theatre and the shoe shop were demolished.

Left In Ditch To Die By Hitch-hikers He Aided

TORONTO, Feb. 24—(CP).—Raymond Arthur Day, 28-year-old Toronto Scout leader, told police today he was robbed and beaten last night and left in a ditch to die by a youth whom he had given a lift in his automobile and the hitch-hiker's three companions. Mr. Day said he was returning from a Scout meeting when he stopped to give a hitch-hiker a lift. Three other men, one armed, dived into the rear of the car and forced him to drive nearly to Oakville on the Queen Elizabeth Way where they beat him severely with the gun butt. Several miles farther on Day was thrown into "an ice-filled ditch." From the conversation he gathered the men believed him dead. His pockets were rifled of a wallet containing $8.

Day called police from an Etobicoke farm-house.

He told them that the men tossed him into the ice-filled ditch on Highway No. 27. He pretended to be unconscious. One of the group who was "softer than the rest," laid a blanket over him before they drove away.

Day said that as they travelled north to the Dundas Highway and finally east, "every now and then they would punch me and finally they seemed to think I was done for."

Ask US Fleet To Stand By As Chiang Visits Hideout

NANKING, Feb. 24—(AP).—Chiang Kai-Shek is meditating, in a mountain hideout, China's crisis—a crisis so acute that his naval commander declared the United States fleet must stand by to protect northern ports. A government official, asked to explain Chiang's long absence in one of the most crucial periods in China's history, replied today:

"The generalissimo thinks best when he is alone and undisturbed. Kuling (the summer capital) offers a perfect opportunity for such meditations."

He is conferring with some of his top military leaders. Reports indicate they are planning a new master strategy to defeat the Chinese Communists, whose upsurge has engulfed all but the heart of Manchuria.

In Tsingtao, Admiral Kwei Yung-Ching, commander-in-chief of the Chinese navy, told interviewers:

"It is very important that the American navy remain in Chinese waters as long as we are unable to protect the coast.

Have No Ports

"This is particularly so at the present time because Dairen and Port Arthur (major Manchurian ports) are not yet in our control." Both are occupied by Russia under a 1945 Chinese-Russian treaty. The treaty, Admiral Kwei commented, was "stupid, badly bungled."

Peiping dispatches from Manchuria said the Reds had encircled Penki.

Hints Combine Sets Prices

OTTAWA, Feb. 24 (CP)—Suggestions that there was a "combine to raise and maintain prices" of bread was advanced before the Commons Price Committee today by C. E. Johnston (SC—Bow River), a committee member.

Mr. Johnston was commenting on evidence given by witnesses for Loblaws Groceterias and Dominion Stores, chain grocery concerns, which indicated that some bread prices of the two companies had increased simultaneously at certain times.

Louis B. Squair, executive vice-president of Dominion Stores, on the witness stand today, denied there was any connection between the two retail firms in the establishing of prices.

Concerning evidence yesterday that Montreal bakeries had increased prices to Dominion Stores simultaneaously and had "suggested" retail prices Mr. Johnston declared:

"It looks much like a combine to raise and maintain prices."

No New Ships For Royal Navy

LONDON, Feb. 24.—(CP). — Admiralty estimates published today disclosed that no ships will be laid down for the Royal Navy during the year beginning April 1.

The estimated cost to complete vessels already under construction is £34,738,247 ($138,952,968), the Admiralty said.

During the current fiscal year the Navy received delivery of seven destroyers and seven submarines.

Work is under way in shipyards on one fleet carrier, two light fleet carriers and eight destroyers. In addition, one fleet carrier, eight light fleet carriers, three cruisers, two destroyers and a number of smaller craft have been launched but are still under construction.

Britain will spend £43,700,000 less on her navy this year than she did in 1947.

About £4,065,000 will be spent on scientific research work — an increase of nearly £500,000 over last year—and fees and gratuities for inventions have been more than doubled.

Mrs. Huycke was born in Millbrook daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Luke Berry. Her husband is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Huycke. Following their marriage by Rev. J. Craig at Warkworth, they took up house-keeping at Sunny brae. Although they have lived in the village the past nine years, the farm overlooking the Trent River passed out of the family about a year ago.

Bullet-Riddled Auto Recovered By Police

TORONTO, Feb. 24 — (CP). — Police have recovered a bullet-riddled auto which they say they believe figured in the attempt to rob the Motor Vehicle Licensing Bureau at Fort Erie in the Niagara Peninsula on Sunday.

Toronto detectives charge that the car was stolen from Fort Erie by Michael Stefanyk, one of three men held in the robbery attempt. They said the car was owned by Jack Daly of Fort Erie and that Stefanyk and a companion who is still at large abandoned it after driving to Toronto. Two other men are held at Welland with Stefanyk—Mickey Metrunitz and Edward Blair.

Jewish Agency Sure Britons Did Bombing

JERUSALEM, Feb 24 (AP)—A Jewish agency spokesman declared today the Jews are convinced Sunday's bombing of Jerusalem's Jewish business district, in which 52 persons died, was engineered by Britons.

"There is no doubt in our minds that the Ben Yehuda (street) bombing was perpetrated by British personnel," the spokesman told a press conference. "It is in the essence of such attacks to make it impossible to determine the identity of the attackers, but we are continuing our investigation in the belief they were British."

Arab sources said immediately after the bombing that Arab commanders wearing British uniforms set off the blast.

Judge 'Stands Pat' On Nuernberg Charge

Has No Apology For Attack On Prosecutors' Personal Ambition

WESTOVER, Mass., Feb. 24.—(AP).—Judge Charles F. Wennerstrum said on arrival by air today he was "standing pat' on his statement that the prosecution in German war crimes trials "failed to attain objectivity aloof from vindictiveness" and "personal ambitions for convictions."

Wennerstrum, who presided at the latest trials at Nuernberg, said that he had "no apologies to make for any statements I made to newsmen in Germany."

He did not intend "to engage in any recriminations as to General Taylor's criticisms of my statements," but he added.

"I rank my loyalty to the United States as high or on a higher plane as the gentleman who criticized me."

Reference was to Brig.-Gen. Telford Taylor, the prosecutor, who said Wennerstrum's statements would be "used by all the worst elements in Germany against the best."

(Wennerstrum's original statement was made in an exclusive interview obtained by Hal Faust of the Chicago Tribune last Saturday. Before it appeared in print, however, Taylor somehow learned what the interview contained and he issued a statement criticizing Wennerstrum and saying the interview was "subvervise of the interests and policies of the United States.")

Correct Quotes

Wennerstrum said reporters in Germany quoted him correctly as saying the high ideals announced as the motives for creating the war crimes tribunals have "not been evident."

He reiterated that the war crimes trials have "convinced the Germans merely that their leaders lost the war to tough conquerors."

Wennerstrum was quoted in the original interview as directing criticism at persons "with personal ambitions" being involved in prosecuting the defendants.

He identified those persons today as "the prosecutors and their superiors, which means this general."

Wennerstrum was accompanied by Judge Edward F. Carter of the Nebraska Supreme Court and George J. Burke, general counsel for the University of Michigan.

Both sat with him in the trial of war criminals and likewise are returning home.

Russians Bar Business Men Going West

Don't Want Industry To Get Chance In Allied Zones

BERLIN, Feb. 24 — (AP). — Increasingly severe measures are being taken by German governments of the Russian occupation zone to prevent business men and manufacturers from moving their enterprises westward into the Anglo-American zones.

This movement became a problem for eastern zone authorities after the announcement that western Germany would be included in the American-financed European recovery program.

The manufacturers who attempted flight from Communist-controlled territory apparently figured that Marshall plan aid would make more rapid economic recovery.

Othe reasons were the heavy reparations taken by the Russians, which sometimes exacts 90. per cent of an industry's production, and the increasing inroads upon private interprise in the Russian zone.

The government of the state of Saxony, whose capital is Dresden, was the first to take drastic measures to halt this flight of industry. It decreed heavy penalties, including death, against unauthorized removals of industry which were denounced as "sabotage of the economy."

Subsequently the various states of the Russian zone established "peoples control" organizations to keep a tight check on industries.

Simultaneously the Russians are reported to have strengthened extensively the patrols which guard their zonal borders to reduce the flight of individual Germans seeking to make their way without authorization to the west.

Whitaker, former Speaker, to the Supreme Court of British Columbia, topped the five-man contest with 5,621 votes on the basis of 47 of 48 polls. Runner-up was Colin Cameron, CCF, with 4,156.

Government Excise Taxes On Luxury Goods Under Fire By Opposition

OTTAWA, Feb. 24—(CP).—The Government's 25-per-cent. excise tax on a long list of durable consumer goods came under Opposition fire last night as the Commons resumed study of another phase of the restrictions announced last November 17 by Finance Minister Abbott. Ross Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw) initiated the attack with a charge that "executive government" imposed the tax "arbitrarily and autocratically."

He believed it was "contrary to the laws of this country" because for 700 years it had been a recognized principle in all British nations "that only parliament can impose taxation on the people."

Parliament was not consulted on the excise tax and had not yet approved it, "yet the tax has been collected by the (Finance) Minister's officials for over two months."

Fears Precedent

"If this resolution is passed, we will have created a precedent which will mean that in the future the government will be able to impose taxes and then three months or six months afterward come to Parliament and say, 'we have imposed them, approve them.'"

"In taxing these necessities of life 25 per cent the minister is adding to the cost of living and pushing the spiral of inflation that much further upward," he said.

Mr. Abbott said he already had made it clear that in announcing the excise tax "the government was giving notice to the people of Canada who would be affected by it that parliament would be asked to impose this tax and impose it retroactively to the night I made my announcement."

Mr. Abbott said he does not agree the tax is inflationary.

"One of the means of combatting inflation when there is an excess of purchasing power is by imposing taxes such as these that drain off purchasing power. Far from being inflationary, they will have if anything a deflationary effect."

Deny Method Price-Fixing At Inquiry

Decide To Analyze All Bread Named In Ottawa Probe

By JOHN LEBLANC

OTTAWA, Feb. 24 (CP)—Digging into the rising cost of bread in the household, the Commons Prices Committee today had before it evidence that some bakers indicate to stores the retail price for their loaves.

On its records, too, was testimony that several bakeries had hoisted prices simultaneously and identically to the Dominion Stores, chain grocery concern, in Montreal and Toronto since last August.

Louis B. Squair of Toronto, executive vice-president of Dominion Stores, gave this evidence to the committee yesterday but said he would not term these practices price-fixing.

However, Angus MacInnis (CC F—Vancouver East), a committee member, drew from Mr. Squair's evidence there was an "understanding" among bakers in selling to retailers and that they impelled retailers to sell to consumers "at a certain price."

Hugh Cleaver (L—Halton) also commented that "it looks as if somebody fixes prices."

Both Mr. Squair and R. G. Meech, vice-president of Loblaw Groceterias, told the committee their companies had no agreements or understandings with breadl firms for the setting of prices. Mr. Meech wound up testimony he began Friday.

To Analyze Bread

Other developments yesterday:

1. The committee warned against discrimination by other business men toward persons giving evidenbe to the body after George Christensen of Toronto, national director of the foods division, Retail Merchants' Association, had claimed some wholesalers were "retaliating" for evidence given by retailers last week.

2. The committee decided to undertake analysis of all bread mentioned in evidence before it, to determine relative values.

Mr. Squair showed that by contrast with Loblaw's which buys all its bread from the Canada Bread Company, Dominion buys from 40 to 50 bakeries.

Mr. Squair said Richmello was made for Dominion by General Bakeries in Toronto and by Inter-City Bakeries in Montreal. In Ottawa, the store's own brand was called Dominion and was made for the groceteria by the Standard Bread Company. In every case the store sol dits own brand for 10 cents a loaf while loaves made by the same bakeries and bearing the bakery's name were sold for 14 cents.

Dominion Stores made a wider margin of profit on the bakery loaves than on its own brand. The gross margin on the store brand, Richmello, had been 13.3 per cent before Sept. 17 when the loaf sold at two for 15 cents and now was 10 per cent on the 10-cent loaf.

Explains Mark-up

On Christie's bread and General Bakeries bread, the store mark-up was 24 per cent in September before the flour subsidy was withdrawn and when this bread sold for 10 cents a loaf. The same bread now sold at 14 cents and the mark-up was 21.9 per cent on Weston's bread, the mark-up was 20 per cent when the price was 10 cents in early September and was now 17.9 per cent on the 14-cent price.

Mr. Squair was questioned as to why Dominion took a smaller mark-up on Weston's than on Christie's bread. Did Christie's fix the selling price at 15 cents, he was asked.

"No," he replied. "But I think this would be proper—they indicate it."

"Do they enforce that price?" he was asked.

"I don't know."

"How strong would the indication be?"

"We have never explored it," Mr. Squair replied amid laughter.

His view, he said, was that the store sold good bread at 10 cents a loaf and his interest in whether people were charged 14 cents for another load was "lukewarm."

Want Own Bakeries

Mr. Squair said he was in favor of Dominion setting up bakeries and making its own bread for the Toronto and Montreal markets.

"I think our stores, which give no credit and no free delivery, should be able to sell their own bread cheaper than a bakery can deliver bread from door to door," he said.

The Dominion Stores did not reduce the price of the 14-cent bread, he said, because their interest was in selling the 10-cent loaf.

"You sell at 14 cents because the price is indicated by the baker?" asked Roland Beaudry (L., St. James).

"That would be it," witness replied.

"That means that the bakers fix the price of bread?" Mr. Beaudry pursued.

"Oh, no," Mr. Squair responded. "I wouldn't say that."

However, on the setting of bakers' prices to retailers, Mr. Squair listed five Montreal firms whose charge per loaf to Dominion Stores had increased on the same day and by the same amount three times between last Sept. 1 and Feb. 9.

Another factor in increasing the bread prices was that the groceteria firms' overall costs were rising.

"But if you sell more bread, you have more volume," said Mr. Dyde. "Isn't that a factor?"

"Yes," Mr. Meech agreed.

Mr. Meech argued that an increase in the cost of handling bread was "partly" the cause of the bigger markup in terms of dollars and cents, but repeated that 14 cents was a reasonable price, was the price charged by others and was in line with the Loblaw markup policy.

"If other retailers cut their prices a cent or two, would you?" queried Hughes Cleaver (L., Halton).

"We would have to meet competition," said Mr. Meech.

Sure Shoes At Peak Stay Up For Awhile

TORONTO, Feb. 24 — "It is my considered opinion that Canadian retail shoe prices have reached a peak at the present time," H. R. Pollock, president of the Canadian Shoe Retailers' Association, said yesterday. "I believe, however, that they will remain firm for some time to come."

Mr. Pollock said, "If retail shoe prices are to come down, and we retailers are as anxious as all other citizens to see prices lower in this country, they will have to come down through the manufacturer and the wholesaler. It is a well-known fact that retailers in Canada are working on a normal mark-up despite the abnormal times, and cannot reduce shoe prices further unless they are able to purchase from suppliers at a lower cost.

"When you think of the hundreds of operations required to convert hides and skins into finished footwear, even at to-day's prices, shoes are the best value of any commodity on the market," he said.

Police and firemen said the difficulty in determining how many were missing came from the fact that nobody seemed able to estimate coherently just how many people may have been in the apartment buildings.

The call "99" went out to Quebec's firemen soon after the blaze started. That is given only in extreme cases and every fireman in the city answered the call.

Three dwelling, a hotel and the glass store quickly fell prey to the flames but at 8 a.m. the Mountain Inn hotel, an ancient, four-storey structure was bearing the brunt of the blaze.

Hint Drew Broadcast On Power Shortage

TORONTO, Feb. 24.—(CP).—Premier Drew of Ontario gives a half-hour radio broadcast Thursday night on a provincial CBC network, it was made known today. There was immediate speculation in government circles that the premier would discuss the current shortage of electrical power in the province.

This speculation was linked to the premier's week-end visit to Quebec, from which he returns today, and it was suggested that he may have held discussions with Premier Duplessis about power development.

The premier's speech, and another tonight by Labor Minister Daley, may also deal with the coming session of the Ontario Legislature which opens March 3. The Labor minister is to talk for 15 minutes on future labor legislation and it is thought he may give some details of the labor legislation program in prospect for the session.

De Marigny Petitions Against Annulment

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(CP).—Count Alfred De Marigny yesterday petitioned the New York supreme court to dismiss a suit for annulment started by his wife, Nancy Oakes De Marigny.

De Marigny claimed in the petition, filed by his lawyers, that both he and his wife, daughter of the late Sir Harry Oakes, Canadian millionaire mining magnate, are British subjects. Therefore, he contended the New York courts have no jurisdiction.

Mrs. De Marigny's suit claims that De Marigny's 1937 Florida divorce from his first wife was invalid and that their own marriage therefore was illegal.

De Marigny at present is fighting a legal battle to prevent deportation from Canada to his native Mauritius. The case is before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Discover Bomb Hidden In Govt. Office

LONDON, Feb. 24.—(AP).—A bomb scare occurred in Londan Monday while the House of Commons debated Sunday's Jerusalem violence.

A crudely-wired box suspected of being a home-made bomb was found across the street from parliament in an office building which houses a section of the Colonial office. An anonymous telephone caller had warned that the building was to be blown up.

Police had not completed an examination of the suspected bomb Monday night and guards were warned to keep a sharp lookout in all government buildings. Authorities said the box, 12 by 18 inches, contained two large dry cell batteries attached by wires to a glass jar containing fluid.

Its discovery recalled the finding of a crude bomb several months ago in another Colonial office building when feelings were running high over the Palestine crisis.

As a result of the discovery, the postmaster-general announced a temporary suspension of parcel post service to and from Palestine.

Government leaders were reported gravely concerned over the latest terror outbreak in the Holy Land and its subsequent reprisals against British troops.

Hundreds of Clergy, Laity Pay Tribute To Fr. Kelly

COBOURG, Feb. 24 (ENS). — Members of St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, Cobourg, members of the Protestant clergy of the town, a large representation of citizens of Cobourg, Bishop Gerald Berry of Peterborough and 61 priests from all over the province, paid tribute to the late Rev. P. J. Kelly, LL.D., pastor of St. Michael's Church, at Pontifical High Mass of Requiem celebrated by Bishop Berry Monday morning. A long line of cars followed the hearse to St. Michael's Cemetery where the late parish priest was laid to rest.

Music for the Mass came from the voices of a children's choir. The left section of pews was occupied by visiting priests with the exception of the clergy taking part in the Mass. Just behind them sat clergy of the other denominations of the town. Outside, a large crowd waited patiently for the end of the service and for the procession of priests accompanying the casket to the waiting hearse.

The tribute paid by the people of the town of all denominations to a beloved citizen was an eloquent gesture to a kindly priest who was a friend to all men.

In his sermon at the High Mass yesterday, Rev. Peter Butler of Peterborough, spoke of the great happiness which Dr. Kelly experienced in his priesthood, and of his realization of the power of prayer.

"In the last funeral sermon which Dr. Kelly preached he said that it was not given to us to know what is the verdict of God in the judgment of the human soul. Let us follow the soul with fervent prayers, especially in the Mass that God may grant to all, eternal rest, and perpetual light in His Kingdom. Those were the words of your late pastor. And so Father Kelly is dead, and we must follow his soul with prayers as he asked us to follow those souls of other men," said Father Butler.

"Veterans, priests, associates, all who knew him, remember him as a loyal chaplain, a fond brother and faithful shepherd of souls, a good citizen. By whatever characteristic he may have impressed on you, there is one by which he should be remembered by all, and that is his love for the priesthood and the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass. If one could recall all his sermons or if there were a record of them all, one would find that most of them spoke of the Mass. He was keenly alive to the responsibilities of the priesthood and in the Mass he thanked God for that privilege, and in the Mass he sought the strength to meet all difficulties," Father Butler said.

The celebrant of the Mass was Most Rev. Gerald Berry, DD, Bishop of the Diocese of of Peterborough; assistant priest was Very Rev. J. V. McAuley of Lindsay; Honorary Deacon, Rev. V. Caron, Ottawa; Honorary Subdeacon, Rev. Rev. J. J. Garvey, Hastings; Deacon, Rev. J. P. Collins, Campbellford; Subdeacon, Rev. L. F. Rishea of Wooler; masters of ceremonies, Rev. J. J. O'Sullivan, Kinmount and Rev. J. Greenan of Peterborough.

The pall-bearers were Rev. C. J. Carroll, Norwood; Rev. V. J. Gillogly, Ennismore; Rev. H. Black, Grafton; Rev. H. J. Fitzgerald, Kearney; Rev. S. J. Coffey of Bowmanville and Rev. G. Begley of Kirkfield.

C'ford Co-op Members Get $14,000 Refund In 1947

CAMPBELLFORD — Feb. 24—(ENS) — An increase of 46 per cent over 1946 in the volume of business done by the Campbellford Co-Operative in 1947 was reported by the president, E. L. Anderson, at the fifth annual meeting, Monday. The refund to the 270 members for that period will be $14,000.

In a review of financial statement, Arthur Musgrave, Educational Director of Ontario Co-Operative Unions, noted the year's sales of $383,000 on an $18.500 inventory.

One item in the report which was not good business, Mr. Musgrave pointed out was the amount of accounts receivable of $13,-000. This figure should be much lower, he said. One means of using this money to good immediate advantage, he suggested, would be to pay off a $9,000 bank loan, leaving the Co-Op free of debt.

Percy Gardiner, Field Manager of Eastern Ontario Co-Operatives said the success at Campbellford had done much to ward influencing other centres in opening co-operative assocations.

Rev. W. J. Lennox of Christ's Church, was present and was called on by the president to address the meeting.

Entertainment was provided by Gerald and Donald Young, who played violin and piano music.

Three directors, Raymond McCulloch, William Scott, and Melville McKeown, were re-elected.

Cobourg Must Cut Home Power Usage Or Industries May Have To Lay Off Workers

COBOURG, Feb. 24.—(ENS).—Last week's half-hour daily power cut-off realized a reduction of only about one-third of the 10 per cent requirement, it was announced yesterday by the public utilities commission. Cobourg must save 3,058 kwh per day.

"Industries cannot be cut any more without loss of employment and the duty resolves upon the domestic consumer to make a much greater sacrifice than they have been doing," the utilities manager said. The reduction needed works out to about two kilowatt hours per day for each consumer. One kwh is equivalent to one-100 watt lamp burning for ten hours or a 500 watt heater running two hours.

In order to effect the necessary saving, the commission is asking, in addition to the regular 11.30 to noon shut-off, that stores do not use their lights from opening until three o'clock in the afternoon and that garages and service stations close at six p.m. instead of seven.

Most important of all the new steps is the advice to consumers that at seven p.m. daily the lights will flicker a warning and during the next ten minutes all unnecessary lights are to be shut off, for the entire evening and water heaters are to be shut off for two hours. If the electric consumption readings show that the public have not co-operated the power will be shut off for an hour or more until the 10 per cent has been made up.

McCarthy, KC, special Crown prosecutor in the combines trial of 18 dental supply firms, told the jury yesterday in opening the case that the Crown would prove "the most perfect system of price -fixing possible to conceive." Fire Delays Publication

KINGSTON, Feb. 24.—(CP). —Publication of the Canadian Register, Roman Catholic weekly organ with a Dominion-wide circulation, may be delayed for two or three days as a result of fire in the Bagot street plant yesterday. Damage was not believed large, but smoke and water damage to the pressroom will delay Toronto, London and British Columbia editions of the paper scheduled to be published today.

15,000 Occupations Open To Students

HASTINGS, Feb. 24.—(ENS). —Many compliments have been received by the committee responsible for the February program of Hastings public school H and S. Besides being the birth month of the founder, it is the first anniversary of the local H and S.

The March meeting was announced as fathers' night, with Hon. W. A. Goodfellow as guest speaker.

The speaker of the evening proved most interesting, Mr. K. McIntyre from the office of guidance of the Department of Education.

He sketched the Ontario guidance program, which helps the students to help thefselves and stresses co-operation of students and teachers. He said there are some 15,000 occupations in Canada from which young people may choose; tests are used to show the teachers, parents what the student can do, not emphasizing what he can't do. Guidance is already used in many schools, and experiments have been tried in Grade 7 and 8. Information is sent out to P.S. inspectors and to parents who request it. In the meantime the working together of home and school for betterment of the child is stressed.

Mrs. M. Brown gave an interesting paper on Founder's Day, and lighted the white candle in her memory; E. McKeever the gold for federation; K. McIntyre, the purple for national; Mrs. J. S. Radcliffe, red, local association.

A decorated birthday cake complete with miniature school house and containing birthday favors was displayed, and the president invited to cut the cake. Mr. Cliff Scriver acted as fortune teller for those receiving the cake favors.

Music May Be Taught In Campbellford High

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 24 — (ENS)—At a meeting of the Board of Education last night, a motion to increase the High School teaching staff from seven to eight was carried. There is need for a home economics teacher to instruct classes in the High School, the Public School and possibly the Separate School, High School principal, H. Hendershott said.

The secretary, Wesley Stephens, was authorized to advertise at once for three teachers, one man and two women.

Miss Lillian Scott suggested that music be taught in the High School as in the Public and Separate Schools. Don Meyers, chairman, agreed and Mr. Hendershott said he would be glad to have music taught if a teacher could be obtained.

The High School caretaker's salary was increased $100 a year. His contract calls for one month's notice by either party and the posting of $100 bond.

Approximately 110 lockers are to be obtained for the girls' basement in the High School.

Distributors Seeking Milk Arbitration

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 24 (CP)—After conferring with their producers for three hours without reaching an agreement, representatives of the London Milk Distributors' Association on Monday night announced they will ask the Ontario Milk Control Board to institute arbitration proceeding on the question of local milk prices.

A producers' committee, appointed by the Milk Board last week to resume negotiations with the dairies for the first since the price dispute between the two groups began on December 1, met with a distributors' committee in closed session. Result of the meeting according to Orville Sinclair, president of the distributors' organization, was "a stalemate."

"We endeavored to institute discussion of an agreement whereby we could put the consumer price back to 16 cents (the present price in London is 17) per quart," said Mr. Sinclair. "But they (the producers) would not budge an inch."

The producers, reported Mr. Sinclair, "cannot see their way clear to accept less than $3.90 a hundredweight."

This was the price set by the Milk Board on December 1 following provincial negotiations. It gave the producers a 55-cent per hundredweight increase, and authorized a 2-cent per quart rise in the consumer price.

Council Estimates Road Costs $35,000

LINDSAY, Feb. 24 (ENS)—At a special meeting of Town Council Monday night, a bylaw was drafted providing for the expenditure of $35,000 on roads, streets and bridges in Lindsay during 1948. Subject to the approval of the Ontario Department of Highways, the bylaw if passed would provide for the cost of every phase of street maintenance in the town. It was pointed out that the provincial government would pay a subsidy amounting to approximately half the expenditure if the by-law were approved.

Power All Around But Not For Us

Peterborough and its district are spotted with and surrounded by power houses. To the south of the city pass three long-distance high-voltage lines (their towers are conspicuous from Highway 28). North is another cross-country power line. Nevertheless, despite these, the Otonabee river and the Trent Valley system, we suffer shortages like the rest of the Province, for the Hydro system is like one big family—not too happy or well-fed these weeks—and power allotments are equalized.

* * *

There are 24 power houses large and small on the Trent Canal system from Trenton to Haliburton. There is a power house in Trenton, and others at Locks 2, 3 (a private one), 5 and 6. This brings us to Frankford. In the Campbellford area are power houses at Locks 9 and 10, the big one at Ranney Falls, others at Locks 13 and 14. The large station at Heely Falls sends most of its power to Peterborough and supplies us with about 70 per cent. of the power we use. Hastings has three power houses. (Norwood, not on the Trent canal system, has one). In Peterborough the Quaker Oats Company has its own on the Otonabee, the city has its own at Auburn (this provides for only about ten per cent. of our needs) and the C.G.E. has a station at Nassau. There is also a small plant at the Water Works on Water Street. Lakefield has a power plant, so has Bobcaygeon. There are two at Fenelon Falls. The small one at Young's Point has been abandoned. Farther north are plants at Haliburton and Minden, which are not directly connected with the Peterborough-Trent system.

* * *

From this system we secure most of our power, but there is a link with the Lake front line at Port Hope and a tie-in with the new line north of Peterborough from the Madawaska River area. Though the whole Hydro system is looped, it can reasonably be said that none of our power comes from Niagara, none from the three lines across Highway 28 and none from Quebec. There has been a good flow in the Otonabee and at Heely Falls—our chief providers—since the thaw, but the Great White Father which is the Hydro Commission of Ontario has ordained from his Toronto seat of autocratic power that Peterborough must share his ignominy and failures. The local Hydro officials have nothing to say in the matter, and cannot fairly be blamed for failures to which they did not contribute. The Ontario Commission, however, is eminently blameworthy.

What Is The Government's Attitude Toward Censorship?

In our Third Column we publish an extract from Hansard of Friday last, which gives the meat of a debate relating to censorship in this country. We think that it is of wide interest because it brings into prominence a matter which has long given concern to those Canadians who are interested in literature—the question of the Government's reluctance to give any definite information about the censorship which is exercised upon books and publications entering this country. In this debate the curious information is revealed that the man charged with censoring the books which may enter Canada is a temporary official, and that it is his opinion that censorship requires no special qualifications of education. He is quoted as saying that anybody can tell a bad book.

* * *

Nothing could be more untrue. Education, wide reading and a keenly critical mind are required to tell a bad book; the censor decidedly should not be a man of ordinary education and ordinary prejudices. A censor should be capable of the sort of deliberation which Judge Woolsey made when he decided that James Joyce's Ulysses was a proper book for general distribution in the U.S.A. Ulysses, by the way, is on the list of books which may not be imported into Canada, and this list appears not to have been revised for fully forty years, for it still includes such comparatively innocent works as James Huneker's Painted Veils.

* * *

As official information about the censor is not available we shall make a statement which we would be happy to have denied from an official source: it is our belief that the government censor is subject to suggestion and pressure from a variety of people in Canada who hold no governmental posts, but who have special axes to grind. The speed with which the censor forbade the sale of Edmund Wilson's Memoirs of Hecate County suggests to us that the real censorship was exercised by somebody who had read the review of that book in Time; we do not believe that the censor could have read the book fast enough to act as swiftly as he did.

* * *

Canada is too important a country now, too much in the eye of the world as a democratic state, to tolerate a hush-hush censorship, with a puppet censor who does as he is told by Mrs. Grundy. The educated Canadian public, the book-importers and the booksellers, have a right to know who is passing judgement on what Canada shall read, and how and why.

Canada—A Nation Of Joiners

We Canadians are great joiners. Organizations have failed in this country for lack of money, lack of direction and lack of brains, but never for lack of members. Men and women alike, we seem unable to resist joining six or seven clubs or associations as soon as we reach adult life. And every time one of our clubs meets, we demand to be spoken to. A club meeting without a "speaker" is unthinkable, and every week, or every month, each club must, by hook or crook, confront its membership with some miserable mammal who will give tongue for twenty minutes or half an hour. It does not much matter what the speech is about, or how it is delivered, so long as the ritual of the speech is observed.

It is time that there was a rebellion against this custom, and we think that the Calgary Herald sounds the trumpet of revolt in the following editorial observation:

> We have often thought that there are too many organizations in Canada, that they hold too many meetings, and that they hear too many speeches. People might be better off if they listened less, and thought more. They might be better off if they studied things for themselves, instead of expecting somebody else to do the studying for them, and condense it into a 20-minute oration.

Many clubs would fall to pieces if there were a strike of speakers, but we do not think that they would be missed for long. A certain number of pathologically gregarious people would go mad from the loneliness of having to eat their meals by themselves, with no expectation of a speech to follow. But the general outcome of a revolution on the part of after-dinner speakers would be good and wholesome.

Joiners of Canada, disperse! Depend on your own brains!

Another Newspaper Responsibility

On Thursday last we discussed some of the responsibilities of a newspaper, replying in part to an article on the same subject by Mrs. Margaret Andrew. We pointed out that one of the primary duties of a newspaper was to keep itself in a condition to publish by careful attention to its business organization.

Our readers will understand what we mean when we point out to them that the price of newsprint in Canada has risen from $44 a ton before the war to its present point, at which it costs The Examiner $100.24 a ton to bring newsprint into this building. The rising cost of newsprint, freight costs and the 8 per cent. sales tax go to make up that figure. It is obvious that unless we keep in condition to pay for our paper we shall not be able to publish, and this understandably influences our attitude toward what we will publish. Mrs. Andrew recommended that Canadian papers publish more opinion of a type uncongenial to the editors and publishers.

But we have a great many opinions of our own which we want to express, and with newsprint at $100 a ton we have to ration our broad-mindedness, without abandoning it entirely.

Censorship And Comics

"HANSARD", FEBRUARY 20th

(Ed. Note: On Friday last in the House of Commons the clauses of the Emergency Measures Bill continued to come under debate. The following excerpts from the Parliamentary Report deal with the clauses prohibiting the importation of:

"Periodical publications, unbound or paper bound, consisting largely of fiction or printed matter of a similar character, including detective, sex, western, and alleged true or confession stories, and publications, unbound or paper bound, commonly known as comics, but not including bona fide supplements used with newspapers.

Provided, that the decision of the Minister of National Revenue, as to whether or not any publication is included in the foregoing description shall be final and conclusive.")

❖ ❖ ❖

MR. KNIGHT: I should like to have an assurance from the minister for the record that no books that may be called legitimate are in this particular list.

Mr. Abbott: No.

Mr. Knight: I think the government might well consider, in reference to the whole question of the importation of books of an educational type, whether it is justified in taking money at all through the importation of books intended for the dissemination of knowledge. Now that we know that legitimate books are not included and that this is aimed against a certain type of periodical I should like to commend the government department concerned for having shown a sense of humour, for it speaks of certain periodicals "commonly known as comics"....I am under no illusion that the Minister of National Revenue personally will examine these periodicals.

Mr. McCann: We have a staff.

MR. KNIGHT: I have no great confidence in the system of censorship which is now used by the Dominion government, and I say that not without some reason....During the last session I asked some questions regarding the whole matter of censorship and I was left very much in the dark. I have not here the answers to those questions, and such answers as I received were most uncommunicative. I asked who was the official responsible ultimately for the censorship of books being imported into Canada.

I was given a gentleman's name. I had asked with regard to qualifications by way of education and experience; I was told that this gentleman who was then in charge of censorship in Canada, and had been for some time, was merely a temporary officer....One of the questions which I asked the other day was whether the appointment was now on a temporary or a permanent basis. I have yet to receive an answer. I am looking forward to it, with interest.

In his interview, with the press, this gentleman....quite casually took his duties as a censor. I have clippings of an interview he had with representatives of the press....He said that he did not consider—I presume with my questions in the back of his head—that any great education or any particular qualifications were necessary to performance of the duties of censorship—imagine that! As a matter of fact he said anybody could tell a bad book. I presume he thought you could smell it; I do not know whether he used that expression or not.

Personally I think this whole question of censorship should be aired. The department in charge of it should be freer with its information....I shall not get into an argument here as to whether censorship is too severe or too lenient. I think both descriptions apply, and because of the inefficiency of those who are doing the job, I think that proper background, education and training are necessary....

MR. HANSELL: ...I compliment the minister upon including those items as ones to be prohibited under this bill. There is one sad feature about this; it was the necessity for conserving United States dollar exchange that brought this matter to the attention of the government. They are prohibiting this literature from entry into Canada, not particularly because it is undesirable, but because they need United States dollars. That is the sad thing....When I was a boy I used to read the old country "Comic Cuts" and "Chips". That was good clean stuff, but the stuff you get today is not so clean. My own boy brings them home. I object, but what can you do? I noticed on the cover of one comic entitled "Joe Palooka" the statement to the effect that it had a daily circulation of some two million readers. That is quite a lot of palooka....

Just last fall I happened to be in a department store and wandered through to the book department to see what might be new on the newsstand....I was so struck with the titles that I took out my pencil and wrote them down. I would ask any hon. member if these titles suggest that we are guarding and preserving the morals of our young people. You can buy any of these books for twenty-five cents. Here are the title; I have neither added to nor taken away from them. All these and no others were in this one rack:

The New Sin; Overture to Death; Sealed Room Murder; The Unfortunate Murderer; And Death Came Too; The Noose; Murder Gone Mad; The Vanishing Corpse; Something Nasty in the Wood Shed; Dead on the Track; Painted for the Kill; The Cross-eyed Bear Murders; Death Every Sunday; The Frightened Stuff; The Straw Stack Murders; A Homicide for Hannah; The Plague Court Murders; Death on the Nile; Georgeous Ghoul Murder Case; The League of Frightened Men; Coffin for One; Prescription for Murder; Blood Money; Holiday Homicide; Death from a Top Hat; Man Who Killed Goliath; The Creeps; Case of Constant Suicides; Murders of Scandal House; Dance of Death; Murder Wears a Mummer's Mask; Death in the Back Seat; A Talent for Murder; Murder in the Mist; The Cat Saw Murder; Corpse in the Wax Works; Poison for One; The Corpse in the Green Pyjamas; Murder at Midnight....

That is the sort of thing flooding the country today and, I suggest, polluting the minds of our young people. I am not going to read a lot of other names of comic magazines, but if I had my way I would not permit one comic strip to be published that had a gun in it....

MR. KNIGHT: ....I am almost in total agreement with what the hon. member has just said with respect to pornographic material. But I must point out that, on the other hand, I believe many legitimate books are refused entry into this country because of the ignorance of the people who have the censoring of them. There is a great difference between certain novels and certain books which, through their very nature, if they are to be true to life, are bound to be realistic. There is a difference, however, between the genuinely written and realistic novel and one that is deliberately pornographic for the purpose of making sales, by appealing to depraved tastes. I believe that inefficiency in censorship works both ways. Not only does it allow to come in material which should be kept out, but it also keeps out much material which should be allowed to come in.

❖ ❖ ❖

MR. MacDONNELL (Muskoka-Ontario): I have been so much interested in the remarks just made that I should like to add one further word. We all recognize censorship is a very difficult procedure. It has to be handed wisely, because we must recognize that there is an infinite variety of opinions in the matter. But I do not believe there are two opinions in the house as to what we find when we go to some of the public newsstands. When we see what is in them we know that the system is wrong and that it must have an evil influence....

CERTAINLY IS OBNOXIOUS!

Letter To The Editor

ADVOCATE OF "GOD'S TIME"

Sir: Recently there has been as usual more discussion re daylight saving but I would not care to print what many sane people call it.

What with conservation of electric power and this so-called daylight saving problem coming before the people one sometime wonders just what is coming next.

Say can any one with a brain in their head prove to any one if daylight saving so-called is a benefit to any one in any way, if so our good paper, I'm sure, will be glad to publish same.

We hear much on our radio and read much in our papers about blackouts, turning off lights etc., etc., and everything possible to conserve power, and then along comes a few fish to make suckers out of the rest of us by telling us to rouse another hour earlier in the morning and retire when you are too tired or too sleepy to stay awake.

Please tell me if lights on an extra hour in the morning and the thousands of electric motors being used for the same time is going to help solve the power shortage.

Recently a survey of opinion has been made re daylight saving and when the factory worker and the rural worker was consulted, their reply was it's rotten. None of us want it, so just tell us who does. Well, it has often been repeated it is of course the so-called big fellow who likes a big half afternoon and an extensive evening to indulge in golf, bowling and dancing till he has exhausted himself, but where is he in the morning when the factory worker and the farm folk are hard at work, well if you can't guess, I'll tell, in bed, of course.

I think it is high time that their brains were gently placed in their head and not where they are at present.

As for the factory worker, if he isn't too tired he can go to work the earlier hour, but the farmer has to rise the earlier hour, milk the cows and get the milk away to city or elsewhere and then sit around for another hour or more because of the heavy dew but spends that extra hour in the evening while the big fellow as he may call himself is burning up the highways or enjoying some of his mentioned hobbies.

Our railways only laugh at the earlier hour idea and the American tourists are much confused over the idea and several of our western cities and surrounding country ignored it flatly last year and I don't think it too far away when more of our cities will follow suit.

I say, bring this daylight saving problem before the people by vote form and if the majority support it then we will gladly follow suit and stick with the crowd but why should so few lead so many?

Surely we will be glad to conserve power every way possible but prove to us if daylight saving isn't adding just another sore to the wound.

There is just one time and that is God's given time and let's have it.

What say neighbours?

"FAIR PLAY".

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

The Spirit of the Lord is upon me; because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound....To appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they might be called trees of righteousness, the planting of the Lord, that he might be glorified. (Isa. 61: 1, 3.)

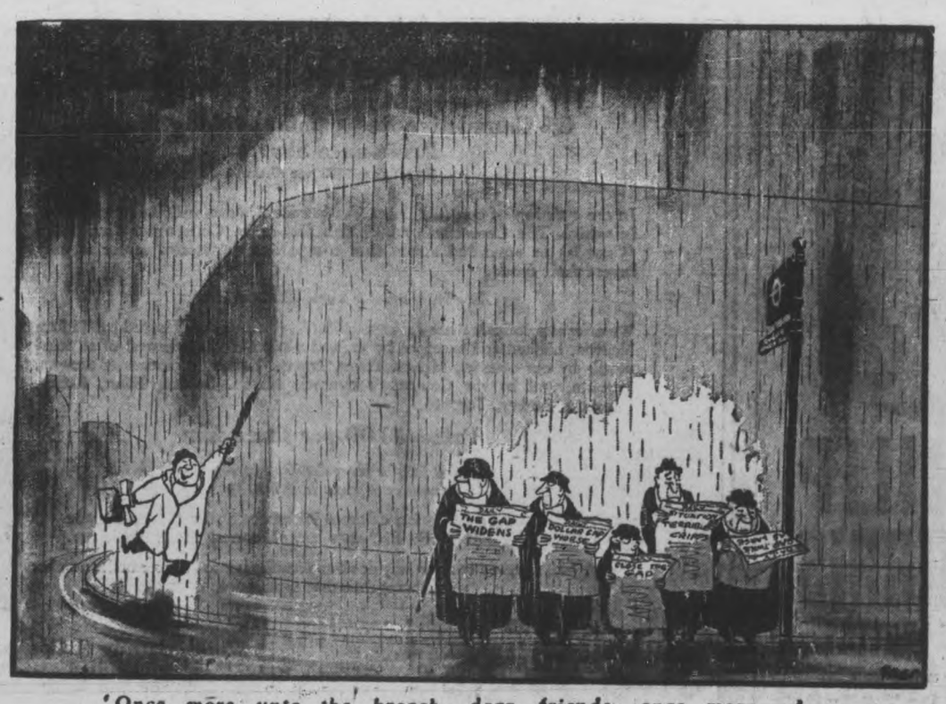
Then said I, Lo, I come: in the volume of the book it is written of me, I delight to do thy will, O my God: yea, thy law is within my heart.



I have preached righteousness in the great congregation: lo, I have not refrained my lips, O Lord, thou knowest.

I have not hid thy righteousness within my heart; I have declared thy faithfulness and thy salvation. (Ps. 40: 6-10.)

Olympiad

Adjured to insist that Olympiad does not mean Olympian Games, I readily comply. Even The Times, it appears, has spoken of the King opening the fourteenth Olympiad. An Olympiad was (and nothing has happened to give it any other signification) a measurement of time—the four-year period between each series of Olympic Games. Canada's Conservation Program To Aid Industrial Expansion

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, Feb. 24—(CP).—Trade Minister Howe told the Commons yesterday that Canada's exchange-conservation program will permit expansion of the automobile, motion picture and other industries in the Dominion, but he warned that no industry should attempt to expand simply to take advantage of the temporary import restrictions. He issued the warning as members completed study of the itemized schedules of the bill, which has provoked more than 10 days of discussion. He said it was not the purpose of the Government to use the bill, which will likely come up for third and final reading today, as a protective tariff.

He said if any member knew of any industry undertaking expansion of new production based on the protection it will get from the import restrictions, "I certainly hope that he will advise them not to proceed."

"I might go further than that," he added, "and say that if it is found that any existing industry is using the schedule, or this emergency legislation, as a protective tariff it is not unlikely that some import permits will be granted to discourage that idea."

Progressive Conservative members tried unsuccessfully to learn how much would be saved in US dollars by the restrictions and how long the restrictions would remain in force.

Estimate Low

Mr. Howe said it was originally estimated that $100,000,000 in U.S. funds could be saved but now it appeared that this estimate was too low. The saving might be $150,000,000, but it was difficult to give a definite figure.

Finance Minister Abbott said the restrictions would be retained until Canada's U.S. dollar reserves reached a "normal and reasonable" level and showed signs of remaining there. He did not know when that would be.

With the exchange bill reported out of committee, Mr. Abbott began piloting through a resolution to a bill that will give statutory effect to the 25-per-cent excise tax imposed on a lengthy list of goods when the import restrictions were announced Nov. 17.

Gave Notice

Mr. Abbott said the government gave notice of the taxes Nov. 17. This procedure was the same as presentation of a budget. The articles affected by the taxes were not necessities of life and purchases of them could be deferred.

Mr. Abbott obtained first reading of a bill extending for three years the provisions of the Farm Loans Improvement Act of 1944, scheduled to expire at the end of this month.

Mr. Abbott said a change would be made in the new bill to allow banks to take a mortgage on the construction, repair, alteration and additions to any building or structure on a farm. In the existing bill such mortgages could only be taken when the loan exceeded $2,000 and was for a period of more than five years.

Encourage Industries

Referring to the central principle of capital import restrictions, Mr. Howe said the government aimed to encourage industries, activities and practices which will earn or save U.S. dollars, using Canadian resources as far as possible, and insitsing that new industries be economically sound once the temporary protection is withdrawn.

He pointed to "disturbing inflationary possibilities" in a proposed capital investment of $2,800,000,000 this year and said "some postponement of less essential expenditures in this program would be far from harmful."

In fact, he said, "our over-all investment picture would be such that some deferment of expenditures would in any case be economically desirable and sound" regardless of the dollar shortage. These deferred projects could stimulate employment and income in the future.

The government hoped to see the development of motion picture production in Canada.

"Discussions with the industry are proceeding," Mr. Howe said.

McCallum Toronto Mayor Brother Mayor of Oshawa

TORONTO, Feb. 24 — (CP). — Hiram E. McCallum, a successful businessman who has served on city council as alderman and controller for the last eight years, was elected unanimously mayor of Toronto late yesterday as council filled the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mayor Robert Saunders last week.

Mr. Saunders was appointed chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario by Premier Drew.

Vice-chairman of the board of control and one of its most popular members, he entered civic politics in 1941 and was an alderman for three years. His first try for a board of control seat was defeated in 1944 but he made a successful bid the next year.

Proud of the fact he is the only member of city council who can milk a cow, Mayor McCallum was born on a farm in Caledon East 49 years ago. He was educated in Toronto and worked as a clerk with the old Mail and Empire before going in 1922 to the Farmers' Sun as a salesman. He became manager and in 1926 was appointed sales manager of the Ontario Press, continuing until he started his own business.

Brother Mayor Too

There now are two Mayor McCallums in Ontario.

The other, Frank Noble McCallum, is serving his third year as Chief Magistrate of Oshawa. That makes him senior in length of service to his brother, the new Toronto mayor.

But in years, at 48 Mayor McCallum of Toronto is senior to Mayor McCallum of Oshawa who is 45.

Like Toronto's ex-mayor, Robert Saunders, as boys, both sold newspapers on Toronto streets.

OTTAWA, Feb. 24 — (CP). — Funeral services will be held on Wednesday for William Frederick Charles Bell, 77, father of Richard Albert Bell, national director of the Progressive Conservative Party, who died Sunday night.

Mr. Bell is survived by his widow, a daughter Mrs. G. W. Parsons, St. Lambert, PQ, and another son William Graham Bell, Montreal.

Reject Applications

OTTAWA, Feeb. 24.—(CP). — Trade Minister Howe said last night in the Commons that several firms, anxious to begin publication of pulp magazines in Canada, had applied for permission to import printing presses. It was not the type of industry the government wished to encourage under the U.S. dollar-saving program and the applications were being rejected.

Russian Prince Pleads Innocent

TORONTO, Feb. 24 — (CP). — Constantine Nakashidze, reputed Russian prince, pleaded innocent here yesterday to charges that took 20 minutes to read in county criminal court.

They included 35 accusations of theft, fraud, forgery, uttering and publication of business prospectives known "to be false in certain material particulars." Nakashidze denied all charges which involve more than $30,000 and several thousand shares of mining stock.

Barton S. Sheldon, formerly a director of Enterprise Finance Co., of which Nakashidze was president, testified he was persuaded by the latter to invest $2,000 in a "pool" that was buying and selling stocks. He said he had absolute confidence in the promoter but that he got back only $1,000 of his investment.

Another witness, William J. Chafe, said he had been led to invest in the pool through favorable reports by Sheldon and Nakashidze and that a few days before the assignment in bankruptcy of Nakashidze last June the promotor admitted "there was no pool."

Legionnaires Make The Finals With A 3-1 Victory Over Saints

Legionnaires rubbed out Kingston Saints in three straight—beating them in Lindsay last night 3-1—to go into their OHA Senior "B" groups finals against the Petes. Some 800 fans saw the Saints battle it out to the last ditch last evening in a fast, clean contest, with Legion finally breaking a 1-1 deadlock halfway through the third and then adding another to clinch it.

The Vitarelli pack had a margin on play in the first and third periods, with the second pretty well even. But Legion missed a flock of chances, and the Saints fought it out to the finish. Each got a counter in the first, and the "homesters" salted it away the last part of the third chukker. They drew three of the five penalties, as both sides stuck to hockey and little rough stuff cropped up.

Missed Chances

Both the first and second front lines of the winners had a lot of good chances but either missed on their shots or were robbed by Udall. Ernie Nicholls and Al Burns picked up a couple of scoring points each to lead them at bat, and Godfrey and Ned Vitarelli were strong defensively. Crowley turned in some fast back-checking and Ross Nicholls was tough to beat in goal. Udall and Bill Mortimer shone defensively for Kingston with Ohlke and the Aitkens best up front.

Legion took charge at the start with Ned and Rochetta coming close, and then Ernie Nicholls going in fast with Burns' pass to sink a nice one. It was fast and clean, with Cameron and Catlin making Ross hop, and Crowley almost notching one. Later it became ragged but still fast, and Legion missed chances in a row by Ernie, Godfrey and then Ned. Later, Ohlke blasted an angle drive (partially screened) into the twine on an assist by Catlin to even it up. Crowley went off for tripping and Hicks pretty nearly sank one. Bill got back and Godfrey got the nod for holding at the finish.

Pretty Even

It was fast and even throughout the second, with play pretty ragged at times and marked by close checking. A Burns - E. Nicholls' thrust threatened but Hicks went off for tripping and Ross was busy. Ernie came close again and then Udall drew a penalty for interference, Jarrell serving it. All were back and Joe Aitkens raced in fast for a hot stab and play kept even. Catlin got the finger for tripping but Udall held them out till his return near the close.

Cameron tested the goalie to open the third and Ohlke went off just for a space. Bob Greenlaw nearly got a goal, and a bit later he did break the deadlock when he took Crowley's pass in close, swept across in front to pull the goalie out and slid the disc home. The Nicholls' line tried hard and, despite some ganging by the Saints, Legion were having more dangerous scoring chances the last half of the period. Rochetta and then Ace Nicholls tried Udall out, after Belwa blasted a sizzler Ross-ward. Ernie Nicholls finally clinched matters in a close-in scramble, aided by Ace Nicholls and Burns, and that was that. Though the Saints didn't quit trying and were fighting furiously the final few minutes of the game.

The teams:

Kingston: Goal, Udall; defence, Mortimer and Stephenson; centre, Catlin; wings, Cameron and Ohlke; alternates, Goodfellow, Belwa, Joe Aitkens, Jarrell, Jack Aitkens, Kerluk and Laird.

Legion: Goal, R. Nicholls; defence, Godfrey and N. Vitarelli; centre, Rochetta; wings, R. Greenlaw and Crowley; alternates, E. Nicholls, A. Nicholls, Burns, D. Vitarelli, Parnell, H. Greenlaw and Hicks.

St. Paul's Take Cage Tilt Over Kawartha

In a junior Girls' Basketball League playoff game in the YWCA last night, St. Paul's pulled out a 24-19 victory over Kawarthas. In the first half, the Saints kept the ball most of the time in Kawartha territory but couldn't locate the basket. The K's clicked nicely to hold an 11-5 margin in scoring at the halfway mark. They started out strongly again in the second session but faded in the final 10 minutes as St. Paul's drove hard, the Saints taking a narrow lead and maintaining it.

Play was fast and exciting throughout between the well-matched teams and it looked like a Kawartha' victory till the final several minutes when St. Paul's really rolled and the K's slipped. Both sides missed a lot of free throws, especially the winners. For them, Jane Abbott and Barb Deyell were best in scoring, with Bev Pringle and Dottie Allen also effective. Edy McIlhagga shone with 12 points for Kawarthas, with Marion McKee and Ann Metheral also playing well. Next game is Friday. The teams:

St. Paul's—B. Luther, C. Raper, J. Abbott 6, L. Coombes, D. Allen 4, J. Smith, J. Smedmor 2, B. Pringle 4, J. Hall, E. Whittaker, M. Beggs 1.

Danforths Get 6-4 Win Against IOOF

OSHAWA, Feb. 24.—(CP). — Toronto Byers Motors defeated Peterborough Triple Links 6-4 in overtime to even their Junior B hockey play-off series at a game and a tie each.

The first period Peterborough had a definite edge in territorial play, but they couldn't capitalize and the period ended 1-1.

Dugan, on a solo effort, got the first goal at 6.36 of the initial period to shoot the Peterborough team into a 1-0 lead, but with a minute and 15 seconds to play in the frame, Hine, on on a pass from Weatherell, tied the score at 1-1.

Keeble of Toronto, accounted for two goals in the second frame to send his squad into a 3-1 lead. Byers had by this time shown more condition and were starting to outplay their rivals on the ice.

Strong Rally

The third period was featured by hard-checking and a strong rally by Peterborough. Toronto made it 4-2 before the vistors came to life and pulled even when Pagett scored twice to make the score 4-4 and force the game into overtime.

In the extra session Toronto showed a definite margin all the way to score two goals and end the game 6-4.

Hall put Toronto out in front 5-4 with a goal at 1.30 of the overtime period and then Keeble got his third goal of the game when he counted at 6.02 to end the scoring.

Line-ups:

Rural Hockey League playoffs commence in Norwood on Thursday, following a sawoff there tonight betwixt Havelock and Norwood to settle fourth place. Warsaw leads with Westwood next and Keene third. Westwood meets tonight's winner Thursday in first of two-in-three semi-finals, while Keene takes on Warsaw in first of the other semi-final in the night's double-header. Return jousts next Tuesday, survivors later clashing in finals. The loop didn't get going in time to enter ORHA playdowns, but their secretary advises us that this circuit draws as well as the TVL and he maintains they play a better brand of hockey than the TVL-ers. Why not a challenge series betwixt the league winners?

Reason For The Delay

In answer to quite a few queries on what's doing regarding the Civic Arena plans, we're told by committee members that the drive for finances will not commence until the Community Chest Fund campaign is o'er. They then plan to drive hard in a sharp March campaign—and meantime they're checking all angles and making every possible preparation. It is a wise thought to keep the two money campaigns separate as long as the rink drive is completed well before the end of March. And that's all we know of it at this time.

Don't forget the two important OMHA playoffs tonight in Omemee. Midland meets the local Lions at 7.30 in the first of their two-game provincial semi-final series, points to count. Return tilt in Midland on Thursday. And Belleville plays the Rotarians of this city in the first fray of their two-game OMHA midget "B" series—also thought to be an Ontario semi-final setup—at 8.30. Return contest on Quinte ice Thursday. These hustling youngsters turn in smart hockey all the way and have shown enough class to reach the fourth round of OMHA playdowns and may well bring a title or two this way in the next few weeks. They deserve fan's support.

Legionnaires Are In

Legionnaires did it in three straight, knocking off the Kingston Saints 3-1 in Lindsay last eve. But it was too close for comfort till halfway through the third stanza. Those Saints weren't folding up without a fight and they made it a scrap right to the last bell. Legion had an edge on play in the first and third (after an even second heat) but they muffed a raft of scoring chances or were thefted by Goalie Udall. However, they clicked when it counted in the clean and speedy struggle, and now go into the group finals 'gainst the Petes. Ernie Nicholls and Al Burns led the snipers with two points apiece, all the forwards working hard, while Godfrey and Ned Vitarelli went well defensively. And Ross Nicholls in goal.

* * * * * *

The finals, four out of seven, won't commence until Friday night in Omemee, the Petes maintaining they haven't time before Wednesday to get out their advertising, print tickets, etc. So, it'll be Friday in Omemee this week, Monday next at Lindsay, Wednesday in Omemee and a week Friday on Scugog ice. If the ice holds out, these games are a sure-fire cinch for local fans and capacity crowds should witness every battle. Legion announce they will not raise prices for the finals in Lindsay, but will increase the number of reserve seats to take in both sides of the arena at six bits a throw with the two ends remaining at half a slug. Thus some 700 reserves will be available. But more on these finals again.

IOOF-ers Losers, 6-4

Our junior "B" Oddfellows suffered a 6-4 overtime reverse at the hands of Danforths in Oshawa last gloaming, so now that group semi-final series is tied up tight at a win each, requiring a replay of that 4-4 tie game last Friday. Haven't heard at this writing when or where it'll be played. Winner meets Whitby in finals, as they eliminated the Motor Citizens last twilight. Dugan, Pagett and Collins were each in on two goals for Archie Weir's bunch, while Keeble led Danforths to victory with four points as Weatherell was in on three and Hall helped on a pair. A fast, clean and close contest with the Danforths having enough punch to pull it out in the extra inning. But the IOOF-ers aren't through yet—the clubs are all even again and the next one is the BIG one.

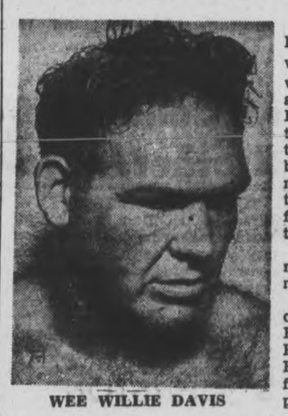
Maids Get Togs As Marines Defeat Lindsay

Montgomery Maids defeated Towne Togs 32-12 in an exhibition girls' cage game here over the week-end, while Marines "B" men took a 42-41 Lakeshore League fixture from Lindsay in a fine fray at the Collegiate gym. A fair-sized gallery saw some smart basketball served up in both games.

The Maids got rolling early to hang up a 22-4 margin at the halfway mark of the lasses tussle. But Towne Togs fought back hard and on practically even terms throughout the second half. They held the Canadian senior champions to a 10-8 edge in this tight session. H. Schram, M. Montgomery and T. McNeil were best for the Maids, while Ruth Hewitt shone for Togs, as B. Deyell and B. Pringle stood out defensively in the second half. The teams:

Maids: R. Young 3, M. Quiska, T. McNeil 7, I. Clarke, H. Cameron, L. Shedd 5, H. Schram 10, M. Montgomery 7.

Togs—J. Cavalier, B. Csumrik 2, J. Castle, B. Pringle 1, J. Vass, M. Kennedy, B. Deyell, R. Hewitt 9.



Marines Good

The Marines turned in a swell effort to nudge out the nod over a strong Scugog squad, but it was a close shave. Marines took a 26-21 margin halfway through, but were outscored 20-16 the last part of the hot struggle. The losers were a bit short-handed but made it a real scrap throughout, with Sturgess, Bains and Reeds turning in an exceptional effort. Seabrook, Burroughs, Smith and Dundas were the pick of the victors. The teams:

Lindsay: Sturgess 12, Reeds 11, Bains 10, Preston 1, Burke, Callaghan 7.

Marines: Dundas, Smith 8, Green 4, Butcher 4, Hanbidge 4, Burroughs 6, Correll, Gardner 6, Seabrook 10.

Wednesday's Team Match Has Time Limit Removed

WEE WILLIE DAVIS

Two near-giants, Wee Willie Davis and the Masked Marvel, will tangle in a Tag Team match with another pair of great mat athletes, Earl McCready and Big Ben Sharpe, in the feature attraction on Wednesday night, and there will be no time limit to the bout. The Brock Arena ring may need a little reinforcing before this super-dreadnaught brawl is finished if the last bout between the two team is any indication.

The Marvel must remove his mask whether he or his teammate loses.

The strongest supporting card of the season will have Jim 'Goon' Henry meeting a newcomer in big Pete Managoff, and Larrupin' Lee Henning tackling Bill Kusisto the football star of the Chicago Bears professional team.

Windsor Edges Generals 7-6 After Two-Period Overtime

By The Canadian Press

Two teams tied their series, one went into a two-game lead and another dropped by the wayside in the four Ontario Hockey Association playoff tilts—one in the Senior A and three in the junior —played last night.

Playing to sell-out crowds right around the circuit, the clubs put on a rugged display of hockey as officials continued to rule strictly in an effort to stamp out rough play.

In the lone senior tilt, Hamilton Tigers played a solid-checking game to hand Toronto Marlboros a 5-1 setback and even their best of seven semi-final series at one game each.

Of the three games in the junior loop, the Windsor-Oshawa fixture was the most closely fought and two periods of overtime had to be played before a winner was declared with Windsor taking the final 7-6 nod. Windsor now holds a two-game lead in their best-of-seven semi-final series. Barrie Flyers edged Stratford Kroehlers 2-1 to win their second straight game and eliminate Stratford from their best-of-three quarter-finals. The St. Catharines-Galt affair was a rousing battle as fights, scuffles and shoving matches broke out several times before the game ended at 9-4 for the Teepees. The win left St. Catharines and Galt tied at one game each in the best-of-three series.

Hamilton Tigers controlled the major portion of the play in their game against the Marlies and only in the second frame did the Toronto crew show flashes of superior hockey.

Tigers opened the scoring early in the initial frame as Frankie Liscombe connected and Clare Shillington added another before the period ended. In the second period the Dukes applied the pressure and Bobby Hassard, a former junior player, counted their first goal. Tom Tindal came back with just a few seconds of the period remaining and widened the gap again. The third frame saw two Tiger tallies as Ab Conick scored one and Johnny Conick received credit for another when the puck bounced off Duke Bob Paul's skates into the net.

With the score tied 5-5 at the end of regulation time and 6-6 at the end of the first overtime period, Jack Taylor was the pay-off man for the Spitfires in the 7-6 win over Oshawa. Taylor scored the winning marker at 10:48 of the second overtime sudden-death period to give the Windsor crew their victory.

Johnny Wilson and Jack Taylor were Spitfires' leading snipers with a brace apiece. Gord Haldy, Jim Uniac and Jim McKay were the other Windsor scorers. Gerry Scott and Eric Pogue scored twice each for the Generals while Ray Ceresino and Sandy Air each nicked one.

Plans To Make Films In Europe

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 24 (AP).—More Hollywood companies are planning to film pictures in Europe. The latest is Robert Cummings' new outfit. Cummings, now making his first independent film, "Let's Live a Little," says he may accept invitations to shoot "Password to Love" in Sweden. It's a swashbuckling Dumas yarn which would be filmed with a nucleus of United States players in Swedish studios.

In addition, Columbia is planning another film in Italy, Selznick has announced "A Doll's House" in Sweden and Norway, and "Scarlet Lily" in Italy, and Paul Henreid plans "Cartouche" in France.

Luscious Lush

Vera-Ellen, one of the best gal dancers in films to-day, jumped from her Goldwyn contract to one at MGM. She goes into the Rodgers-Hart biography, "Words and Music," which stars Mickey Rooney, Frank Sinatra and Gene Kelly.

Ingrid Bergman is a bit concerned about her role in "Under Capricorn," which she will make in Britain with Alfred Hitchcock. She'll play a lush. "We agreed on the picture three years ago," she said, "when I thought the role would be novel. But then came 'The Lost Week-end,' 'Humoresque,' 'Smash-Up,' and other drinking pictures." She still plans to make the film after she winds up "Joan of Arc."

Dorothy Lamour is negotiating for the life of Helen Morgan.... Don Ameche is reported to have dropped a pile in the commodity price slump.

Odds and Ends

Edward G. Robinson joins his wife in Europe after he finishes "Key Largo".....Producer Paul Jones wants Cary Grant to co-star with Greer Garson in "The Saintly Miss Peters." That would be a neat combination....

Hot Rods

Keenan Wynn, a racing bug, is enthusiastic about the picture he will do with Mickey Rooney and Wally Beery. It will be about motorcycles, midgets, and hot rods, and Keenan claims he will do his own riding....

Lizabeth Scott and Henry Fonda will co-star for Casey Robinson in "Rain Before Seven." That is, if Fonda can ever get away from his new Broadway hit, "Mister Roberts."

Sierra Won't Have Any Weight Trouble

MIAMI, Feb. 24.—(AP).—The rather common belief that Willie Pep will be defending his featherweight boxing title tonight against a whittled-down lightweight appears slightly incorrect.

Pep takes on Humberto Sierra of Cuba in a 15-round title bout at the Orange Bowl and Humberto won't have any weight trouble. In most of his previous bouts, Sierra has weighed in the neighborhood of 131 pounds and the story got around that he'd have a hard time making the 127-pound limit without sawing off an arm.

In a check-up yesterday, however, Sierra scaled only 125½ pounds and the local boxing commission physician reported the rangy Cuban appeared to be in the finest condition he ever has attained.

KNOTTY PROBLEM — Officials probe hopefully for a point of leverage to best untangle this pile of puck performers, fused by white-hot tempers during a spirited playoff battle at Dunnville. The game was the third of the series between Dunnville and Port Colborne in the OHA Intermediate "B" series and wound up as a 7-5 Dunnville victory. The wrestlers, who went into action with but three minutes to play remaining, failed to declare a winner.

Brothers Lead Manitoba Rink

WINNIPEG, Feb. 24.—(CP).—Fans at the Dominion curling championship at Calgary, March 1-4, may think they're seeing double while watching the Manitoba rink in action. And they'll be right, for skip George Sangster's third man will be brother Bill—alike as a match set of rocks.

And the similarity doesn't end there, for both brothers are top-notch curlers and unanimous in their decision to successfully defend for Manitoba the Canadian title won last year by Jimmy Welsh of Winnipeg Deer Lodge, who waltzed through without a defeat.

The Sangster Granite Club aggregation's record in the Manitoba 'spiel is all the more spectacular in that it used only three men throughout play for the provincial title. Declared ineligible by officials, George Anderson of Winnipeg Strathcona was dropped and 33-year-old Bill Petrie took over the double duty of tossing lead and second rocks.

Steel Increase To Hit Canada

By The Canadian Press

The increase in price of semi-finished steel in the United States will undoubtedly be felt in Canada, but to what extent is not clear.

Several Canadian industries, especially makers of steel pipes and tubing, will feel the increase in their costs immediately. For the rest, the greater part of Canadian steel imports is in the finished product rather than the semi-finished on which the increases apply, although the jump in semi-finished will, in due course, make itself felt in the finished.

However, so far as the consumer is concerned, basic prices still are under government control and so far no application for increase has been made.

Present use of steel in Canada is about 4,000,000 ingot tons a year, while current output is about 3,000,000 tons. The remainder is imported, mostly from the United States.

In addition to these imports, Canadian steel plants draw heavily on outside sources for iron ore, coal and some other materials.

HOME, BUT NOT FOR LONG—Wally Distelmeyer and Suzanne Morrow relax briefly in the latter's North Toronto home on their return yesterday from the Winter Olympics and world skating championships. Canadian and North American pairs champions, they finished third in both events in Europe. They left last night for Edmonton and the start of a Canadian tour.

Cuban Official Assassinated

HAVANA, Feb. 24 — (AP) — Manolo Castro, 37, inspector-general of Cuban sports and a former president of the University Students' Federation of Havana, was shot and killed by unknown assailants last night.

Carlos Puchol, who was accompanying Castro, also was slain, police said, and two other persons were wounded. The shooting occurred near Havana's Central Park, in the heart of the city.

Police said a student had been arrested as a suspect.

Castro was indicted by a United States grand jury at Jacksonville, Fla., last November for conspiring to export munitions to Cuba in connection with a revolutionary plot against the Dominican republic. The plot failed.

Havana police said then that Castro, who was arrested in the United States and put under bond, was being sought in the Cuban capital for questioning in connection with a gun battle in the suburbs in which six persons were killed.

"I'll Bet I Could Develop Steel Industry" MacNicol Retort To Howe In Commons

OTTAWA, Feb. 24 (CP)—Trade Minister Howe told Harold Timmins (PC, Toronto-Parkdale) in the Commons Monday no dollar saving was anticipated on imports of steel under the government's exchange conservation program.

However, he said permits would be required for steel imports to make sure that it was used in the type of construction wanted under conservation bill.

John R. MacNicol (PC, Toronto-Davenport) urged construction of a steel plant at Port Arthur or Fort William to make use of the iron resources of Steep Rock, Ont. Canada should be able to produce all her own steel.

When Labrador iron resources are developed, a steel mill should be constructed at Three Rivers, Que., or Montreal.

"I bet I could develop a steel industry of some magnitude in this country," said Mr. MacNicol.

"Come over on this side, John," said Mr. Howe.

Rush Blood Supply After Car Crashes

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 24 (CP)—Provincial police rushed a quantity of blood to Tillsonburg hospital last night after an auto carrying three men on the emergency trip rolled over and burned on a highway east of London.

The blood was for Mrs. Beatrice Karns reported seriously ill.

Her husband, Norman, brother-in-law, Kenneth Karns, and her brother Elmer Long were en route to hospital here for a supply of blood for a transfusion when their car came to grief.

The three men luckily escaped injury and hitch-hiked to London, obtained the blood and then hitch-hiked to Ingersoll where Provincial Constable Neil Chamberlain learned of the emergency. He completed the trip in a police cruiser.

72 Blind In Peterborough County Benefit From Community Chest

One of the most deserving agencies that is depending on public financial support for the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund campaign, is the local branch of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. Seventy-two blind persons in Peterborough city and county are registered with this organization. At present there are five persons in the city who are gainfully employed. In all, 11 are receiving home teaching, taking instruction in braille, handicrafts and typing. Various others are receiving library service, using both braille and talking books.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind was organized in 1918 by Colonel E. A. Baker and others who were interested in the welfare of the blind people of Canada.

During the past 30 years the services of the Institute have been developed to meet the needs of blind people. Among the services developed are employment, home teaching, salesroom, library, eye treatment and social service.

Through this Institute's Placement Department employment is secured for otherwise physically capable blind persons in concession stands, canteens, factories and in shelter shops operated by the CNIB. At present 15 per cent of all blind persons in Ontario are gainfully employed.

Through the Home Teaching Department instructions are given to those adult blind people who desire it in their own homes. Instruction is given in braille and moon-type, two forms of embossed printing; handicrafts such as making leather belts and wallets, reed work, chair caning, knitting, etc. Instruction is also given in typing and other subjects.

Through the salesroom maintained by this Institute raw materials used in the manufacture of handicraft products are available to blind people at cost price. In addition there are various appliances and special aids for the blind available through the salesroom.

Has Library

The CNIB maintains a circulating library of braille and moon-type books. Recently there has been a new development of the library department and it is now possible to provide library service to blind persons who are unable to learn embossed forms of printing. This is done by means of Talking Books. Talking Books are books which have been recorded and are played on special phonographs.

The CNIB through its eye service and prevention of blindness program makes available to blind persons and persons with very limited vision eye treatment. In addition the Institute disseminates information on the care of eyes.

The CNIB maintains contact with all blind persons registered with the organization. In hardship cases the Institute gives some financial assistance and assists in the solution of any problem with which a blind person is faced.

Throughout Canada the CNIB has organized in each Community Advisory Board. Members of the Advisory Boards are volunteer workers, who assist in the work of the organization and who superintend the expenditure of its funds. Mr. W. C. Hughes is chairman of the Peterborough City and County Advisory Board. Other officers of the organization are as follows: Vice-Chairman, Mr. T. P. Lancaster; secretary, Miss Agnes Grant; treasurer, Mr. T. T. Rodger; chairman of welfare committee, Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC.

The Peterborough Advisory Board sponsors a picnic for the blind each summer and at Christmas forwards a gift to each registered person as a token of remembrance.

Citizens in the community who appreciate the work done by the CNIB in helping those who have lost the gift of sight to help themselves, will have the opportunity of supporting this organization when the week-long Red Cross and Community Fund Campaign opens on Feb. 27.

Falls 30 Feet Suffers Fractured Arm

A drop of nearly 30 feet from a window to hard ground and ice below put John Mather of Lakefield in the Civic Hospital here Monday where he received treatment for a fractured elbow and wrist. It is not certain as yet whether there have been other injuries, besides some head cuts which are said to be minor.

Mechanical superintendent of the Nepheline Mines, Mather was supervising repair work in the screen room of the mill Monday morning. He was throwing a metal plate from the open door on the third floor when a jagged edge caught his trouser leg and carried him with it.

The injured man was brought to Peterborough Monday afternoon.

Cheque Bounces Man 21, In Jail

Robert Bruce Simmons, 21, no fixed address, might not be in jail today awaiting sentence on a charge of false pretenses if he had taken the trouble to look up a bank directory. The 21-year-old accused pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining an electric razor from a Peterborough jeweller by use of a false cheque.

According to the account of acting detective sergeant John Stevenson, the accused entered the jewellry shop Monday morning and asked see their array of diamond rings. He carefully selected an expensive ring and ordered it by size. In down paymen, he entered a cheque on a chartered bank in Ayr, Ont., to the amount of $154. A $20 electric razor caught his fancy and he was allowed to take that. The jeweller stated that he had been fooled by a ready story told by Simmons that he was staying in the city at the home of a prominent citizen.

The police were notified a few hours later when the cheque was turned in at a bank. It was discovered that the bank on which the cheque had been written had no branch in Ayr.

Detective Stevenson advised the police department of the matter, with a description of the youth. He was spotted and brought to the station Monday afternoon by PC Ernest Beatty. The razor, it was found, had been checked at the local bus terminal and was recovered.

He was remanded this morning for sentence on March 2.

Crashes Through Ice Deer Perishes In River

That nature does not always look after her own is illustrated by a story from Campbellford.

A deer was observed on Sunday afternoon frisking along the banks of the Trent Canal, near the hydro power house at the edge of the town. The presence of several people skating nearby apparently frightened the animal and it attempted to bolt across the ice, away from the noisy humans.

But one of its hooves slipped on the sice and the deer slid into the open waters caused by a particularly strong current at that spot. Despite a valiant struggle to reach the bank it was swept down stream.

Jack Tiney, a local resident and onlooker, notified Police Chief Hardy of Campbellford; he in turn called for thte assistance of the Fire Department. Despite the swift response by both, the heavy current bore the deer to its death beneath the ice.

A needless fear had cost the animal its life.

Cheap Food Days Gone Forever Banbury Says

From a financial point of view, farmers are better off than they have ever been, but prices paid to them are not the cause of the high prices of canned goods, said Ralph C. Banbury, agricultural representative of Brighton, addressing a meeting of the Horticultural Society Monday night.

As an example, he pointed out that the price paid to the farmer for the tomatoes in a can retailing at 28 cents was from 3½ to four cents.

The meeting, which was well attended, was the first lecture in a spring series sponsored by the Society.

The speaker outlined the development of vegetable gardening from Elizabethan times and spoke of the development and spread of new types.

"The days of cheap food are over," he said, pointing out that prices had risen to give the farmer a more equitable earning with those in other businesses.

"It is a good thing that food prices are up," he said, "because for years we have been given the impression that food should be cheap. He made a strong emphasis on his prediction that food would not lower in price within the next five years, at least.

Mr. Banbury gave specific details and instructions on how a vegetable garden should be kept. He stressed the importance of keeping it free from weeds and gave recommendations of sprays and dusts.

"Your vegetable garden will be more valuable to you next year than at any time in the past," he said.

Arnold Butcher was in charge of the meeting. Jack Smith introduced the speaker.

Films on insect life and farming methods were shown.

F. Craig Memorial Trophy Presented To Ken Pammett

Main feature of the Optimists' bi-monthly meeting held Monday evening was presentation of the Fred Craig Memorial Trophy to Ken Pammett as the most outstanding and useful player of last season's Optimists Pee Wee Baseball Club. It was presented by Mr. Pete McGillen, city editor of the Peterborough Examiner, with an appropriate speech explaining the significance of the annual trophy, its third year of presentation. President Harry Yudin accepted the Optimist Trophy which was presented to Red Creighton, in absentia, for the club's choice as the Optimist of the year. Ken McKee accepted three cups to be presented to players showing the most outstanding sportsmanship during the year in softball, soccer and hockey.

Business matters discussed after the presentations were progress on the taking over of the Nichols Oval club-house by the club as their Boys Town on May 1. Work is under way for the annual spring carnival to be held in the Armouries April 30 and May 1 and it was decided to send a delegation to the Uptown Optimists, Toronto, at their meeting in Toronto March 10. Dr. Eldon Ray will be feature speaker at the club's next meeting March 8.

Two new members, Collin Smillie of Imperial Bank and Jack Dawson, Borden's, Ltd., were inducted.

Ask City Council To Accept Plan

Acceptance of the terms of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for the building of 125 houses here this year was recommended to the council by the special committee of which Ald. Gordon Armstrong is chairman.

The agreement embodies the proposals which have been considered by the committee and the council since last fall when it was recognized that the housing shortage in Peterborough has not been materially reduced. The need has been emphasized by the housing committee of the Canadian Legion who have urged upon the council the undertaking of a building program this year in further behalf of ex-service men.

The council's housing committee is also recommending that practical co-operation with private builders under the provisions of the integrated housing plan. This applies to the providing of services and also the exploring of available sites.

Offers Property For $16,000; Council Squirms

Barry Seabrook, 492 George St., ruffled an embarrassment of the city council by a letter before the finance committee Monday night offering his property, opposite Confederation Square, for $16,000. His house and lot are part of the entire block designated as the site of the future city hall, to be built with the legacy of the late W. G. Morrow.

As the committee with all the members present and Ald Swanston presiding, took another look at this ponderable problem, Ald. Adam Sands repeated several times: "Where do we get the money?"

"The city hall might be built yet right out there," said Ald. Swanston nodding in the direction of the market.

"It will have to be in the estimates," City Clerk Outram remarked. "You can't issue debentures."

Putting anything more in the estimates, on which the 1948 tax rate is going to be based, is outside the thinking of the council at this stage of the budgeteering.

It seems that Mr. Seabrook has certain expenditure planned for his house, but he does not wish to proceed with laying out the money if the city has any intention of buying.

"He'd get it back if the city expropriated," said Ald. Hugh Waddell.

"This is a case where we ought to have the last dollar before we spent the first," was the advice of Ald. Sands. "We can't even tell the people we're going to buy. We can't do a thing until we see the money."

Ald. Swanston suggested that the council might liquidate its vacant property at the northeast corner of George and Sherbrooke streets. And, it transpired that the buying of that land is still an account payable.

"We might call for tenders and see what it would bring. We don't have to sell if we don't want to," Ald. Doug Miller said.

Mayor Ovens asked the board whether they wished to reconsider the bids on the market block, "after we get the estimates settled."

Someone mentioned overcrowding of offices in the city hall. Departments have been expanding with the growth of the city, but the old building on Simcoe St. has no more convertible space. The health department has become squeezed into its few rooms, and City Clerk Outram said it was not the only one.

It was suggested that the Turner house at the southwest corner of Water and McDonnel Streets would relieve Dr. R. A. Kelly's staff and afford required convenience for the public.

"Even for five years, if we have to wait that long," said Ald. Grant Miller. "The health department could then move into the new city hall."

Quick mental arithmetic, multiplied by hope, interposed the prospect that the lower George St. lot might pay for itself plus the Turner house, an intimation that the council has no intention of sacrificing the block that was bought by the Dominion government in 1914 for a new post office.

Probably it is generally recalled that a previous council conceived the idea of selling market block property for funds with which to pay for a new city hall site.

The committee finally decided to refer the Seabrook letter to the special city hall committee of which Ald. Waddell is chairman. Mayor Ovens' motion was seconded by Ald. Dodds.

Sewer Blocked, City Refuses To Pay Bill

Ottawa Charges For Building Permits, May Adopt Plan Here

Because it was the fourth time the sewer was blocked at the street line, Miss A. Horsfield, 220 London St., turned the plumber's account over to the city, and thereby started something that may lead to a detail change in the building bylaw.

As to the Adamson and Dobbin bill for $13.60, the board of works last night declined to pay it, because it was creating a precedent, so Mayor Ovens and Ald. Dick Raine said in their motion 'that it be received," meaning that the property owner pays.

Roots of a tree, not on the Horsfield property, "get in where the metal pipe joins the sewer," causing blockage, —and four times. Members of the board professed to be sympathetic, but not to the extent of $13.60.

"The joint at the street line is not leaded," said Ald. Doug Miller. "I believe they put in cement in the joint of the iron pipe from the house and the main sewer pipe. The plumbing inspector should see that some method is devised to prevent roots getting in. This was the fourth time it happened at the London Street house."

"If the inspector was then satisfied, and still something happened, who'd pay?" Ald. Sands asked.

'Let us ask the plumbing inspector for a recommendation of change in the bylaw to cover this point," said Ald. Gordon Armstrong. "We might have a report by the next meeting." That proposal was set in motion by Ald. D. Miller and Ald. Armstrong.

As to the removal of the offending tree that part of the letter was sent to the parks committee.

Building Permits

A suggestion that Peterborough should make some charge for building permits was held up until City Clerk Outram enquires about the practice in other cities. It was recently learned through a chance comment in discussion with W. W. Scott of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation that Ottawa took some toll with every building permit. In one instance the capital gouged the Housing Company for more than $1,000, covering a block of houses.

National Housing Code

At the suggestion of Ald. Sands, City Engineer Chalmers is being asked for a report on Peterborough's building bylaw to adjust it to the National Building Code. The board wishes to ascertain whether it would be advisable to bring about conformity before recommending bylaw amendments to the council.

Ald. Sands said Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation had plans of houses for private building, but they were according to the national building code, which was different from the city's building bylaw.

"I haven't heard of any place that has adopted the national code," Mr. Chalmers said.

"It will take some time to get a report. You can't produce a thing like that on short notice," Ald. Armstrong remarked.

"I'll try to get one out," said Mr. Chalmers.

Lake Clean Up

Ald. Raine returned to his urging of last year tht some action be taken to clean up Little Lake, declaring that the city itself should set the example.

That is another one of the Peterborough perennial problems. The comment of City Engineer Chalmers was that he would hesitate about diverting more water into the George St. sewer before the enlargement of the sewage disposal plant is completed. Incomplete plans have been prepared for a sewer from Ashburnham along the north side of Little Lake to cross the river at McDonald's Point, connecting with the trunk sewer on George St.

So, Mr. Chalmers is asked, on Ald. D. Miller's suggestion, to remove the remnants of the old Maria St. Wharf on the Ashburnham shore line. The Department, through T. J. Ryan, will be requested, once more, to exercise its weed cutter in the east bay of the lake from the foot of Burnham St to the mouth of the canal.

CALL THE MOUNTIES!

Grim shadows of a dark plot to undermine the city may be seen in the Police Department as a heavily armed escort today disposed of two deadly weapons which had been confiscated from notorious underworld characters. The instruments of destruction — two beautifully designed pea-shooters, which had been forcibly taken from two boys. They were carefully disposed of, before witnesses, in the waste-paper basket of the station. Again, Peterborough may breath easy. —RB.

ONE FOX DISCOVERED

Now reposing in a position of dignity among the many items on the "lost and found" department of the Police Station is a recent acquisition: a large red fox neckpiece. Officers are patiently waiting for the owner to claim her furry scarf.

MORNING GLORIES BLOOMING

An unusual spot for morning glories, and one which has been found to allow them their full beauty, has been found by Mrs. H. Richardson, 541 Homewood Ave., who has a flower pot planted inside her home. One bloom is showing and another blossom is coming.

FENDERS GET IT

Fenders took a beating Saturday afternoon when those on three cars were damaged in an icy-road incident on McDonnel, near Aylmer. In the line-up waiting for the train to pass, the car of Charles Steddman, 509 Brioux St., slipped on the glassy surface into the rear of the car of E. Garside, 499 Dickson street and then into the parked car of Sidney Howard, 657 Aylmer. PC C. J. McGillen investigated.

WATER HEATERS OFF

Stanley W. Canniff, former Peterborough boy, who is manager of Ottawa Hydro, is warning Ottawa electricity consumers that switches will be pulled for an hour or more a day if there is not community co-operation in cutting down use of power. Water heaters in Pembroke are taken out of consumption twelve hours daily, five days a week, from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

TALE OF TWO CITIES

The resident who walks through the main sections of the city, and then along some of the side streets could be forgiven if he imagined he were in two different cities. Downtown sidewalks are bone dry, and ice has been reduced to a fringe at the edge of the streets. Altogether different is the sight on some of the back streets (or for example Rubidge and Brock Sts.). Treacherous ice covers the sidewalks and quantities of ice and snow are still left on the roadside.

GOOD NEIGHBORS

Ex-Reeve Sam Nicholson, heading a group of neighbors, knocked on Kenneth Yorke's doorway, Sidney township, last Thursday and presented the amazed man with a purse containing $725 from 280 friends and neighbors. It was their gesture of Good Samaritanism to assist Mr. Yorke who had lost his barn and stock by fire. Before receiving the cash gift he was at a loss to know whether or not he would attempt to rebuild and restock. Now he is sure.

OCCULTATION OF MARS

Exactly on the astronomical schedule the moon cut off the earth's view of Mars Monday evening for half an hour or more beginning at 7.38 o'clock. Then both floated along through the sky, close companions for the rest of the night. Mars moves in an orbit some 142,000,000 miles radius with the sun as centre as compared with the earth's 93,000,000 miles. The moon is a mere satellite of the earth only 239,000 miles away. That was a fine spectacle in the sky last night. Orion was away off in the west by midnight, retreating before spring.

Cameron St. Line Well Patronized

Cameron St. bus lines is reported by drivers to be doing well in these first days of its operation. It is an accommodation to the people in the new southwest corner of the city, for the corner of Monaghan Road and Cameron St. is only a block from the Erskine St. boundary.

In the days of the street railways with their bright and comfortable cars, heated by electricity, citizens of optimism used to hold forth on the prospects of realty extension into the Crawford's Grove section of North Monaghan, and the most hopeful of them predicted that it would not be long until the street cars were running to the Grove at the foot of Monaghan Road.

Most of that generation passed on, but finally the dislocation of population and employment caused by World War II actually created a residential and industrial area in that part of the township warranting the new routing of bus transport.

Deer Losses Low—Kingan Motion To Change Season Fails To Win Much Support

A move to have the deer season moved back to the first Monday in November instead of the Monday nearest the 8th of November was decisively defeated in a vote at the monthly meeting of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association held Monday night at the Peterborough Bridge and Crib Club. Some members said that freezing had set in before the deer season had come to an end and they wanted the calendar revised, but the majority voted it down.

With more than 125 in attendance, the association heard Charles Kingan, chairman reforestation and restocking committee, tell of a trip through the deer country, from which he concluded there was "no undue fear we are going to lose a lot of deer this year due to too much snow."

Around Copper Lake he said the party observed "wolf runways"; and he suggested the possibility of an approved man being issued with snares by the government to catch them, provided he turn the snares in at the end of the year.

He said the party went to Eagle Lake and found wolf tracks but no deer. This, he contended, was a sign that deer had moved south for the winter—as far as Stony Lake where tracks could be seen.

Hydro Workers Help

Hydro workers cutting a swath through the bush some 120 feet wide were helping the game to keep alive, he said. Commenting on the problem of game survival he said, "Our death rate in deer is not really alarming this winter." And he expressed the opinion that it was "late fawns" who comprised the bulk of the deaths as they foundered in the deep snow and were unable to reach for feed like the more mature animals.

A party including Eric Whitmore, Norman Lean and George Barker were reported as going to take hay to the Stony Lake Region where hungry deer could eat it. The hay would be protected from the elements by a roughly-erected lean-to.

President Robert McCabe tended to deprecate stories of a hard winter by saying: "Every year at this time we hear about the starvation of deer. Experienced hunters realize that the mortality rate of fall-fawns is very high."

Several contributions were mentioned by Jack Baldwin as coming from citizens and organizations who wished to support financially the fund to buy supplementary feed for deer.

George Ruttle supported the planting of trees as a long term solution, saying: "When you take hay you are only working from year to year, but with trees you are looking ahead."

Mr. McCabe expressed the opinion that cedar trees should be planted in those areas where deer are known to congregate. A tree-planting day would be left in the hand of the Reforestation Committee, he said.

It was approved that a letter be sent to the local Boy Scout Association proposing an annual competition for planting trees, with prizes for the most successful.

Request will be sent to the Department of Lands and Forests requesting that cards be supplied locally so a "creel census" can be taken to find out where fish are caught and where fingerlings should be put in.

Also mentioned was an offer by the Department to supply a biologist to inspect the prospects of local trout streams if ample co-operation was shown locally.

A committee will be appointed by the executive to draw up plans for a Ladies' Night sometime in March.

The evening concluded with a showing of conservation films.

Hip Fractured Woman Sues City For $25,000

Monday's re-sittings of the Peterborough Spring Session of the Supreme Court of Ontario with His Lordship Mr. Justice Wells presiding opened with the Lettellier vs. The City of Peterborough case.

Mrs. A. Lettellier, Crescent St., is suing the the City of Peterborough and the Board of Education for damages sustained when she fell on the icebound sidewalk in front of the PCVS, on March 19, 1947. In the fall Mrs. Lettellier broke her hip. She is suing for $25,000. Her counsel is V. J. McElderry, KC and John Amrys, KC.

Counsel for the City and the Board of Education being W. F. Huycke, KC and J. Watt, KC of Ottawa respectively. Evidence in respect of condition of the sidewalk on the night of March 19 was given by Mrs. Lettellier, the only other witness called in the afternoon's session was Detective W. Clarke who testified that he was on duty at the Collegiate on the night of the play (March 19) and he said that the condition of the sidewalk was very bad, as it was icebound, and he noticed that many people had difficulty in keeping their feet.

The case is proceeding.

During the afternoon session the public gallery was filled to capacity with the girls from the PCVS and the Peterborough Business College. They were present in order that they might learn something of Court procedure.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Barbara Ann Scott's precious medals arrived by air from London last night, completing a 6,000 mile trip that started when the Ottawa figure-skater entrusted them to Jack Sullivan, Canadian Press staff writer, at Davos, Switzerland. The medals arrived on a plane carrying 38 immigrants and confusion arose over the fact that the airline was not authorized to handle freight.

The jewelry company officials arrived just as the medals were being transferred to an Ottawa-bound plane and took them to the company vault for the night.

Everyone seemed as anxious to get rid of the medals as Sullivan who had never let the precious trust out of his sight from Davos to London and sighed with relief when Ontario House took charge of them there.

The Illinois State Athletic Commission yesterday ordered Mike Sinelli, New York textile trucker, to show cause on March 8 why he should not be suspended as a boxing manager in connection with the ring death of boxer Sam Baroudi.

The Commission said that as Baroudi's manager, Spinelli falsely gave 21 as the age of the 20-year-old Akron, Ohio, negro fighter, who died of cerebral hemorrhage early Saturday.

Under the Illinois code, a fighter under 21 cannot participate in bouts of more than six rounds. The Commission also intends to question Spinelli about his "conduct" after Baroudi was floored. Spinelli had attempted to leave Chicago a few hours after Baroudi died and had with him the fighter's share of the purse, $4,000.

Promotor Jack Solomons yesterday called off plans for a light-heavyweight fight April 19 between Freddie Mills of Britain, and Tami Mauriello of New York at London's Harringay Arena. Solomons said Mauriello had not replied to his offer to match him against Mills and that another opponent would be selected.

Bob Hector, Oregon State college skier, may not have won the ski-jumping event at the University of Nevada winter carnival meet yesterday, but he certainly made a terrific broad jump. Hector lost both his skis in mid-air after a perfect take-off. He landed on both boots, slid and then ran several steps before doing a forward somersault to wind up standing and unhurt. The ski-less wonder had sailed through the air 63 feet before making his unorthodox landing—just five feet short of the winning 68-foot leap.

Ottawa Trojans Football Club, last year's ORFU champions, may merge this year with Ottawa Rough Riders in the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union Presidents of both clubs met last night with Central Canada Exhibition Association officials and stated they were trying to affect an amalgamation in order to field one strong senior Ottawa club.

The Canadian badminton championships will be held at Toronto March 3-6, and selections for Thomas Cup matches in world competition will be based in part on performances in the tournament. The Thomas Cup preliminaries have Mexico, India, the United States and Canada matched in the American zone, with the winning team meeting the European zone champions.

George Agar of Houston and Ray Powell of Kansas Sity, continued in the one-two positions in the United States Hockey League scoring race last week, statistics showed today. Agar, with 79, was nine points up on Powell, who, in turn, was only two points ahead of Gino Rozzini of St. Paul, holding down third position.

Australian Squad Predicted Strong

MELBOURNE, Feb. 24 (Reuters). — Australia's peerless Don Bradman will lead a strong all-around cricket squad to Britain to defend The Ashes against England this summer. The 17 men chosen following last winter's series of tests against India sail for Freemantle March 25.

The team is notable for the high-number of all-rounders it carries and—apart from what may prove a weakness in the leg-break bowling department — is, on paper, practically flawless.

Bradman has a wide variety of bowling to choose from in Ray Lindwall (express), Keith Miller (fast), S. Loxton (fast-medium), Bill Johnston and Ernie Toshack (left-arm medium) and Ian Johnson (slow-medium off spinner). Colin McCool, D. Ring and S. G. Barnes will provide the leg-spinners, but none of these is classed with former Aussie experts at the delivery.

Batting will be formidable with Bradman at the peak of his form, backed up by stylish Bill Brown, dapper Lindsay Hasset, Arthur Morris, Neil Harvey, R. Hamence, Barnes and Miller.

Stymie's Turf Record Appears Safe

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(AP)—Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Stymie, which has earned more money than any other horse in turf history, can finish his winter vacation down in Virginia with the record safe for the being.

The big seven-year-old chestnput's all-time earnings record of $816,060 is beyond the reach of any thoroughbred now in training.

For a time it looked as if Calumet Farm's Armed, second high in the money-winning race, might pass Stymie during the winter campaign in Florida.

But with Armed sidelined temporarily and King Ranch's Assault permanently following their poor showings in the Widenesr at Hialeah Saturday, Stymie has no immediate worries.

Armed's total in the money chase is $773,700 followed by Assault with $626,620.

Assault, the 1946 triple crown winner, came to the end of his racing days Saturday. Assault injured an ankle in the Widener and has been retired to stud at the age of five.

The seven-year-old Armed will take a rest after finishing fourth in the Widener, just ahead of Assault. Trainer Jimmy Jones say the great gelding can't go on carrying 130 pounds—his and Assault's weight for the Widener.

The other seven in the top 10 all-time cash collectors in order are Whirlaway, Seabiscuit, First Fiddle, Sun Beau, Pavot, Gallorette, and Alsab. Only W. L. Brann's Gallorette, with earnings of $351,365, is still racing.

Winter Gives Men In Britain New Look As Trunks Raided

By STUART UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winter, giving Britain a last bitter lashing, has proved that men too have their new look, though not because they want it that way. Bitter winds and driving sleet, stalking these islands after they had basked through the mildest winter in 13 years, sent all hands scurrying to their wardrobes for extra clothing. Some delved pretty deep and came up with togs that once kept grandpa cosy.

A Fleet Street reporter has been observed in stately progress wrapped in an Inverness cape and looking austerely at a rude passer-by who asked "Where is Watson?" (For this is the sort of outfit Sherlock Holmes wore when he dashed off in a hansom to solve some frightful mystery.)

Elsewhere are seen fur-collared topcoats, green with age, which once draped Edwardian dandies. Their descendants are glad to have them rather than give up precious clothing coupons for new outfits.

Then there is the duffle coat. Vast quantities of these fuzzy, double-breasted service coats, complete with hoods, have appeared.

Crops Grow Too Fast

Before the bad weather came, snowdrops and crocuses were up, some daffodils were opening, and shrubs were putting out buds. In fact, farmers were worrying because things were so far ahead that most of them welcomed the frost because it slowed the growth and came before the crops could be damaged.

The chief worry of farmers was the blockade of roads due to the snowdrifts. The resulting slowdown of deliveries might make it difficult to meet all the requirements of the potato ration, set at three pounds a week for every person.

Still, there's not the atmosphere of gloom and crisis that enveloped the country this time last year, midway through the big industrial shutdown that stilled factories in most parts of the country from two to three weeks.

Stocks of coal are almost triple what they were in those bleak days. Some Midlands factories have even complained that they have so much coal that they cannot stock any more.

Two Officials Requested To Quit Posts

By The Canadian Press.

Opening of the Prince Edward Island Legislature at Charlottetown to-day brings to five the number of Provincial Houses now in session. The others are Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Quebec.

Proceedings in the Legislatures yesterday were highlighted by announcement at Edmonton that R. E. Ansley, Minister of Education in Alberta's Social Credit Cabinet, had been asked to resign because, as Premier Manning said, his viewpoint was "at distinct variance" with the government on the question of the "proper and necessary procedure" towards establishment of a Social Credit economy.

Mr. Ansley's Cabinet post was taken over by Ivan Casey, Social Credit member for Ikotoks-High River. At the same time H. A. Webster was named Deputy-Minister of Economic Affairs in succession to L. D. Byrne, whose resignation from that past also had been requested.

Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines told the Saskatchewan House the budget speech will come Thursday night. The Saskatchewan House approved a resolution calling for an increase in unemployment insurance benefits to $25 weekly for married people and $15 for single persons.

Membership Up.

Annual report of the Saskatchewan Labor Department yesterday showed trade union membership in Saskatchewan had increased by 10 per cent in 1947, to a total of 25,593.

The Quebec Legislative Assembly to-day probably will resume its week-old discussion of the Government's Bill for a system of housing loans.

After this measure is disposed of the Quebec House still has two housing Bills to deal with, one setting up a commission of inquiry into the whole housing question, and the other authorizing companies to extend loans to their employees. The Quebec budget may come before the end of the week.

At Charlottetown full military ceremony will accompany the opening of the 21st Legislature of Prince Edward Island where Premier Walter Jones heads a government elected December 11. Premier Jones is to announce his new ministry and is expected to include a new Department of Reconstruction.

Dead are: engineer Archie Legg, brakemen Jim Donley and a fireman named Nackersky.

All C.N.R. trains have been rerouted over Canadian Pacific railway lines. Meagre reports said one body had been recovered from the wrecked engine.

Home and School Association News

PCVS

Rev. Ivan C. Morgan was guest speaker at the Monday evening meeting of PCVS Home and School Association. Introduced by Mrs. O. Laderach, president, Mr. Morgan spoke on "Necessity of religious education in character building of children."

"Characters are not inherited but are the result of environment" said Rev. Morgan. "We learn by experiment, imitation and reasoning. Religious education is invaluable in character building. Vital religious characteristics in parents, day teachers and Sunday School teachers will be imitated by the child and therefore it is imperative that these be the kind of people that children should imitate."

"In the church schools, materials and lessons are written by the best Bible students and better equipment is used to give better instruction. By reasonable explanations in religious study and co-operation in the home, school and church, we can hope to build good future citizens.

Miss Nancy White delighted those present with two piano solos.

Mrs. A. W. Nelson, council president, read the Home and School creed. Convener's reports were heard and it was announced that the next meeting would be "father's night."

Sorority Enjoys Square Dances

Members of Nu Phi Mu Sorority were entertained in grand style Monday evening at a "Hill-billy" program presented by Ontario Alpha Theta Chapter Beta Sigma Phi, at the YWCA.

Usual business preceded the entertainment, and two nominating committees were appointed. Exemplar Chapter appointed Miss Connie Nicholson as chairman, assisted by Misses Jean Cox, Norma Shaughnessy, Grace Lundy, and Mrs. D. E. Anderson. Alpha Theta Chaper appointed Mrs. Maurice Holt as chairman, assisted by Mrs. George L'Homme, Mrs. Haig Kelly, Mrs. John Dougherty and Miss Barbara Deyell.

Mrs. Maurice Holt, director, welcomed the Nu Phi Mu's and gave them a few words of advice. Miss Connie Nicholson, vice-president, then welcomed the junior sorority girls on behalf of Alpha Theta Chapter.

Mrs. B. Duder introduced the speaker, Miss Margaret Wyllie, who described many ways "To Make Life More Happy."

The program was arranged by Mrs. George L'Homme, assisted by Mrs. Maurice Holt and Miss Olive Morley. It included a square dance, a song and dance routine, a solo with imitations, a bar-room scene and two recitations.

A square dance in which all members of the two chapters joined, concluded activities.

A delicious lunch was served at individual tables, covered with dainty cloths, and each was centred with a yellow candle. Miss Grace Lundy, social convener, was in charge.

New Contests Harass Guests

Another of the enjoyable weekly social evenings at 20 Plus Club terminated at midnight Saturday in the YWCA recreation room. True to their boast that no two evenings are alike, this one saw the introduction of several new and highly amusing incidents. eating jelly without a spoon, measuring feet, hands and smiles, and whistling after eating crackers, were but a few of the feats attempted in the games, conducted by Miss Hilda Northey, master of ceremonies. She was assisted by two guests, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gledhill, who are newcomers to Peterborough.

During the evening, guests submitted their guess as to the number of beans in a jar. From a wide range of numbers, the guess of Miss Hazel Rennie, which was within three of the actual number, won her a luncheon cloth as first prize.

Dave Hatherley introduced the president, Douglas Landry, who gave details of arrangements for production of an operetta. The first practice will be held Saturday, February 22, and it is expected the production will be ready the latter part of April.

Supper was served by Misses Isabel Carveth and Isabel Spence, Messrs. Stewart Wright and Lawrence Hamar.

ONE-WOMAN PROTEST over the high cost of food ends as Mrs. Ruth Berbes, who has been fasting, on a bread and milk diet since February 12, is told to resume a normal diet by her physician, Dr. Arthur Bernstein.

Club 72 Highly Commended As 115 Enjoy Dinner Dance

"Club 72 is one of the most active groups in the works," said Mr. Ian McRae, manager of Canadian General Electric Company, as he thanked members for the opportunity to attend their dinner dance Monday evening at Club Aragon, and continued "Not only do they indulge in very fine parties, but they carry on a program of charitable work. Last night, I believe they showed movies at the two city orphanages. That, to me, is very fine." Mr. D. V. Canning also expressed appreciation of being an honored guest on this occasion.

Don Landry, baritone soloist, highlighted the entertainment with songs that were catchy in tune and rhyme. He began with "The Farmer's Pride", then "Glorious Devon" and the tramp of marching feet, under "The Sergeant Major On Parade." Finally, taking heed of loud whispers, he gave his own version of the popular "Too Fat Polka."

"Magic" became even more of a mystery as Bob Hardie suddenly produced a wriggly rabbit from nowhere and dissolved the canary bird and its cage, into invisibility. Several rope tricks, performed with help from members of the audience, left even his assistants completely mystified.

Animated song sheets projected on the screen introduced a true party spirit as everyone joined in the choruses. For dancing later, there was a musical film that allowed the guests to enjoy the rhythm of numerous "name" bands and see the artists performing. And many devoted their time, and money, to several "wheels of fortune" in the hope of taking home a prize.

Hank Winslow, club president, was chairman for the evening. It had been planned to hold an election of officers, but this was postponed until the next meeting, early in March. Program and dinner arrangements were also under his direction, with the assistance of Harold Bannon and others. Bright yellow daffodils were the choice for table bouquets and a variety of flowers decorated the place cards.

Seated at head table were the president Mr. H. Winslow and Mrs. Winslow, Mr. Ian McRae, Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Canning, Mr. and Mrs. B. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. B. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. P. Killingbeck, Mr. and Mrs. H. Naish, Mr. and Mrs. D. Cogrin, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Porter, Misses E. Gurney, Ruby Downes, Dagney Sandstrom, Doreen Groombridge, and Messrs. George Quinlan, Owen Amundsen, Gord Rath and Doug Landry.

At auxiliary tables were:

London Displays 'New Look' In Striking Spring Shows

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 24. (CP) — London's spring shows revealed that designers favor the new look in formal as well as every-day wear.

Taffeta, tie-silk, slipper satin, grosgrain, petersham, satin-backed gengaline, chiffon, net, faille and damask all played their part in cocktail, dinner and evening gowns but brocades provided the most striking models.

Most of these had off-the-shoulder or strapless necklines, sometimes with crinoline skirts or gathered hipline, bustle and train effect.

Startlingly brilliant was a flame-colored brocade by Angele Delanghe with tight bodice and full bustle. Another Delanghe creation was a red lace evening gown moulded to the figure with full flare from calf length.

In cocktail suits Delanghe favored stiff materials with full skirts and enormous bustles. In a black moire suit with straight front skirt and low back bustle draping she used a white moire blouse.

Many designers used blouse, lapel and cuff contrasts in the same materials in their ensembles. Embroidery also was popular, in black bugle, china bead, cut steel, black jet and broderie anglaise.

These were used occasionally in panel effect on an undershirt showing through a corresponding net panel in the skirt of the dress or ensemble. A cocktail suit created in corded petersham, with oyster satin lapels, cuffs and decollete blouse, embroidered in black jet.

The "Renoir" Look

Molyneux favored the "Renoir" look with its tight-fitting bodice, buttoned down the front, wide, full skirt and frilled lingerie. He also the padded basque with full skirts over stiffened taffeta petticoats.

Jaeger's evening gowns were also partial to the "Renoir" neckline, simple and full-skirted, the only decoration being the very wide check or tartan sash tied in an immense bow in front.

Dresses for Royal garden parties, Ascot and Goodwood were printed crepes, check taffetas, crisp piques and printed cotton created in the straighter lines with ruching, hip and bustle accentuation.

A Hartnell creation in black satin under black net decorated with black and blue stars merited judgment, or produce excitement and erratic behavior, leading splendid prospects and objectives up a blind alley. Preserve calm and sound ideas, and thus enlist surprising aid.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a peculiar situation in which clever coups, born of bright ideas and plans of ambitious scope and significance, may be complicated by what might be deemed a "brainstorm" or other manifestation of unusual or erratic impulse or emotions. An unknown factor seems to beget excitement or bad judgment, with disintegrating force, upsetting good work of excellent promise and enterprise, with exceptional skills, talents and aspirations. There might be a personal or romantic climax, uprooting sound spadework, or weaning energies from sound foundations.

A child born on this day while ambitious and talented, with the equipment for success and a productive career, yet may be misled by strange urges of the emotions, impulses or mentality.

WINNING MOTHER-IN-LAW
Tips On Tact For Bride Of Mother's Only Son

✧ ✧ ✧

A correspondent says: "Recently you wrote an article giving some suggestions on how a mother, with an only son, should deal with his wife after marriage. Now will you please give some much needed advice to a girl, who is about to be married, on how to make herself persona grata with her mother-in-law."

Dorothy Dix

Ha! Don't ask me. S molooinhmself couldn't solve that problem, for there never was a girl in the world that the mother of an only son thought fit to be his wife. The average mother will concede that Arabella is good and pretty and sweet and intelligent and domestic and that she would make a splendid wife for any other man except her Johnny. But Johnny is another pair of sleeves, as the French say, and she is sure that nobody but a deep dark, designing minx could have lured him to the altar.

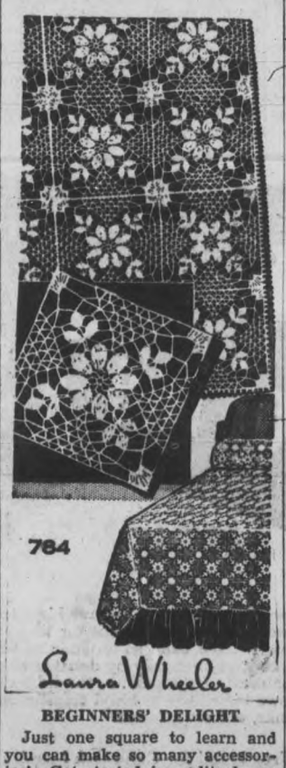
Now every girl who gets married has a hard road to travel when she is adjusting herself to her husband's family, but if she has been foolhardy enough to rob Mother of her only son, she is certainly qualified for the obstacle race, and she is a wise virgin if she prepares herself beforehand for the difficulties she is going to meet. So a few tips are in order.

Living Apart Keeps Peace

The first that any sane person who wished you well would give you is: Don't go to live with your in-laws. When you get married set up for yourself, even if you have to live in a one-room shack with a gas plate to cook on. No house was ever built big enough for two women. Have some place in which you and your husband can fight out your little disagreements without any outsiders butting in. When you marry, cut the apron strings that bound you to your families and go it alone. The secret of getting along in peace with people is not to see too much of them.

Tip Number Two is not to monopolize your husband, as most brides do. And this warning goes double if he is an only son. Have a heart! Just remember that Johnny has been his mother's idol for some 20 odd years. She has poured out all the devotion of her soul on him. He has meant the world to her, and she is desolate when you take him from her.

Make the separation as easy as you can. Include her in your pleasures. Make her feel that he still belongs to her just as much as he did when he was a baby. And, above all, leave them alone together so that they can have mother and son talks without your listening in.



Tip Number Three: Before you marry an only son take a course in diplomacy. Heaven knows you will need it if you keep out of mother-in-law's hair. Walk high, wide and handsome around all of her prejudices and habits. Don't argue with her about her religion, or criticize her cooking, or tell her how your mother always does things. And don't be sparing of praise. A little flattery goes a long way with old people because they get so little of it.

Tip Number Four: When you take a mother's only son away from her, repay her as best you can by giving her a daughter. You know by what tactics you caught Johnny. Mother will respond to the same treatment. If you show her affection and appreciation and make her feel that you love her and are not robbing her of her son, she will open her heart and take you in, too.

And, above all, never cease telling Johnny's mother how wonderful Johnny is and how grateful you are to her for giving him to you as a husband. She will eat that up and love you for it.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, February 25.

While the vision may be unusually clear, and the grasp on current situations and openings of more than usual promise and scope, yet an over-expansion of the very best qualities for progress may be the means of "upsetting the applecart." An unforeseen or sudden development or event may challenge good

ALWAYS READY FOR HER MEALS

SCIENCE has proved there are certain food elements everyone needs for health. If there aren't enough of them in a child's food, serious things can happen—such as loss of appetite, stunted growth, soft bones, poor teeth, faulty nerves, defective eyesight.

Ovaltine supplements the diet with elements frequently deficient in ordinary foods. Three servings of Ovaltine furnish a significant portion of a child's daily requirements of Vitamins A, B1, C, D, Riboflavin (B2), and Niacin and Minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron.

In addition it provides the basic food substances—complete proteins to build muscle, nerve and body cells—high-energy foods for vitality and endurance. It thus acts as an insurance against food deficiencies that retard normal growth.

So if your child eats poorly, is thin, underpar, perhaps nervous, why not try delicious Ovaltine for normal growth and better appetite.

Senator Stalls On St. Lawrence Seaway Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 (AP). —Senator Alexander Smith (Rep. NJ), contending there is no "urgent need" for immediate action, yesterday asked the United States Senate to send the St. Lawrence Seaway Bill back to committee for further study.

Senator George Aiken (Rep.-Vt.), one of the backers of the plan to link the Great Lakes with the Atlantic by a St. Lawrence River route, immediately objected.

Smith's' motion to refer the measure back to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will be taken up by the Senate Friday in advance of any final vote.

Smith said he felt that the Secretary of the Army should be directed to make a further study and complete the report on the entire project.

Aiken said that Smith was trying to turn the project "over to the hands of its enemies." He said Army engineers are opposed to charging tolls to make the project self-liquidating and are against it in general.

Senator Levere T. Saltonstall (Rep. Mass.) urged rejection of the present legislation on grounds that the proposed navigational phases are economically unsound. He said he was not opposing the Hydro-Electric power features.

DISPUTE POSSESSION — British units have established bases like this at Port Lockroy in the bleak Palmer Archipelago on the basis of claim to the territory. Recently, Chile and Argentina have manoeuvred in the area, the Chileans actually landing on Greenwich Island. Meanwhile, Britain dispatched the 8,000-ton cruiser Nigeria from South Africa to back up British claims to the territory.

Traffic Deaths Eliminated For 101 Days

WINNIPEG, Feb. 24 — (CP). — It's 101 days now since the black flag denoting a traffic death has fluttered sombrely from its standard on a "scoreboard" at an intersection of one of Winnipeg's busiest arteries.

And police Chief Charles MacIver summed up the hopes of traffic and safety authorities when he said "Let's knock on wood."

Although the city is still far short of the 228 death-free days of 1938-39, when Winnipeg established a North American record for traffic safety, Chief Mack said yesterday that "there is no reason why this mark cannot be bettered by at least another 100 days."

The police head reminded that there had been 18 deaths from traffic accidents in 1947, a record low for five years. He called on Winnipegers to "reduce this number still further" and thereby keep the black flag from flying at the corner of Winnipeg's main street and Redwood avenue. The flag pole is set atop a board on which a tally of Winnipeg's days without a traffic fatality is kept.

R. B. Baillie, head of city vehicle licensing division, felt much of the credit for a drop in traffic mishaps was due to the financial responsibility act passed in December, 1945. Under the act drivers are required to carry insurance and their licences can be suspended for traffic violations.

Fleeing Purge

BUDAPEST, Feb. 24.—(Reuters)—Former leaders of the Social Democrat party were reported to be leaving Hungary today as the purge of the party, which began last week extended to social and sports clubs. The crisis induced panic among many former members of the party when, after the expulsion of Imre Szelig, member of the party secretariat, the purge continued through all levels of the party.

Ask Contract Signed With CSU Before Spring

TORONTO, Feb. 24 —(CP).— Harry Davis, president of the Canadian Seamen's Union (TLC) yesterday told the seventh biennial convention of the union that "this convention should authorize a strike against those lake companies who do not sign contracts by the opening of the nevigation season."

Mr. Davis said that Capt. Scott Misener, president of the Sarnia and Colonial Steamship Lines, "in defiance of this country's labor laws," has said that he does not intend to deal with the CSU or name a representative to the Conciliation Board.

(Capt. Misener said Saturday that the Sarnia and Colonial Steamship Companies have notified the Ontario Labor Department that they will not deal with the CSU until the present union leaders have been replaced. A letter from Capt. Misener to Conciliation Officer F. J. Ainsborough February 2 stated that "our companies will not negotiate with a Communistic group.")

Do Not Want a Strike

"We do not want a strike," Mr. Davis said. "Last year we went to great length to prevent one. However, we are not going to permit a repetition of the companies' actions of last year. The responsibility for any strike on the lakes this year rests with these companies and the government."

New contracts between the CSU and the Quebec and Ontario Paper Company were signed yesterday with terms calling for $25-$35 a month wage increases, reduction of the work week in port to 48 hours, an increase of 10 cents an hour in overtime rates, two weeks' holidays with pay—and for the first time in Great Lakes history — union checkoff and closed shop.

Three companies have signed 1948 agreements and negotiations with other lake companies have been placed before the Conciliation Board, Mr. Davis said.

Two Brothers Buy Weekly In Dresden

DRESDEN, Feb. 24—(CP)—Sale of the Dresden Times, which has been in the Wells family since 1891, to two young war veterans was announced today. Mrs. Edna Wells, widow of Laurie Wells, longtime owner of the weekly newspaper, who died last August, said the Times had been purchased by William and James Bowes of London.

The late Mr. Wells, who was one of Western Ontario's best-known weekly editors, took over the paper shortly after his return from service in the First Great War. His father, the late Thomas Wells, purchased it in 1891.

The purchasers, who are brothers, served overseas during the last war. William Bowes as a navigator with the RCAF. His older brother was a staff writer with the Maple Leaf, the Canadian Army daily newspaper overseas.

The Times was established in 1872, and has been serving this community of 2,000 continuously since.

Urge Expansion Of Rural Power

HORNING'S MILLS, Ont., Feb. 24 — (CP). — Revival and expansion of Ontario's rural power plants was suggested yesterday as a means of helping to relieve the present shortage of electricity.

Thomas R. Huxtable, owner of an electric generating plant here, said in an interview he believed numerous water-driven plants on small Ontario rivers could be "piped" into the Hydro system.

"Right here we could develop 75 horse-power instead of 35," he said. "I have no doubt that there are enough plants like this and others which could soon be put in shape to feed into Hydro transmission lines. Besides, if all the small plants were revived, look at the number of jobs there would be made availlable."

No Rent Controls

OTTAWA, Feb. 24.—(CP). — Finance Minister Abbott said yesterday in the Commons he could not state off hand whether it was true that rents for wartime houses in St. Catharines, North Vancouver and Kenora, were being increased, but Dominion Housing projects never have been subject to rent control. He was replying to M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, who asked under what authority the rent were being increased.

Blame Lack Of Planes, Troops For Pacific Failure

LONDON, Feb. 24—(Ruters)—Inadequate air forces, lack of air cover for a severely-reduced naval striking force and the failure of land reinforcements to arrive until too late were the chief causes of allied failure to check the Japanese advance in the southwest Pacific.

The acute difficulties under which the United States, British, Dutch and Australian joint command operated in January and February, 1942, were disclosed by the War Office last night in the dispatch of General (now Field Marshall) Viscount Wavell, at that time supreme allied commander in the southwest Pacific.

Summing up the situation which drove the allies back through the Netherlands East Indies and Malaya, Lord Wavell declared:

"Our enemies moved too quickly on a simple effective plan and never gave us time to collect the forces necessary to remedy our initial weakness and to make headway against them."

He said that the Japanese air arm was not really a formidable force once it could be met of anything like equal terms, but the allies had had no time to assemble a sufficient force or to create favorable conditions for it to operate.

Looked Good On Paper

On paper the air force looked formidable. The United States had placed 1,000 aircraft on order of ABDA command—the joint command formed on Jan. 15, 1942 to cover Burma, Malaya, Netherlands East Indies and the Philippines. These were due to arrive within the next two or three months but ABDA command was dissolved on Feb. 25, (41 days after it was formed.

If all aircraft promised had been delivered safely and on time, and well-protected airdromes and efficient ground organization could have been established, "all would have been well Wavell declared.

But distances by sea from sources of supply, Britain and the United States, were so great that few aircraft arrived before the evacuation

"The United States air force never had complete ground crews and their aircraft worked under a considerable handicap accordingly," the report said.

The effort to hold the Netherlands East Indies against the Japanese attack caused the loss of Burma and endangered India and Ceylon, Lord Wavell wrote, but he claimed it was "the right, the only decision... it would have been as unthinkable to abandon our stout - hearted Dutch allies without the utmost efforts to help them..."

Detailing allied efforts to stop the advance of the enemy and particularly the attack on Singapore, Lord Wavell said United States heavy bombers had been the only available aircraft of carrying out attacks against the enemy convoys and landing forces. These did "most effective work" but were too few in number.

Fire Sweeps House Five People Perish

GLEN FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 24—(AP)—Four children and a 65-year-old housekeeper died early today when fireswept a two-storey wooden house about 10 miles west of here.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hack, 30, mother of the children, was burned seriously and was taken to hospital where her condition is reported "fair."

State police listed the victims as Janice Hack, five; her brothers, Amos, eight; Richard, six, and Ronald, four, and the housekeeper, Mrs. Elizabeth Center.

True reports on the work of the Red Cross by leading Canadian writers

The case of the 7 strangers

by CLAIRE WALLACE

There is a man in Canada who has the blood of seven total strangers in his veins. Maybe you wince at that idea. He doesn't. Without it, he would be dead.

Two years ago he was seriously injured in a crash. He received desperate head injuries, and a delicate operation was imperative. But shock and loss of blood had so weakened him that he couldn't have survived one. If . . . seven strangers had not stepped in.

They were Canadian men and women who had each given a blood donation to the Canadian Red Cross National Blood Transfusion Service. When the doctors called for blood to save the life of the accident victim, it was the blood of those seven which pulled him through.

"Were you one of them?"

Today, he is a healthy, happy, useful citizen of Victoria, British Columbia. The only thing that marks him as different from the average man is a rather searching look that sometimes comes into his eyes as he walks along the street. For he often thinks of the seven who saved his life and wonders who they are. As he looks into a stranger's face, he silently asks: "Were you one of them? If so, I thank you from my heart."

Similarly, the mother who gave birth to twins and would have died except for blood transfusions . . . the baby so anaemic at birth he could be kept alive only by donated blood . . . the maimed . . . the sick . . . the old—all those who owe their lives to blood transfusions say: "Thanks, unknown friend."

Free blood for Canadian hospitals

The Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service plans, as soon as possible, to extend whole blood and plasma free to all patients needing it, in hospitals right across Canada. Already two provinces—British Columbia and Alberta—provide this life-saving service. Last year, Alberta and British Columbia distributed 21,044 bottles of whole blood and 2,364 bottles of plasma, resulting in the saving of many lives.

Remember this, as the Canadian Red Cross appeals to you now for funds. Your money is essential to the Blood Transfusion Service and other phases of Red Cross work. Give generously. A life may depend upon your donation.

Red Cross Services include: Blood Transfusion, Outpost Hospitals, Aid to Sick and Disabled Veterans, Treatment for Crippled Children, Disaster Relief, Nutrition Services, Home Nursing Courses, Swimming and Water Safety, etc.

The work of mercy never ends...Give generously to the CANADIAN RED CROSS

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

A "SYNTHETIC FINESSE"

SOME KIND of special term is required to describe those combinations of cards which offer no opportunity for a successful finesse if you lead them first yourself, but which afford you that chance if an opponent leads the suit. The number of them is virtually unlimited, but most of them have certain recognizable features in common. Even when you hold no such combination yourself, it is well to sense occasionally that your opponent may, because of your own holding, and that therefore leading it may prove costly to you and profitable to him.

If you were the declarer and, because of a defender's irregularity, had the right to call the lead of a particular suit, by all means ask for the dummy's suit, a diamond. Conversely, if you were the defender with the opening lead, shun diamonds and hearts like poison unless you had a very peculiar holding of some sort.

West, with a spade or club lead virtually mandatory from the bidding, but with his spade holding such that his decision should have been steered to a club, nevertheless picked the worst possible lead, a diamond. This was bad not only because the suit had been bid in dummy, but because he held two separated fairly high cards, the Q and 9. Now note the "synthetic finesse" his lead of the diamond 2 caused.

South played the 4 from dummy, East the J and the A won. Three hearts scored, then the diamond 5 was led for a successful finesse of the 10—impossible except for West's lead. The diamond K then brought a discard of the spade 3. That assured success of the contract, as now nothing could be lost except two tricks in spades and one in clubs.

You will see that a club lead by West would have left South three losers in spades and one in clubs.

Finally Name War

OTTAWA, Feb. 24—(CP). —The army has finally decided what to call the recent world conflict — a minor point which has bothered historians and writers for some time. A brief army order states that "in all future orders, instructions and official writing, the war of 1939-45 is to be referred to as 'The Second World War'—spelled out in full, just like that."

Two Operations After Mishap Doctor Testifies

Letellier vs. City of Peterborough case was resumed in the Court House Tuesday morning. The case arises from injuries sustained March 18, 1947, when Mrs. Letellier fell on the icy sidewalk and fractured her left hip. It is being heard in the Supreme Court sittings before Mr. Justice Wells.

Tuesday morning was taken up with the evidence given by Dr. Justin M. O'Brien, who testified at great length the injuries Mrs. Letellier had received and the treatment given.

Dr. O'Brien said that about 8 o'clock on the evening of March 18 Mrs. Letellier was brought to his surgery in her son's car. "It was evident that she had received serious injuries. I saw she had a fractured hip, said the doctor, and she was admitted to St. Joseph's hospital. Upon examination I saw that her upper hip bone was badly fractured, and she was suffering considerable pain." Questioned by John Amrys, KC, (counsel for Mrs. Letellier), the doctor considered such a fracture sustained by an elderly lady as most serious, and at such an age the fracture would not knit as it would with a younger person. Mrs. Letellier is 73, the doctor informed the court. "This kind of fracture is very painful," continued the witness. Questioned as to the treatment given, Dr. O'Brien said that the limb was immobilised at first with the placing of sandbags down the legs and body, and at that time little more could be done as the patient was running a fever and there was a danger of developing pneumonia."

"On March 24," Dr. O'Brien said, "the limb was set, and after an operation on her knee when wires were put through the bone, the leg was placed in a Thomas splint and suspended in the air. Traction and weights were applied in order that the fractured bones might come into alignment easily. Several times during this period while the leg was in a Thomas splint I X-rayed the fracture and it was seen that the bones were lining up very nicely.

The doctor explained that the patient was in this postion for 13 weeks, during which time she was most uncomfortable due to her enforced immobility, and the slighest movement resulted in severe pains. Hypodermics were administered at intervals to ease the pain. Later the traction weighs were taken off, but the bone slipped up and oue of line again. This resulted in plaintiff having another operation and the femur was again cut in the hopes of getting the fractured limb into position again. An X-ray taken on July 15 showed the top of the hip bone out of position, and this was due to lack of blood supply at the seat of the injury."

"After the second operation the patient was again immobilised by being placed in a cast and was in that position for more than 9 weeks," the doctor continued.

Asked when he had last examined Mrs. Letellier, witness said he examined her this morning (February 24, 1948) as she was suffering severe pains in the left knee. The doctor testified that the exercise occasioned by her visit to the court Monday had caused the knee to swell as she had had a bt of trouble from this knee. Asked what might have caused this additional trouble to the knee, the doctor explained that due to her lengthy immobilisation arthritis had set up on her thighs and knees. This was not unusual, said the doctor, though she had never had any trouble of that nature before. Dr. O'Brien testified that this condition had caused thirty-three and a third per cent stiffening of the knee.

The case is continuing.

A. B. Burrow's Father Originated The Idea Of Supplying White Canes To Blind People

An interesting point arising from the White Cane week campaign that was recently held, has just been revealed. The White Cane symbolic of a blind person, is now a common-place sight in the streets, but few people know from whom and when this idea identifying a blind person came into being.

Shortly after the First World War, the late Mr. J. T. Burrows, of Brighton, England, was walking along the sea front. He was surprised at the number of blinded war veterans he saw who were being assisted by a friend during their morning's walk. Speaking to some of them Mr. Burrows learned that they could find their way about without any trouble but oncoming people, and cyclists were given no indication that the person was sightless. He immediately conceived the idea that some outward sign should be given, and the idea occurred to him that carrying a white cane would be the best means of making their affliction known.

He wrote to St. Dunstan's, which is the government sponsored headquarters for all blind people in England and suggested his idea to them. The Board of Governors immediately accepted the idea, and white canes were issued to all the sightless.

Mr. J. T. Burrows who died in 1944 in England, was the father of A. B. Burrows, the sub district administrator of the DVA, of 232 McDonnel St., Peterborough.

Navy League Aids Seamen In Lean Periods

People of Peterborough will wonder why the Navy League of Canada should be a beneficiary of the Community Chest fund. Indeed, most of them wonder what the Navy League is. All the electrical goods, meats, alarm clocks, dairy machinery, flour and cereals that are manufactured in Peterborough for foreign export are carried, in many instances, on ships manned by Canadian Merchant Seamen. Export trade keeps the city's factories and payrolls going and the seamen complete the transaction by delivering the goods.

A seaman's life is a lonely, dangerous one and work is irregular — and he might easily fall into extreme poverty and trouble in Canada's seaport cities if it were not for the Navy League of Canada that maintains 12 hostels and clubs, including recreation centres, for merchant seamen. These hostels are located in Halifax, Sydney, Lunenberg, Saint John, N.B., Vancouver and Victoria. The Navy League sponsors a national youth training program designed to refresh a boy physically, stimulate him mentally and quicken him spiritually.

The part played by the Navy League during World War II will be remembered by literally thousands of young Canadian seamen. Now that war is over, the League still requires financial support to keep up clean hostels for the boys that see our export goods safely to foreign ports. Your support in contributions to the Community Chest is vital to assist the Navy League of Canada who are worthy recipients of funds.

HAVE SURPLUS POWER—The T. R. Huxtable generating plant on the Pine River in 100-year-old Horning's Mills, supplies electricity for the owner's home and feed mill, while the village waits, served by Hydro, for the blackout to spread its way.

Party Leaders Confer On Hong Kong

OTTAWA, Feb. 24.—(CP). — Leaders of the three Opposition parties, it was learned last night, conferred with Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday on the question of whether the full evidence of the Royal Commission inquiry into the defence of Hong Kong should be made public.

It was believed that no definite decision was reached at the meeting, but Mr. King may make a statement to the Commons today or Wednesday.

Mr. King received a reply Friday to a request he sent the United Kingdom for permission to table the full evidence. He said that he wished to show the reply to Mr. Bracken before making a statement. He indicated the United Kingdom government still objected to the disclosure of a portion of the evidence, part of which was given originally by Britain on condition it would not be made public.

It was learned that Mr. Bracken, after seeing the reply, had stated that it was the concern of parliament and the responsibility of the government as to whether or not the full evidence was published.

It is possible the matter will be decided by a vote.

Democracy Means Christianity Rotary Club Told By Speaker

"True democratic ideals cannot be disassociated from religion that is Christianity. Christianity provides a foundation for respect of the individual and for the worth of human personality not found elsewhere," Dr. Eldon P. Ray told the Rotary Club Monday at their weekly luncheon at the YMCA.

He emphasized that true democracy and Christian principles could not be divorced from each other. In his address entitled, "Can democracy be taught," the speaker prefaced his remarks with the ideas that business men had found considerable difficulty in accepting democracy due to government controls and policies, also due to various difference experienced through labor difficulties and disputes.

"Democracy should be an excellent subject for sermons, and for a true democracy it is the searching cry of the youth of today, as they peer into the future, that is already dim and foreboding with another war. We heard the glib phrases of 'The government of the people, for the people, and by the people,' 'Civil liberies of the citizens,' 'Vote by ballot,' etc., all significant aspects of a democratic government, but unless they are backed up by a definite faith they become meaningless, and ritualistic.

"People and leaders," continued the speaker, "showed amazement by the remarkable advance of science. The scientific method was adopted and followed, but they presented facts impersonally, but made no attempt to point out the facts and truths and let people draw their own conclusions. No attempt was made to show that democracy was superior to other particular and social systems. The study of democracy and history was regarded as a futile study. The apathy shown has all resulted in a widespread spirit of agnosticism and selfish cold indifference from which the world and our own country now suffers."

"The meaning of true democracy has in many ways been debunked by history being reduced to a record of gossip, or based on actions with ulterior motives, and there has been a cynical attitude towards life as being but a passing show. On the other hand there are the well meaning individuals who hold a belief that is inherent in democracy, a belief in the worth of the individual. They argue that no person has a right to impose views upon another individual, to do so is a moral infringement upon the other person's rights."

"Christianity," concluded the speaker, "provides a foundation for respect of the individual. The truth of this has been shown by the modern dictators. Unless Christianity is healthy and vital to the lives of people, that society is in imminent danger of losing all that it reveres in democracy. The democratic way of life is an adventure in faith, a faith that is rooted in a religion that holds man as the greatest work of God, that each individual man is of infinite worth that certain relationships are inescapable. God with man, man with God and man with man, without them then democracy cannot exist.

"Should democracy be taught?" In answer to that, said Dr. Ray. I say that you must search your own mind, look into your own soul, there you will find the answer."

A vote of thanks was accorded the speaker by J. A. Dewart.

PAINS IN BACK

Here's a way to relief . .

Do you know that a common cause of backache lies in the kidneys? When they are healthy they help to filter impurities out of the system. When they grow sluggish, these impurities accumulate and the resulting congestion may be one of the causes of backache. De Witt's Pills are specially prepared to help wake up sluggish kidneys. They act directly on these vital organs, helping to soothe them, toning them up and helping to restore them to their natural activity. For over half a century De Witt's Pills have been bringing relief to sufferers from backache and we have received countless letters of gratitude. Go to your drug store and get a supply to-day.

Shortages Hindering Efforts Of Franco To Back Industry

By STUART UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MADRID, Feb. 24 (CP).—Too many new babies are hampering Spain's efforts to achieve a balanced economy.

A population rising by an average of 3,000,000 every 10 years — the latest estimated population is 28,000,000 — means a steady increase in home consumption. Domestic production can't keep up with it.

Many factors contribute to this difficulty. Spanish farms badly need fertilizers and equipment; factories are idle for lack of machinery and raw materials; there isn't enough coal and the transport system urgently requires reinforcements.

Franco has tried to speed the industrialization of what is still primarily an agricultural nation. During and since the war many new factories were built and hydro-electric projects started. But even nature has conspired against these plans. Drought conditions over a period of years have lowered farm output and made it necessary to restrict electricity consumption severely.

"Spain remains the last great European country which invited development and exploitation," is a remark often heard in Madrid, both from Franco supporters and business men unfriendly to the government.

An immediate problem is to close the gap between imports and exports, which in 1946 amounted to $44,000,000. Like many other countries, Spain purchased more heavily in the United States than elsewhere, while the United Kingdom was her largest market.

Trade with Canada is in Spain's favor. The Dominion sent goods worth $719,000, mostly raw aluminum, in 1946 and imported nuts, cork and olive oil worth $2,179,000. Sales of Canadian-made cars in Spain numbered three compared with 2,527 in 1935.

Although at least 50 per cent of her people are rural dwellers, Spain has to import 1,500,000 tons of cereals annually. This is primarily due to the primitive farming shortages.

Going from their huddles stone villages to lonely fields, millions of peasants still use wooden plows with metal-sheated shares. Many lack a mule or a horse to aid them. Production per acre is one-third what it was in Britain. However, output last year increased by more than 1,000,000 tons over 1945 to 3,618,000.

The orange crop remains one of the mainstays of Spanish agriculture although drought cut production to 564,000 tons last year, but here again domestic consumption has steadily increased and high prices have scared many foreign buyers.

The textile industry, largely concentrated in the Barcelona area, has led the way in manufactured goods and threatens to deprive Britain of some of her markets if prices can be kept down. But difficulties have developed in the supply of raw materials.

Spain also has great hopes for her heavy industry, centred around mines that produced 2,365,000 tons of iron in 1946. She is also a heavy producer of manganese and wolfram. Wartime exports of the latter gave her a favorable trade balance for several years. Her coal production runs around 10,000,000 tons, about 2,000,000 below requirements.

What Spain hopes for is Marshall Plan aid to enable her to bridge the many gaps in her economic structure, and steadily expand it on a self-sufficient basis. Then babies can come as fast as they like.

CZECH REDS TAKE OVER GOVERNMENT

Powers Asks Hong Kong Data Given

King Won't Publish Letter From Drew; Query Britain Again

OTTAWA, Feb. 25 —(CP)—A new issue — whether Canadian troops should be commanded by non-Canadian officers — was injected into the Hong Kong controversy yesterday by one of the men primarily responsible for sending the Canadian regiments to help in the ill-fated defence of the British colony in 1941.

Former Air Minister C. G. Power, whose son was taken prisoner when Hong Kong fell to the Japanese, raised the question in the Commons when Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the government's decision on tabling documents relating to Hong Kong.

Mr. King agreed—at Mr. Power's request—to renew representations to the British government with a view to obtaining permission for publication of all relevant documents.

The prime minister announced that evidence taken by the Royal Commission on Hong Kong will be tabled in the House, with certain sections paraphrased to help preserve still-secret wartime codes. He added that a letter written in 1942 by Premier Drew of Ontario—taking issue with the commission findings—will not be tabled.

Wants To Be Frank

Mr. Power said he is "one of those primarily responsible for the recommendation that the Hong Kong force be dispatched and for its organization." Under those circumstances, he could do nothing but ask Mr. King "to request the British government to review its decision and have it produce every available bit of evidence.

"I will be most unhappy if every dispatch, every report and every item of evidence is not laid before the people of Canada...."

Mr. King's announcement was in reply to a motion by John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, that the royal commission evidence be tabled and to requests by Mr. Bracken that the Drew letter be made public.

Mr. Bracken said after the an-

Refuse To Take Falkland To UN

LONDON, Feb. 25 — (CP). — Foreign Secretary Bevin today rejected a suggestion that the three-country dispute over Falkland Islands and dependencies be brought before the United Nations Security Council.

He told the House of Commons that "people cannot go on interfering with British territory and then as a result of kicking up a row expect us to go to the Security Council."

Bevin insisted that rival claims by Chile and Argentina to the British-governed Falkland Islands should be referred to the international court of justice at The Hague before any further action can be taken.

Urge County Councils To Set Up Commission

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—(CP).—A recommendation that county councils set up permanent assessment commissions to equalize standards of assessments was made yesterday by Reeve Fred G. Gardiner of adjoining Forest Hill village at the closing session of the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities convention. "Under such a system, the burden of taxation would be more equally distributed and the problem of basing government grants for education on assessment would be overcome," he said.

H. E. Kilman of Fenwick was elected Association president. V. S. Milmine of Stoney Creek, was returned as secretary-treasurer and J. P. Meilleur of Casselman and R. J. Reid of Arthur were named vice-presidents.

Tommy-Gunners Storm British Military Court

JERUSALEM, Feb. 25 — (AP). — Police said Jewish Tommy-gunners stormed a Jerusalem military court today and killed an Arab guard. The party wounded two others and pelted smoke bombs both inside and outside the buildings.

The court had tried Jews arrested for underground activities.

Smoke clouded the whole area.

Jewish dynamiters blew up four Arab houses in the borderland between Tel Aviv and Haifa, killing two Arabs. At least 20 explosions shook the coastal cities. Small arms crackled. A Jew was shot in the back and died in hospital.

A 53rd body was dug from the ruins of Jewish business houses and hotels in Ben Yehuda street of Jerusalem. Arabs said they engineered the explosion Sunday, but the Jews blamed British personnel.

Jews said a large group of armed Arabs ambushed 20 trucks on the Tel Aviv-Jerusalem road and killed two Jews. Eight were wounded.

Another convoy was attacked near Gat, a settlement in southern Palestine.

Cosgrove Reinstated

HOBART, Tasmania, Feb. 25. —(AP).— The Labor party tonight reinstated as premier of Tasmania, Robert Cosgrove, who was acquited last week on 14 counts charging bribery, corruption and conspiracy in connection with Government highway contracts.

Cosgrove resigned as premier last December when the charges were first laid. The office has been vacant since his resignation but the Labor party has remained in power.

Right of Public Assembly Endangered Liberals Told

Communistic encroachment on one of the four freedoms, the right of public assembly, raised to new importance the ordinary political meeting in this country in the fresh estimate placed upon this commonplace of the Canadian way of life by Mr. George J. McIlraith, KC, MP, Ottawa West, parliamentary assistant to the Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Reconstruction, in his address at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Liberal Association in the Canadian Legion Hall Tuesday night.

Mr. McIlraith recalled some of the outstanding achievements of the Liberal government under the premiership of Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, but he also laid significant stress on the democratic form of representative government, and the duty of the individual citizen in actively assisting in sustaining it through local organization.

Mr. George A. Gillespie was chairman of the meeting, and the officers elected for 1948 were: Hon. President, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King; Hon. Vice-Presidents: Hon. G. N. Gordon, KC, and Senator J. J. Duffus; President, Arthur J. McClellan; Vice-Presidents: Wallace M. Shearer, Max J. Swanston, Ralph O. Standish; Secretary, P. D. Scollard; Treasurer, W. B. Gordon; Advisory Committee: R. M. Glover, W. W. Dawson, Alex. L. Elliott, KC, Frank J. Hughes, Dr. Ralph Honey, T. J. Carley, KC, Dr. E. M. Crough, H. Sherin, Jr., Col. J. A. Dewart and G. A. Gillespie.

The meeting was preceded by entertaining piano numbers by Ashton Fife, and the speeches were interspersed by double vocal numbers by the Barbershop Quartette, Mr. Fife, Adam Sands, Jr., William Collison and James Ridyard, whose harmonizing delighted the audience.

Mr. Bruce McNevin, in his introduction of Mr. McIlraith, said this year would be notable in Liberal activities. The annual meeting of the Central Ontario Association is to be held in Oshawa on an April date to be chosen, following the annual meeting of the

Packers Union To Ask Raise

TORONTO, Feb. 25—(CP). — Fred W. Dowling, international vice-president of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CCL), predicted today that Canadian packinghouse workers "will make another wage-increase demand this fall."

Mr. Dowling, who returned today from Regina where he attended a meeting of the Saskatchewan council of the union, said elimination of controls and "the advantake taken of higher prices by big business" had wiped out increases won last October following a lengthy strike and made new increases "absolutely necessary."

Soviet Blasts Canada For 'Aiding' New Film

MOSCOW, Feb. 25—(Reuters). —David Zaslavsky, writing in the Communist party newspaper Pravda, today assailed two Canadian Cabinet Ministers for "aiding" in the production of the new Hollywood film "Iron Curtain," which is based on the Canadian Royal Commission's report on the Russian spy ring in the Dominion.

Zaslavsky said the picture was an ignominious "attempt to discredit the Soviet Union."

The Canadian officials listed by Zaslavsky were Louis St. Laurent, Minister of External Affairs, and Finance Minister James Ilsley.

Zaslavsky called the film "the most filthy commercial undertaking of our time."

Hospital Plane Crew Has Bad Fire Fright

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Feb. 25—(CP)—A terrifying 15 minutes was experienced by six crew members of an army hospital plane when a radio set caught fire as the plane approached Kellogg Field here yesterday.

The plane was bringing seven patients from Westover Field, Mass., to Percy Jones Hospital. It landed safely after Staff Sgt. H. W. Marple, crew engineer, tore the smouldering set from the cubicle between the cockpit and the cabin where the patients were lying on litters.

Several pieces of fire apparatus were speeding to the field when the pilot reported the fire under control.

Rural Areas Face Cutoffs If Power-Saving Fails

TORONTO, Feb. 25 (CP)—As Toronto and some other large Ontario cities today settled down to a routine of one power cutoff a day, the opinion was expressed that rural areas might undergo power breaks if the power-saving campaign in the province's six largest cities does not succeed.

"Cutoffs in the country must be considered carefully because they could do a lot of harm," A. W. Manby, assistant general manager of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said yesterday. "Take hatcheries, for instance. A stoppage of electricity there might have serious results."

London will be free from cutoffs today for the second consecutive day but officials cautioned that cuts would be re-imposed Wednesday if voluntary saving did not reach expectations.

Try Experiment

Sarnia can expect a cutoff-free day Thursday in the uptown business area as an experiment to determine whether voluntary power saving by merchants will save as much power as the interruptions. The merchants have agreed to cut an hour from their business day.

Blenheim experienced its first cutoff yesterday and half-hour breaks will continue daily except Sundays.

Six power cuts, totalling three hours, were experienced yesterday by Smiths Falls. Not affected were the town's two hospitals, for which special power service was arranged.

Brockville residents were told that unless they conserve more power daily, their city may undergo cutoffs. Street lighting, already reduced, may be dimmed further.

Toronto citizens can expect no more installations of electric water heaters until the end of the power shortage, brought on by low water at generating plants. The Toronto Hydro-Electric Power Commission will continue to take orders for the equipment but installation will be delayed.

Head Of NHL Sees Tie-Up In Gambling

No Hint Of Game Fix Campbell Says Promising Inquiry

DETROIT, Feb. 25.—(CP). — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said today the Detroit police department has offered full co-operation in investigation of hockey gambling charges but so far there is little definite information to go on.

He told The Canadian Press all he could do for the present was to await further inveestigation by Detroit police into the gambling reports which linked two N.H.L. players with an ex-convict's betting activities. He added he probably would return to Montreal and come back to Detroit only if developments warrant.

Campbell said that if "strong circumstantial evidence of a player-gambling tieup" is uncovered it will be fully investigated.

He spoke after an hour-long conference with Detroit police commissioner Harry Toy who told the NHL head that he has reason to believe that conversations between NHL players and gambler James Tamer did take place. However, Toy said he did not know who the players are and it might take a week or more to uncover the information.

The National Hockey League president went into immediate conference with Toy upon his arrival this morning from Montreal for his investigation.

Earlier Campbell called reports of a possible betting scandal in professional hockey "ridiculous."

At the same time he promised a full inquiry.

Toy issued a statement yesterday associating two professional players with an ex-convict in the reported bets. He did not name the rinkmen, but said one was a member of Boston Bruins and the other player with New York Rangers.

The commissioner pointed out that his information "does not sustain any criminal case" and was not of "sufficient strength to base an accusation."

Plans Action

"I don't care whether it is legal evidence or not if it establishes the fact to my satisfaction," Campbell announced in Toronto before heading here.

"If anything contrary to NHL regulations has transpired, the league's rules are adequate to deal with the situation."

Toy said he would be "glad to turn over to the league officials any information I have would be useful in any investigation they care to make."

"We don't believe a word of it," asserted Ross, who said he had interviewed all his players.

"They have denied the charges 100 per cent," he said. "I believe every one of the boys."

In New York manager Frank Boucher of the Rangers called the report "fantastic" and said he had questioned his players individually with all of them denying knowledge of any betting activities.

Injured Man Held In Theft

OTTAWA, Feb. 25 — (AP). — Richard Rogers, 37, of Belleville just released from hospital, was arrested yesterday by provincial police on a charge of possessing "instruments of safebreaking."

His arrest followed an escape from death when an automobile in which he was a passenger was struck Sunday by a fast-moving Toronto-bound C.P.R. passenger train just outside of Ottawa.

A companion, Arthur Richardson, 32, also of Belleville, is in a critical condition, suffering from severe chest and facial injuries. A guard has been posted at his bed.

Police say Rogers is a suspect in connection with a Belleville clothing store robbery last Saturday night and also recent safe-breaking crimes in Ottawa.

In the wrecked car, tossed by the train some 50 feet from the track, police said they found tools used by safe-blowers and a glass jar containing what may be nitroglycerine.

Last Bastion in East Europe Falls to Communists, Benes Agrees to Demands

Western Border Tightly Sealed By Armed Guard

FRANKFURT, Germany, Feb. 25—(AP).—The United States Army said today a heavily-armed Czech guard has tightly sealed Czechoslovakia's western border.

"Czechoslovakia security police are in complete control of the border," a report from headquarters said.

"Guards are placed very close together, armed with submachine guns and pistols. Where 30 security troops are normally stationed in (the border town of) Asch, there are now at least 300."

Even train crews at the border are reported armed.

A proclamation given to Bavarian border police by Czechs at the frontier said no Czechoslovak citizen is permitted to leave that country "under any circumstances."

German police at Munich said they arrested three men who crossed the border and said they were anti-Communist politicians of the Catholic People's Party. Their names were withheld. Military government officials indicated any authentic political refugee would be granted asylum.

Robot Tortoise Dislikes Men

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(CP). — The Daily Express reported today that Dr. W. Grey Walter, 38-year-old brain scientist, has built a robot tortoise which is so human that it likes company, recognizes voices and comes to heel when called.

The paper said that the tortoise avoids cold or damp weather, great heat or bright lights, likes women but dislikes men.

"It can be temperamental and will be neurotic and sulky for days if teased or given too many contradictory instructions," the Express added.

The paper said that Dr. Walter, who is at the Burden Neurological Institute at Bristol, built the tortoise with ordinary radio tubes, switch relays, miniature microphones for registering sound and photo-electric cells for recognizing color and shape.

Rules Against Union

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 25 (AP). —United States district judge Luther M. Swygert today ruled against the International Typographical Union (AFL) in its effort to block a Taft-Hartley injunction filed against it. Swygert denied the union's motion to dismiss the petition for an injunction filed by the office of Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the national labor relations board. The judge announced he would hold a hearing March 3 on the injunction petition.

Toast Of Paris

PARIS, Feb. 25—(CP). — Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa today was the toast of Paris but was disappointed because she had no time to see a fashion show. "That's one thing I really wanted to do," the Olympic and world champion woman figure skater said during a practice session. "But we were so busy that I did not have the time." She will skate before a sellout crowd of 18,000 at the Palais des Sports tonight, before leaving tomorrow for Bern, Switzerland.

Suspend Talks On Germany For 24 Hours

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(AP). — Britain, the United States and France today suspended talks on western Germany for 24 hours to await arrival of the Benelux delegations and their views on expanding German production under the European recovery program.

Officials said it is reasonable to assume the big three have gone as far as they can in figuring out Germany's role before getting the opinions of Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Responsible diplomatic officials said the western powers intend to ask Russia for a detailed accounting for what the Soviets have taken out of Austria since the war.

Yesterday the United States tried to halt removals of such property pending agreement on the treaty terms.

The conditions Russia asks include:

1. Stringent prohibition against future foreign control of all former German property except with the consent of Russia. Presumably, this would include such assets as oil refineries in which the western powers had a stake before the war.

2. A clause preventing Austria from raising "any difficulties" against Russian export of profits from enterprises which it would receive under a settlement. Russia wants two-thirds of Austria's oil production, plus control of the Danube Shipping Company.

3. A blanket condition freeing Russia from all obligations during her custodianship of German assets prior to the settlement.

4. An agreement among the big powers for bilateral settlement between interested parties on all future distutes involving former German property.

Keep Jan Masaryk Non-Party Man Foreign Minister

PRAGUE, Feb. 25 — (AP). — President Eduard Benes announced tonight he has accepted a new cabinet presented by Communist Premier Klement Gottwald, composed chiefly of Communists and their left wing supporters.

The government radio announced shortly before that the president capitulated to Communist demands, indicating the last obstacle to iron Communist control of the entire couuntry had been swept away.

The new cabinet includes Social Democrats, who swung back to Communist support this week after several months of esfrangement. Other parties also are represented.

A statement from the president's office said that two Social Democrats resigned before the new list was accepted. They were right wing member Vaclav Majer, minister of food, and Frantisek Tymes, deputy premier, thought to hold leftist views.

Jan Masaryk, non-party member of the cabinet, continues as minister of foreign affairs.

The announcement came as vast crowds gathered in the public square, prepared under Communist leadership to stage a demonstration in support of Gottwald. In another quarter of the business centre, National Socialist party student members gathered for a counter-demonstration.

Guard President

The president's palace was surrounded by hundreds of police and soldiers, armed with rifles and sub-machine guns.

The Communists had posed a threat of a general strike to enforce their demands.

(The retention of Masaryk appeared to raise the possibility that Benes had reached some sort of compromise with the Communists in their bid for absolute control. A non-party man, Masaryk has spoken in favor of collaboration with the western powers.

The new ministers included Deputy premiers: Antonin Zapotocky, Communist; Bohumil Lausmann, Social Democrat, and

1 Dead, 2 Hurt In Plane Crash

HAILEYBURY, Feb. 25— (CP) —Moise Charron of Notre Dame de La Paix, Que., was killed, and Russel James Gray of Kingston was seriously injured to-day when a two-seater Fleet Canuck aircraft piloted by Gray crashed in underbrush near the town limits here.

The plane had taken off from Lake Temiskaming about five minutes prior to the crash.

Charron, a passenger in the aircraft, was dead when Provincial Police reached the scene a few minutes after the crash. His head was badly crushed. Gray, seriously injured with head cuts, a fractured leg, and other injuries, was taken to hospital here.

Canada Opposes US Plan For Election In Korea

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Feb. 25 — (CP). — Great Britain told the United Nations today that it should hold an immediate election to set up a national assembly in South Korea, ignoring Russia's refusal to cooperate with the world organization.

Supporting a resolution offered yesterday by the United States, Valentine Lawford, British delegate, said there was nothing in the resolution approved last November by the general assembly setting up a special commission to hold national elections preliminary to establishing a free Democratic government which precludes balloting in South Korea only.

Canada opposes the proposal on the grounds that the U.N. has no authority to hold the elections without participation of Russian-controlled areas. Australia supports Canada and a number of other countries also are believed to object.

The eight-member Korean commission, set up by the U.N. to conduct country-wide elections in the occupied zones and establish a free and Democratic government, has reported failure because of Russian non-co-operation. Russia has boycotted the little assembly.

The United States has proposed that elections be held in its zone, South Korea, to set up a Korean national assembly. One-third of the assembly's seats would be held open for representatives from the Russian zone. The United States, supported by China, argues that Russian non-co-operation should not be permitted to stand in the way.

Canada yesterday, through L. B. Pearson, under-secretary for external affairs, protested the American proposal. He also criticized Russia's "obstructive attitude," saying that this policy was to be "condemned."

Mother, 3 Children Lost In 16-House Fire

CAMDEN, N.J., Feb. 25 (AP).— A mother and her three small children perished early today in a fire which swept nine of a row of 16 homes.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Dorothy Evans, and her children, Joan, three, George, two, and Tommy, one.

Two firemen were seriously burned.

The body of the mother was taken from the ruins about an hour after flames broke out about 1.30 a.m. Later the bodies of all three children were found.

Firemen said they believed the occupants of the other homes in the row of two storey brick and frame homes—about 45 persons all told—had fled shortly after discovery of the fire.

Britons Continue Higher Wage Pressure

LONDON, Feb. 25 — (CP). — Pressure of higher wage claims on the Labor government's policy of controlling incomes, profits and prices continued unabated today as the general council of the powerful Trades Union Congress met to consider means of assisting the administration.

The council meeting is preliminary to the March 24 conference of 187 union executive committees when acceptance of the wage control policy will be recommended by TUC leaders.

But in the face of the government directive that there should be no more wage increases without corresponding gains in production, were these developments:

1. Representatives of 600,000 railway workers decided to continue discussion of pay adjustments.

2. Negotiations for increased wages for 56,000 London transport employees resumed today.

3. Hotel workers refused to agree to postponement of new wage scales previously awarded. These rates, increasing the wage bill by between 10 and 20 per cent, will become effective Monday.

4. Clerical workers in the coal industry obtained an agreement with the national coal board for a 38-hour week and higher minimum pay rates.

5. Groups of Scottish textile workers, tugmen in the north of England and some 60,000 cinema employees all have been awarded higher wages after hearings.

No Opposition

The radio, now in Communist hands, said the President had accepted the resignations of 12 anti-Communist ministers from the Coalition Cabinet. This would clear the way for the Communist seizure of complete power. The President's office declined to make any statement immediately, but did not deny the report. A statement was promised later to-day.

Communist Premier Klement Gottwald went to the presidential palace to present a list of ministers for a new cabinet. The radio said an announcement of a new government was expected momentarily.

The Communists clamped a grip on communications as the coup rushed to a climax. Nowhere now do the opposition parties have a chance to oppose Gottwald publicly.

Commenting upon the broadcast announcement concerning Benes, Dr. Vlaclav Sykora, the president's secretary, said:

"The only statement we have made, other than our communique about the premier's visit, was that any inquiries must be directed to the office of the premier, who issued the statement read on the Prague radio."

Exchange Letters

Gottwald's visit to the president's palace followed an exchange of letters during the night which seemed to presage Benes' acceptance of the Communist demands.

The exchange was made public shortly before noon in a special one-sheet edition of Mlada Fronta, youth newspaper, and they were read on the latter broadcast of the government radio.

The president's letter said he still insisted upon parliamentary democracy for Czechoslovakia. It blamed the crisis on the present international situation.

It added, however, that:

"In the crisis itself the principle of the National Front (the country's seven-party coalition government) is not rejected."

The Communist answer insisted the party could not deal with the present leadership of three opposition parties, declared the president should accept the resignations of the 12 ministers and demanded that Gottwald be allowed to pick his own cabinet.

The letter promised that Gottwald would name "democratic progressive" members of the three opposition parties.

The president has insisted steadfastly that the parties which instituted the post-war republic in 1945 must remain in office under a coalition.

Exchange Bill Gets Approval

OTTAWA, Feb. 25—(CP).—The Government's contentious exchange-conservation bill won approval by a narrow margin in the Commons yesterday and then members quickly adopted a bill extending for three years the Farm Loans Improvement Act of 1944. The Exchange Bill, first important piece of legislation to be passed since the session opened Dec. 5, barely skimmed over its last hurdle in the wake of concerted attacks which saw the Opposition come within eight votes of defeating the Government.

That division, followed by another which the Government won by 10 votes, came on a Progressive Conservative amendment which would have limited currency-saving import restrictions in the Exchange Bill to hard currency—dollar—countries only, mainly the United States. The amendment was defeated by a vote of 104 to 96, and shortly after the bill, which now goes to the Senate, was adopted by a vote of 102 to 92.

The three Opposition parties voted as a bloc in both divisions to support their arguments that the import restrictions should not be made applicable against the United Kingdom or other sterling countries.

Reject Amendment

Finance Minister Abbott replied that the government could not accept an amendment that would turn the bill from a non-discriminatory one into legislation that would discriminate mainly against the United States.

J. M. Macdonnell (PC-Muskoka-Ontario) said what had been hailed as a step to save American dollars had been clearly shown to be an instrument of control. It gave power to Trade Minister Howe that was so broad that he could tear up orders-in-council. Everything depended on one minister.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) said his party was opposed to the bill because it did not get at the root of the exchange problem.

Fear Hunger To Force Surrender Of Mukden

PEIPING, Feb. 25 — (AP). — Unless government troops can open a supply line to Mukden, hunger may force them to abandon that important Manchurian city in three months.

Mukden's 1,000,000 people have enough food to last until the end of May. Lacking ground supply lines, Mukden's defenders then might have to fight their way out to Chinhsien, 130 miles southwest.

Should government troops reconquer sections of the Peiping-Mukden railway now in Red hands, repairs would take weeks or months, making highway transport necessary.

Say Road Work "Outstanding"

TORONTO, Feb. 25 (CP)—J. D. Miller, deputy minister of highways for Ontario, today told the annual meeting of the Provincial Good Roads Association that 1947 was "an outstanding year in highway improvement."

Mr. Miller said the department and various municipalities undertook the largest program in the history of the province during the fiscal year that ends next month.

"When the books are closed, it is estimated that $75,000,000 will have been devoted to the improvement of rural highways in the province," he said.

Mr. Miller said most of the contracts were for grading, and tenders for this type of work were in range with the prices in 1939. "Increased costs for wages, materials and machinery were met by increased production from machines developed during the war."

FREEDOM isn't FREE!

Freedom, like anything worth having, carries a price tag. We can't enjoy it without accepting its responsibilities.

There's freedom of speech—and we have to accept the responsibility for what we say.

There's freedom to worship as we please—and the responsibility is ours to see that others aren't persecuted, either.

There are lots of freedoms, and they all have their responsibilities.

The freedom to use whiskey for instance.
That carries a three-fold responsibility: to ourselves, to our families and to our communities.

As the House of Seagram has so often said, it is to drink moderately or not at all!

Armed Robber Testifies Against His Pal

WHITBY, Feb. 25 — (CP). — Elgin Richards, 23, under a three-year sentence for the armed narcotic holdup of the Ontario Mental Hospital here last February, yesterday testified for the Crown against Donald Tucker of Oshawa who is being tried for the second time on charges similar to those Richards faced. The case is expected to go to the jury late today.

Richards testified that the 26-year-old Oshawa man agreed to join the others when they met him in an Oshawa restaurant. "Robert Willis, Frank Podvinsky and myself went to an Oshawa beverage room where Tucker was working on the taps. We arranged to meet him in a restaurant and there we asked him to accompany us on the robbery. We discussed it and he agreed," Richards related. He had previously admitted being armed and stated that Tusker used a revolver, while he carried a sawed-off .22 rifle.

Keep Rendezvous

The restaurant rendezvous took place early in the morning of February 28, a few hours before the hold-up, Richards said. Employees at the hospital's male infirmary had previously told of being made to lie on the floor by a gunman, while two of the bandits ransacked a drug cabinet for the narcotics.

Gordon Wilson, a male nurse, said he saw four men, all wearing silk stockings with eye holes over their faces. He had later identified Richards in a police line-up at the county jail, Wilson testified. Nobody had previously identified Tucker as being at the hold-up scene although police officers had related their arrest of Tucker. Richards and Frank Podvinsky near a snowbound car believed to have been used in the robbery.

Questioned by defence counsel Manning Schwartz regarding his purpose in giving Crown evidence, Richards declared "crime is a sucker's game as far as I'm concerned." Asked if any promises had been made "as to where you would serve your own term," Richards replied "none whatsoever." He said he had been warned by Tucker not to testify against him.

Later in the day the jury was excluded while Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel considered the admissibility of additional Crown evidence.

U.S. Needs Arabian Friendship To Keep Oil Supply Protected

By DANIEL DE LUCE

DRAHRAN, Saudi Arabia, Feb. 25—(AP).—It's 950 miles as a bomber flies from this American Super Superfortress base on the Persian Gulf to Russia's vital oil field at Baku. On splendid runways of crushed rock, almost a mile and a half long, the B-29s that never flew in combat in Europe now come to rest almost daily after training hops nonstop from Germany.

Their bomb racks are empty but guns poke out from metal blisters on their silver fuselage.

From Central Europe all the way to the Orient, Drahran ranks first in strategic importance to the United States Air Force. Pilots are getting to know the terrain under Russia's belly like the palm of their hand.

No American military man underestimates the current value of the friendship of Ibn Saud, Saudi Arabians formidable king, who made the air base at Drahran possible.

It originally was planned as a way-stop for American aircraft transferring from the European theatre to carry on the war against Japan.

It was carried to completion in March, 1946, six months after Japan surrendered. By the terms of a wartime agreement with Ibn Saud it is under United States control until April 1, 1949.

Future Uncertain

The future of the Drahran field, which is reported to have cost $5,000,000 to construct, largely depends on the international relations of the United States with the Arab world, according to sources here.

Until the voted partition of Palestine set off the Arab-Jewish warfare, it was believed likely Saudi Arabia would voluntarily seek to prolong the American Air Force's stay at Drahran. Although about 30 young Arabs are being trained to take over the airport administration in the future it is not considered possible for an adequate Arab staff to be ready by the time the contract is due to end.

Americans also have a hand in training Arab civilian pilots for the Saudi Arabian airline.

US Pilots

As yet, the airlines' dozen transports are skippered by former American army pilots, but each has an Arab co-pilot and an Arab crew.

Field Commander Lt.-Col. Dale Seeds command here includes 200 American officers and men and a large complement of Arab civilian workers.

Although American military aircraft have free access to Saudi Arabian skies, they are strictly briefed to avoid Mecca and Medina, the most sacred cities of the Moslem faith, and Riyadhh, the capital. By Arab belief, the King must not look up to any man. Pilots overhead might cause him to do so if they flew over Riyadhh.

Belleville Fire Losses Down During 1947

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 25 — Fire losses in Belleville for 1947 totalled $39,477, members of the city council were informed through the annual report of Fire Chief William Lynch. By comparison, losses the year previous were $151,560, and in 1945 $26,393. The number of alarms answered by the fire department was also down from the year previous with firemen receiving 251 calls as compared with 312 in 1946.

Fire Chief Lynch recommended the construction of a new fire hall as soon as possible, and also that a new fire inspector be acquired for the city. Three hundred feet of 2½-inch hose and 10 waterproof raincoats were recommended to be purchased.

Honor City Clerk

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 25.—Thirty-four years service as clerk of the municipality, was recognized by members of city council Monday evening when City Clerk Wilfrid Holmes accepted verbal appreciation and was formally presented with a pen and pencil set. The council meeting was briefly interrupted for the presentation with Mayor D. L. Storey calling on the dean of city councillors, Alderman Clarke, to tender the appreciation of the council and to make the presentation. In accepting the gift Mr. Holmes stated he felt always that the city had first call on his time. It would continue to be this way as long as he was in the service of the city.

Car Blazes Away Merr ily Beside Them While Firemen Try To Find Right Valve

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 25 — (ENS). — Fire, believed to have started from a short circuit in the starter cable, completely gutted the interior of a car which had been parked for an hour at the rear of Meyer's Garage, Front Street, on Tuesday night. Jack Snyder, owner of the car, was working inside the garage and was unaware of the fire until it was noticed by Allan Jones, who lives opposite the garage on Rear Street.

The blaze was soon extinguished by firemen using chemicals, but smoldering went on unchecked for half an hour while firemen juggled lever and valves trying to get the right ones in operation to pump water from the water tank on the fire truck. If the gasoline tank had ignited and exploded, danger to Meyer's garage, a frame structure, was imminent.

Merchants Co-operate Not So Housewives

COBOURG, Feb. 25 — (ENS). — Merchants of the town are co-operating fully with the public utilities commission in keeping power consumption at a minimum.

The merchants have been asked to leave their lights off during the day until three p.m. This they are doing, except in stores were a light is necessary in some dark section.

Restaurant kitchens with no outdoor light are also leaving a light on. The Commission expressed the hope that the householders will do some voluntary cutting as up to date their effors have been of little effect.

FLOWER GIRL: "I'm being married in June and would like some advice on colors. My dress is antique ivory faille, the maid of honor is wearing gold taffeta, the bridesmaid soft green. What color shall we put on the flower girl?"

Why not a soft peach? It would look delicate and would blend with the other colors. I can see that wedding processional!

OLD BROOCH: "I have a brooch dated 1834, dug up by my husband out of the ground 45 years ago. It's sterling silver with a picture of Toronto on it. Is it valuable?"

Your description of the brooch sounds interesting. Why not take it to Birks or to the Old Golde Shoppe on Yonge Street and have it valued? There are experts in both places who could advise you.

SPROUTING PARSNIPS: "Our parsnips which we topped and stored in the cellar last fall have started to sprout. My husband claims they are poisonous. Are they? I hate to throw them away.

Fruit and vegetable officials say the fact of the parsnips sprouting does not make them poisonous. Once they sprout they wither a bit though, and need to firm up in cold water for a time.

DIAMOND WEDDING: "My parents will celebrate their 60th Wedding Anniversary in April of this year. I understand that Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth extend congratulations on such occasions when informed of the event. To whom is such a letter addressed? How should it be worded?"

The Private Secretary of Buckingham Palace,

London, England.

In the letter repeat the outside address, then continue:

Honorable Sir: We beg to acquaint Their Gracious Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth with the forthcoming Diamond Wedding Anniversary of our parents, Mr. and Mrs. (insert name with initial) of (insert address), on (insert date).

Centralized Hydro Power

Power may not always corrupt but it does make dictatorship easy. The Hydro-Electric Power Commission has a virtual monopoly of public utilities in Ontario. Peterborough's gas, electric power and street railway system used to be local or privately-owned concerns. In 1913 W. H. Bradburn, as Mayor, signed an agreement binding Peterborough to take electric power from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, newly established, and from it only. Since then Peterborough has been subservient to the dictates of Toronto, and the policies of the Central Commission have not always been to Peterborough's advantage.

* * *

On March 31st, 1927, the Toronto authorities ordered the discontinuance of the street car service. Next day Peterborough was without any means of public transport. This was done despite the objections of the Mayor and Council. The citizens were properly wrathful. It is true that the Ontario Commission did give six weeks' notice (unlike the present officials who gave Toronto citizens no notice when they interrupted the electric power in the city a week ago), but even that notice was short. This action brought to a head the growing resentment against the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and the city officially offered $300,000 to the Commission for a return of its utilities to local ownership. The offer was refused.

* * *

The late R. R. Hall of the Examiner came out strongly for a Peterborough electric power system independent of the Ontario Hydro, to break the Commission's monopoly. However, W. H. Bradburn, then M.P.P., and the Conservative Government of the late Howard Ferguson were not sympathetic. Mr. Hall maintained that Hydro's costs were too high and that the water power resources in this district were not being properly developed. Peterborough as a natural industrial area was being slighted. There was no need for Peterborough ever to have power shortages. He said that the private plants at Orillia and Campbellford were providing adequate service at low cost.

* * *

It is now apparent that Mr. Hall and his supporters were not as wrong-headed as their opponents thought. Orillia still has its own private plant and does not seem to be short of power these days. In our editorial yesterday we called attention to the hydro-electric power capacities of this district. It was because of these capacities that large firms like the Quaker Oats and the Canadian General Electric established branches here. The Ontario Commission with its policy of equalization is willing to sacrifice our natural endowment; it is prepared to take power from us and give us none. The Commission is surveying the power supplies in all municipalities and those which appear to have more than others will be given a lower quota. That kind of dealing is not for the benefit of Peterborough. As far as this well-situated city is concerned, the Hydro Commission of Ontario seems to be more of a white elephant than a provider of white power.

Antarctic Dispute

An archipalego and a continental land mass called Antarctica stretch from the southern tip of South America to the South Pole three thousand miles distant. Britain has long laid claim to many of the islands and some peninsulas and the United States has territorial claims farther south and west. Since 1940 Chile and Argentina have been proclaiming their natural rights to the vast area. They seem to have a concerted scheme for ousting Britain, now in no powerful military or political position to maintain claim to her dependencies. For the time being there is no threat to American territorial interests in Antarctica; for the time being Argentina and Chile are not at odds over their own overlapping claims.

These two South American countries are giving little heed to Britain's rights based on prior exploration and discovery. They are merely invoking the western hemisphere pact in support of their claims and establishing military and marine outposts—on Palmer Peninsula (Graham Land), for instance, on which the President of Chile landed the other day and which he renamed O'Higginsland, after a Chilean soldier-patriot of Irish descent. This ironic touch has a counterpart in a ship which the Chilean navy is using to press its claims. The ship is called Covadonga. It is the same corvette which sailed under the name Glace Bay in the Royal Canadian Navy before it was sold to Chile.

Britain has been giving self-government and independence to its colonies but it is not willing to allow Chile and the Argentine to expand at her expense. Much of the territory which the South American countries are claiming is a thousand miles or more from the South American continent. Prime Minister Attlee told the British House of Commons on Monday that his Government was not prepared "to be cheeked or chivvied out of British territories anywhere in the world". The dispute may be submitted to U.N.

The Shameful Treatment Of Our Chinese Residents

Mr. Hum Hoy has operated a cafe on George Street, Peterborough, for 32 years. He has now retired and is going home to China which he left forty years ago. For forty years he has supported his wife, four daughters and one son and now he is going back to live with them, his family.

On February 14th Tom Bing Lung of 378½ George Street died. He was 73. He had lived in Canada as a labourer for many years, the last fifteen of them in Peterborough. He is survived by his wife, two sons and two daughters who live in China.

Such stories as these which appeared in two consecutive issues of the Examiner recur in the daily papers across Canada—usually as little obituary notices tucked into a small corner. They are the stories of men who emigrated from China thirty, forty or fifty years ago, leaving behind them their wives and families. They have worked hard and quietly in their little groups segregated from the life of the communities in which they live. They have earned money and dutifully sent home their savings to support their families. Sometimes they have been able to take trips home to see their families; sometimes they have not had enough money for the trip until they went home to die. Sometimes they die before they can go home. So here they live, in our towns and cities, separated from their families, ignored by most of the citizens and discriminated against by the laws of the land.

Since the passing of the Chinese Immigration Act of 1923 the immigration of Chinese nationals into Canada has been prohibited (except for diplomatic officials and the like). The Act was passed mainly to please British Columbia which in 1921 had more than half of the 39,587 Chinese people who had come to Canada since 1870. Since 1895 there has been a "head tax" on Chinese immigrants — which was increased in 1904 to $500. This tax was designed to restrict Chinese immigration: it did effectively prevent male immigrants from bringing their wives and families. In 1931 only 3,468 of the total Chinese population of 46,519 were females.

Our official treatment of Chinese residents has improved somewhat in the last year or two. They can become Canadian citizens. (Mr. Hum Hoy is proud of the citizenship card which he acquired last year.) The Act of 1923 was repealed last year. Regulations now permit a Chinaman who is a Canadian citizen to bring his wife and family to this country. Not many are likely to take advantage of this, because their wives are now elderly and the change to a foreign country would be very difficult for them. An Act of the Ontario Legislature passed last autumn permits a Chinese restaurant keeper to employ white women in his establishment.

The easing of the restrictions against our Chinese citizens comes too late to make amends for the disgraceful discrimination against them by means of the head tax and the Chinese Immigration Act. The citizens of the communities in which they live continue to disregard them shamefully. They spurn them socially, considering them to be odd people who do laundry, gardening and cooking. They are amazed at the queer way they live. They forget that it is our laws which have forced this manner of life upon them.

WEEKLY BOOK REVIEW

The Undying Passion

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

MORE books are written and published and sold now than at any time in history, yet it seems to me that fewer houses have libraries and 'studies' than formerly, and that a man who possesses any considerable accumulation of books is a rarity. Certainly the planners of modern houses and apartments never give any thought to the disposal of books, and interior decorators are apt to be short with clients who decline to put their books in the cellar in order to leave the walls clear. Paradoxical though it may seem, more books are being bought, and fewer books are being kept. The real love of books—one of the few passions in life which neither age nor declining fortune can destroy—is threatened by architects, decorators and speculative builders, as well as by that growing portion of the reading public which is content with the thumbed volumes of public libraries. Nevertheless, not merely book lovers, but also book collectors do exist, and it is for the latter group that I mean to review a book today. It is "Book Collecting As A Hobby" by P. H. Muir.

◇ ◇ ◇

BOOK collecting, it need hardly be said, is not quite the same thing as book-buying. The collector buys books with a purpose beyond that of reading their contents. He may collect the works of a single author, or a group of authors, or he may collect books relating to a special subject. According to his taste and income he may collect books which are finely bound, or books which are finely printed, or he may collect books which illustrate a particular phase of publishing or book production. I have even heard of a girl who collected any books she could lay her hands on which were in white bindings. Collections are undertaken either from real love of books, or from love of collecting for its own sake—a passion which has something of the magpie in it and which is surprisingly common. There are people who collect books, also, because they know that a good collection is valuable, and that any well chosen collection has value greater than the sale price of its individual parts. But the real collector is the man who collects books because he loves them.

◇ ◇ ◇

I USE the word 'love' advisedly. A collector's books are his darlings. He can rarely be persuaded to lend them. He abhors public libraries, and regards the books in them as poor and degraded things, prostitutes passed from hand to hand for money. Conversely, he sits among the books of his collection like a Caliph among his wives, smiling happily to think that these exquisite creatures exist for no eye, and for no pleasure, but his own. It would be shallow to describe his attitude as selfish. Is the man who protects the honour of his wife selfish? His attitude toward the man who wants to borrow his books is simple: let him acquire a collection of his own.

◇ ◇ ◇

IF you have toyed with the idea of collecting books, you cannot do better than read Muir's introduction to that hobby. It will either inflame you or cure you of the itch. He gives excellent advice to the beginner, and he has some particularly useful things to say about establishing the nature of your collection. What you will collect depends upon where you live, and what money you have to spend. If you live in a remote Ontario town and make $50 a week you had better not go in for eighteenth century books bound by the great masters among binders; you will rarely see any, and you will not be able to afford them when you do. But you can make a collection of Canadiana which will be of great interest and value as it develops, for it is still possible to pick up the earliest editions of Canadian pamphlets, books and broadsides for small sums. You must pick your theme and develop it assiduously. Canadian poetry and politics are possible themes, and I should like to see somebody form a collection of Canadian published drama. Some of the rarest items of Canadiana have already gone to the U.S.A., but you never know when even better ones will turn up at an auction, or in your grandmother's attic. Now is the time to make your collection; in twenty-five years you may be in competition with wealthy men.

◇ ◇ ◇

COLLECTING is more than eager buying of books; it requires a fair amount of specialized knowledge, and a canniness and flair which are only developed with time and experience. Money alone will not make a collector, for although he may employ the best booksellers to do his searching and buying for him, he will miss the treasures which can only be found by careful searching in unlikely places, and by the intuition which collectors develop. P. H. Muir gives the beginner the information he needs in a charming book, and he tells him where he may find further information when he wants it. I have never seen a better introduction to a fascinating subject than this, and I recommend it heartily.

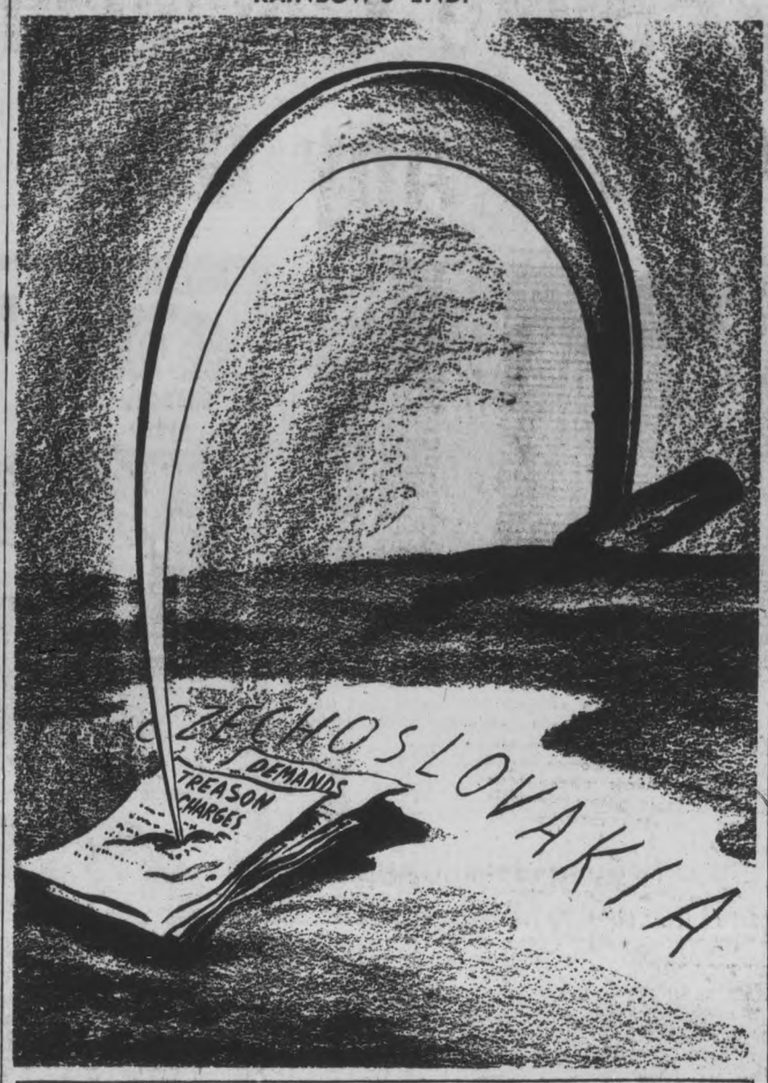
Unconsidered Trifles

"I hardly feel like a stranger," said the best man at the wedding. "My friend has so often done me the honour of reading extracts from his dear Ivy's letters."

"Sir," exclaimed the bride, "my name is Margaret."

◇ ◇ ◇

Dodson had never played golf before, but he had real beginner's luck when he drove off. The ball flew straight to the green, trickled across it, then dropped into the hole.



At his very first attempt the novice had realized the ambition of every golfer; but he did not seem excited.

His next drive was almost as good. Again the ball landed on the green, but this time it stopped short a few inches from the hole.

Dodson turned apologetically to his partner.

"How silly of me!" he exclaimed. "I've missed it!"

Letters To The Editor

HOW PARCELS ARE RECEIVED

Sir: I think you may be interested in the following paragraph from a letter received by us from friends in Coventry, England, which shows how much a parcel is appreciated.

"I must start this letter by thanking you both, very much, for the parcel of nice things, the thrill one gets from opening a parcel like that is actually indescribable. I made myself undo every knot in the string so that I should prolong the pleasure I received in opening the package, it is really very nice of you both, and I should like to say thank you, both you again. The youngster and myself opened the parcel or I should say the youngster was present when I opened it; and it was a real treat to see as I finally opened it. I told him who had sent it and he remembered you had said you would send a cake and I can assure you we were greatly surprised to find an assortment of goods as well".

I am signing my name but would rather be known as an IMMIGRANT FROM COVENTRY.

YOURS NOT TO REASON WHY, YOURS BUT TO DO AS YOU ARE TOLD

Sir: Re Hydro, I beg to differ from you regarding the advice given to "Mother of Three". I feel that no user of Hydro has the power to sue should Hydro fail to deliver power for any reason whatsoever. I believe in every contract signed with the Hydro a clause similar to the following is written:—"The system (Hydro) shall use reasonable diligence in providing a regular and uninterrupted supply, but shall not be liable for failure to supply electrical energy to the premises of the consumer, and the consumer agrees to MAKE NO CLAIM WITH RESPECT THERETO".

No, I am afraid "Mother of Three" would not have much chance of winning any action she may bring against the Hydro under these circumstances, for although "Hydro is yours" as the advertisements state, it is only yours to receive when convenient to Hydro, and to be paid for promptly at prices set in Toronto and the "little fellow"—that, includes practically all of us—only has the right to "meekly wait and murmur not".

By the way, I wonder how many thousand horsepower of electrical energy goes to waste every 24 hours on the Otonabee river, while Peterborough manufacturers and domestic consumers await with dismay the pulling of the switches to save power, the shortage of which is due to insufficient rainfall in the Province of Quebec?

Yours truly,
W. TINKER.

A Poor Joke?

Trying to get a rise out of an engineer on a railway train endangered the lives of three men in Georgia and caused considerable damage to the rolling stock of the train.

A motor driver was seized with the wonderful inspiration that he would test the temper or skill of the locomotive driver; so, backing on the track when an approaching train hove in sight, he waited until the train came to a shrieking standstill a few feet from his standing car, in which he and his two companions sat. The report failed to state whether the trio were intoxicated, but it is difficult to imagine that they were not so, in view of the crazy stunt.

Having stopped the train and lived to experience the thrill of waiting for what seemed like approaching death, they laughed at the engineer for his pains. That was enough to disturb the good feeling of the best of engineers, and he might have been excused had he visited physical punishment on that jokers there and then.

For foolish tricks this must hold the record, and if ever repeated the result will likely be the preliminary step to a funeral.—Guelph Mercury.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

My voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up.... For thou, Lord, wilt bless the righteous; with favour wilt thou compass him as with a shield. (Ps. 5: 3, 12.)

◇ ◇ ◇

And Moses with the elders of Israel commanded the people, saying, Keep all the commandments which I command you this day. (Deut. 27: 1.)

And it shall come to pass, if thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the Lord thy God, to observe and to do all his commandments which I command thee this day, that the Lord thy God will set thee on high above all nations of the earth: and all these blessings shall come on thee, and overtake thee, if thou shalt hearken unto the voice of the Lord thy God.

Blessed shalt thou be in the city, and blessed shalt thou be in the field . . Blessed shall be thy basket and thy store. Blessed shalt thou be when thou comest in, and blessed shalt thou be when thou goest out....

The Lord shall command the blessing upon thee in thy storehouses, and in all that thou settest thine hand unto; and he shall bless thee in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee. The Lord shall establish thee an holy people unto himself, as he hath sworn unto thee, if thou shalt keep the commandments of the Lord thy God, and walk in his ways.

And all people of the earth shall see that thou art called by the name of the Lord (Deut. 28: 1-3, 5, 6, 8-10.)

Why This Difference In Prices?

When the Commons committee is looking for prices to investigate, it can find some clues in statistics presented to it by Mr. K. W. Taylor, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Mr. Taylor has given comparative prices, Canadian and United States, for food products. The Canadian index is 26.4 per cent. lower than the United States, as of December. Except for a few cases, the Canadian prices are less.

There are four exceptions, however, which arouse a question. A 28-ounce tin of canned tomatoes costs 25.9 cents in Canada, against 23.4 cents in the United States; a 20-ounce tin of canned peas is 17.2 cents against 15.4; canned corn (same size), 21.0 against 19.3, and canned peaches, 39.1 against 37.7 cents.

These vegetables and fruits grown in Canada, right in Essex County. Why should a can of tomatoes, or peas, or corn or peaches cost more in Canada? Especially when the price of raw vegetables grown in Canada, according to Mr. Taylor's list, is less than that of the corresponding vegetables in the United States.

It is possible there is a satisfactory answer to this, but it is not apparent. Canadians are entitled to know what it is, if there is one.—Windsor Star.

A traveller, writer and editor for half his 34 years, he typifies the blend of youth and experience that marks Maclean's fresh but authoritative approach to a fast-changing world.

Blair Fraser Ottawa Editor

Blair Fraser is Maclean's and Canada's top political commentator. From Ottawa he gives the lowdown on the higher-ups. As special correspondent he's covered world conferences from Paris to San Francisco. His integrity, insight and ability to state complex problems in simple terms have earned him high praise from the nation's leaders and readers alike.

Scott Young Articles

Scott Young knows what interests people. His job is to trap it in Maclean's articles. He keeps in constant contact with top feature writers on six continents, helps them hatch ideas, suggests newsworthy angles. A hard man to please, his tough standards are applied to all nonfiction material and accounts for its consistently high readership.

R. G. Anglin Production

Jerry Anglin sees that each issue gets to the printers—on time. A worksheet in one hand, a calendar in the other, he makes daily progress checks, tracks down bottlenecks, prods fellow editors, steams up production in all departments. Also contributes a steady flow of article ideas and triples in brass on slack days as a crack reporter.

John Clare Fiction

Every morning John Clare tears into a mound of manuscripts, sniffs each one for the spore of genius. He's equipped with a keen nose for pace, tension, action, the yarn that stimulates and entertains. His resolve to print just that keeps Maclean's fiction tops with short story addicts. And he practices his precepts in frequent contributions of his own.

A. S. Marshall Copy

Adam Marshall is the last tough hurdle each article must pass on its way from original brainwave to Maclean's composing room. Formerly news editor for one of Canada's leading newspapers, his constant tools are an encyclopedic memory, insatiable curiosity, a passion for clarity. He writes most titles, "blurbs" and cutlines for the stories he checks and smooths.

Pierre Berton Assignments

Pierre Berton is long, lean, loquacious. Came to Maclean's by way of the Yukon and Vancouver. Now sets local production records for articles turned in. He delights in off-beat characters, fantastic situations, as attested by his recent life story of an octopus impressario and his report on the United Nations Assembly at Lake Success.

Eva-Lis Wuorio Assignments

Miss Wuorio is Finnish by birth, Canadian by choice, a writer by inclination. Before joining Maclean's she was one of Canada's leading newspaperwomen and a prolific writer of short stories and articles. As unofficial spokeswoman for Maclean's 770,000 women readers she is always sure of a respectful hearing at all editorial conclaves.

D. M. Battersby Art Editor

Dave Battersby is in charge of Maclean's art, make-up and design. He makes the final recommendation on every aspect of the magazine's "dress," from type size to front cover artist. He picks top illustrators, encourages bold layouts, strong contrasts of light, shade and color. An artist himself, his own work frequently hangs in Canadian art galleries.

N. O. Benisteel Photo Editor

Since 1935 "Bonnie" has been a versatile anchor man. Now in charge of all photos used in Maclean's. He keeps close tab on the country's cameramen, knows where to lay hands on "shots" of anything from a microbe to a mountain. Also in charge of production in the Art Department, makes sure that art layouts don't keep the type waiting at the altar.

THESE ARE the people who make Maclean's indispensable reading for over 1,790,000 Canadian men and women. In this lineup are crack correspondents, political analysts, authors, artists—people who know journalism, make-up, art, experts on every phase of magazine production. They know Canada. And they know Canadians—their interests, their preference in reading matter: crisp reports on world events, outstanding personalities, national affairs, political trends, fast-paced fiction, the latest on movies, sports, science. They have cracked down on racketeers, focused attention on subversive minority groups, exposed violations of law and decency and influenced the thinking of a large and powerful segment of the Canadian public. Their achievement has made Maclean's more than a magazine . . . they have made it an institution in the lives of one and three quarter million Canadian men and women.

ight Mat Stars t Brock Tonight

The team bout between the ombination of Wee Willie Davis nd the Masked Marvel and the uo of Earl McCready and Big en Sharpe gets nder way on the Brock Arena mat onight. The ring s expected to be ull of flying odies and the ction should, by ll accounts be nothing short of terrific. Davis and his masked partner will have lenty of trouble on their hands Earl and Ben bear down the ay they did last week.

Lee Henning

In the additional favor of McCready and Sharpe is the condition that the bout will have no-time-limit. It took a lot of financial persuading to get The Mask to agree to the no-time limit clause.

If The Mask and Davis lose the mask must come off regardless of which man is responsible for the loss.

A starry supporting card has been lined up with Jim "Goon" Henry meeting big Pete Managoff in the semi-final and Lee Henning introducing Bill Kusisto, the Chicago Bears footballer. This is one of the greatest arrays of mat talent to ever appear here.

Confederation Wins

Confederation juniors continued their winning streak last night on home ice by defeating Prince of Wales 3 to 1. This is the first time Confederation has been able to best the Prince of Wales team in the winter games.

Play was fast and rugged on fairly good ice. R. Bryan tallied first for the winners from a scramble in front of the P of W net. In the second period Buott took a neat pass from Dunn to tie the score.

In the third period R. Bryan scored twice again to end the scoring.

Buott was a standout for the losers, while Dick in goal stopped many fast ones to keep down the score.

The teams:

Confederation—Goal, M. Bryan; defence, R. Bryan, R. Miller; centre, B. Bryan; wings, M. Pavy, E. Dunstan; subs, R. Bolton, D. Sloan.

Prince of Wales—Goal, P. Deck; defence, L. Mongraw, C. Stave; centre, A. Buott; wings, J. Armstrong, R. Dunn; subs, N. Clarke, Brockwell.

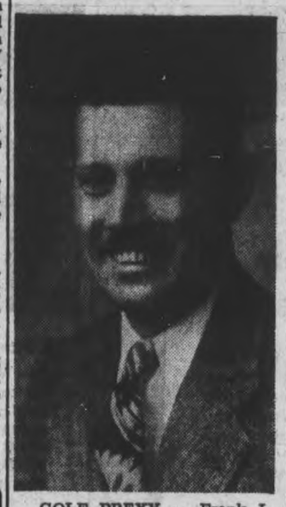
Rotary Loses First One To Belleville

Belleville Merchants handed the local Rotarians their first defeat of the season when they won 8-3 in Omemee. It was the first game of their goals-to-count OMHA midget "B" playdown series, and the visitors took advantage of some poor defensive play in the first frame to ram home four goals. Rotary weren't clicking and four of the Belleville eight goals were soft. Robinson fought hard for the homesters to score three goals.

The Belleville boys played smart, fast hockey in the clean encounter and deserved the victory, though not by such a margin. They outscored Rotary 4-1 in the first, and 2-1 each in the second and third chukkers. Green, Brown and Strachan were the big scorers for the victors, who carry home a five-goal lead for the Thursday encounter. The teams:

Belleville—Goal, Barclay; defence, Mulligan and Green; centre, Brown; wings, Strachan and Gilmour; alternates, Berwick, Bennett, Doran, Carey, Hurst, O'Brien and Jones.



Rotary—Goal, Batley; defence, Bigford and R. Ferguson; centre, Jenson; wings, Douglas and Jones; alternates, Robinson, Ferguson, Gandy, Shearer, Gooley and Telford.

Cleveland Wins 14th Straight

By The Canadian Press.

Cleveland's red hot Barons drew within one point of first place in the American Hockey League's Western circuit last night and at the same time stretched their unbeaten string to 14 games.

The Barons shut out the league-leading Pittsburg Hornets 6-0 in Cleveland. Barons have dropped only one game in their last 22.

Cleveland scored twice in each period with Bob Solinger the team's prize left wing rookie bagging two goals. Bob Carse, Fred Thurier, Church Russell, and Johnny Holota each scored one goal.

Meanwhile the tail-end Washington Lions dumped the defending champion Hershey Bears 8-7 in a wild and roughly-played contest in Washington.

At St. Louis, Flyers battled the Springfield Indians to a 3-3 stalemate. Flyers took a 3-0 lead on goals by Ronald Wilson, Eddie Olson and Paul Gladu, but Indians came back strong to knot the count. Alan Kuntz scored twice while Andy Summerhill bagged one goal.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A clipping from the Star's "Hal B" of interest to harness horsemen re the $50,000 Golden West Pace in Santa Anita in May: "Stewart Direct, 2.06 1-5, owned by Hugh Stewa Peterborough, one of the most consistent winners at Batavia and [illegible], N.Y., last year, is another Canuck-bred wiggler who is now stabled at Del Mar and being prepped for the big race by the Ontario trainer and driver, Clint Hodgins. Hugh loaded the gelding in an express car and shipped him to the west coast which would indicate that the son of Prince Direct has shown sufficient to warrant the traffic charges."

* * * * * *

Quinte columnist remarks: "And now we trust both Kingston and Belleville managements are convinced that hockey silk purses cannot be made out of sows' ears, despite the valiant efforts of a few to maintain teams equivalent to the Peterborough conquerors. Even the at-times eloquent references to the 'illustrious Locos' of two years ago failed to give the Saints the required ability to sink the Legion ship. Hockey is like poker—you can bluff your way to the occasional pot but in long run, if you haven't got the cards, you've had it. And it looks quite plain now that even with the benefit of pre-season training and skating, something the Peterborough squads did not have, the Kingston and Belleville teams were short the proper manpower necessary to cope with the Liftlock lads after they got the kinks out of their legs and arms."

* * * * * *

And Here It Comes

And now comes the series local fans have been hoping for since the start of the season. The OHA senior "B" group finals betwixt Legion and the Petes. A four-in-seven serial starting Friday eve at 8.30 on Omemee ice. They alternate next week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, and it can't end in less than four frays. So, if the ice holds out, folks can bank on some swell battles before one or the other of the Peterborough puck squads bows out for the year. Big crowds will view these classics and the rivalry of those feudin' teams will be exceeded only by the rabidness of the fan followings of Legionnaires and the Petes. There'll be blood on the moon ere it's o'er, mes hearties.

* * * * * *

Trite or not, 'tis a sad thought that no rink exists in this borough for such a series. A "natural" all the way between two classy, well-matched and scrappy local teams, every home game would pack in up to 4,000 Peterborough fans easily, we'd bet. Instead of that, the "home" games for this all-Peterborough series will be staged in Omemee and Lindsay. Fine for the fans of those centres, somewhat satisfactory for those here willing to travel to them, but a rough deal on many puck followers here who won't make the trips. Oh, well, maybe better times are coming soon.

* * * * * *

It's Tougher Now

In Omemee last evening, our Lions edged Midland 8-7 in the first of their OMHA bantam "B" semi-finals to take a one-goal lead back to Midland on Thursday. But our Rotarians took the short side of their OMHA midget "B" game with Belleville 8-3 and have a five-goal deficit for the Thursday return tilt on Quinte ice. It's a fourth-round series for Rotary and they'll have to pull up their sox for the return date. It gets tougher and tougher the further you travel along the provincial playdown trail. Besides these teams in midget "B" there are three clubs left, including Collingwood with a bye. It's either Waterloo or Port Colborne vs. Sarnia in the other series. In bantam "B", Lions are definitely in semi-finals. A PMHA game at the Bowl on Thursday, North-end midgets vs. Rotary. Then a few postponements and that round-robin serial is o'er.

* * * * * *

Coach Archie Weir's junior "B" Oddfellows face the acid test in Port Hope tonight when they settle their group semi-final series with Danforths. Each team has won one game (by two goals) while one has been tied. Two went overtime, so they're well-matched, and the sawoff is tonight. They're either out for the season or they hit into finals against Whitby. In Whitby on Friday and back in Port Hope next Monday in a two-in-three setup. An ambitious bunch of boys, ably looked after by the coach, Manager Walter Hargreaves, Prexy Tom Busby and several other officials, they are doing their best to make a real showing despite a rinkless handicap, and we trust curfew does not ring tonight for them.

Pat Switches Date

President Pat Calladine of the men's City Softball League has announced that the annual loop meeting will be held next Tuesday, March 2, at 7.30 p.m. in the YMCA. It was originally called for Monday but has been shoved back a day on account of the Petes-Legion playoff that night up Lindsay way. The meeting is an open one to elect officers, present reports, name OASA delegates, and make general plans for the coming season. The circuit had a highly successful summer in 1947 and looks for at least as good as one in this year of grace 1948. Those interested should be on deck next Tuesday night.

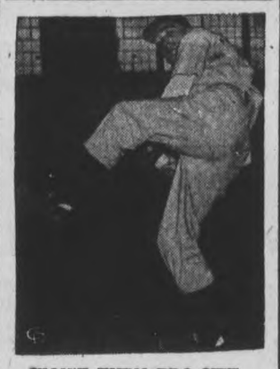
Lions Get Edge By A Goal From Midland



In a thrilling OMHA bantam semi-final game in Omemee last night, the local Lions pulled out an 8-7 decision over Midland in the last three minutes of play. They will take this one-goal lead back to Midland on Thursday in the return joust of this important goals-to-count series.

In the first period Spencer did the hat trick for Lions with three markers, as Stewart and Langhorne each counted. Sturgeon shone with two Midland markers and Vasey got one to end the heat 5-3. They outscored Lions 3-1 in the second as Sturgeon, Ritchie and Kennedy counted, with McGrath getting one for the Lions. Pammett and Stewart scored in the third for the homesters, Ferguson aiding in both, while Morrow got one for Midland. It was fast, clean hockey throughout. Spencer had three goals and an assist, while McGrath and Ferguson were each in on three and Pammett and Ferguson two each. The teams:

Midland—Goal, Smith; defence, Green and Ritchie; centre, Sturgeon; wings, Arbour and Kennedy; alternates, Moreau, Yorke, Vasey, Mendry, Roberts and Brooks.

Lions — Goal, Delahaye; defence, Stewart and Byrne; centre, Pammett; wings, Ferguson and Langhorne; alternates, McGrath, Spencer, Scriver, McCormick, McGillen and Allen.

Referee—R. Ouimet.

WON'T TURN PRO YET — Twenty-year-old Frank Quinn, fireball pitcher for the Yale team at New Haven, Conn., has decided to refuse some tempting offers from the big leagues, at least until he graduates. The big right hander, above, came to New York Yankees, but said afterwards, "I am interested in a major league career but I'll think of that after I have been graduated."

FIGHTER KILLED—Firemen are seen using a pulmotor in a futile effort at reviving Sam Baroudi in the dressing room at the Chicago, Ill., stadium. Baroudi was knocked out in the tenth round of his battle with Ezzard Charles. Dr. John J. Drammis, official physician of the Illinois State Athletic commission, examined Baroudi immediately after the bout and said his condition was serious. The stocky Negro fighter was then rushed to Columbus hospital where he died of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mercurys Meet Kitchener In Semi-final Series

By the Canadian Press.

The Senior A Ontario Hockey Association playoff field narrowed last night as the quarter-finals ended and it was decided what teams would meet in the second semi-final series.

Owen Sound Mercurys waltzed through Hamilton Patricias with a 15-6 victory to win their quarter-finals in two straight games. Kitchener-Waterloo had a closer 3-1 win over Stratford Indians to take their series in two straight. Owen Sound now will meet Kitchener-Waterloo in a best-of-seven semi-final series with the winner taking on the Hamilton Tigers-Toronto Marlboros series victor for the title.

Only in the initial frame were the Pats able to keep anywhere on even terms with Mercurys as the period ended with Mercurys on the top end of a 3-2 score. Mercurys upped the count to 8-4 at the end of the middle frame and then scored seven more times in the final to complete the rout.

Tommy Burlington, Mercury playing-coach, again was the big gun with five goals and three assists. Jack Ingoldsby was close behind with two goals and four assists. Bruce Small scored twice and received three assists, while Bun White fired three goals. Johnny Sullivan, Pat McReavy, and Fred Smith scored one goal each.

Dougie Runions scored the first three goals for the Pats and then Bryon Robinson counted twice, and Frank Long once.

Nineteen penalties were handed out by referees Pat Patterson and Honey Kuntz as officating continued to be strict.

Closely Played

That Kitchener-Waterloo game was even more closely played than the score indicates, and only the stellar net-minding of Keith Woodall in the Kitchener nets and good luck gave the Dutchmen their margin of victory.

Don Bauer was credited with the first Kitchener goal in the initial frame when the rubber went past Goalie Bob Bindernagel off one of his own mates. Mickey Roth tied the count for Stratford in the second frame and just five minutes later, Art Hurst banged in a rebound to put the Dutchmen one up again. The final Kitchener tally came in the third period when Johnny Blute's shot bounced off Bindernagel's shoulder into the corner of the net with less than two minutes gone.

Stratford put on terrific pressure after that, but Woodall and a strong defence kept them at bay. Here, too, officiating was firm as referees Kenny Holmshaw and Bill Morrison meted out 16 penalties, eight to each team.

Fighting Bruins Face Leafs In Game Tonight

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Without shouting about it, of course, the Toronto Maple Leafs had confidently figured that tonight's home game against the Boston Bruins would provide the Leafs with a victory and a two-point advantage over Detroit Red Wings. With the Wings and the Leafs deadlocked for the league lead, and the schedule rapidly running out, the Leafs simply can't afford to lose to the Bruins.

But that weird Detroit story yesterday about a bookie who said two players from Bruins and New York Rangers had been betting on games had more results than anyone dreamed of. While the league moguls were busy cleaning up the executive angles, the Boston Bruins hockey players were getting madder and madder.

Boston Manager Art Ross cleaned all his players after a hotel room inquisition at Toronto last night, but you can imagine how the Bruins are going to tear into the Leafs—or anyone else, for that matter. From Goalie Brimsek on out, the Bruins are going to be tough to handle at Maple Leaf Gardens to-night.

The only other game to-night has New York Rangers entertaining the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks.

Apart from the deadlocked first-place teams, the Rangers and Boston are the league's chief duellists at the moment. Rangers in third place are a game ahead of the Bruins.

Canadiens are seven points behind the fourth and last play-off spot with only 11 games to go. Chicago is four points behind Montreal. Both the tail-enders get their chance Saturday night, when Chicago is at Toronto and Canadiens entertain Detroit. And there are just four week-ends left before the schedule closes March 21.

THROUGH SKIING

Mrs. Gretchen Fraser, United States Olympic team gold medallist, yesterday said at Oslo, that she is through with competitive skiing. "At 29 I think it's too exhausting to be training and travelling around all through the winter. Moreover, I have a husband whom I haven't seen for three months and in the future I prefer living a family life."

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press.

Maurice Richard, Montreal Canadien right winger drove a puck past Toronto's Frank McCool with less than three minutes to play in Montreal three years ago tonight for his 45th goal of the year. Richard finished the 50-game season with 50 goals, to beat Joe Malone's National Hockey League mark of 44 goals, set in 1918 over a 22-game schedule.

Omaha Trips Dallas

By The Associated Press

Omaha Knights and the Houston Huskies share the season's high game scoring mark in the United States Hockey League today. The Knights crashed an even dozen scores into the Dallas goal last night at Omaha for a 12-1 victory. Previously Houston held the scoring crown with a 12-5 mark achieved against the Knights Dec. 28.

At Tulsa, Minneapolis Millers bowed 3-1.

Paul Gauthier clamped the scoring gates shut against Fort Worth Rangers to help Houston to a 3-0 victory.

DANGEROUS VAPORS

Gasoline vapors have been found to have anaesthetic effects similar to those of alcoholic vapors.

Eastern Title For Lakefield Boys

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 25.—(ENS).—The village Sea Scout bantams grabbed themselves a minor crown last night on their home ice, when they took the Eastern Ontario bantam "C" championship, battering Gananoque Rotarians 13-1.

Some 500 fans turned out to see the return match with the easterners and many were turned away from the rink as the youngsters took their round 26-6.

A midnight call to OMHA officials disclosed the information that Bolton, winners of the northwestern group, play Sundridge, northern champions, in Bolton Thursday and the return match in Sundridge Saturday. Winners will play Lakefield in Lakefield next Tuesday and the return match the following Saturday for the semi-final. The winners will play off for the provincial bantam crown in the Maple Leaf Gardens with the south-western Ontario victors of the Glencoe-Elmira, Port Dalhousie-Milton round.

Gordon Coyle spark-plugged the victors with four goals, Heffernan running him a close second with three. Twist played an outstanding game, scoring two and making play after play for other goals. Spike Sloan, the speedy little wing man, also grabbed a couple.

Chinese Goalie

Tiny three foot Wilf Lee, the Chinese Rotarian goalie, whose head barely reached the top of the net, beat the hard driving Lakefielders time after time with sensational saves, while R. Hawkins, Redmond and Mathews starred for the visitors.

Gananoque opened trying hard and held the Scouts down to one goal in the first period, with their midget goalie drawing rounds of applause for his net work.

In the second period the Scouts opened up a bit and ran in four goals, while the Rotarians grabbed their only goal of the night.

The final session saw the Lakefielders swamp the opposition as they piled in eight goals in a fast series of power plays.

Trainer Sure Armed Through

MIAMI, Feb. 25 — (AP). — Trainer Jimmy Jones won't say anything, but you'd be pretty safe in betting that Armed never will run another race. Jimmy sticks to his statement that the "Golden Gelding" no longer can carry 130 pounds, and that's the kind of assignments he draws . . . another good bet is that Clarence (Mr. Kay) Kantrowitz, the "amateur" who promoted last night's Pep-Sierra fight, has a lot more knowledge and less money than he had when he came here a month ago . . . Kantrowitz, a film distributor who is dabbling in television and maybe a few more businesses, figures he could afford to take a loss, but the boys who came down from New York all wanted to be paid for their vacations . . .

The Personal Touch

Lee Evans, youthful Miami sports writer, heard so often that Humberto Sierra didn't have a punch that he decided to find out for himself . . . he arranged to go one round against the Cuban in training and was belted out in 54 seconds . . . When Pete Norton, the Tampa scribe, heard about that one, he moaned: does that mean that when I criticize a football player or a jockey I have to get in there and play, tackle or ride a horse? That's making things too tough.

Sports Before Your Eyes

Danny Lamon's Widener Handicap winner, El Mono, will race in the double event at Tropical Park before going north. In two races, the colt has won $68,200—considerably more than the whole Calumet string has collected . . . That's not bad for a horse that was entered in the McLennan only because his owner got a kick out of having a starter in a big stake.

Joe Louis In London

LONDON, Feb. 25 —(AP)—Joe Louis arrived in London today and ambled through the biggest crowd of backslapping boxing fans ever assembled at Waterloo Station. The heavyweight champion will give training and sparring exhibitions at Earl's Court. He brought along 300 steaks.

Fills Council Vacancy

TORONTO, Feb. 25 — (CP). — Aldermanic representative of ward seven since 1943, Edward C. Roelofson, yesterday was chosen by city council to fill the vacancy on the Board of Control caused by the elevation of Hiram McCallum to the mayoralty.

Trenton Flyers Trounce Cobourg

BELLEVILLE. Feb. 25 (CP).—Trenton RCAF Flyers broke loose in the final period to trounce Cobourg Pavilions, 13-7, here Tuesday night to even their best-of-three, semi-final series for the right to meet Trenton Hockey Club for the local OHA intermediate "A" group championship.

Play was fairly even for the first two stanzas but the Airmen displayed scoring punch in the final period to out-score Cobourg, 7-3. Gordy Ault, with three goals and an assist, led the Trenton attack, while Ted Miller and Al Middleton each had two goals and as many assists. Ed Haynes and Joe Baker each scored twice for Cobourg.

The third and deciding game will be played in Belleville Friday night.

Cobourg Pavilions: Goal, Cane; defence, Edwardson, Forbes; centre, B. Cane; wings, Haynes, Freeman; alternates, Bolger, Baker, Campbell, Fisher, McMillan, Hessin, Lewis.

Trenton RCAF Flyers: Goal, Robertson; defence, Middleton, Cowick; centre, Ault; wings, Miller, Dennie; alternates, Provost, O'Meara, Prot, Ruzycki, Sargent, Brackenberry, Edwards, McKenna (sub-goal).

It Doesn't Pay To Drink On Set March Declares

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25 (AP).—It helps to play a drunk on the screen, but don't do it on the set. This advice comes from Fredric March, an expert of (movie) drinking scenes.

The actor's dissertation arose as we considered how well the Academy regards stars who play souses. Witness such recent winners as Ray Milland ("The Lost Week-End"), James Dunn ("A Tree Grows in Brooklyn"), Anne Baxter ("The Razor's Edge"). This year Susan Hayward was nominated for her boozy role in "Smash-Up."

March, whose tippling and hangover scenes in "Best Years" helped win him an Oscar, had this explanation:

"Perhaps it is the fascination of a still puritanical nation in something that is considered evil — drinking."

Fun To Play

March remarked that it is fun to play drunks, and not particularly difficult. "Of course, I always study other people to prepare for my drinking scenes," he smiled. I asked if it helped to act while looped.

"I don't think so. If you get too fried, you lose focus on the character. There's an old saying about liquor — it can't make you do anything better."

March's experiences of drinking while playing drunks have been none too happy. He guzzled real champagne in "A Star Is Born" and vodka in "Anne Karenina" and the realism rewarded him with a bad head each time. During "Design For Living," he and Gary Cooper killed a bottle of brandy and shooting had to be suspended while the actors slept it off.

Older and wiser, he merely spun around a few times for the "Best Years" bar scene. Same effect, he said.

Deserved Break

School teachers are going to get a deserved break in future movies. Barbara Hale is playing a school marm in "The Boy With Green Hair." M.G.M. is planning "The Saintly Miss Peters" for Greer Garson, and Warners has "Miss O'Brien" for Joan Crawford and is mentioning Barbara Stanwyck for "Miss Richmond Takes Grant." All of them will touch on the need for higher pay for teachers. Also, they will show that teachers can be glamorous.

CANADIAN OLYMPIC TEAM — Two young Canadian skaters, Suzanne Morrow of Toronto, and Wally Diestelmeyer of Kitchener, returned home from the Olympic games and the world skating championships on Monday. But it was a brief stay for the skating pair. They left by plane from Malton airport, Toronto, the same night, this time to Edmonton, Alta., and the start of an extensive Canadian tour. The couple, who placed third both in the Olympics and in the world championships, will appear in skating carnivals throughout the country.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Barbara Ann Scott, Olympic and world figure-skating champion, arrived by air in Paris yesterday from Copenhagen.

Connie Mack yesterday disclosed he had come through a serious illness without anybody knowing but the family. Mack, 85-year-old owner-manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, said he had a cold in the chest upon arrival at St. Petesburg, Fla., a few months ago and his temperature went to 102 and 103 degrees. "There were a couple of days the doctor was worried about me, but I fooled him and pulled through," said Mack.

Canadian Olympic speed-skater Frank Stack and Gordon Audley arrived home in Winnipeg yesterday from Switzerland and described as "terrific" the performances at the games of Barbara Ann Scott and the championship RCAF hockey team. Stack, 41-year-old skater who competed for Canada in the 1932 Olympics, confirmed that he had retired as he had announced earlier.

Rugged and ring-wise Arturo Godoy moved another notch along the comeback trail last night as he pounded out a unanimous 10-round decision over Irish Pat Richard, Ohio State pre-med student. Godoy, who went 15 rounds with champion Joe Louis in 1940, and later ran into a six-round kayo at the hands of the heavyweight king, floored hard-punching Richard for a nine-count in the opening round and for an eight-count in the fourth.

Pep Retains His Title, Downs Sierra

MIAMI, Feb. 25.—(AP).—Cuban Humberto Sierra's effort to lift the world featherweight championship from Willie Pep was just water over the dam today.

Pep, probably the busiest and best little man in the boxing business, retained his title last night when he knocked out Sierra in 22 seconds of the 10th round.

And the rain, pouring down on 10,000 spectators in the Orange Bowl, probably will be remembered longer than the fight.

During the semi-final between Olle Tanberg of Sweden and Walter Hafer of Washington, won by Tanberg, the first of a series of hard showers fell.

It was too late to call things off and the rains continued right through the championship bout, reaching a moist climax just as Pep finally found the range with a series of devastating wallops that left Sierra flat on the canvas while Referee Jack Dempsey dispensed with the formality of a count.

Although the lanky Cuban had gone 10 rounds with Pep in a non-title bout last summer, it was obvious from the start that he was no match for Pep. Willie tested him in a strenuous first round, then virtually coasted with until the ninth, jabbing, dodging, catching punches on his arms and using his right only on rare occasions when there was a clear shot.

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.—(CP). — Mr. Justice J. C. A. Cameron of the Exchequer Court of Canada, has been appointed chairman of Conciliation Board established to deal with a wage dispute involving Canadian railways and a group of international unions, Labor Minister Mitchell announced today.

The unions represent approximately 125,000 of the employees involved, which include the Canadian National Railways, the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway, and the Ontario Northland Railway.

The dispute arose from demands of employees for a wage increase of 35 cents an hour, effective last Dec. 20.

Thirteen countries were represented at the two-day committee meeting.

Beet Growers Protest Want Price Guarantee

WINNIPEG, Feb. 25 (CP). — The Manitoba Beet Growers' Association will hold a protest meeting Friday to discuss governmental refusal of a 1948 beet price guarantee asked by the Canadian Association, Herbert Sulkers, Manitoba president, said yesterday. The Canadian Association has asked the government for a guaranteed price for its 1948 crop, Mr. Sulkers said.

The beet growers fear a drop in beet sugar prices in the event of Canadian markets being flooded with cane sugar, and want some accurance they will be able to continue showing a profit. Mr. Sulkers quoted a letter from Finance Minister Douglas Abbottt stating that if any material drop in world sugar prices occurred, the Canadian price of refined sugar would be lowered.

Will Prosecute

OTTAWA, Feb. 25 — (CP). — A portion of the $1,000,000 "mystery money" taken by R.C.M.P. officials from a safety deposit box in Montreal has become involved under foreign exchange control board regulations and the board will prosecute the owner, an executive official said yesterday. The owner has been identified only as a "prominent Montreal textile merchant."

Separate Gas Rate In Windsor

WINDSOR, Feb. 25 (CP)—City council and provincial authorities will be asked for approval on a separate gas rate structure which has been proposed for Windsor.

The new rates are to apply for an interim period, possibly three to four months, while union gas company's application for higher rates throughout western Ontario is heard by the Ontario gas referee.

The basis of the separate agreement is a statement by the company that it could assure gas supply even during the cold winter months if it is enabled to spend $600,000 for storage or propane gas. To finance this project the company says it must have higher rates.

The temporary proposal, if acceptable to city council and approved by the provincial government, will not prejudice the argument of either the company or municipality in the forthcoming rate hearings.

Terms of the agreement are satisfactory both to the company and the committee of industrialists whose plants were severely hit during the recent gas shortage.

TORONTO, Feb. 25 — (CP). — The Ontario Securities Commission yesterday confirmed the six-month suspensions of registrations of stock salesmen E. G. Darkening Skies May Bring Windsor Cutoff

WINDSOR, Feb. 25 — (CP)— Darkening skies will jump Windsor's Hydro load today and may cause the city's first compulsory cut-off since last Friday, J. Clark Keith, Utilities manager, said. More lights will be turned on. It always happens when the sky is overcast.

"We won't know until later in the day," said the Hydro spokesman. "But it seems likely that a much greater load will be consumed today. We were right on the border line during the last two days even though we did not have to pull switches."

Industrial Editors Told Job Important

HAMILTON, Feb. 25—(CP)— Martin J. Cahill of St. Catharines last night told the Canadian Industrial Editors Association that their work had taken on special importance in the light of such present-day developments as unrest and serious shortages.

Director of the Public relations for McKinnon Industries, Mr. Cahill said the task of industrial editors was to interpret management to workers, workers to management and company policy to customers and the community at large.

Of management, he said most executives reached the top the hard way and cited many who developed illness which resulted from continuous working under pressure. Many workers did not know this, picturing the man at the top as one with an easy, highly-paid job. On the other hand, the man in management needed to know his duty to the community and "eventually he may stand or fall on what people think of him and his business."

Private Car For Mackenzie Considered 'Reasonable'

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.—(CP). — Transport Minister Chevrier said in the Commons today he had considered it "reasonable, appropriate and courteous" to allow Senator Ian Mackenzie (L-British Columbia) to use a private railway car for a return trip to Vancouver after he was named to the Senate.

Replying to questions from C. W. Hodgson (PC-Victoria, Ont.), Mr. Chevrier said Mr. Mackenzie had asked for the private car a few days after his resignation as veterans minister. Mr. Mackenzie had said he wished to complete unfinished business in his riding of Vancouver Centre and that he wanted to bid farewell to his constituents.

He was at that time in possession of a pass entitling him to a private car. Since he had been a member of the Commons for 18 years and of the government for 13, Mr. Chevrier had considered it only 'reasonable, appropriate and courteous' to grant the privilege.

Expenses were borne by Mr. Mackenzie outside the salary of the car staff.

KINGSTON, Feb. 25 (CP). — Member of a family noted for its longevity Capt. Robert H. Carnegie, widely known Eastern Ontario retired mariner, celebrated his 90th birthday today, at the home of his son, Capt. Ross Carnegie. Capt. Carnegie spent the greater part of his life sailing ships on Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence river.

Born on Larue Island, he commanded many ships including the North King, the America, the Mississiqui, the Islander Wanderer, the Newsboy and the Waubic on the old Kingston-Cape Vincent N.Y. ferry run.

3rd Degree Methods

LONDON, Feb. 25 — (Reuters). — Richard Stokes, Labor, charged yesterday in the House of Commons that British and allied officers used third degree methods against Germans at the Bad Nenndorf interrogation camp in Germany. He said he had visited the camp and found men in cells with the temperature at 10 degrees below zero. "To my certain knowledge, one man had his legs frozen off," Stokes added.

California To Have Severe Power Cut

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 25 — (AP). — Northern and central California's worst winter drought in history resulted today in orders to cut the consumption of electrical power almost to wartime dimout proportions.

The state public utilities commission faced with a situation similar to that in southern Ontario, ordered seven utility companies to take drastic curtailment measures effective at 12:01 a.m. tomorrow.

Housewives were asked to cut their use of electricity by 10 per cent. Industrial and agricultural users, with few exceptions, must reduce their power use by at least 10 per cent or risk termination of all service.

The commission indicated that conservation will be necessary until fall.

332 Million Cut In British Army Estimates

LONDON, Feb. 25 (Reuters).—Expenditure of the British army in 1948-49 will be cut by £83,000,000 ($332,000,000) official army estimates showed today.

Total net expenditure proposed is £305,000,000 compared with £338,000,000 in 1947-48 and £682,000,000 in 1946-47.

Today's estimates show a cut in the gross annual cost of the army of more than £520,000,000—60 per cent—in the last two years. The actual saving, it was stated, is greater, for the 1946-47 total did not include payments for stores covered in later figures.

The new estimates still include war-to-peace transitional costs, but further large reductions in army strength are to take place during the year.

New Weapons

The statement on the estimates signed by War Minister Shinwell said new weapons were being planned for the army.

"The objective is to produce equipment which is a definite stride ahead in development rather than a modification of an existing type," the statement said.

It was hoped that repatriation of German prisoners-of-war from Britain would be completed by July, 1948, and from the Middle East by October, 1948.

Unless any major setback occurred, the Polish resettlement corps, with the exception of small liquidation units, would be dispersed by the end of the 1948-49 army year.

CPR Will Expand Freight Traffic Group

MONTREAL, Feb. 25 (CP). — Further expansion of the Canadian Pacific Railway's freight traffic organization was announced today by C. E. Jefferson, general traffic manager, in the appointment of assistant freight traffic managers at Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. Previously, there were such offices only at Montreal, Winnipeg and Chicago.

The new appointments are Aitken Walker at Toronto, John W. Fullerton at Montreal, Harry Arkle at Winnipeg and Kenneth M. Fatterly at Vancouver.

Mr. Walker will have jurisdiction over the railway's Northern Ontario districts; Mr. Fullerton, over the Quebec and New Brunswick districts; Mr. Arkle, over the Prairie and Pacific regions; and Mr. Fetterly, over the Pacific region and U.S. Pacific coast agencies.

Mr. Walker, a native of Glasgow and general freight agent at Toronto since 1934, started with the CPR as a clerk at Winnipeg in 1911.

Forgot His Accent

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25 — (AP)—An escaped Japanese war crimes suspect, disguised as a coolie, was captured today because he forgot his Chinese accent. K. Nakano, wartime gendarme chief on nearby Tsungming Island, was working as a pushboy of a pedicab — a ricksha with three wheels. Nakano argued with a passenger. In the excitement he got his tongue twisted. Chinese detectives arrested him.

Take Teachers Off Payroll

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 25 — (AP). — Willard E. Goslin, Minneapolis school superintendent, said all instructors would be removed from payrolls for the duration of the teachers strike for wage demands, which entered its second day this morning.

Goslin explained the payroll order would include 1,300 non-striking instructors as well as the 1,100 members of the teachers Federation (A.F.L.) who set up picket lines yesterday.

He said earlier no effort would be made to hold classes taught by non-strikers.

Placarded are 70 elementary schools, 11 senior high schools and an equal number of junior highs, whose 65,000 pupils continued an enforced vacation.

The strikers are asking an increase in minimum annual salaries from $2,000 to $3,000, plus a raise in the ceiling from $4,200 to $6,000 for teachers with master's degrees.

It's Jewelry-of-the-Month Now Only Costs Mere $10,000 A Year

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25—(UP)—Now it's a jewelry-of-the-month. And all it'll cost you, fellas, is $10,000 a year.

The lady with this 24-karat idea is Mme. Marianne Ostier. She dreams up fabulous jewelry for a living.

Says Men To Pay

"Men will pay the club fee," she says casually, "and furnish us a complete description of their wives' —or sweethearts'—faces and coloring. Then each month we supply a piece of jewelry."

That 10 grand probably sounds like loose change to Mme. Ostier. As the country's ace jewelry designer she handles $200,000 worth of diamonds as though they are dime-store glass. Today she was wearing $40,000 in diamonds and rubies and not even feeling very dressed up.

Mme. Ostier's pretty enough to be in Hollywood for a screen test. But she's just come from scribbling her name on a different kind of contract with Enterprise Studio —a piece of paper that will revolutionize part of the movie business.

The Real McCoy

From now on — in Enterprise movies, anyway—those diamonds and emeralds the pretty ladies wear will be the real McCoy. No more phony paste and green glass for Enterprise's glamor gals.

Mme. Ostier will be in charge of their "ice." And about time, she says. For years she's squirmed in her movie seat as actresses minced around in their rhinestone necklaces and colored glass gems.

"It's fake and it looks it," Mme. Ostier declared "Even people who know nothing about jewels can tell it's not the real thing. It cheapens the movies."

One day she could stand it no longer. She marched herself into the office of an Enterprise Studio executive and told him what was wrong with his movies. He listened.

Mme. Ostier came out with a new job—boss of the jewelry department.

"Merle Oberon wore a long necklace for one picture that was all wrong for the shape of her neck," Mme. Ostier said. "It made her look too old. Actresses with round faces should never, never wear long pendant earrings. Thin stars should not be weighted down with heavy Victorian necklaces.

"Now, all my designs will be made for individual stars—to suit their faces. The stones will be real. Too expensive? No, no, no. The gems can be sold once they are used. A second-hand diamond doesn't lose its value."

BUILD YOUR PERSONALITY!

If you can picture the person you would like to be, you can "grow" that personality and reap the success that goes with it. List 1,400 Cats and Dogs Handled By Humane Society

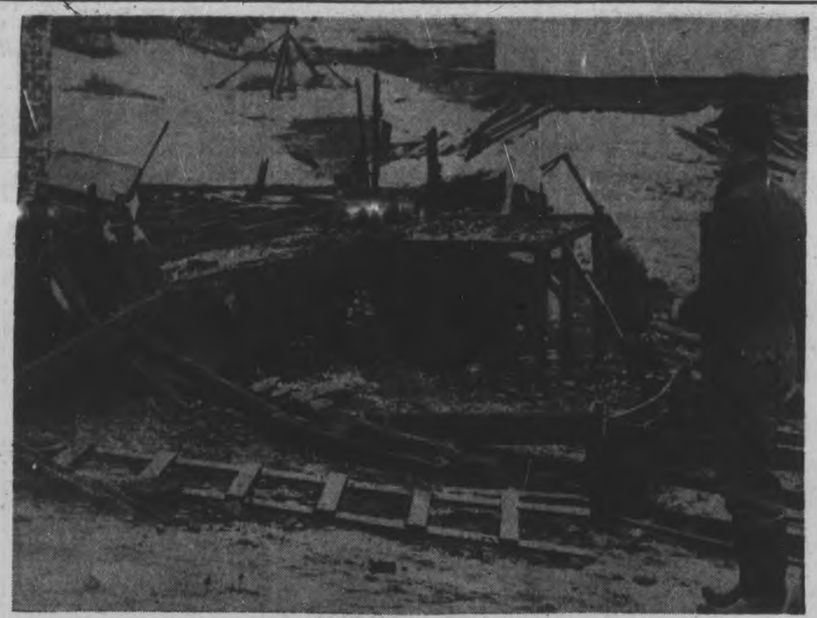
To alleviate the suffering of dumb animals would be the cardinal virtue of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Peterborough Humane Society has done an excellent job in this particular duty and during the past year, it has been able to ease the pain of many a suffering animal, or in cases beyond help put it mercifully to death.

More than 400 dogs were put to death in the electric box, and nearly 150 dogs were treated, for sickness and accidents where there was a chance of recovery. More than 90 per cent of the dogs destroyed were suffering from distemper, and the balance of dogs that had been run over in the street and injured beyond recovery. Nearly 700 cats were destroyed, for reasons of suffering from some disease, injured in the streets, or wandering about having no known home. In all more than 1,400 dogs and cats were handled in the city during the past year.

Dogs and cats are not the only animals that come within the scope of the Society's activities. The following shows the many calls that the Humane inspector may have where animals are suffering or in need of assistance: two tame foxes, one was being shipping in a crate that would prove to cause the animal suffering, as it was too small for the fox to move about comfortably; two bears were given attention, when it was seen that they were not being fed properly when they were shut in a pen; another time a cow had fallen in a creek and the inspector and other helpers were successful in pullinng it out. This year a valuable mare fell through the ice and again the Society's inspector and helpers managed to drag it out. Although the animal was given every attention, it died a few hours afterwards.

The Humane Society finds another duty in keeping a careful eye in the shipment of hogs from the breeder to the market. This year several cases came to the Society's attention where a careless farmer had shipped some pigs in a crate far too small for their well being, and in each case the farmer was made to re-crate the animals.

Ensuring the care for horses also entails a lot of work, and the following cases show that this is almost a full time job. One farm near Peterborough was reported as having 17 horses, some running loose and other shut in their stalls, the animals being in a starving condition. After careful investigation in this case, the society were successful in making a court case of this wilful neglect and the farmer was fined.



The inspection of horses on the street, and in cases necessary ordering them to be shod, again is the work of the society. During last year these cases were reported by the Society's inspector and action was taken:— one bread van horse made to run up hills by the driver; two horses made to gallop home after a hard day's work; two other bread van horses made to work 14 hours per day, which was considered too long; seven horses ordered off the streets due to being made to work with sore shoulders; four horses taken off the street as their mouths were torn and bleeding, due to jerking on the reins; one 24-year-old pony driven in from Keene, it was very thin and had a sore back and sores on its legs; two horses shut in their stable over the week-end without food and drink.

The inspection of cattle trucks by the Inspector has resulted in better care being taken. However there were reported several cases where the cattle were suffering. One inspection showed that a cow was found in a truck with a broken leg, and the beast was being trampled on by others in the truck. Here a court case was again successful and the trucker was fined $25 and costs.

Pet stores come under the supervision of the Society, thus ensuring that full care is taken of goldfish, turtles, rabbits, puppies, etc. Peterborough has taken one step in the right direction in that it has stopped the sale of female puppies on the market.

A list of the many duties and inspections made by the Inspector would be a formidable one indeed. Many inspections made prove that the animals inspected are in first class condition and well cared for their humane and thoughtful owners; on the other hand, unless these regular inspections were made, countless cases of untold hardship and in many cases sheer cruelty would go on unnoticed and the dumb animals would suffer.

New Price Control Policy Introduced In Britain

LONDON, Feb. 25—(CP).—Harold Wilson, President of the Board of Trade, yesterday signed 14 orders giving effect to a new British price control policy but said at a press conference that they will not prevent increases in the cost of living. The orders, effective March 15, bring under strict control nearly 200 articles regarded as non-essential which were only loosely controlled by previous legislation. They also prevent increased wages being added to the cost of a product without the consent of the Board of Trade.

The maximum price which manufacturers may charge is fixed at the lowest price charged during the two months ended Jan. 31.

Even with the new orders, British price control will not be as far-reaching in controlling the cost of living as were Canadian orders applied during the war.

"It must not be assumed that no prices will increase," Wilson said.

"There will be cases where increases are justified by rises in cost due to the higher cost of imported raw materials or by wage increase which are in accordance with the principles laid down in the White Paper on incomes."

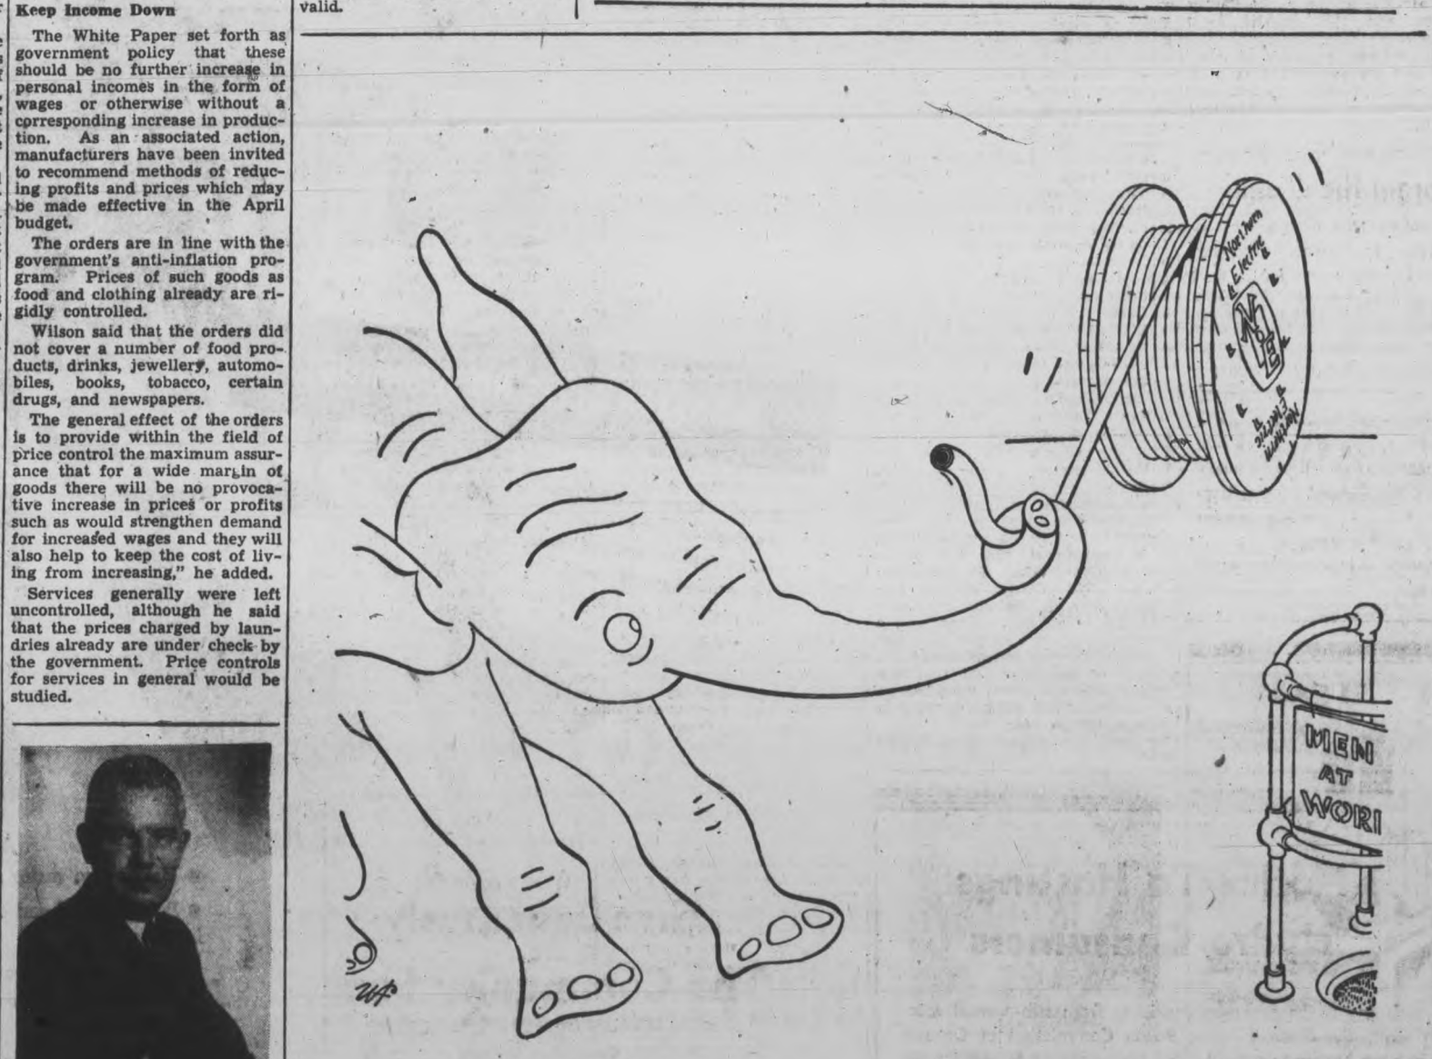
Keep Income Down

The White Paper set forth as government policy that these should be no further increase in personal incomes in the form of wages or otherwise without a corresponding increase in production. As an associated action, manufacturers have been invited to recommend methods of reducing profits and prices which may be made effective in the April budget.

The orders are in line with the government's anti-inflation program. Prices of such goods as food and clothing already are rigidly controlled.

Wilson said that the orders did not cover a number of food products, drinks, jewellery, automobiles, books, tobacco, certain drugs, and newspapers.

The general effect of the orders is to provide within the field of price control the maximum assurance that for a wide margin of goods there will be no provocative increase in prices or profits such as would strengthen demand for increased wages and they will also help to keep the cost of living from increasing," he added.



Services generally were left uncontrolled, although he said that the prices charged by laundries already are under check by the government. Price controls for services in general would be studied.

Believe Error Made In Levying Fines

TORONTO, Feb. 25—(CP)—J. P. Bickell, Ontario registrar of motor vehicles, said today in commenting on a Cochrane magistrate's judgment in cases of four men charged with not having 1948 motor vehicle operators' licenses that "there is an error some place and I will have to consult the Minister before issuing a statement."

At Cochrane yesterday, Magistrate E. R. Tucker registered convictions in the four cases and ruled that leeway granted motorists in obtaining new 1948 markers for their cars did not apply to operators' licenses, needed for driving.

So far, the Ontario Department of Highways has not announced the deadline after which 1947 motor vehicles licenses become invalid.

Mummy... I'm Hungry

HOW WOULD YOU FEEL if this were your child . . . and you had to say: "Sorry, darling, there just isn't anything"?

YET many a mother — and father — is faced today with just such a tragic fact. Throughout Europe and Asia children are literally starving — cold and miserable because they have no warm clothing.

Millions of them are in desperate need — for food, clothing, shelter, education. We in Canada are going to do our share to help meet those urgent needs. The Canadian Appeal for Children, now being conducted, has a minimum objective of $10,000,000 as Canada's contribution to the saving of the world's children and the world's future.

GIVE to the Canadian APPEAL FOR CHILDREN

YOU CAN HELP by doing just this:

Go to any Branch of THE ROYAL BANK OF CANADA — or any other chartered bank. Hand your contribution to the teller. He is ready to accept it, and will turn the money over to the Canadian Appeal for Children. Every cent collected will be distributed, where need is greatest, under the strict supervision of responsible United Nations' operating agencies.

How much you give is a question for your own conscience. Act TODAY; you will sleep better tonight knowing you have done your part for these millions of little ones who look to you for help.

Ontario Liberal Association. And it was expected that in midsummer a national meeting would convene to select a successor to Mr. King.

Want Aggressive Plan

"I hope that all the ridings of Central Ontario will adopt as aggressive a plan of organization as you have done here tonight," Mr. McNevin said. "The great majority of electors fails to realize the importance of our political associations, and especially in our poll subdivision groups, which are the life of our county associations. As we look about in Europe and other parts of the world today, we should feel a new desire to cherish and uphold our democratic institutions.

An important development in Liberalism last year was the meeting on Sept. 4 of representatives of 14 Canadian universities who organized a National University Liberal Federation. I feel sure that they will make a great contribution to the future of Liberalism in this country."

Mr. McIlraith congratulated the new executive, and said he was aware of the fine record of Peterborough in the war, its enlistments, financing and production. The present per capita wages here were about as high as any other rate in Canada. Enlarging upon the topic of the responsibility of citizenship in maintaining the political freedom which was a heritage of the British people, Mr. McIlraith recalled that Canada was chosen as one of the members of the security council of the League of Nations, and also a member of the atomic energy commission. These were responsibilities of the national plane to be understood by the citizens in whose name they had been assumed. "We have never had occasion in the past to think a great deal about our relations with the rest of the world, but as we look at the present and the future we may have to give a great deal of thought to affairs beyond our own country. The security council is charged with the maintaining of peace and security, and that is a heavy responsibility.

Third In World

It is well to recall today that we are the third trading nation in the world. That is quite a substantial position for a group of 12,000,000 people. About 35 per cent of our wealth comes from international trade. We take justifiable pride in the high place we have attained, and the part the Liberal party has played in that accomplishment. In the international field we have a new responsibility, and we must have a full appreciation of what that responsibility means if our men and women are to live in peace, and develop the maximum in human personality and in the comforts we know. We as a Liberal party place a high value on the human personality and its free development. As we look to the future, and consider the policy we should follow, we have a great opportunity and part to play in the influencing of human lives."

In the federal administration since the war, Mr. McIlraith said the problem of reconversion from war to peace was frightening in its size and scope, but today there were as many persons working in Canada as during the war, including the men and women who had returned from war service. "I am partial to my Minister (Hon. Mr. Howe), but I may say that we have converted to peace time, and the job has been done extremely well."

End Profiteering

"At the outbreak of the war, Mr. King said, when men and women were enlisting in the armed forces, if necessary to sacrifice their lives, that there would be no war profiteers. That pledge was repeated by him on various occasions in those early years. At the end there was a practical job remaining of making sure that it was so. It was then we entered upon renegotiating of war contracts. We had our auditors go through them so that there would be no undue profits made by contractors.

Mr. King's pledge was kept to the extent that some 3,500 contracting firms' business was reaudited. We received good cooperation from them, and $478,000,000 was recapitalized through that means.

There was another problem we had to deal with. Prior to the war we were always able to buy all the goods we wanted from the United States and sell to Great Britain and Europe, and balance our exchange. But, after the war that was no longer possible. We had to sell to Europe on credit. Our customers were not able to pay us in dollars. We had about one billion dollars adverse balance with the United States as a result of all our buying, and a reserve of $616,000,000 that had dropped to $488,000,000 toward the end of last year. If that had continued we would have had no reserve of U.S. dollars by May or June of this year.

You are aware that we import heavily from the United States, for example 64 per cent of our coal, 88 per cent of our oil and petroleum products. You can see what would happen if we suddenly found ourselves out of U.S. dollars, and forced to make some sharp adjustment of such imports."

Acted In Emergency

In that emergency, Mr. McIlraith said, the government passed the foreign exchange conservation bill which in its effects caused some irritation, but "worked little actual hardship on our people."

Mr. McIlraith said he was more familiar with the capital goods sanction of that measure. There were two ways of approaching that phase of the problem. One was to reduce the volume of trade by putting up barriers, reacting against trade and prosperity. The other was to encourage production at home of articles previously imported, or an alternative of expanding facilities of export. The decision was to administer the act in a way to increase our own production in Canada, to make more of the goods we used, in some instances more economically than by import, and also to produce more for export, and thereby have dollars for the things we needed.

Must Look To Future

"The result of that policy, to use a common expression, is that we have plenty of jobs. We are in the midst of prosperity. Last year found us more prosperous than the war years. Now we have to look to our future course, our political aid economic future.

Communism is a great force in Europe which is openly trying to destroy our economic system. Another is the socialistic system seeking our minds and our support. I find that generally Socialists have been reformers. They are discontented with the pace at which they go. They may see some injustice, and they say we don't go far and fast enough against it. They don't realize that before they know it they will be lending support to a movement that seeks to destroy our whole economic system.

My suggestion is that we must convince them we have something much better to offer. We must continue to move on and forward as Liberals, while holding to our political and economic freedom and making them secure through the years. We should feel proud of these freedoms that are enjoyed by the great number of our people, but we must also continue the battle and make sure that all our people have the benefits and advantages of them as time and change go on.

We must take the positive way. That is my suggestion in meeting the impatience of those who say we are not getting on fast enough."

Laud Howe

Col. Dewart moved a vote of thanks to Mr. McIlraith, and incidentally paid tribute to his chief, Hon. C. D. Howe, "for his great accomplishment in mobilizing the resources of Canada and throwing them into the balance of war. Every fair-minded Canadian felt that Mr. Howe did a magnificent work in that respect."

The lights of liberty were going out in Europe, and the Anglo-Saxon people were left bearing the burden.

"It is the privilege of every man and woman in Canada to assist in preserving our democratic system," said Col. Dewart. "Mr. McIraith has pointed out how we can do our part, and what the future holds for us if we fail. The least we can do is to give our support in every way to our political institutions. We can all come out to meetings, help to organize and do our part as citizens.

The association's appreciation was extended to Mr. McIlraith by Mr. Gillespie, concluding his presidency.

Council Hopes To Strike Rate On Friday

By HARRY THEOBALD

City council expects to "fix the tax rate" at a special meeting Friday night. After that they can spend the other ten months of the year window-shopping. They might even resort to monthly meetings as in the old town days. Mayor William Ovens and the council know they are strapped, haven't one nickel to rub against another, and all the other homely figures of being hard up.

The finance committee meets tonight to give the budget a last flip of the pages. There is no joy in the whole business. The days of low tax rates, and looking the ratepayer straight in the eye are gone for three or four years. Off the record Ald. Swanston is predicting a 45 mill rate in a year or two.

The council is saying with resolute determination these days, "We're not spending this year anything more than we can avoid. Committees are going to get so much money, and not a dollar more." Of course, that is a familiar tone. Mayor Ovens said it a year ago, so did Ald. Swanston. So did the council as a whole. But, they wound up on an overdraft, and not a trifle either, some $30,000.

One of the suggestions in this local austerity the other day was to tell the heads of departments that when their allotments are gone, they go, too, for the remaining months of the year. But, that wouldn't work with the firemen and the garbage collectors. The council could call in the parks staff without much loss... But, it was just a random idea, carrying an intimation that the new resolve "to hew to the line" and the other cliches of cutting the cloth of spending is going to be made stick this year.

If every member of the council was grimly serious about that financial balance at the end of the year, the accounting would turn out that way, but keeping the elastic band on the coll is not so easy when unforeseen demands arise later on.

And as for contingencies, they haven't even been mentioned. In more expansive and comfortable years the councils invariably tacked on an omnibus credit up to $15,000 "to come and go on," as ex-Alderman Robert Cotton used to say when he held the civic purse strings. It is not so easy in later months in council to bluntly reject the petitions of Citizens. By that time people are not thinking about budgets to be defended and avoidance of overdrafts. All they know is that they have needs that were not contemplated in the February or March days of the council's estimating. In other words the belated spending arises from the ratepayers themselves, and the council doesn't say "no" to them, at least not loudly enough.

LINDSAY WANTS RESTRAUNT

Things were given a new twist in Lindsay when Industrial Commissioner, D. McQuarrie, advertised in a Toronto paper that the town had a new building available, oil heated, for immediate possession to anyone interested in operating a restaurant. Between property sales and building programs, there is a shortage of eateries in Lindsay at the present time.

STONES FOR GOALS

The neighborhood rink north of Colonial Weaving, early spring's gift to the youngsters around Townsend St., turned to soft ice Tuesday. "Playoffs" are uncertain for the rest of the week. Still, there have been some great battles down there among the primitives. They are back to the simplicity of the town's juveniles when Rollie Glover and Chris Graham had to do a lot of manoeuvring to get even skates. The Colonial kids use rocks for goal "posts".

Walks Sanded At PCVS Witnesses Say

The main evidence heard in the Letellier vs. the City of Peterborough case which is being tried here before the Hon. Mr. Justice Wells, in the Spring Session of the Supreme Court of Ontario Tuesday afternoon was in regard to the sanding of the sidewalks.

The case arises from an injury sustained by Mrs. A. Letellier, 215 Crescent St., when she is alleged to have fallen on the sidewalk leading to the main entrance of PCVS on McDonnel St., March 18, last, which resulted in a fractured hip.

Mr. Justice Wells, presiding in the Supreme Court Sitting here today gave judgment in the case Letellier versus the City of Peterborough and Board of Education. He found in favor of Mrs. Letellier and awarded her damages of $11,800 with costs.

H. Williamson, employed by the Board of Works said that on March 10, 1947 walks on both sides of McDonnel St. were standed. His work report sheet was produced in court as evidence. C. Woodcock also an employee of the Board of Works testified that the sidewalks were sanded on that day.

10 City Divisions

Witness said that the decision of sanding of the streets was left to Mr. Burgess, the outside man of the Works Department, and the city was divided into 10 districts, some of these districts were let out by contract but the district in question was sanded by the city. Witness also said that there were about 80 miles of sidewalks in the city, and appropriation for last year regarding keeping the sidewalks clear of snow was $3,000. He further testified that the city assumed no responsibility of the pathway leading from the front entrance of the PCVS to the sidewalk on McDonnel St.

Samuel Castle, chief caretaker at the PCVS said that he was on duty on March 17 and 18, but left at 5.30 p.m. He said that Melville Wood and Daniel Flint were on duty after he left and they could give further evidence as to the condition of the pathway.

Witness testified that his duty sheet showed the duties required of his staff, which entailed the sanding of the pathway if necessary. He said that he made a point of seeing that his staff understood what was required of them, and also, testified that the entrance leading to McDonnel St. was used by the staff chiefly.

Asked by plaintiff's counsel if the sand would tramp into the auditorium and up the staircase, he said it would, and that it would be the duty of the caretakers to clean all the sand that might be tramped into the building.

Sanded Walk

Melville Wood, one of the caretakers of the PCVS said that he distinctly remembered sanding the pathway on March 18. He sanded it about 6.30 p.m. when he came on duty. He further testified that he did not hear of any accident until about three weeks afterwards.

Daniel Flint another caretaker at the PCVS also remembered the evenin⅛ as he had been asked by the senior caretaker to take over special duties as the Cathodic Youth Organization were putting on their play "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling". "As soon as I arrived at the PCVS", said the witness, "I went into the small room where we keep our cleaning equipment and found a bucket half full of sand. I put this sand on the pathway."

Peter Moore, planning supervisor at the CGE, said that he was responsible for the planning and the organization of the Catholic Youths' Organization play. He did not recall what condition the pathway from the sidewalk to the main entrance to the PCVS on McDonnel St. was like on that particular evening.

The court was adjourned at this point and His Lordship said the court would be resumed Wednesday morning.

Two Cabinet Ministers At Murray Street Dinner

A dinner, held by members of the Men's Association of Murray Street Baptist Church Tuesday evening in the Sunday School, was attended by Hon. G. A. Welsh, Provincial Minister of Travel and Publicity; Hon. Harold R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests; Dr. James Semple, George Street United Church, and Rev. E. J. Whan, Park Street Baptist Church. Speaker of the evening, Dr. H. H. Bingham, general secretary of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, was introduced by Rev. Ivan Morgan. Dr. Bingham told of a trip he took in the summer of '47 to Copenhagen, Denmark, where he represented Canada at a great Church conference.

Dr. Bingham observed that conditions were austere in Great Britain, more so than Belgium, which was not destroyed by war and that German people were to be reckoned with. Their problems were acute, and, though a conquered nation, the world must help them back to normalcy if there was to be any hope of lasting peace.

He found conditions in Denmark not good due to the country being ravaged by German occupation. The result of the conference was a general agreement that, though some members had been recent enemies, all felt that the Christianity, strongly applied, would stem the prevalence of Communism now taking hold all over Europe. Dr. Bingham concluded his address by showing a number of fine lantern slides taken during his trip. He was tendered a vote of thanks by Ken Jones. Chairman of the dinner was association president, Jack Hayward. Members of the ladies' association, headed by Mrs. Harold R. Scott, prepared dinner.

Claims Shortage Last Two Years

Southern Ontario is going to be short of electric power for two years, according to the St. Thomas Journal reporting advice from the Hydro-Electric Commission to set their power pattern for that period at least. The advice was received from R. M. Durnford of the consumers' service of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Department, who explained the causes of the extremity that has come upon the power users of the province.

"Mr. Durnford urged consumers to try to set a pattern in the present crisis that will serve next fall when the need for curtailment will be practically as great. There is little prospect of additional power being generated and being made available before 1950, with the possibility of the time being extended to 1951 or 1952."

Cattle For Export In High Demand

Export demand for Ontario live stock continues active, as reported in the weekly review of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Elgin Ayrshire breeders shipped a carload during the week to Oklahoma. The cows averaged $500 a head. Middlesex and Lanark report a strong demand for dairy cattle, and farmers in the former county have been delivering to Michigan, Iowa, Ohio and Nebraska buyers. Ontario county says "demand continues strong for good quality dairy cows for export."

Mild weather has been restoring rural water supply in wells. Young pigs in Dufferin sold this week up to $10. Hatchery men with electrically equipped brooders have been worrying about the Ontario power shortage and the possibility of "blackouts." One of the Peterborough poultry group said he would sue somebody if he suffered loss of chicks by a break in the power service. Demand for single hired men exceeds the supply in Huron.

Farmers are beginning to keep seed cleaning plants busy. Durham reports indications of a larger quantity of seed grain for distribution than was estimated earlier.

Fine Driver $50 For Leaving Scene Of Crash

Roland Clarke, 922 Hurley Ave., was fined $50 and $2.50 costs for leaving the scene of an accident and fined $15 and $2.50 costs on a charge of careless driving. He pleaded guilty to both counts.

According to the account of the accident leading to the charges, the accused drove his car north on George St. Tuesday night and struck the car of James Collins, 178 Douro St., causing about $40 damage. He did not stop, and in leaving the scene, struck a second vehicle, the car of John Hodson, 130 Perry St. The Hodson car, which had slight damages of about $12, followed the car to the home address of the accused and then reported it to the police.

PC's C. J. McGillen and Allan Edmison went to the home of Clarke and arrested him. He was not in a fit condition to drive a car at that time, the report stated.

Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, in levying the fines, impressed on Clarke the fact that the offence of leaving the scene was a "very serious charge." He pointed out that the maximum fine which could be given in such cases has recently been raised from $500 to $1000.

The customary orders for cancellation of licence and permit were issued.

Alternate jail sentence for the leaving charge was two months, for the careless driving, 15 days, to be served consecutively.

Hon. A. Welsh Says Farmers Benefit Tremendously From Huge Tourist Trade

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 25—(Staff).—More than $242,000,000 in revenue came to Canada from American tourists in 1947, the Hon. Arthur Welsh, Minister of Travel and Publicity, told a gathering of resort owners and business people at Memorial Hall Tuesday evening. This is an all-time record. The meeting, arranged by the newly-formed Lakefield Chamber of Commerce, was well attended, and Albert Buchanan was the chairman. Guests on the platform were Hon. Harold R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests; Hon. Arthur Welsh, Minister of Travel and Publicity; Col. C. D. Crowe, Toronto; Pete McGillen, city editor of the Examiner, and Reeve William Grant.

Col. Welsh was introduced by Hon. Harold Scott, and he told the gathering that 14,890,000 tourists came to Canada in the year. The money they spent represented $35 to every man, woman and child in the Dominion, he said.

"If these people spent a minimum of 24 hours in Canada, it is reasonable to believe that each had three meals. That being so, then the amount of food they consumed is stupendous. For instance it would require the following amounts to feed them: 3½ million cans tomato juice, 3½ million quarts of milk, 300,000 qts. of cream, 500 tons of cereal, 2,300,000 dozen eggs, 100,000 hogs, 6 million loaves of bread, 112,000 bushels potatoes, 80,000 bushels carrots, 180,000 lbs. butter, 9,000 lambs and several other substantial amounts."

Col. Welsh went on to illustrate that this feed is produced in Canada, and thus the farmer is one who reaps the greatest benefit from the tourist trade.

"The tourists coming to Canada provide an export market for our farm products, and still save us shipping charges. They pay in foreign exchange for these products."

"We sell scenery, climate, fishing and hunting, hospitality and countesy, and with the exception of the fish and game, our resources are inexhaustible. Courtesy is one of our greatest assets and I hope every Canadian will realize that when Americans come to our country we are the hosts, and each person has the responsibility of hospitality."

Commenting on the need for American dollars, Col. Welsh pointed out that for every American that crosses the border into Canada, six Canadians head south into the States for their holidays or on business.

"Travel is one of the greatest factors in maintaining the peace of the world. It is important that we understand our neighbors, because the next great battle for security may be fought on the North American continent," he said.

Discussing the various services supplied by his department Col. Welsh spoke of the border reception centres, arranging trips for visiting newspapermen, presentation of picture albums to these men, and also 16 mm. films of their trip to be shown in their home towns. He also spoke on the drive to raise the standard of ser-

Game Preserve May Be Opened To Deer Hunters

Peterborough's Crown Game Preserve, in existence since 1934, may be thrown open to hunters next fall, unless the Department of Lands and Forests can find some way of reducing the number of starvation deaths within the preserve.

This forecast was hinted at last night when the Hon. Harold R. Scott answered a question from a citizen at the Lakefield Chamber of Commerce meeting in that village.

The question came following the speeches when Albert Buchanan, chairman, threw the meeting open. The question was directed to Pete McGillen, City Editor of the Examiner, but he suggested it was not in his province to answer such a query when Minister of Lands and Forests was present, and turned the question over to the Minister.

Mr. Scott said: "The Department has watched developments at the Preserve with considerable alarm, and we have had our best biologists studying the situation. We may find it necessary to throw open a portion of the Preserve or the entire area so that hunters could reduce the deer population to a point where the food available would sustain the balance of the animals." Mr. Scott explained that the deer congregate in the Preserve in great numbers during the winter, then if the snow becomes too deep they die of starvation when they exhaust all the food within reach. In the spring, he said, the animals spread out and while many are killed in the annual hunt, it seems the animals continue to increase despite the heavy hunting.

Following Mr. Scott, Mr. McGillen said: "I do hope that if the Department finds it necessary to throw open a portion or all of the Preserve to hunters, it will only be for one year. At the recent convention of Anglers and Hunters in Niagara Falls, sportsmen were complaining the deer were too scarce. In Peterborough County, because we have a game preserve, we have too many deer. Perhaps if every county had a similar stretch of land, the deer population would soon increase."

TWO CARS DAMAGED

A collision on Hunter St. west about 5.30 Tuesday afternoon, caused considerable damage to the car of M. B. Pringle, 467 Water St., and lesser damage to the car of Carman English, RR 2, Peterborough. PC G. W. Shaw investigated.

Landlords Refuse Homes Children Boarded Out

TORONTO, Feb. 25—(CP).—Landlords who refuse to admit tenants with children, coupled with the acute housing shortage, are to blame for many cases in Ontario where children are being placed in boarding homes, Ontario Department of Welfare officials said today.

Commenting on a fire at Pontypool, 19 miles south of Lindsay, Sunday in which 20 children, some as young as 18 months, were rescued from a boarding house, the officials said many were placed there by parents living in the Toronto area.

"These houses are not making money by boarding children. They are continually checked by health officials and local welfare agencies watch them closely," said one official. He said the Pontypool house was well-administered. Those who carried on did so because of their love for children.

The Department is considering regulations to apply to such boarding homes.

Judgment Reserved In $3,500 Fine Case

TORONTO, Feb. 25 — (CP)— Judgment was reserved by Mr. Justice W. D. Roach Tuesday in a crown appeal against a fine of $3,500 levied against Denton Clifford Johnston of London, Ont., after conviction of a serious offence charge at Kitchener.

"A man cannot buy his liberty," said the Ontario Court of Appeal justice in commenting on the appeal against Johnston being fined instead of being given the conventional jail sentence.

Judgment also was reserved in a cross-appeal against the conviction by the London contractor.

Dominion Labor Code Affects All Industry

TORONTO, Feb. 25 — (CP).—Labor Minister Daley of Ontario said last night that the Ontario Government planned legislation to make the proposed new Dominion labor code applicable to all industry in the province. The minister said that the Dominion code — which has not yet been adopted—might not be entirely satisfactory to the province, but he added:

"It is therefore the decision of the Ontario Government....that at the coming session of the Ontario Legislature a Bill will be introduced which....will enable the necessary administrative arrangements to be made and the Dominion code to be applied to all provincial works, undertakings or businesses strictly within the provincial field. The result will be that one code will apply to all labor relations within Ontario, without distinction between Dominion or Provincial works, undertakings or businesses."

Mr. Daley recalled that when the wartime Dominion labor code was in effect, the Ontario Government had adopted its provisions for industry under provincial jurisdiction. When the wartime code was terminated in 1947 the Dominion introduced a new Bill last June 17, but it had not yet been passed.

Many difficulties would arise if Dominion and province had different labor regulations and the Ontario Government believed in uniform and simplified regulations.

The minister expressed the hope that the Dominion Government would set up a board, similar to its Wartime Labor Relations Board, to which appeals from decisions of the Ontario Labor Relations Board could be directed.

School Teachers Strike In Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 25—(AP) — Minneapolis public school teachers struck today for higher pay and a full school year.

The strike was called by the Teachers Federation (A.F.L.) which represents about half the city's 2,200 public school teachers.

Pickets were posted before some schools. No attempt was made to hold classes. The city's 40 elementary, junior high, and high schools have a total enrolment of 65,000.

Last-minute efforts of Mayor Hubert Humphrey, who arrived at midnight by plane from Philadelphia, and superintendent Willard E. Goslin to avoid the strike failed.

Normal Times Returned In Opinion of Fur Buyers

By JAMES McCOOK

LONDON, Feb. 25 (CP).—On Garlick Hill, which survives on the verge of bomb-swept ruins about St. Paul's Cathedral, fur-buyers chat in half-a-dozen languages and aver that normal times have returned.

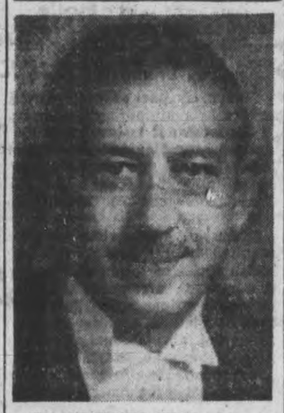
These buyers with strange accents and a liking for street-corner negotiations in the shelter of Beaver Hall, are the liaison between the trappers of Arctic Canada and the salons of Fashion Kings.

During the war they disappeared from this corner of London where Hudson's Bay Company furs have come for nearly 300 years. Now they are back, with news that Italians still like nothing better than Canadian lynx for a coat trim, the Belgians and French want skunk and racoon and all the world wants white fox, ermine and mink.

Then there's beaver, the foundation of the ancient fur trade that sent little trade ships to Charlon Island, Moose Factory and Churchill in advance of the bravest explorers and naval vessels.

Still Wants Beaver

"The world still wants beaver — prices at the January sale ranged from £3 12s 6 ($14.50) to £24 15s ($99)," a fur expert said.



"They first wanted beaver for hats. Now it's quite possible that with taxes and all other charges a beaver fur hat of modern design would cost £40—and that's too much for most people."

So beaver goes into coats.

The furs sales resumed in 1946 with prices high. Uncertainties prevailed in 1947 with many former buyers still absent.

But in February this year, at the H.B.C. winter auction, the company reported an attendance larger than usual "for in addition to the visitors from the United States, Canada and South America, we welcomed the largest contingent of European buyers seen in London for many years."

Prices showed substantial advances over the October General auction with keen demand for most offerings.

Sang Hymns With Caruso At Cobourg Street Meeting

TORONTO, Feb. 25—(CP).—The occasion when her voice blended with Caruso's world-famous tenor is still a fresh memory to Mrs. Brigadier Arthur Smith, retired Salvation Army officer. Today while the world remembers the peerless tenor on the 75th anniversary of his birth in Naples the Toronto woman recalls personal memories of "a great man."

In 1907—early days for the Salvation Army in Canada—Mrs. Smith and the late Mr. Smith, both probationary captains marched down the main street of Cobourg, Ont., to hold a Sunday afternoon open-air meeting in front of a fashionable hotel.

Her Army bonnet, the Blood-and-Fire flag she held, and the cornet her husband carried contrasted sharply with the American tourists lounging on the hotel verandah.

After the Smiths had sung and prayed, a man stepped down from the hotel verandah and asked the Salvationists if he could join them in hymns.

A Hushed Crowd

Asked what he would like to sing, the stranger replied: "Lead, Kindly Light." They began, and as the tenor's vibrant notes filled the air, a reverent hush fell over the holiday crowd until the hymn was finished.

The listeners applauded until the singer had returned to the verandah, then urged him to rejoin the Salvation Army meeting. Captain and Mrs. Smith joined him in "Abide With Me." Again the crowd strained toward the music as the unusual trio sang Henry Francis Lyte's immortal hymn.

Mrs. Smith went around with her tambourine to take up a collection which filled it to overflowing. It was the largest collection ever received by the couple — in fact, few open-air meetings at that time brought any funds.

Not until after the meeting did Mrs. Smith learn from Madame Albertini, proprietor of the Arlington Hotel and herself a well-known opera singer that the Salvationists had sung with Enrico Caruso, renowned tenor of the Metropolitan Opera.

It was this incident which enabled the Salvation Army in Cobourg to grow and enlarge its services to the community. Mrs. Smith remembers Caruso as "a perfect gentleman—a wonderful singer sent to us by God to honor our endeavors."

Gold Attracts Attention On All Markets

By The Canadian Press

Gold is attracting fresh attention in developments which stretch from France to the Chicago grain pit.

It started in Paris in January when France devalued the franc and opened a free market in dollars and gold coins. The immediate reaction was a favoring of gold over all currencies, with available gold coins selling at a premium of around 100 per cent over free dollars.

This in itself was not remarkable. Most of the world's gold is under government control and all along there has been a steady demand for it in the few free markets which existed; for there is always in the world a strong element which wishes to hoard the yellow metal or put it away for a rainy day.

The effect was felt immediately in London and from Jan. 22 to Feb. 5 the gold index of South African shares jumped nearly 12 points from 103.1 to 115. It has stayed near that figure, closing yesterday at 114.1, off .5 from Monday.

The gold strength was interpreted as a guard against deflation, with money seeking investment in a medium which becomes more valuable as other prices become lower.

The big gold mining market in North America is Toronto, and golds there had been pursuing a sad course, discouraged by high prices and dissatisfied with the government assistance program.

As recently as Feb. 12 the Toronto gold index was down to 96.08, a fall of 24.18 points since Nov. 18, and its lowest point since October, 1946. Since Feb. 12, however, golds have recovered 7.43 points to 103.51, with a jump of nearly two points yesterday.

NEW ATOM SMASHER — A pilot model of their new atom smasher, "the Yale linear accelerator," is displayed at New Haven, Conn., by two of its builders: Howard L. Schultz (left), assistant professor of physics, and Carol Montgomery, an associate professor. They expect by next June to be developing energies of from 15 to 20,000,000 volts. It may prove a great aid to nuclear physics since, thanks to the "accelerator," the product has less energy loss than the cylotron or betraton.

Cattle Prices Steady

OTTAWA, Feb. 25 — (CP). — Agriculture Minister Gardiner said in the Commons yesterday that while there has been some "moderate recession in cattle prices in Canada during the last two or three weeks, there has been "nothing comparable to the price reductions that have occurred in the United States, where cattle prices have declined as much as $7 to $8 a hundredweight during the matter of a few weeks."

Complacency Ill Advised Says Dr. G. W. D. Cameron

Voluntary agencies make their greatest contribution in the health field by pioneering new movements and encouraging the public to apply themselves intelligently to the tasks that are theirs, it was stated recently by Dr. G. W. D. Cameron, federal deputy minister of health.

"They further the democratic process when they supplement and encourage sound government services and create demands by public information," Dr. Cameron said. "This type of collaboration from a responsible voluntary agency like the Health League of Canada deserves our warmest thanks."

He said the democratic way is in many important respects the hard way. It called for the acceptance of individual responsibility and depended for its strength on the united will of an informed people. It was during such an observance as "Health Week" that the public should have its collective attention directed to the state of the public health, and should be told where they have failed to measure up to their obligations, and to have pointed out the steps which must be taken if desired goals were to be reached. It was in that regard that the voluntary agency had a vital role to play.

The deputy minister took occasion to warn against complacency about the nation's relative freedom from diseases like smallpox and diphtheria.

"A moment's thought should correct that tendency," he said. "We know perfectly well that these diseases are only in check. The price of freedom is continual pressure against these diseases by immunization."

Prisoners In Penitentiaries To Get Different Schooling

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Feb. 25 — (CP). — A "new deal" — with the accent on rehabilitation rather than brutal punishment — is coming for 3,500 prisoners in Canada's seven penitentiaries. The Federal Penitentiaries Commission has initiated a policy of education rather than the old-fashioned rule of punishment for the crime.

As a start, 25 burly prison officers, schooled to dominate by fear of authority, have temporarily discarded their prison dress and donned the garb of "students."

"And they are not doing badly," Maj.-Gen. R. B. Gibson, penitentiaries commissioner, said today in an interview.

The "students" are avidly absorbing authoritative teachings on the science of prisoner recovery.

At a school in the R.C.M.P. barracks at nearby Rockcliffe, they are being told that efficiency as officials does not depend on physical strength but on knowledge of what makes a criminal "tick."

Forerunners of the 1,100 officers to be trained, the introductory class brings into being the recommendations of the Archambault commission which 10 years ago called for the raising of the efficiency of Canadian penal officers.

The "khaki-clad" students take notes on psychiatry, psychology, the nature of crime and the reasons for the criminal. At the conclusion of a six-weeks course, they will take back with them new ideas in penalogy to pass along to fellow officers.

Don't get the idea that prison officials are becoming soft. Prisoners can anticipate new treatment but there will be no "kid glove" treatment for those who don't respond.

The officers are being trained to handle all types of military weapons and physical holds.

They'll be "criminal doctors" when they go back to their institutions, but they'll be tough "criminal doctors" at that.

Up Against It Pakenham Tells Britain

LONDON, Feb. 25 — (CP). — Lord Pakenham, economist and spokesman for the government in the House of Lords, said today that Britain now is "up against it" and will survive only "if we work harder and do some unpalatable things."

Lord Pakenham made the statement after disclosing an ever-increasing drain on Britain's gold and dollar reserves.

He sketched Britain's achievements in increased production, but warned that it is impossible to know what assistance will be forthcoming from the United States.

Lordon Pakenham said that "I am sure we can come through this business by sticking to democratic processes and beliefs, but only if we all work harder and do some unpalatable things and abstain from certain forms of enjoyment which we had come to think of as our natural share."

Drain Must Stop

Lord Pakenham told the House of Lords that the drain on reserves rose from £48,000,000 in December to £57,500,000 in January. He added, however, that this was not a characteristic figure.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Stafford Cripps, meanwhile underlined the importance of stopping this drain. He told a National Savings rally in London that during the period of Marshall aid, Britain will need the backing of a gold and dollar reserve for the trade of the sterling area to maintain the confidence of the rest of the world which was essential to stability in international trade.

With the rapid growth of industrial production in Canada, the United States and the Argentine, it had become progressively more difficult for Britain to sell them enough goods to pay for her imports.

Last year Britain imported only 74 per cent of what she imported in 1938 but the reduced imports cost nine per cent more than the original estimate of between 80 and 85 per cent was expected to cost.

Sir Stafford said that Britain exported last year eight per cent more than in 1938 but even with imports 26 per cent less than in 1938, "we still could not pay for one-third of our imports."

Steel Slab Costs Boost U.S. Products

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP).—Higher cost of steel slabs and billets will broaden price increases in the United States on some strip and sheet products, the metal working trade weekly, The Iron Age, said today.

At the same time, it reported, boosts in steel base prices and extras being considered by one steel company "have been deferred pending the clarificaiton of the widespread hysteria over the increase in semi-finished steel products."

The publication said non-integrated steelmakers—those mills which buy their raw materials from large integrated producers—either have advanced or will soon advance their prices on cold-rolled strip and some grades of specialty sheets.

However, "no major producer this week had raised its prices of sheets and strip." Whether such action would be taken remained to be seen.

'No Austerity For You' Howe Tells US Tourists

ST. THOMAS, Feb. 25 — The Canadian Department of Trade and Commerce and the Canadian Government's travel bureau are not overlooking the fact that reports are current in the United States that Canada has an austerity program similar to that in the British Isles and Americans would be well advised not to visit Canada this year.

W. H. A. Sparling, secretary of the St. Thomas Department of Industry, heard such reports during a recent visit to Chicago. He communicated with Trade and Commerce Minister C. D. Howe and has received a lengthy letter from the Minister assuring him that the matter is receiving Ottawa's attention and enclosing copies of letters that have been sent to American summer cottage owners throughout Canada, asking for their co-operation in encouraging American tourist trade this year.

"While it is to be expected that the American resort operators will endeavor to persuade United States citizens to vacation in their own country," Mr. Howe wrote, "it is unfortunately true that a few sections of the American press have created an unfavorable impression in the United States concerning Canada's recent import and travel regulations. As you know, these restrictions do not apply to the American tourist coming to Canada; they do, of course, apply to Canadians leaving this country.

"You will be interested to know that since these regulations were put into effect the Canadian Government Travel Bureau has sent out thousands of letters, press releases and memoranda explaining our new regulations to the United States public, in an effort to correct the misunderstandings which are abroad. This explanation has been circularized to all the American weekly and daily newspapers, magazine travel editors, editors of sport and class publications, outdoor writers, field offices of the United States Department of Commerce, United States banks, American hotels, automobile clubs, etc., and to all those persons enquiring in response to our current advertising as well as those who enquired about a vacation in Canada last year. In addition, 7,000 United States citizens having summer homes in Canada have been advised by letter of these regulations.

"The Canadian Government Travel Bureau is currently engaged in an advertising campaign in the leading publications in the United States. "While our advertisements stress the advantages and delights of a vacation in Canada, they make no mention of false rumors circulating in the United States. There is a valid reason for this. By the news releases and our direct contact with United States citizens who are interest in a vacation in Canada, we believe that before the heavy flow of tourist traffic starts, which is late in June and early in July, we will have caught up with most of the rumors and weird stories that are abroad.

"We are pleased to be advised that you have found a revival of interest by American manufacturers who are enquiring for manufacturing space in Canada."

Says Gandhi's Death Will Help Unite India

BRANTFORD, Feb. 25.—(CP).—The assassination of Mohandas K. Gandhi, spiritual leader of India's Hindus, will help bring an end to the present strife between Moslems and Hindus, Sadi Dyl Chand, program secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association at Lahore, Pakistan, said last night.

The assassin was a Hindu but a member of the fanatic Rasptia Sevak Sungh which, together with the Hindu Mahasabha, radical political group, is seeking the subjugation of the Moslems and the annexation of Pakistan, he said.

The incident, therefore, afforded an opportunity to clean out fanatics which are causing turmoil, he added.

Freight Plane Crashes, Burns

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 25 — (AP). — A twin-engined freight plane with two men aboard crashed and burned about 6 a.m. today near Summit Station, 18 miles east of here.

The pilot, Jack Cole, 26, of Hasbrouck Heights, N.J., was injured critically and removed to hospital here.

The state highway patrol was still searching for the co-pilot, Pete Deciccio of Hackensack, N.J.

The patrol said the plane, en route from Pittsburgh and approaching the Port Columbus airfield, crashed on a farm and immediately burst into flames.

Pay-As-You-Go Plan

TORONTO, Feb. 25 — (CP). — A warning to Ontario municipalities to adopt a "pay-as-you-go" policy in public works was founded yesterday by William J. Moore of Renfrew, president of the Ontario Good Roads Association. Addressing the annual two-day convention of the association, Mr. Moore linked his warning to uncertainty of future costs. He suggested his plan would preserve freedom of action "for bad times ahead."

Third Party Has 10-Year Plan For World Aid

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 — (CP). — Henry A. Wallace, third party presidential aspirant, today offered a 10-year $50,000,000,000 plan for world recovery to be administered by the United Nations.

He offered this to the House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee, which he had asked to hear him, as a substitute for the administration's European recovery program of $17,000,000,000 in the next four years. That plan he said would lead to a third world war.

He named Canada, Russia and Czechoslovakia as countries which should assist the United States in financing his plan.

In his prepared statement, Wallace made reference neither to Russian non-co-operation in the UN nor to the chain of circumstances in Eastern Europe which has precipitated the political crisis in Czechoslovakia.

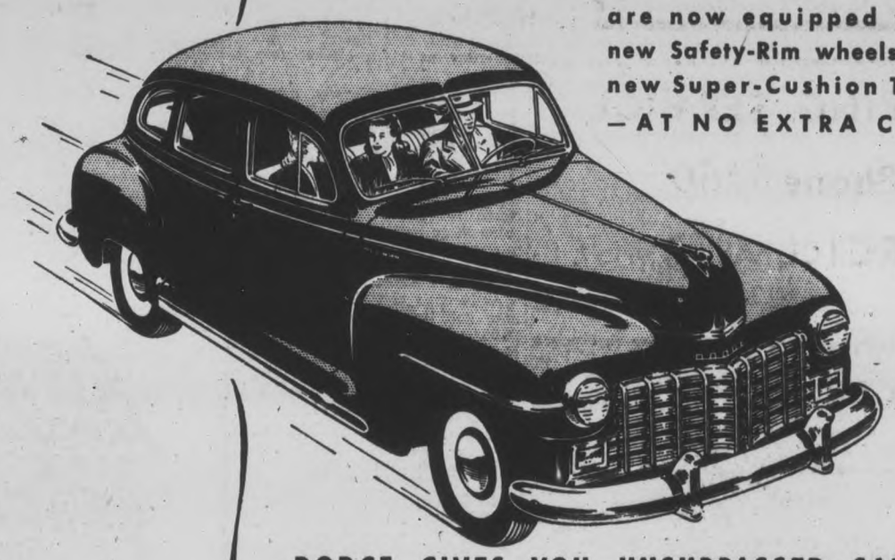
He was questioned on Russia's intervention in Europe, but said he knew nothing about it except what he read in the newspapers and he did not trust the newspaper reports.

Wallace said he believed there should be a meeting between Prime Minister Stalin and whoever is president after the elections next November.

His only prepared reference to Russian non-co-operation was on the specific subject of the Marshall plan which Russia and her associated nations in Eastern Europe refused to enter.

"While the Russians felt that they had reasons to doubt the sincerity of the invitation to them, I think they made a mistake in withdrawing from the Paris meeting," he said.

"The record of the war and of postwar relations shows that co-operation between the United States and the USSR is possible.



"My program rests on this record and on the thesis that fair and equal co-operation is not only possible, but necessary for world peace and prosperity."

ALL DODGE MODELS
are now equipped with new Safety-Rim wheels and new Super-Cushion Tires —AT NO EXTRA COST

DODGE GIVES YOU UNSURPASSED SAFETY —AND AN EVEN SMOOTHER RIDE!

SUPER-CUSHION tires, fitted on new, wider Dodge "Safety-Rim" wheels are now standard equipment on all Dodge Models—another Dodge "extra" feature. Dodge thus gives you greater safety and a smoother ride at no additional cost.

These unique, new Super-Cushion tires use only 24 pounds of air pressure yet they carry 26% more air volume, which greatly reduces road vibration. They cushion the car against lateral or crosswise shocks, the softer tires taking the jars when they hit ruts, stones or rough pavement.

You are assured of greater safety as these new tires run cooler which lessens the chance of a blowout. Should a blowout occur, the new Dodge "Safety-Rim" wheels hold the tire on the rim — even at high speeds — allowing safe, straight stops.

Lower air pressure and 26% greater air volume give you the smoothest ride in Dodge history.

New Dodge "Safety-Rim" wheels combine with Super-Cushion tires to set a new standard of motoring safety.

New tires have more road contact which gives better traction, reduces tire-wearing wheelspin.

$500,000 Fire Sweeps Apartment Bldg.

QUEBEC, Feb. 25 (CP)—Toll of life in Quebec's worst blaze in 10 years today stood at one known dead and two missing believed dead as firemen resumed search for bodies of an aged man and his niece among the blackened, fire-seared remains of a business block on Mountain Hill.

Damage was expected to reach $500,000.

After preliminary probing of the ruins last night and a city-wide search by police, Fire Chief Rosaire Beaulie said authorities were convinced 92-year-old James Smith and his niece, Miss Mamie Trumble, 63, who lived above Smith's curio shop, had perished in the blaze.

Earlier Smith was reported to have been rescued from the fire. Later reports said he had died after leaving the scene, but when no official confirmation of his death could be obtained, police combed the city.

No Official List

Mrs. Patrick Mercie, 45, died at the scene after being carried from inside the doorway of a three-storey apartment house where the blaze started from a furnace explosion. She was found by firemen within a few feet of the street and safety.

Chief Beaulieu said there still was no official list of tenants of the apartment house or apartments over the burned out shops. However, there was no report of missing persons other than Smith and his niece.

The fire, which resulted in the rarely used "99" alarm for all firemen, raced rapidly through the apartment house, Smith's souvenir shop, a dress shop, a private home, a tailor shop and the 50-room Mountain Hill Hotel, one of Quebec's landmarks. Hobbs Plate Glass Company also suffered heavy damage.

Quebec Passes Government Housing Loan

By The Canadian Press

A government housing bill providing for a system of housing loa. was approved yesterday by the Quebec Legislative Assembly after a debate that lasted nine sittings.

The Quebec government will spend $3,500,000, paying a three-per-cent share of five-per-cent housing loans granted by the province, caisses populaires (credit unions) and other lending agencies in the province.

Opening today of the Nova Scotia legislature brings to six the number of provincial houses in session. The others are Prince Edward Island, which opened yesterday, Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Quebec's housing discussion brought mention of the war as a factor in the general shortage of accommodation and led Youth Minister Paul Sauve to describe the Canadian war effort as "dreadful."

Criminal Effort

"I would say that in its contribution in men and blood, our war effort was almost criminal," said Mr. Sauve who served with the Canadian army overseas. "In effect, five divisions for a people of 9,000,000 is a criminal effort."

Legislation to abolish prohibition and to curb strikes was forecast in the Speech from the Throne at Charlottetown. The liquor measure will provide for a plebiscite on prohibition next June 28.

Two government members of the Saskatchewan Legislature charged that Canadian packing companies had made exorbitant profits as a result of British-Canadian meat contracts in January. W. J. Boyle (CCF-Kinistino) said the Federal government had given packers a "handout running into millions of dollars." Agriculture Minister I. C. Nollet said packers "aided and abetted by the federal government" made a "glorious killing."

THE VERSATILE SCARF—If you like sloping shoulders or if you're set against 'em, a scarf, artfully draped, can do a good job of creating the right shoulder line. One way to punctuate a shoulder line with a gentle slope is to drape a scarf high around the throat, low over the shoulders. Above is a brilliant leaf scarf in silk, a neat square that has been folded in a slightly uneven triangle to display one corner dipping low in front. Two ends then cross high in back and come forward to a bow in front.

Tells Effects Of Mission Work

The story of "Young people's work in Bolivia" from one who spent 31 years of her life among the Bolivian people was heard with interest at the weekly meeting of Murray St. Baptist Young People's Union. Mrs. A. Haddow, the speaker, explained how the teaching of Christianity had changed so many of their ways, for example, raising the status of the women, better homes, cleanliness, less drunkenness. Many other unusual illustrations were used in her talk and Mrs. Haddow reported that the mission work is going ahead exceptionally well today. She asked that the young people remember the missionaries and their work in their prayers.

At the conclusion of her address, Orland Kidd lead a Bible quiz. Miss June Blewett, chairman for the evening, thanked Mrs. Haddow for the splendid message and called on the president, Miss Blanche Quinn, for her announcements. Members were asked to keep in mind convention in Brantford on the week-end of May 24. A St. Patrick's party will be held to which the BYPU of Park St. Church will be invited.

CHILD'S SULKY SPELLS WORRIED HER UNTIL...

If your child has moody, cross, irritable spells for what seems to be no reason, watch for "hidden" constipation. Oftentimes, youngsters' bowels, altho moving regularly, do not move completely. As a result, harmful wastes remain in the intestines, making the child listless, peevish and not feeling like eating. What may be needed is Children's Own Tablets. They help give the thorough evacuation that quickly helps make most children feel like their usual happy selves. Pleasant tasting, small, easy to swallow, Children's Own Tablets are especially prepared for kids from 2 to 15. Only 25¢ at your druggist. Get a box today.

To Soften Brown Sugar

How do you soften brown sugar? That question comes up frequently, as brown sugar is likely to harden in the package right on the shelf, and the opened package quickly becomes solid if not properly stored.

Frequently all you need to do is crush the hard stuff with a rolling pin in order to remove the lumps. If it is hard as a brick, put that sugar in a bowl, wring a cloth out of hot water and place it over the bowl. Keep thus steaming the sugar until it relents. Never try to soften brown sugar in the oven, as that first softening is entirely misleading—on cooling the stuff is dry as a bone. The idea is to get moisture back into the brown sugar, not dry it out. If you can keep it in the bread box, refrigerator or a very tight canister, it should remain soft and usable.

Lumps in white sugar are quite another thing. These are caused by moisture, and the remedy is drying out in the oven.

Hearty Breakfast Prevents Fatigue

Are your Monday to Friday breakfasts quick snatches on the way to the door? Or do you take time to get an adequate breakfast every morning the week through? And do you allow yourself plenty of time for eating it?

If you are an adult, you can prevent mid-morning fatigue which results from lacks of a sufficient breakfast. The slowing-down will be evident in poor performance and carelessness at work, and occasionally leads to industrial accidents.

As an adolescent, nutritional needs are the greatest they will ever be. An adequate breakfast for growing children is especially important since it aids in scholastic progress, preventing undue tiredness and classroom inattention.

An adequate breakfast contains one third of the day's requirement of food and should include fruit, cereal, milk, break and butter. Eggs and meat can be added to the basic pattern as more food is required.

From the budget point of view it is well to keep breakfast an important meal. If the morning portion is skimped, that amount of food must be included at luncheon or dinner and the foods generally served at those meals are likely to be more expensive.

If every minute counts in the morning, serve the fruit and cereal in one bowl with the former as a top garnish, or try separating them with a strip of old-fashioned brown sugar. Slices of tender-crusted raisin bread and butter, with milk or coffee to drink will finish the meal.

For a heartier breakfast with a little beforehand preparation, Scotch oatmeal pancakes will win applause. If the sturdy oatmeal and ground meat cakes are spread on a baking sheet in a warm oven they will remain light and hot until enough have been baked for all the family, and there is no need to stay away from the table.

Thrifty Oatmeal Pancakes

Beat one egg and combine with ½ cup of cooked ground meat, 1 cup of cooked oatmeal, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper and ½ teaspoon prepared mustard. Mix well and drop the batter by tablespoons on to a hot, lightly greased griddle and bake slowly until brown.

This recipe yields 18 pancakes one and one-half inch size.

Nurses Enjoy Guest Artists

Chapter C, District 6, R.N.A.O. monthly meeting was held Tuesday evening in Kaledan nurses' residence. Miss A. L. Thomson, president, was in the chair, and 27 members were present.

An appeal for "The Save the Children Fund" was read and the support of individual members requested. An interesting letter from an 82-year-old English nurse expressing delight in the Christmas food box sent to her from the Chapter was also read.

Report of the district executive meeting held recently at Belleville was given by Miss Thomson, the chapter's delegate. Plans were discussed regarding a proposed refresher course for nurses to be held for three days in the fall.

A delightful musical program was arranged by Mrs. Ross Williamson. The artists taking part were Miss Iris Whalon, soprano soloist, Mr. Arthur Jones, baritone soloist, and Miss Frances Clycke, soprano, who sang a group of negro spirituals. Miss Whalon and Mr. Jones sang "Hills of Home," arranged as a duet. Mrs. Elsie Flett who was the accompanist, also entertained with two fine piano solos.

Miss Grace Calvert expressed appreciation to the guests on behalf of the members. Lunch was then served by the social committee, with Miss Calvert in charge.

Marlene Dietrich Looking For Roles in French Films

By HOWARD C. HEYN

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25 (AP)—Marlene Dietrich is going back to Paris. The roles Hollywood has to offer simply aren't lusty enough.

"It's the censorship," she sighed. "For my type, most of the stories here are impossible. I need gutty roles. Insipid glamor bores me. Abroad, pictures are made for adults."

The soldiers favorite actress is past 40 and soon to become a grandmother. For three years she plowed through the mud and wreckage of war to entertain the troops. She got sick several times. But she always went back to her GIs.

Miss D is still as provocative as any women on the screen.

"I hate vulgarity as much as any person," she declared. "But life isn't vulgar; only the manner in which it is sometimes portrayed.

The war didn't exactly make a philosopher of Miss D, but she's more thoughtful these days. And a simpler person. Ten years ago it took six stewards to get her 40 pieces of luggage aboard ship. Now she has things stored over half the world. She owns no house anywhere. In Hollywood she lives in a furnished apartment and keeps her personal possessions to a minimum.

When Miss Dietrich isn't working in Hollywood she gets out of town—fast.

"I'm chiefly interested in people who don't have everything," she said. "In Hollywood too many people have too much. When you have too much your brain gets fat."

Hollywood's Influence

Nothing visible about Miss Dietrich appears fat. When she reached Hollywood in 1931 with Joe Stern (Joseph Von Sternberg) she was a round-faced, slightly pudgy German girl. But by the time Stern had spread the word that she was intelligent as well as beautiful, Miss D had become sleek, sophisticated, hauntingly gaunt. She stayed that way.

Early sources place her birthday in 1902; later references give 1904. But 43 or 45—whats the difference when you look 37?

In her current assignment, "A Foreign Affair," she plays what amounts to the second lead: a Nazi cafe singer in post-war Berlin.

"If the story is unreal or the players unsuited, not even Hollywood's best techniques can save a picture," she asserted. "In France, with very little equipment, they make good pictures. They make pictures for adults.

"In Hollywood it is almost impossible to avoid censorship because the American cinema is based on family appeal."

Is that bad? Well, no, says Miss D.

"I'm not in favor of changing this system entirely. I only say such fare is not best for me. That is why I prefer to work in France or England."

But she's perfectly willing to return to Hollywood when appropriate scripts are available. Hollywood salaries, too, are a widely recognized lure. French films, made with little equipment, are also made with little money.

Of Interest to Women

HOW TO WEAR A BERET—The beret which owes more to its classic Latin background than to the milliner's adaptation is still one of the best looking hats a woman can wear. The trouble is that she too often gets it in a size too small to accommodate her hair, and in escaping that fate, goes in for an adaptation which is so big that it flops like a prop from La Boheme. Hedy Lamarr, above, wears a classic beret of black wool, femininely large, but not out of control, and she makes it her own by pinning to it a jewelled angelfish brooch, in the way that a soldier wearing a military beret attaches his regimental device.

THE STARS SAY....

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, February 26

The indications of a conflicting state of affairs, in which false moves, extravagance, prodigality and possibly a temptation to speculate, squander or otherwise misuse funds, assets and personal influence, may be countered by prudence, thrift, economy and as well, wise use of available resources or possessions. Of such stress might be averted by the intervention of an elderly person, possibly female, or, again, by drawing upon substantial assets methodically laid away for emergencies. Frugality and thrift pay in a crisis.

✧ ✧ ✧

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be able to postpone or escape a condition which their funds, investments, possessions, prospects or business interests are jeopardized by rash, reckless, extravagant or prodigal indulgences. This might possibly be brought about by the intervention of an elderly female, or by being able to draw on the fruits of previous work accumulations, securities, property or investments. The rewards of thrift system and economy might be the means of preventing loss of endeavors, possessions or prestige in crisis tiding over in a dangerous predicament. Be advised by elders.

A child born on this day, while leaning toward prodigality, self-indulgence, show, and over-liberal traits, as well has deep wells of thrift, system and economy, with earnest and safe tactics for winning support from elders or employers.

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

DISCONSOLATE MOTHER
Ignores Daughter's Bliss After Elopement

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Last summer I ran away from home and got married. My husband and I are both in our teens, but we are very happy. My elopement hurt my mother very much and she has never ceased reproaching me for it, telling me how I have broken her heart and that she will never get over my marriage. She harps on how worried she is about me and that she knows I am having such a hard time, when, in reality, I'm getting along fine and am as happy as a sandboy.

Dorothy Dix

How can I stop her from moaning and groaning over me and telling me what I have done to her by getting married?

DISGUSTED DAUGHTER

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Few women have the ability to accept a situation and make the best of it. Most of them pride themselves on never "getting over" things and they can nurse a grievance for a lifetime. That is your mother's case. Of course, she was naturally shocked and grieved by your running away and getting married while you were still a bobby-soxer, but the deed was done and tears and reproaches wouldn't undo it.

Courage Needed

Every marriage is full enough of risks, even for adults, without taking on the hazards of child-marriage, so it is no wonder that mothers are filled with fears and apprehensions when their little daughters take upon themselves duties and responsibilities and burdens with which they are not fitted to cope. But Mother's role when her children commit follies should never be that of the Prophet of Disaster, but always that of the Strengthener.

So if Sally has run off and made a marriage before she was old enough to know what it was all about, Mother is entitled to a few tears. Then she should wipe her eyes and spend her energies in bucking Sally up and in trying to help her to make a good wife, and be happy herself. And always there is this comfort: That you can never tell how any marriage is going to turn out and maybe Sally has drawn a prize, after all.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Two years ago I married the only son of a very devoted mother and father. He was 19 and I was 21. I know his family disapproved of our marriage because he was so young, but they didn't try to stop it in any way.

I have a very dear friend who has had plenty of troubles with her in-laws and who put me wise as to how I was to handle mine, and that was to turn my husband against his mother and father as soon as possible. It has been a hard thing to do because no matter how hateful I acted them, they tried in every way to be nice to me, buying me expensive gifts and not noticing the way I treated them.

I have told my huband I will never go to their house again, but he insists on going even if I stay at home. What I want to know is this: Should I go to my mother-in-law's house and tell her I am sorry for the way I have acted, or should I just stick to my guns and take a chance on losing my husband? I know I am losing my husband's love, but my friend tells me that I am getting along fine and that I will soon be rid of my in-laws for good. Only I keep thinking how nice they have always been to me and how mean I am to them, and sometimes I am sorry.

UNHAPPY WIFE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You seem to have taken the devil for a counsellor and she is dragging you down into a hell of bitter regrets from which you will never escape, unless you make a clean break with her right now.

You must have singularly little knowledge of life if you think that you can build a happy and successful marriage by alienating your husband from his parents, and by meeting all of their kindness and efforts to be friendly with you, with insults.

I know that many foolish brides in their determinaion to monopolize their husbands, are guilty of this folly, but they do it at their peril. For deep down at the core of every worthwhile man's heart is the love of his parents, and while he may be weak enough for the sake of peace, to let his wife separate him from his mother and father and brothers and sisters, he never forgives her for doing it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband makes a decent salary and we are happily married, but lately we have been quarreling constantly because the high prices of everything eat up all his salary and there is nothing left for a little recreation. I feel that the government should do something about the high price of food especially in order to promote happy marriages, as they are the mainstay of the nation.

ANONYMOUS

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: What price love? And, alas, it is only too true that even a happy marriage costs money.

62,000 Expectant Mothers Receive Free Examination

The amendment to Ontario's Public Health Act whereby expectant mothers in the province may obtain one prenatal medical examination at the expense of the provincial government has resulted in approximately 62,000 women applying for and receiving such an examination from October 1, 1946, when the legislation was proclaimed, to the end of January, 1948.

Patients may be examined by physicians of their own choice. The government pays doctors a precribed fee for each such examination.

Officials of the Ontario Department of Public Health are of the opinion that by promoting better medical supervision, these examinations may possibly contribute to a lowering of the province's' infant and maternal mortality rates. It is interesting to note that in 1947 there were an estimated 110,000 live births against 97,000 in 1946.

In 1947, more than 40 per cent of Ontario's expectant mothers took advantage of these examinations, it is stated by department officials. It might therefore be deduced that to a great extent expectant mothers in Ontario have realized the wisdom of placing themselves under medical supervision in the prenatal period. In the main, the plan has been well received by practising physicians.

It is emphasized that one prenatal examination should not be construed as sufficient prenatal care. However, it is hoped that having taken this step, the expectant mother may decide to continue under the supervision of the physician throughout the remainder of her pregnancy.

African Press Probe Wanted

CAPETOWN, Feb. 25 — (AP). — A member asked parliament yesterday to appoint a committee to inquire into the press in South Africa.

Interior Minister H. G. Lawrence replied that the government was not prepared for such a motion and that parliament did not lightly appoint committees to look into affairs of private business. Debate was adjourned until March 12.

Dr. Bernard Friendman, United Party member, proposed the inquiry into the financial and technical controls of the press. He said he wanted to know if there is complete freedom of expression for editorial opinion, whether honest news in censored, transmission rates loaded or economic sanctions applied. He charged strong forces are working for a monopoly in the South African press.

Friendman said the Argum Printing and Publishing Company dominates the South African newspaper profession. He said it owns a third of the voting power in the South African Press Association, a news agency, and exercises "complete veto power."

A CHAMP PREPARES—Youthful Bobby Fair, Toronto, 18-year-old Ontario Junior Golf champion, has been utilizing the carpets and furniture of his parents' Lakeside Ave. home during the winter months to sharpen up his game in preparation for a busy summer ahead. Here he tries a few putts while his six-months-old Irish terrier, Byron, named after Byron Nelson, the famous United States golf pro, glares balefully at the photographer.

Commons Told Bomb Outrage Not By British

LONDON, Feb. 25 — (CP). — Claims that British troops were involved in Sunday's Jerusalem bomb outrage were denied today in both the House of Commons and the House of Lords with demands that the murderers of nine members of British security forces in Palestine be punished.

D. R. Reese-Williams, Colonial Under-Secretary, told the Commons that he was satisfied British personnel had no responsibility for the explosion in Ben Yehuda street in Jerusalem.

He said that the Zionists who accused British troops had produced no evidence to support their allegations.

In view of the lack of evidence against the British, the undersecretary said, the government "will consider instituting a seditious libel action against those who made the allegations."

When Anthony Eden, former minister for foreign affairs, asked if it were true that two British aviators had been murdered while undergoing hospital treatment, the minister quietly replied "yes."

Defence Minister Alexander said that he repudiated entirely "the unfounded aspersions" made upon British forces and added that the government had every confidence in the officers responsible for that area.

Translations of an Arab leaflet circulated in Jerusalem and admitting responsibility for the explosion were read in both houses.

In the House of Lords, Viscount Hall said that the government would consider a suggestion that Arab or Jewish communities responsible for the attacks on British troops should be punished.

Can Use Air Field

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (CP). —A United States-United Kingdom agreement signed here yesterday paves the way for use of Kindley Field in Bermuda by Trans-Canada Air Lines. This ends long-standing transfer to TCA its right to use the Bermuda field for civil aviation purposes.

Bengough Backs CSU Leadership

TORONTO, Feb. 25 — (CP) — Percy Bengough, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, in a speech to the Canadian Seamen's Union convention, said yesterday he endorsed the leadership of the CSU and called for revision of the Canada Shipping Act.

"A lot of companies have said they don't like your leadership and, frankly, we are not very fussy about theirs," he said. "Some representatives of the employers have ideas of Capt. Kidd and these don't fit today. But we still are ready to do business with them."

Concerning the union leadership, he said:

"The representatives you have chosen have done a mighty good job for you."

He pledged the TLC to make a "strenuous effort" to have the Canada Shipping Act revised by parliament.

"No good government would keep that smelly antique on the legislative books for 20 minutes."

No Power For 3 Years From Ottawa–Oliver

GUELPH, Feb. 25 — (CP). — Farquhar Oliver, leader of the Liberal opposition in the Ontario Legislature, predicted in an address last night that it will be 1950 or 1951 before Ontario obtains any power from the Ottawa river.

"Premier Drew says it is not the Conservatives who have caused the power shortage but the Liberals because they cancelled the Quebec power contracts," he told the South Wellington Liberal Association. "But the power contracts we cancelled carried a price ticket of $15 per horsepower and they were renewed later at $12.50.

"When we suggested the development of power on the upper Ottawa river, the Tories said the contracts were iniquitous and they would have nothing to do with them," Mr. Oliver said. "From 1943 to 1946 the government took no step to formulate any policy that would relieve the present shortage. It will be 1950 to 1951 before we get any horsepower from the Ottawa river."

FLAMING DEATH

The practice of suttee, abolished by the British in 1829, required a Hindu widow to burn herself on her husband's funeral pyre.

He is in the U.S. to study international law at Yale.

BOARD MEMBER — E. C. Roelofson who was sworn in as a member of Toronto Board of Control yesterday and will begin his new duties at this morning's sitting of the board. As an alderman, Con. Roelofson represented Ward Seven.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

DEFENDERS DUCK TOO

ORDINARILY the "duck" is a play used by the declarer to help him bring in the cards of a suit, usually in the dummy, when there is a lack of entries on the side. But the play also can be employed to good effect by the defenders when conditions are just right. This is most likely to occur against a No Trump contract when the player with a long suit containing some top winners has no re-entries for it.

	♠ 10 9 6 ♥ A K 8 5 2 ♦ K 8 6 ♣ 10 7
♠ Q 8 2 ♥ J 7 6 4 ♦ J 9 3 2 ♣ 5 2	N W E S	♠ J 7 5 4 3 ♥ Q 10 ♦ 5 ♣ A K Q 8 4
	♠ A K ♥ 9 3 ♦ A Q 10 7 4 ♣ J 9 6 3

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	1 ♦	Pass	1 ♥
1 ♠	1 NT	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Bidding about like that brought two Souths of a tournament into the same contract, one making it and one failing. Each West led the club 5, the 7 going on from dummy, and the fate of the contract depended on what East then did.

One East took that first trick with the Q, also scored the K and A and then led the 8 to the J to put South in. The declarer followed with three tricks in diamonds, a diamond given up to West, and then the rest of the tricks no matter what that worthy led.

The other East was one of the world's truly great players, Theodore A. Lightner, whose action illustrated that the biggest difference between fine and ordinary players comes in the simple things rather than in the involved squeezes, throw-ins and coups. His play to the first trick was based on the most elementary kind of card-reading.

First, he could count on South having the clubs stopped since the No Trump was bid after the suit had been shown. Hence South surely had the club J. He, however, could not have had more than four, as in that case West would have had a singleton and so should not have led the suit. Hence, counting West for a doubleton, he put on his club 8. South of course won with the J. When South later lost a diamond to West, the latter returned the club 2, and Mr. Lightner got four tricks to beat the game.

Fine Toronto Woman $360 In Rent Case

TORONTO, Feb. 25—(CP)—Magistrate Tupper Bigelow said yesterday that Mrs. Mary Parks "made a clumsy effort" to evade rent control regulations. He fined her $360 and costs for charging an excessive rental for a house in 1947.

Evidence was that she charged $45 a month, although it should have been $32. Mrs. Parks contended that the tenants, Mr. and Mrs. L. Huston now of Oshawa, had agreed to buy the house and the $45 represented the monthly payment. Huston denied her contention that he had signed a purchase agreement.

Court Of Appeal Quashed Convction

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—(CP). — Ontario Court of Appeal has quashed the conviction of Michael Pawlyna of Sarnia, on charges of attempted carnal knowledge and of indecent assault. The court ordered a new trial by a jury.

When convicted last Dec. 12 by Judge E. A. Shaunessy, he was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and five strokes of the strap on the first charge and to a concurrent two-year term on the second.

Hon. A. Welsh

vice in the various resorts, hotels, lodges, cabin camps and tourist homes, and paid tribute to the various Chambers of Commerce across the province for cooperation.

Col. C. H. Crowe, of the Dept. of Travel and Publicity spoke briefly offering the facilities of the department to the Lakefield Chamber and he lauded the men who had formed this organization.

Pete McGillen when called on spoke in a humorous vein on the danger of Lakefield being expropriated by a rapidly expanding city to the south. He urged resort owners to pay attention to the black bass spawning along the shores in the spring, and see that they get protection. "More than 2½ million bass fry were released in Ontario in 1947, a record number, yet the taxpayers must remember than 500 pairs of bass each pair producing 5,000 fry could have done the same thing, in natural conditions without any expense. Hon. Harold Scott made this statement himself, in other words he is asking the people of Ontario to give nature a chance and thus save the province thousands of dollars in the conservation program of fish and game."

J. J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce at Peterborough also spoke, and extended greetings and an offer of cooperation to the new organization.

Vocal solos by Mrs. Jackman and Howard Vaughan were greatly enjoyed, and also musical selections by the high school orchestra.

The thanks of the Chamber was extended by Reeve William Grant.

SCAT!

'Tis a delicate question, but, after all it could happen—and does—in the best of families. The Humane Society reports that they have been advised that several scented striped anmials (skunks, in other words) are now developing an urge to go places and do things. Fair roaming ground for the skunks is the cellars of any house they happen to reach. Inspector Gerald Dunford advises that extra precautions be taken to see that all windows leading to cellars are well closed. If the litile pests have already invaded the castle, leave the window of entrance open and make it easy for them to use it to depart. They will. (That's what the books say, anyway).— R.B.

Marshall, Miss A. Dobbin, Miss M Greer, Mrs. J. E. Weir, Mrs. H. T. Rehill.

Mr. Barnes, chairman National Health Week program, told of the week's activities. CHEX had carried morning and evening broadcasts of five-minute duration, as well as news and spot announcements. The Examiner carried news releases, advertising, and announcements covering various meetings. A National Film Board film was shown to adults at the Capitol theatre, and to schoolchildren in the schools. For the children's benefit a number of talks on "health heroes" was also given. Churches supported the program from the pulpit, as well, said the chairman.

Other reports from organization committees were:

The nutrition committee with Mr. J. Dutton, Jr., as chairman, recently sponsored a food handling course. Two sessions were held when some aspects of bacteria and sanitation, food handling, preparation and handling were covered.

Miss Greer, secretary immunization committee, gave a report on immunization week. This was a week set apart to impress parents of the need for immunizing their children against whooping cough and diphtheria, etc. Following this week there was a noticeable improvement in attendance at health clinics.

This project is a new one but has shown promising results so far, in that, children with defective hearing may receive more attention in school and where necessary parents may have the defect attended to.

Mr. Girven, retiring president, thanked the various chairmen of the committees, and members for their support and was well pleased with results accomplished. He expressed the hope that membership would increase as more and more people became interested in health and that the year ahead would be one whereby, greater strides in the work would be made.

Mr. R J. Ward on behalf of the executive thanked Mr. Girven and Miss Alexander, retiring president and secretary, for their great efforts in the work and Mr. Girven was presented with a cigarette case and lighter and Miss Alexander a compact by the new president, Mr. Barnes.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. R. J. Marshall and her committee.

Benes Led His Country Against Hapsburg Rule

By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(AP). — President Eduard Benes, slight, frail and 64, is Europe's man of the hour today. His country virtually engulfed by a Communist sweep, he stands in the way.

Benes, to whom Czechoslovaks look for wise counsel in troubled moments, has promised to give it in a broadcast, possibly late today.

The people almost instinctively turn to him in critical moments, and there have been many in his lifetime.

Benes was a leader in the long struggle against Hapsburg rule. Ten years ago he fought against the Munich accord which gave his country to Adolf Hitler.

Since the liberation he has advised in grave moments on how to unite the country, set up parliament and make the wobbly coalition government work.

He is tired after an exhausting career and his health is not robust. But the elements which tried to oppose the Communist surge to power were hopeful he might have some solution which may have something of representative government in Czechoslovakia.

The popular attitude toward Benes in Czechoslovakia is almost reverential. Above parties —he would not even vote in the last election to avoid any impression of taking sides—he has been able to hold together a difficult coalition since the liberation from the Germans in May, 1945 His voice is respected above any other that might speak in the present emergency.

Speculating on what plan he may offer, most persons who know him are confident he will hold to his tough democractic idealism. It is a solid conviction with him. As a practical statesman he may devise compromises, but it is being said of him that he is unlikely to yield on a matter of fundamental principle.

Storage of gas there has been accepted by authorities as the only methods of averting another industrial paralysis next winter.

Drew May Table Letter In Legislature

The story mentioned the premier's statement last night that not one word of his letter of 1942 to Prime Minister Mackenzie King "could possibly be interpreted as breaking faith with the government of the United Kingdom."

In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. King refused to make public the letter on the grounds that it contained several references to contents of telegrams that the United Kingdom was unwilling to have made public.

Road Subsidies Cost 15 Million

TORONTO, Feb. 25 — (CP) — Ontario government road subsidies to municipalities, which six years ago were $3,600,000, totalled $15,700,000 for 1947, Highways Minister Doucett today told the Ontario Good Roads Association.

"This increase, you will appreciate, represents no inconsiderable part of our provincial revenues," he said. "I think I should say frankly that it is about as far as we are prepared to go at this time and I hope the municipalities will govern themselves accordingly."

"Approved municipal road expenditures for 1947 were $30,698,983, and of this amount approximately $2,225,000 represented supplementary departmental approvals," he declared. "I need not add that the department does not favor supplementary approvals except in case of emergency."

He said the actual municipal expenditures for the year totalled $28,135,387.

Leftist Forces Really Shattered In Franco Spain

By STUART UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

MADRID, Feb. 25 (CP).—Republican Spain, overthrown by General Francisco Franco after three years' bitter civil fighting, went down with such a crash that it's still hard to find the pieces.

Some of the leaders, who ended the war amid division and squabbling, fled to exile and a precarious life in which their hopes depend largely on the political attitudes of other nations. Their prospects of regaining power have seldom looked more bleak than now.

A few of the lesser opponents of Franco have taken advantage of his offer of a political amnesty and returned to Spain. They seem for the most part to have been able to resume normal lives — minus any political activity.

Thousands of other left-wing fighters who didn't get out of Spain are still in jails. The Communists claim there are 150,000 political prisoners, but it is generally agreed that this figure is too high. The nearest official approximation is about 27,000.

Undoubtedly there are remnants of left-wing groups still loyal to their old beliefs and working underground as best they can. Their greatest weakness is that they are just that — remnants — still unable to agree and still working toward different objectives. It is impossible to assay their real strength because the clever ones cloak their activities so thoroughly that they are unsuspected. The less clever fall easy prey to the vigilant state police.

They disappear into prison. Months may pass before they are brought to trial — not before a judge and jury, but at courts-martial. Officers are provided to conduct their defence but the court generally imposes the penalty asked by the prosecution. The trails are conducted with little publicity at out-of-the-way towns, difficult of access, to prevent the possibility of demonstrations.

No Opposition

In private conversation many persons appear vaguely anti-Franco, but there is no open, organized opposition to him. If anything, public opinion shudders away from left-wing sentiments because of clever propaganda linking all such feelings with Communism. From the government viewpoint there are no pinks in Spain —only reds who must be crushed ruthlessly.

Even soldiers who fought in the Republican ranks now accept the anti-Communist view as a matter of course. Often their service was a matter of geographical chance —if they had lived a few miles farther south they would have been conscripted by Franco.

Sometimes they are haunted by excesses which were committed by both sides. They may have a horror of civil strife, which the government tells them must result if left-wing forces obtain power.

In a dingy Madrid cafe, two men who professed to have strong links with the leftist underground, muttered over their coffee cups about the strength of their organization. They didn't agree in detail, but both said the first step if they and their friends ever achieved power would be to "remove completely all traces of Franco."

Their manner and appearance were less impressive than the reaction of a high army officer to whom I repeated a cabinet minister's statement that "Spain has no Communist fifth column."

He gave a mirthless laugh.

JAPAN'S HEAD—The lower house of Japan's Diet polled 216 votes to elect Hitoshi Ashida, above, prime minister of Japan. Ashida follows the Socialist Tetsukatayama, who resigned recently because of a split within his party. Ashida is a Democrat and has been called the "strong man" of Japanese politics, but it is believed that the Socialists will have a voice in picking his cabinet since their votes were used to help in Ashida's election.

Name Arts Student Queen Of Queen's U.

KINGSTON, Feb. 25—(CP)—Marjorie MacGregor, arts student from Pembroke is the new queen of Queen's University.

She received the award in an unusual publicity stunt for the international student service which last week conducted an intensive survey to raise $4,000 from the campus for the aid of needy students in Europe and Asia.

Here's how the contest worked: Levana, the co-ed group on the campus, selected four girls from among its ranks, each one to represent a different faculty—one for arts, one for meds, one for science and one for levana.

Ballots were the money contributions members of each faculty made towards I.S.S. The faculty pledged that most cash per capita would then have their contender named queen.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By J. R. Scott

James Bay Mission Work Is Described

MILLBROOK, Feb. 25—(ENS) —St. Thomas Anglican WA was entertained at the rectory for its February meeitng, with the president, Mrs. A. E. Chevis, in the chair, and assisted in the opening worship period by Mrs. W. E. Massey-Cooke.

Mrs. C. M. MacLean took the chapter from the study book covering different forms of Anglican mission work in Canada.

An interesting feature was a letter from Mrs. Shepherd, describing their work at Fort George on James Bay.

Canon and Mrs. Shepherd are well known in Millbrook, where they have been guests of Captain and Mrs. W. E. Massey-Cooke, their sons attending the Grove Scholo at Lakefield. They spent their holidays in the village, before they resumed their mission work at their present parish.

Appreciation was expressed at the fact that Miss I. Corry, for 16 years superintendent of the Junior WA, is back in the village after being a patient at the Civic Hospital, Peterborough, for several months.

Appointment of a new superintendent was left until a later date.

Supper hostesess were Mrs. Chevis and Miss E. Kent.

The March meeting will be in charge of Mrs. MacLean and Miss Muriel Smith.

Shortly after firemen had brought the flames under control two bodies of small children were found in a first-floor room They were not identified immediately.

Say Pickets Manhandled; 8 Arrested

Police Charge Woman Started Trouble Turning On Constable

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—(CP). — Eight persons—seven men and a woman—were arrested by provincial police today following a clash on the picket lines at the Rogers-Majestic plant in suburban Leaside where the United Electrical Workers (CIO) are on strike for wage increases.

Although provincial police declined official comment, officers at the scene said that the trouble started when a woman strike picked turned on a constable who sought to prevent her from interfering with an office worker going into the plant.

Later the president of the striking union local charged that police manhandled pickets.

Some 75 provincial police were posted at the plant two days ago at the request of the town of Leaside to obtain entry into the plant for executives and office workers.

Police said that one constable was assaulted and suffered bruises in the melee.

Company officials said that for the present they would make no statement on the affair.

Aldridge said in his statement that provincial police used "well-organized storm trooper methods in manhandling girls and men on the picket line." He added that girls were struck in the face and men kicked and beaten while held on the ground.

Two Canadians Try Cancer Cure

SYDNEY, Austria, Feb. 26. — (CP)—Simultaneous with the arrival of two Vancouver women said to be suffering from cancer, Dr. E. S. Morris, director-general of public health for New South Wales, today advised cancer sufferers in other countries "to bide their time" pending investigation into the "Braund method of treatment.

"I strongly advise that all persons overseas await the outcome of our investigation before making plans to come to Australia," he said.

The two women, Mrs. Jack Northam, 36, and Mrs. Ruth McIntyre, 33, arrived by plane from Vancouver today. Officials of the Australian Legion of former service men and women took the women to an undisclosed address in Sydney's eastern suburbs and officials advised them to use assumed names to avoid further publicity.

W. R. Nicholas, state secretary of the legion, said "our only concern is to make the ladies as comfortable as possible during their stay in Australia." He said they now were in a "comfortable private home."

Send Warship To Guard British Honduras

LONDON, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Admiralty announced today the British cruiser Sheffield has sailed from Colombia for British Honduras.

An authoritative source said the ship was dispatched "because of possible incidents staged by irresponsible elements in neighboring Guatemala." The informant refused to elaborate.

A foreign office spokesman said there recently had been a "virulent campaign" against Britain in the Guatemalan press.

"No doubt," the spokesman said, "it has its origin in recent events in the Antarctic."

The Guatemalan press and government have supported the claims of Argentina and Chile to the British-claimed Falkland Islands off the southeast coast of Argentina.

"At the same time," the spokesman said, "the Guatemalan press has resurrected a long-standing dispute between this country and Guatemala on the question of the British Honduras.

"At one time or another, Guatemala laid claims to part of all of the British Honduras. Since 1945 the British government has asked them to take the claim to an international court of justice."

Britain also has suggested that Chile and Argentina submit the Falkland dispute to the international court.

Must Clean Up Film Board Fraser Demands In House

OTTAWA, Feb. 26—(CP).—G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West), one of the severest critics of the Crown-owned National Film Board, said Wednesday in the Commons that the "sooner that outfit is cleaned up the better it will be for everyone."

Mr. Fraser said last year he had described the board as a "white elephant." He had received many letters criticizing him for what he said and some employees of the board had telephoned him and told him to keep his mouth shut unless he had something good to say.

He said he was wrong when he called the board a white elephant. He did not know at the time that the board had started out with a modest $8,000 in expenditures in 1939 and now had expenditures of more than $3,000,000.

Blames Smokers

TORONTO, Feb. 26 — (CP). — Careless smokers were the cause of most of the forest fires in Ontario last year, when 84,032 acres were burned over, Lands Minister Scott said today.

Other starters of fires were lightning, campers, railways, settlers, logging operations, road construction, mining operations and prospectors.

August turned out the worst month, when 466 fires were reported. Late autumn fires damaged an estimated 2,500,000 feet of saleable lumber.

Shoot It Out Behind Graves

JERUSALEM, Feb. 26 (AP). — A fierce mortar battle between Jews and Arabs raged today near the Garden of Gethsemane outside Jerusalem, with Arabs reported firing from behind tombstones in a Jewish cemetery.

Police also told of a battle in the border area between Arab Jaffa and Jewish Tel Aviv. They said a Jewish mortar and grenade attack on an Arab bastion killed three Arabs and wounded four others.

The Jerusalem fight was between Jews on Mount Scopus, site of Hadassan hospital and the Hebrew university, and Arabs of Wadi Joz nearby. It began at 5 a.m. and went on full tilt for two hours. Three hours later firing started again.

Given 3-Year Term 4 Hours After Robbery

TORONTO, Feb. 26 — (CP). — Less than four hours after a downtown cigar store robbery today, 32-year-old Edward Phelan was sentenced by Magistrate R. Browne to three years in penitentiary for the offence.

Phelan admitted to police that $55 they recovered when they arrested him after a chase was taken from the cash register of Harry Pastel's store. Police said that Phelan tricked Pastel into thinking he was armed by holding one hand in his pocket. He ordered Pastel to lie on the floor and then took the $55.

Sleep Under Umbrellas To Keep Dry In Berlin

BERLIN, Feb. 26 — (AP). — Many Berliners, who last winter complained they had to burn their furniture to keep from freezing to death, have a new complaint this milder winter.

They have to sleep under umbrellas or dressed in raincoats to keep dry under their leaky roofs.

That isn't the only peril. Sometimes the weakened roofs of bomb-damaged buildings collapse and sleepers are killed—as they were on a recent night when firemen dug the bodies of a mother and child out of the debris.

At the end of January last year Berlin was snow-clad and shivering. Health authorities already had counted more than 60 persons dead of the cold in less than 60 days.

This winter there has been enough rain to cause unprecedented mid-winter floods and to swamp thousands of homes. Patients in some of the city's overcrowded hospitals have had to lie in bed under umbrellas.

Keeps Them Busy

German reporters during a recent rainy spell found "countless" citizens running around their apartments strategically placing pots and pans to save the rugs and furniture.

There was widespread cursing of landlords for failure to repair roofs. But one landlord complained that even a repair job would cost him 10,000 to 12,000 marks ($1,000 to $1,200 at the United States military rate of exchange).

Another said he had raised enough money to buy a black market reroofing job but added, cynically, "why should I invest money? Get a house in good repair and someone will come along and requisition it from you."

So this landlord's tenants scampered about their lodgings laying down coverings and placing pots and pans.

Power Grab Old Story To 3 Allies

France May Withhold Recognition From New Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) —Britain, the United States and France today jointly condemned as a "disguised dictatorship" of Communists the new government set up in Czechoslovakia.

In a declaration issued at the state department here the three governments, also said the Communists seized power through "a crisis artificially and deliberately instigated."

With an apparent reference to earlier Communist power grabs, such as in Hungary, the three western powers charged that the crisis served as a cover for "the use of certain methods already tested in other places."

As a result, the statement said, Czechoslovakia has suffered "the suspension of the free exercise of parliamentary institutions and the establishment of a disguised dictatorship of a single party."

The joint declaration said:

"The governments of the United States, France and Great Britain....can but condemn a development the consequences of which can only be disastrous for the Czechoslovak people, who had proved once more in the midst of the sufferings of the Second World War their attachment to the cause of liberty."

Strong Protests

Parallel action by Britain and the United States in the case of past Communist seizures in eastern Europe has taken the form of strong protests sent independently but in similar language.

In Paris there was an indication France might withhold recognition from the new Czechoslovak government. The French foreign office said "no decision has yet been taken" on relations with the new government. This was significant in that the question of recognition would not arise if the coup were regarded as a purely domestic affair.

The Paris ministry would neither deny nor confirm that consultations with Britain and the United States were taking place.

United States Navy Dept. Worker Strangled Struggles Fiercely Before Robbers Triumph

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP). —An ex-naval officer, travelling under orders from the United States Navy Department, was found strangled in his ransacked West 57th St. hotel room yesterday. The 35-year-old victim was bound hand and foot and strips of bed sheet were knotted around his neck.

The man was identified as Harvey Haeberle, a civilian employee of the navy's photographic division at Washington. The navy saaid Haeberle served as its contact man with commercial studios filming training movies.

Haeberle's hands and feet were lashed behind him with strips of sheeting. His belt and another piece of the torn sheet were twisted about his neck. A chain strip running down his back linked the knots so that any movement to break free would tighten the noose around his neck until he choked.

The disordered hotel room indicated that Haeberle had put up a fierce struggle for his life before being overpowered. His suitcase had been opened and its contents scattered.

Parisiens Disappointed In Barbara Ann's Skating

PARIS, Feb. 26—(CP).—Paris newspapers today generally approved Barbara Ann Scott's skating exhibition at the Palais des Sports last night with one exception. The Evening France Soir said the Ottawa star, Olympic and world figure-skating champion, "did not make us forget Sonja Henie."

"The Canadian skater Barbara Ann Scott surprised us," the paper said. "We expected a marvellous fairy of the ice but we saw nothing but a charming young girl, simple and gracious, gliding over the ice with perhaps more facility than her fellow-competitors but with no more talent or virtuosity. Too much has been said about her."

France Soir remarked that the capacity crowd of 20,000 "did not ration their applause" for the Ottawan but "they could not begin to compare the exhibition by the young Olympic and world champion to the talent and viruosity displayed by the American, Dick Button (Olympic and world men's figure-skating champion), here the week previously."

RED SPARKPLUG — The man behind the series of raids on headquarters of Czech anti-Communists is Vaclav Nosek (above), Czech minister of the interior, believed to be the sparkplug of the Communist drive to take over complete power in Czechoslovakia. Nosek controls all the police forces in the turbulent country.

Mich. Governor Asks Full Betting Probe

DETROIT, Feb. 26 — (AP) — Gov. Kim Sigler today asked Detroit Police Commissioner Harry S. Toy to make "a full investigation" of a reported link between gamblers and National Hockey League players.

He said he wanted a state-wide inquiry to follow what he called Toy's "partial investigation of what has taken place in Wayne County (Detroit)."

At the same time the Governor invited NHL President Clarence Campbell to confer with him on reports of player betting. Campbell came here yesterday from Montreal to investigate the reported gambling.

Toy was asked by Sigler not to discuss the situation publicly "until he and I know what it's all about."

The Governor, in a Lansing press conference, told reporters there had been "rumors and reports" that the hockey betting probe ties in with the 1945 murder of State Senator Warren G. Hooper "and other things."

"There is nothing but rumor yet and I want to know what it's all about," he added.

Referring to a reported wire recording of telephone calls alleged to have been made to two National League hockey players by a paroled bank robber and gambler, Sigler said he doesn't know "who has it or that there is one."

He said the public "is entitled to know whether anyone has been participating in crooked deals."

Arabs May Halt Oil Concessions

CAIRO, Feb. 26 — (AP). — The Arab League has warned that "all Arab states" will cancel their oil concessions to the United States if the United States keeps pushing Palestine partition, a League source said today.

The informant said the warning was given in a note sent to Washington yesterday. If threatened cancellation of the concessions if the United States "continues to use its influence in the (United Nations) Security Council to partition Palestine."

The note, the source added, was sent in accordance with a decision reached by the seven-member league in its recent Cairo session.

The League includes Saudi Arabia, where the Arabian-American Oil Company is developing vast oil deposits. The Saudi Arabian field is the largest single oil supplier of the United States Navy.

Lebanese Premier Riyad El Solh was quoted in a dispatch from Beyrouth, Lebanon, yesterday as saying the Arab League in the same meeting decided to forbid the trans-Arabian pipelines to operate through Arab countries.

All Opposition Is Crushed In Czechoslovakia As 'Reds' Win Revolution

Communists Next Goal To Win Election Build Charges Against Ministers; Propaganda Drive Begins Against Foreigners

PRAGUE, Feb. 26 — (AP). — The fate of Czechoslovakia's battered and beaten anti-Communist forces was the big question mark today in this central European country, which fell under complete Communist dominion last night. The Communist Party, largest but still a minority in parliament, controlled a new government made up of its members and sympathizers. The semblance of the old coalition was presented.

Communist Premier Klement Gottwald induced Independent President Eduard Benes to approve this government last night. The President accepted resignations of 14 anti-Communist Ministers, 12 of whom quit last week to protest Communist moves to control the police.

In six days of bloodless revolution, the Communist Party had pressed its demands and won. It controlled the Cabinet. It gave orders through the police and "action committees" to the whole country. It had crushed, for the time being at least, all effective opposition.

The change was a step toward turning this little republic, modelled at birth after the United States, into a copy of its new idol, Soviet Russia.

The Communists' next goal is to win the coming election and a majority in parliament, where they now have 38 per cent of the seats by themselves and 52 per cent with their allies, the Social Democrats. Strategy in the meantime was to tighten their grip on the country by putting down opposition.

Gives Clue

Gottwald gave the cue when, in public rallies, he spoke of the dozen resigning ministers as the "agents of foreign reaction." Justice Minister Alexej Cepicka, newly promoted from Minister of Internal Trade, said "the forces of reaction will now try to make their comeback."

The election date has not been decided. When it comes, the likelihood seems to be that voters will be given a choice of several tickets, but that candidates on those other than the Communist will have to be—in the Communist phrase—"Democratic Progressive" members.

36 Homeless After $100,000 Blaze In Hull

HULL, Que., Feb. 26—(CP).—A $100,000 fire today left 36 persons homeless, destroyed 11 apartments and four stores, and threatened for a time a major portion of the Bridge Street business section leading from the Chaudiere Bridge, which spans the Ottawa River between Hull and Ottawa.

Laureat Savarb, a night shift worker who lived in one of the apartments, raised the alarm and headed off a possible loss of life.

Clad only in night attire, the residents raced down the stairway to the street and the building had been cleared only a few minutes when flames shot up through the second and third storeys.

Hull firemen had the blaze under control after a three-hour battle, but were still pouring water on the blackened premises until nearly noon.

A grocery store, a drug store, a beauty parlor and a ladies' wear shop were destroyed in the blaze, of unknown origin.

In addition to the 11 apartments in the McLean building, apartments in the adjacent block sustained smoke and water damage.

Find Helpless Drunk Has $8,000 In Belt

HAMILTON, Feb. 26 (CP). — Police were slightly bug-eyed here last night as they searched a man helplessly drunk and found he had $8,000, most of it in $10 bills, in a belt around his middle. His wife, also charged, yielded only $17.

Remorseful this morning, he explained the money represented his life earnings and he carried it with him because of his distrust of banks. He and his wife planned to leave the city last night but instead, decided to find out what cocktail bars were like as they had never been in one. They were fined $10 each

Finland Likely Next Morsel To Tickle Russian Palate

LONDON, Feb. 26 — (AP). — Diplomatic sources here expressed the opinion today that Finland may be the next of the small powers to feel the squeeze as Communist power strides steadily westward.

Others thought Austria, France and Italy might be clamped in the Communist vise. There seemed to be general agreement that the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia had forged perhaps the most vital link in a Russian chain intended to block the Marshall plan.

In Finland and Italy, as in Czechoslovakia, elections are coming up soon and the Communists want to win them. Finland's coalition government has acknowledged that the country must remain on the best of terms with Russia.

Italy and France have barred Communists from their cabinets and the best efforts of the leftists thus far by hard-hitting, paralyzing strikes, have failed to budge Premier Robert Schuman in France and Premier Alfride De Gasperi in Italy. But the pressure never has been relaxed.

Resisted Web

Informed sources in London diplomatic circles predicted that Czechoslovakia now will be drawn more tightly into the interlocking network of mutual defence.

The Czechs had resisted joining this spreading web.

Since the first sharp reaction to the Marshall plan, in which it seemed for a time at the beginning that Czechoslovakia would like to take part, this is what has happened in Soviet neighbor states:

Romania—King Michael abdicated and new elections were ordered. Communists took control of all key cabinet posts and treaties were signed with Russia.

Bulgaria—formed into a virtual one-party state under Communist Premier Georgi Dimitrov. Opposition leader Nikola Petkov was executed for treason.

Poland — opposition leader Stanislaw Mikolajczyk fled to escape arrest. Communist leaders have been urging a formal merger with socialists, who share the government. A new treaty was signed with Russia.

Hungary—so many "converts" have been trying to join the Communist party that a party ban was ordered on new members, beginning next month.

U.S. May Give Secret Czech Story

Say Russians Asked American Troops Not To Free Prague

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26. — (AP).—The political upheaval in Czechoslovakia may blow the lid off secret documents explaining Russian-American wartime arrangements for liberation of that country.

These papers would supply Washington's official answers to such questions as why American forces failed to aid in the liberation of the Czech capital, Prague, from the Germans, and why the United States troops stopped short just inside the Czech western border.

Apparently they also would add another chapter to the story of how the Soviets were able to get the upper hand in Eastern European countries from the very end of the war.

From wholly authoritative informants, it was learned that these documents would show:

1. That a Soviet high command request from Moscow to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was the immediate reason why American troops failed to help free Prague in May, 1945.

2. That the simultaneous withdrawal of Russian and American armies from Czechoslovakia in late 1945 came after President Truman made a personal request to Generalissimo Stalin to approve such a step.

3. That the United States "leaned over backward," as one official said today, to prove to the Russians that American troops would not rush into areas which the Russians wanted to occupy.

The secrecy about the wartime arrangements evidently helped the Russians present themselves to the Czechs as liberators, while they accused the Americans of failing to give any real help in the fighting.

It is this last propaganda twist of the facts, responsible diplomatic authorities here said, which has prompted the State and Defense Departments to consider ripping the "secrecy" labels off the record.

The Communists in Czechoslovakia have been emphasizing that when Prague was in the throes of liberation, American troops, then only about 50 miles away, did not come to the assistance of the people.

Blame Oil Stove For Nfld. Fire

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Feb. 26 — (CP). — Isaac Hull, proprietor of the old people's home in which 33 persons were burned to death Feb. 10, told an official inquiry today that the blaze had started from an oil stove which acted "queer."

Two sessions of the inquiry, before Chief Justice Sir Edward Emerson, dealt with police reports and particulars given by Hull regarding the fatal early-morning blaze in sub-zero weather.

One of the patients had old Hull and oil-burning range used to heat the old stone building had been acting "queer" and finally burst into flames to start the fire.

All Opposition

Meanwhile, the pattern for the other parties was to purge their ranks of men and women fallen into disfavor because of anti-Communist views.

Many of the big names in the three parties whose ministers resigned to initiate the cabinet crisis are parliamentary deputies. Pending an election, no one could say whether some other way might be found to oust them or have a parliamentary committee strip them of immunity.

The Ministry of the Interior, long Communist-controlled, has been building up its charges against many of the ministers for months. Accusations have been made that spies for the Western Powers have been using Czechoslovakia as a base to work against Russia.

The Communists had a propaganda campaign under way against "foreign and domestic reaction." In it, they had the use of Communist-controlled radio systems, their own press, a former opposition press now purged of foes and critics, and public meetings from works councils up to party rallies.

Up until this morning there has been no censorship of the Associated Press. Other foreign correspondents also appeared to be working without restrictions on what they wrote. However, information was hard to get.

Must Clean

"I should have called it a herd of white elephants," said Mr Fraser.

He asked for an investigation of the board and for the cleaning out of unessential persons employed by the board.

Too Much Extravagance

Everyone was demanding tax reduction, but these reductions could not be granted as "long as there are these extravagances going on in government departments."

The board paid more out in salaries than it did for the production of films and $57,000 of the salary expenditures were paid to employees outside of the country. Most of the amount was paid in United States dollars, yet the government was passing legislation to conserve American currency. Another large amount was paid for the maintenance of offices in the United States.

"It is about time the government practices what it preaches," said Mr. Fraser.

He said the annual financial reports were cleverly drawn up and it had taken him an an adding machine some time to get a proper break down of the figures.

The board occupied some 10 buildings in Ottawa but the rents for these buildings and for the telephones in them were paid by the Public Works Department.

While he was ready to admit the board was doing good work in some fields, the people were not getting full value for their money and it was time the situation was corrected.

While it is doing good work in some fields, it is running riot in others," he said.

Unessential Work

The board was doing unessential work in some spheres, and an example of this could be found in the still photograph department. There were cases as well when the board arranged for the making of films on particular topic at the wrong time of year.

The board had undertaken to make a picture on West Coast fishing at the wrong time of year, and it had moved actors, actresses and equipment into Toronto to make a film on the University of Toronto at a time when students were taking exams. The actors, actresses and equipment had to be moved from Toronto almost immediately because, with the students all busy with exams, there was no one around the campus where the picture was to be produced.

He said the film board constituted "socialization of the worst kind." On big events, the board's still photographers took over and "robbed the commercial photographer of the right to take pictures."

Should Clean House

The Commerical photographers should not have to face competition of that type. The film board was not set up for that purpose and the cabinet should step in and "clean house."

The board also took passport pictures and "official portraits." That was "robbing" the commercial photographer.

He said that if the board had "nothing to hide" it should be able to stand a full-scale investigation into its activities.

He suggested that a "clean-up" of the film board might produce a saving of $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 and said this could be turned over to needy hospitals in the form of grants.

Industrials Showing Narrow Losses Today

TORONTO, Feb. 26 — (CP) — Prices were mixed in a mildly easing trend on the Stock Exchange today as trading continued quiet and uninspired. Industrials showed a slight majority of narrow losses while mining issues were about unchanged in dull action. Koreans Renew Riots Against US

SEOUL, Feb. 26 — (AP). — The United States Army reported today five or six Korean civilians and a policeman were killed in a renewal of Communist-inspired agitation against the United Nations. Thirteen Koreans were injured seriously.

Saboteurs also destroyed a bridge, cut telephone wires and placed ties across railroad tracks.

The report said groups of 50 to 1,000 attacked police boxes last night at widely scattered points in southern Korea.

The incidents were similar to those of Feb. 7 in which 47 persons were killed. Rioters at that time carried placards demanding the withdrawal of the U.N. Commission for Korea.

One of a flight of 20 B-29's bound for the West Coast, the bomber crashed in flames shortly after taking off from Carswell Air Base at Fort Worth, Tex. Clark was commander of the flight.

The four victims were found in or near the scene of the wreckage.

"We were flying on instruments at 10,000 feet in a heavy rain and fog," Clark said.

He said the plane was burning as it fell.

Workmen Claim Street Was Sanded

Resumption of the Little versus the City of Peterborough case heard before Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells in the Court House Thursday was mainly hearing of evidence as to the sanding and plowing of the sidewalks.

The case arose from injuries allegedly sustained by Mrs. Little, Lake Street when she fell on the icebound sidewalk near 425 George Street January 23, 1947, and fractured her hip.

First witness was the manager of a cleaning establishment at 425 George Street who testified that there was a quantity of packed snow and ice in front of his premises. When asked if he was aware that he was under an obligation to clear the sidewalk in front of his establishment, he replied that he was not. He admitted that he had not chipped any of the ice or packed snow. He further testified that as far as he could recall on the day in question there was no sand on the sidewalk.

W. Huycke, KC, counsel for the City called several employees of the Board of Works, who each testified that they had received instructions to sand and plow the sidewalks.

James Burgess, street commissioner for the Board of Works said that he was responsible for the clearing of the streets and sidewalks after a snow fall and to supervise the sanding where necessary. He produced several work sheets showing the streets that had been sanded in January and on the days immediately preceding January 23. He explained that there were about 80 miles of sidewalks to sand in the city.

Thos. Bacon, and Thos. McLennan, employees of the Board of Works for the City, both testified that the sidewalks on George Street from Hunter to Dublin had been plowed twice on January 22, both in the morning and again at night. They also said that the sidewalks had been sanded.

Car Shortage Keeps 3,000 Miners Idle

SYDNEY, N.S., Feb. 26.—(CP). —Three thousand miners in the Cape Breton coal belt — about one-third of the entire colliery force—were idle today because of a shortage of coal cars.

Not working were two at Glace Bay, one at Dominion, and Florence. The first three employ more than 2,300 miners, Florence some 600.

There has been a sporadic car shortage since the strike settlement last June which has tended to offset climbing production figure in all Nova Scotia pits.

Unable to move some coal brought to the surface, Dominion Coal Company has been building one of its biggest banks in history. A company official said little coal would be available for banking if cars could be supplied.

The bank probably would start to disappear when Sydney harbor again was free of ice and the coal started moving by collier.

Weather Problems

Though lack of cars has been the main obstacle blocking return to the high November production level, the weather has created problems, too.

High winds yesterday prevented operation of the towering coal bridge at the steel plant here and a large number of company cars were not spilled. This meant a further delay today.

Clogged roads and delayed buses also have cut down the working force.

(Transport Minister Chevrier said in the Commons Tuesday that improved weather and a faster turn-around of cars was expected to bring almost immediate improvement.)

Jury Finds Lindsay Man Guilty Of Assaulting 12-Year-Old Girl

LINDSAY, Feb. 25 —(ENS)— Seward Stone, aged 50 of Lindsay, was found guilty of attempted carnal knowledge and indecent assault of a 12-year-old local girl by a Supreme Court jury sitting here Wednesday afternoon. Stone was sentenced to a term in Guelph Reformatory of 12 months definite and 6 months indefinite on both counts, to be served concurrently.

Stone went on trial Tuesday. The Crown had laid an indictment containing three counts against him. These counts were: having carnal knowledge, attempting to have carnal knowledge, and indecent assault of a girl under the age of 14 years. However, a grand jury, after hearing evidence in the case Monday, returned a verdict of "no bill" on the carnal knowledge count.

The trial lasted all of Tuesday and most of Wednesday, with Honorable Mr. Justice Walter Schroeder of Toronto presiding. Walter Martin, K.C., of the Attorney General's Department, Toronto, acted for the Crown. He was assisted by Crown Attorney L. W. Jordan of Lindsay. T. J. Carley of Peterborough acted for the defendant.

Tells Her Story

Tuesday morning the little girl took the witness stand to tell the story of the alleged attack upon her person, which she claimed took place on the evening of July 29, 1947. The child said she was baby sitter at a home in Lindsay that evening, and was playing outside the house about 9 p.m. when a car stopped across the street and a man got out, came over to her and asked if the people were at home.

"Do you see that man in court today?" asked Mr. Martin.

The child identified Stone. Continuing, she said Stone asked if he could see the baby in the house and she went with him into the house. They went into the bedroom where the baby was sleeping, she said, and Stone ordered her to turn off the light. Then he asked to use the telephone. She showed him to the phone in the hall, and it was there, according to her evidence, that she was first assaulted. Later, she alleged, he attacked her in the bedroom.

T. J. Carley asked if she had resisted when Stone made the alleged advances.

"No," she replied.

"Did you at any time cry out or try to summon help?"

"No, he warned me to keep quiet and I was afraid to call," the girl said.

Dr. J. C. Arnold of Lindsay gave evidence to the effect that his examination showed signs the child had been assaulted.

Stone Testified

The accused said he went to call at the home the girl mentioned in the company of Nelson Beatty and Mrs. Harold Robertson, both of Lindsay, that night.

The Beatty car stalled near that house, Stone said, and refused to start. When the girl told him the family was out, the accused stated he asked to use the telephone to call the garage. "I asked the girl how the baby was, and she asked me if I would like to see him," Stone said. "She showed me the baby in the bedroom, and then I went out."

"Why did you tell her to turn off the light?" asked Crown counsel.

"Because it was shining in the baby's eyes. That was the only reason,' accused replied.

"Did you molest this child in any way?"

"I never touched her," was the reply.

"Figment of Imagination"

"Then you would say this girl's story of the attack is just a figment of her imagination?" Hon. Justice Schroeder asked the defendant.

"Yes, as far as I'm concerned," Stone answered.

"You have no suggestion why the girl should make this charge?" inquired Mr. Martin.

"No. I can't understand why this girl would come forward and say such a thing. So far as I know her family had nothing against me," Stone said.

Mrs. Rita Austin, who was upstairs in the home visited said after Stone left she found the young girl crying. On learning what had transpired, Mrs. Austin stated she went to tell the mother of the girl.

"When Mrs. Austin told us what happened, my husband telephoned thet police," the mother told the court.

"I went over there and found my daughter in a hysterical condition. She was taken to the doctor by her father and then to the police station."

The girl's father testified that he had seen the st[illegible] Beatty car farther down the street while on his way to the police, and took the licence number.

Police Sergeant R. F. Hargrave said that he and Constable Endicott began a search through the local baverage rooms for a man answering the description given us by the father.

"As a result of information received I went to the home of Nelson Beatty and subsequently picked up Seward Stone," Sergeant Hargrave said.

The officer stated the girl identified Stone as her assailant at the police station around midnight July 29. He added that Stone denied touching her in the presence of both her and the father.

Police Chief R. H. Lawler testified he arrested Stone the same night on a charge of indecent assault.

Don't Get Excited Power Broken, Not Cut

COBOURG, Feb. 26—(ENS)—The lights flickered last night at seven o'clock as per schedule to warn householders to turn off all unnecessary lights and also to shut off electric water heaters for two hours. Ten minutes later the lights went off completely for several minutes and citizens began to wonder if the utilities office had turned them off, as previously warned, because of failure of the public to respond to the shut-off signal. Phones buzzed and Chairman Cecil Wilson of the utilities commission said it was a breakdown somewhere on the system. Lights came on soon after and went off again for another few minutes. The next time they came on they remained that way.

'Problem Girls' Need Understanding Homes Says Supt. Of Cobourg Training School

COBOURG, Feb. 26.—(ENS).—Placement of girls from the Ontario training schools in foster homes, presents many problems, Miss I. J. Macneill, new superintendent of the training school here, told the meeting of the Kiwanis Club last night. Parents accustomed to running strict homes are often lacking in the necessary understanding and tolerance to make them capable foster parents of training school wards, she said.

She pointed out that the school at Cobourg was crowded with inmates and this restricted the staff from carrying on the desired program. The speaker said she would welcome materials for hobby work by the girls, such as cloth for quilts, games, old music, records and books. Service clubs might be able to help out in that respect, she said.

The superintendent said she had found the girls "sweet and charming" and what they needed was a sense of responsibility to build up trust and self respect. She appealed to local families to invite individual girls into their homes for a social evening, such as on Sundays.

"These girls are intelligent but extremely sensitive and they have suffered from too much criticism in their lives," Miss Macneil declared.

Call 900 Printers To Strike For Raise

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26 — (AP) —A strike of 900 union printers was called against 28 major commercial printing firms today in what the union described as a fight for higher pay.

Sinclair Muir, president of Local 2 of the International Typographical Union, (A.F.L.), said the printers' work stoppage, first here in 27 years, was decided upon last night by a vote of 1,110 to 58.

Printers at Philadelphia newspaper plants are not involved in the dispute.

The strike action overshadowed another development yesterday in which the I.T.U. called a national labor relations board hearing here "a court of persecution" and, in effect, walked out of the hearing.

Benjamin R. Simon, counsel for the Philadelphia local, as well as local 6, of the union in New York, asked the NLRB to postpone the hearing 48 hours so that he could get instructions from officers of the two locals.

But Howard Myers, board trial examiner, refused and ordered the hearing resumed at 2 p.m. EST today.

The Hydro Commission Is A Bungler Of Long Standing

A well-managed business firm keeps an ear to the ground and an eye to the future. The Ontario Hydro Commission has recurring periods when it buries its head in the sand and comes up for water only to find that there isn't enough to keep its generators in full operation. We are glad to commend the present large development plans, including the Des Joachims rapids project on the upper Ottawa, but these come two years too late and do not excuse the present power shortages.

• • •

The shortages may partly be blamed on the dry autumn and early frost, but the plain fact is that the Commission did not foresee the present great post-war demands until they had to be met. It is not the first time that the Commission's vision has been short or its faith in Ontario's future small. After the first Great War it was unprepared to meet the demand. In April, 1920, there was a power shortage. In November of the same year Peterborough plants had to shut down several times because of a power shortage. Local people petitioned for more power and an "indignation meeting" was held on October 12th. In July of 1922 our factories had to close again for lack of power.

• • •

Despite these sorry post-Great War precedents, the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario has once more been caught with its power down. The Hydro needs men of vision, or at least of good sense, at the top. Nevertheless, the Chairmanship of the Commission has been vacant for an entire year. Premier Drew has finally appointed ex-Mayor Robert Saunders of Toronto to the position. When Mr. Saunders takes up his duties on March 1st he will be well advised to get on with the job and not waste time in attempting to excuse the bungling that has darkened Ontario.

The Bill Which Changes The Economy Of Canada

The Emergency Exchange Conservation Act (Bill Number 3) received final reading in the House of Commons on Tuesday. This Bill is the one by which present restrictions and embargoes on imported goods receive parliamentary sanction. It is of as great importance to Canadian economy as the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854 and the Ottawa Agreements of 1932. Notwithstanding its being called an emergency measure, it has given a new direction to Canadian business and industry.

• • •

Discussion in Parliament and across the country has centred on the negative aspects of the Bill—the importation bans; the temporary and partial dislocations of business, manufacturing and the family table; the conservation of American dollars. The Bill has generally been referred to as Mr. Abbott's, as Minister of Finance. It is equally Mr. Howe's, now Minister of Trade and Commerce, and thereby is has very great positive implications, for Mr. Howe's program to encourage the adaptation of Canadian manufacturing processes is directly connected with the Bill.

• • •

There is an old saying that necessity is the mother of invention. The present necessity is to conserve American dollars and to adjust our balance of trade. The creative aspect of the Government's economic policy is that, because of the restrictions on imports, Canadian industry is required to depend more on Canadian resources and techniques and less on American. It is hoped thus to stimulate Canadian production not only of special machinery, chemicals, equipment and consumer goods formerly imported, but of finished products for export, where formerly semi-finished products were shipped beyond our borders.

• • •

The positive side of the Government's program is showing good and surprising results already. The manufacturing industry proved its strength and resources during the war. Since the war it has continued to flourish and to convert amazingly well to peace-time production; last year our production was the greatest in the history of this country. Now the manufacturing industry is showing its resilience. It is meeting the challenge of Bill Number 3, and some manufacturers are even finding that they can produce parts and equipment more cheaply than they could formerly import them. Many industries are still seeking solutions, but the Government has shown a willingness to amend regulations where they are really crippling to a specific manufacturing process.

• • •

Incidentally, the Bill is providing a protected market for industry—a policy which is at variance with Liberal theory. The measures are, however, temporary; it is expected that many of the bans will be removed within a year. That period will give Canadian firms protected time to set up new processes and to undertake the manufacture of goods never before produced in Canada. The protection will not be permanent, nor can it be if Canada's export trade is to flourish (we export 35 per cent. of our products). The Department of Trade and Commerce is finding that the best and most efficient firms do not want permanent protection.

Is Competition Evil Only When It Creates Profits?

Mr. Coldwell said an odd thing in the Commons on Monday. He was talking about films, and urging that Canada should offer some competition to the American films which are our chief amusement fare. "This is an industry in which I believe there should be competition", he is quoted as saying, "whether that competition is encouraged by the government or undertaken by private people—because in the realm of education competition is a very good thing".

This puzzles us. We thought that Mr. Coldwell was against competition. Indeed, we are sure that he is against competition when it is likely to result in one of the competitors making a profit. But now we learn that he believes in competition in education. Are we to understand then that competition is evil only when it creates profits?

Perhaps we should re-phrase that question: Is competition evil only when it creates money profits? For it is plain that education creates profits—profits of widened interests, enlightened opinions, free speculation, and access to the stored-up wisdom of the world. The man who accumulates these profits is obviously better-off than his neighbour who has never done so. And because he is intellectually richer than his neighbour his needs will be different, his opinions about important things will be different, and his conduct will be different from that of his neighbour.

There are people who have the ability to make money, and there are people who have the ability to profit by education. Sometimes they are the same people. Talents of all kinds make for inequality, inequality makes for jealousy and jealousy makes for trouble. We don't see why Mr. Coldwell thinks that it is right to squelch the inequality between man and man in one respect, and encourage it in another.

The Appeal

The Canadian Appeal for Children is continuing. Elsewhere in this edition are given the figures of the total sum collected in Peterborough to date. The sum is not great, but is not discreditable to the generosity of our citizens, considering that there are no canvassers, no personal appeals from door to door, from factory to factory, and from office to office. There is no local committee managing the Appeal. We wish to emphasize that contributions can be made locally only through the banks. The need is great. Every contribution, whether it is a large cheque or a fifty cent piece which you hand into your bank, will be of immeasurable assistance to the harrowed children of Europe.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A news report from Tennessee tells of a burglar who "gagged a barber". At the request of a customer?

We observe that musical powder boxes are on the market again. To tone up the complexion, no doubt.

Now that the ice is fading from our streets motorists are renewing acquaintance with those jolly pot-holes which have become such familiar friends.

Postwar Interest In The Antarctic

By C. H. IRESON

SINCE the conclusion of the war there has been much interest shown as to the future of this Terra Incognita, the large unexplored area of the Antarctic Circle. There has been an American Research Expedition followed by a similar one from Australia. The latter has recently hoisted the Australian flag on the the island of Heard, 3,200 miles from Melbourne. It is described as being 25 miles long, 8 miles wide, with an area of about 100 square miles. It is inhabited by elephant seals, penquins, ducks and rabbits, but there is little vegetation and no trees. A party of fourteen scientists will remain for twelve months investigating possible minerals and other resources.

NOW the governments of Chile and Argentina are making a claim to the Falkland Islands, off the south of South America which have been a British Crown Colony since 1771.

These islands were discovered by an English sailor John Davis in 1593, but were not occupied and later became the property of Spain, a very potent power in South America at that time. However, as previously stated Spain formally ceded the island to Great Britain in 1771. It will be remembered that in the First Great War the island formed a valuable naval base for the Royal Navy, and that in their vicinity Admiral Sturdee soundly defeated the German fleet of Admiral Van Spree.

◇ ◇ ◇

HOWEVER there is no intention here to enter into any question of international relations or disputes in this area which was very much brought into public notice by the tragedy of Scott's Expedition to the South Pole in 1911-1912. But it is hoped that some account of one of the most tragic happenings in the history of exploration may be of interest.

Again without giving in detail the intensive preparatory arrangements based on previous Antarctic experience but to start the story with Scott's departure from his established base.

On November 2, 1911, Scott left his base camp with eleven companions. On December 21 according to plan a depot or cache of provisions and fuel was formed to serve the needs of a returning party and four members of the party returned to the base. Then on January 1912 a second depot was established and three more of the party returned to camp. The five remaining members make the final dash for their objective, the South Pole. They were Capt. R. F. Scott, R.N., Lieut. L. E. G. Oates, Dr. E. A. Wilson, Lieut. H. R. Bowers and Seaman Edgar Evans.

◇ ◇ ◇

THEY were 146 miles from the Pole and had food and fuel supplies for a month. Conditions were so bad that at times they could only make a mile a day but on Jan. 15 they had only 27 miles to go when Scott wrote in his diary "the worst has happened", for they found definite signs of habitation which showed they had been forestalled by Amundsen, of Sweden, who had appeared from another direction. It transpired that he had reached the Pole on December 14, 1911. Scott and his party went on and January 18, 1912, reached their objective of which Scott wrote in his diary "Great God this is an awful place" and added "Now for the home run and a desperate struggle. I wonder if we can make it".

The story of that terrible struggle is told in the diaries of Scott and the others and it exacted its inevitable toll. On February 17 Seaman Evans died and slowly but surely the end came. "Worse and worse" wrote Scott on March 5 and on the 14th, "It must be near the end and it must be a merciful one".

◇ ◇ ◇

LIEUT. Oates, on his 32nd birthday, St. Patrick's Day, March 17, 1912, very weak and suffering from severe frost-bite, in order to relieve his comrades from the burden of his useless company, took his final walk into the infinite. He said, "I am just going outside and may be some time". He never returned and he well knew he wouldn't. Later in the year a search party sought for Oates' body but it was for ever buried in the eternal snow. On the approximate place of his disappearance they erected a cross with an inscription which has become historic, "Hereabouts lies a very gallant gentleman".

◇ ◇ ◇

WITH infinite suffering the three survivors made another fifteen miles and on March 19 made what was to prove their last camp with supplies for two days and one day's fuel. Here a pitiless blizzard held them up when they were only eleven miles from the safety of their base camp, and there they died. On March 29 Scott pencilled in his diary his last farewell "For God's sake look after our people" and the inexorable forces of nature had conquered all human endeavour.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE bodies of Scott, Wilson and Bowers were found by a search party on November 12, 1912, and one of them wrote in his diary, "I saw a most ghastly sight — three sleeping bags with frozen bodies in them. The one in the middle I recognized as Scott. The other bodies I did not see. Scott's face and hands looked like alabaster."

◇ ◇ ◇

AND that, in brief, is the tragic finale of Scott's expedition to the South Pole. Well might Scott write in his diary: "Had we lived I should have had a tale to tell of the hardihood, endurance and courage of my countrymen which would have stirred the heart of every Englishman".

WHAT'S THE USE

A farmer had a son at college. At the end of the first year the son came home in high feather. He stood second in his class.

"Second?" said the father. "Second! Why didn't you stand first?" What do you think I'm sending you to college for?"

The young man returned for his second year, determined to win first place. At the end of the year he returned home and announced his success to his father.

The father looked at him for a few minutes in silence, then shrugged his shoulders, and said: "At the head of the class, you? Well it can't be much of a college, after all."

THREATHING IT OUT!

The Fourth Republic On Trial

By CHARLES LUSSY

(President of the Socialist Group in the French National Assembly)

FRIENDS of France, all over the world, who rejoiced in her liberation and later watched with satisfaction her rapid strides toward recovery, have no doubt been following the political and social events of the last few months with close attention and sometimes with anxiety. Some observers may have looked upon that critical two weeks as actual civil war. Others will have regarded it as a struggle between the Communists and the followers of General de Gaulle. But even if there is an element of truth in these views they do not present the complete picture.

First of all, take the case of the strikes. In a small number of cities the audacity of the Communist "shock troops" enabled them to dominate the situation for a few hours or days. But these were only isolated incidents depending purely on the element of surprise.

As soon as the Government obtained permission from Parliament — naturally not counting the Communists — to use troops, it quickly recovered control of the situation. To bring the facts into their proper relation, it is sufficient to recall that, except for the victims of a railway accident due to sabotage and one demonstrator who was killed in a scuffle at Marseille, there was altogether only one violent encounter (two dead) at Valence between the Communists and the police.

All countries have experienced strikes in which some violence occurred. These disorders in France were admittedly of a "political" nature unlike any previous strike movements in that country. But for that very reason a large section of the workers refused to follow the Communist leaders. It was evident from the very first day that, this time, they were going to "lose face" and lose the fight. The General Federation of Labour, infiltrated by the Communists, finally had to capitulate and order the strikers back to work. But the great majority of workers had not waited for this order to resume their places in the civil service, the factories and shops.

The fact that an "independent" Federation of Labour was set up following the strikes and that it already includes more than two million union members (plus the teaching profession in Paris by recent decision) shows that the domination of Moscow over French trade unions is at an end.

As for the political situation and prospects for the future, it would be underestimating French democrats to imagine that they would accept the ultimatum "Thorez or de Gaulle".

Naturally they do justice to the unforgettable role played by General de Gaulle in the Resistance and the Liberation but nevertheless they feel that his role in the Government, for two years, was less happy, to say the least. The great majority of Frenchmen spurn the very idea of totalitarian rule. Nor are they prepared to risk the dangers of personal power.

◇ ◇ ◇

THAT is why, in the face of the Communists and the de Gaullists, there has been formed the group known as the "Third Party".

The Socialists and the Popular Republicans have given it their unqualified support. The Radical Socialists have as yet taken no official stand but their leader, Edouard Herriot, has expressed his complete sympathy with the movement. He was certainly in line with the spirit of the "Third Party" when he insisted that his re-election as mayor of Lyon should be based only on votes which were neither Communist nor de Gaullist. These three parties, Socialists, Popular Republicans and Radical Socialists, represent the various shades of French opinion "of the left".

The Communists have trained, disciplined members, accustomed to quick changes of policy. The de Gaullists, in addition to the elements of the right whose full backing they enjoy, have also the undoubted advantage of "infiltrations" within the parties of the left, the Socialist party excepted. Nevertheless, the "Third Party", whose motto is: "Liberty, Social Justice and Peace", can—and must—form a block to withstand attacks from both sides. For not only civil order but possibly also international order is at stake.

A Bible Message

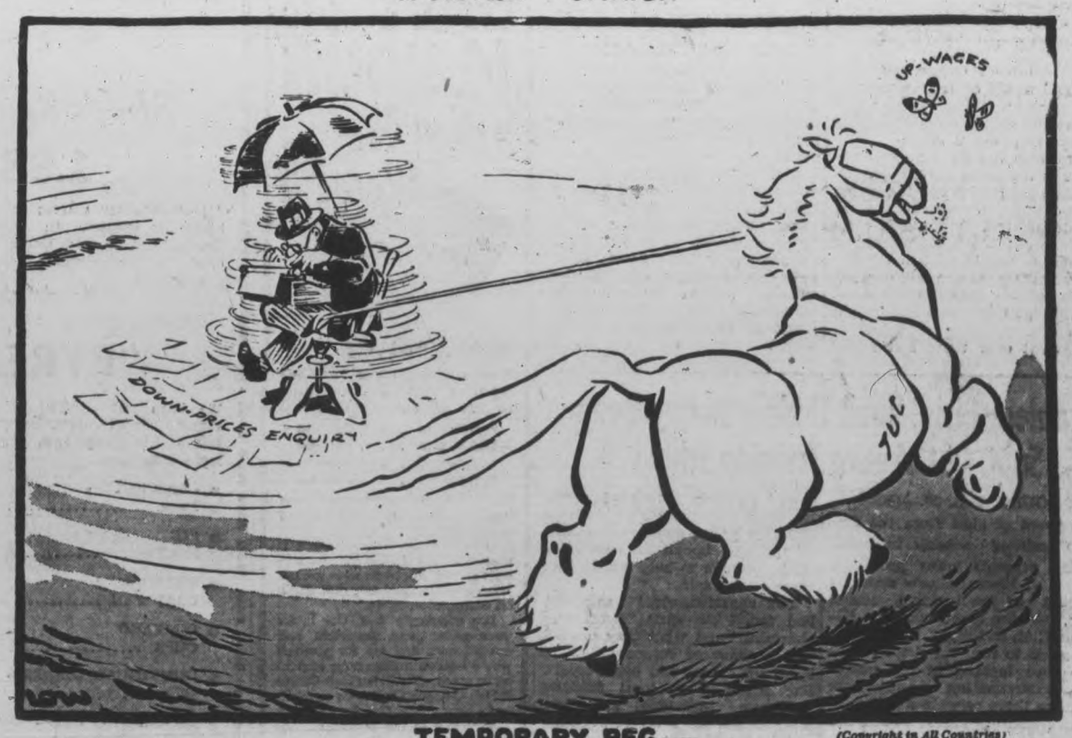
(From the Authorized Version)

And it was at Jerusalem the feast of the dedication, and it was winter. And Jesus walked in the temple in Solomon's porch. Then came the Jews round about him, and said unto him, How long dost thou make us to doubt? If thou be the Christ, tell us plainly.

Jesus answered them, I told you, and ye believed not: the works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witness of me.... I and my Father are one. Then the Jews took up stones again to stone him.

Jesus answered them, Many good works have I showed you from my Father; for which of these works do ye stone me? The Jews answered him, saying, For a good work we stone thee not; but for blasphemy; and because that thou, being a man, makest thyself God.

Jesus answered them, Is it not written in your law, I said, Ye are gods? If he called them gods, unto whom the word of God came, and the scripture cannot be broken; say ye of him, whom the Father hath sanctified, and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest; because I said, I am the Son of God?



If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not. But if I do, though ye believe not me, believe the works: that ye may know, and believe, that the Father is in me, and I in him. (John 10: 22-25, 30-38.)

Cigarette Addicts

On the average, Americans smoke 115 packs of cigarettes a year, but the inhabitants of New York State smoke an average of 132 packs a year.

The higher figure is accounted for largely by New York City—many of whose residents are nervous people who smoke a great deal and sometimes bite their nails. Some New Yorkers, in order to cut down on smoking expenses, have been buying their cigarettes not in New York (where the three-cent state cigarette tax brings the cost of popular brands to 20 cents a pack) but from "cut-rate" firms across the Hudson in New Jersey (where there has been no such cigarette tax). Last week in Trenton, Governor Alfred E. Driscoll moved to cut out the cut-rate business. He asked the New Jersey Legislature to tax cigarettes 3 cents a pack, just like New York.—New York Times.

300,000 People In Britain See Wedding Gifts For Princess

LONDON, Feb. 26 — (AP). — A sturdy housewife on a crowded Piccadilly bus pointed a mittened hand at the gray turrets of St. James' Palace and confided to her neighbor: "I had the time of my life in there. Waited ages to get in, of course, but it was lovely."

The woman was far from alone in her view. What she said has been echoed by more than 300,000 persons who have lined up day after day for three months to see Britain's biggest show—the public display of Princess Elizabeth's wedding presents.

When the showing ends Saturday, Buckingham Palace said, nearly 325,000 persons will have filed down the grilled lanes of the staterooms in historic St. James' and about $100,000 will have been collected in admission fees.

Most of the money, taken in chiefly at 20 cents a head, will be given to a charity chosen by Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip. The only deductions will be to pay for the running of the show.

The expenses include a big electric bill, wages of 35 to 40 attendants, guards, messengers, firemen, clerks and the cost of repairing the wear and tear on the place and the presents themselves.

Of that last item, a court official said "It's a pretty steep one. And no wonder, considering all the people who have visited the palace. To protect the valuable old carpets we overlaid them with heavy felt rugs, but these have been worn through. Many of the presents will have to be cleaned. And a large part of the palace will need a general renovating."

The entrance fee is held to 20 cents except Tuesday and Thursday mornings when the charge is $1 each.

Higher Price

"There are two reasons for that," a palace spokesman said. "To make more money for charity and to permit connoisseurs to examine the gifts at greater leisure when, as we thought, smaller crowds would be there.

"Our little theory was exploded, however. Just as many people came at $1 as at 20 cents and the connoisseurs had to take their chances with everybody else."

Average daily attendance — the exhibit is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. except Sundays — has been between 3,500 and 3,800. On the peak day 4,632 were admitted. Each visitor spends about an hour making the rounds.

Lines three and four blocks long are not unusual. Those in line often have waited four to six hours in rain or cold, carrying blankets or extra coats and snacks of sandwiches, cookies and fruit.

Hundreds have come in chartered buses from towns and villages. Parties from Scotland have been a feature. Schools have sent entire classes. Women and children have outnumbered the men. Not through lack of male interest, the palace says, but simply because they could spare less time for the long wait in line.

After the exhibit closes this week many of the presents will be placed in Princess Elizabeth's own home. Some will be stored and others will be disposed for charity.

The wedding gown will be shown, starting March 15, in Edinburgh, Cardiff, Belfast and probably several other larger cities for about a month at each. Eventually it may be placed in London's Victoria and Albert Museum along with the wedding dresses of Queen Alexandra and Queen Elizabeth.

Peck, Ros Russel Bobby Soxers' Choice

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Bobby Soxers of America have spoken, or maybe screamed.

Their choices for the most popular actor and actress of 1947, they disclosed today, are Gregory Peck and Rosalind Russell. And their favorite funnyman is Jack Benny.

And listen to this: Peck was selected "because of his intelligence, loyalty to his fans and his acting ability," Miss Russell because of her "dynamic achievements as an atcress, her fervent Americanism and her ability to successfully conduct a career and a home."

Police Recalls Face, Nabs Alleged Abductor

COBOURG, Feb. 26 (ENS)—An alert police constable with a good memory resulted in the apprehension Wednesday afternoon of Jack McClentic, wanted by Brockville police on a charge of abduction of a 14-year-old girl on August 25, 1947.

Provincial Constable Don Nicol of Cobourg, while in Port Hope, noticed a man and a girl walking along the street. The man looked like the one on the police circular and after questioning him, the constable took him into custody. The 17-year-old girl with him was held on a vagrancy charge.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Officials of the church hockey and softball leagues hold a general meeting at seven tomorrow night in the YMCA. Church circuit is winding up seasonal business and the softballers are bestirring themselves for the coming semester. Also, any church groups interested in girls' softball for 1948 are asked to contact Harris Glen, who was secretary for the puckists the past season. Phone him at 4264 evenings. The tentative plan is to operate a girls' league from 10 years of age up, the males starting things off and then the lasses lining up their own executive. Something new in church softball, though the schools have been doing it for years.

Six clubs will go again in the Class "C" Border Pro Ball League. They are Ottawa (champs in '47), Kingston, Ogdensburg, Auburn, Watertown and Geneva. The Petes pretty nearly made the loop under Maple Leafs' sponsorship but a Belleville hitch kept 'em out. Maybe next year. Geneva hasn't announced a training site yet, but Ottawa will drill at Chambersburg, Pa., Kingston at home, Auburn at Millville, N.J., Ogdensburg at Clayton, N.J., and Watertown at Saratoga Springs, N.Y. Bob Shawkey is retiring as manager of the latter club. He is a former Yankee star. Paul Dean won't be back as manager at Ottawa.

Legions And Petes

Legionnaires and the Petes open their OHA senior "B" group finals (best of seven) tomorrow night at 8.30 in Omemee. Next one being Monday in Lindsay. And a great raft of fans is expected to pack the Omemee auditorium on the morrow to see the start of this big serial. Plenty of hot rivalry betwixt the well-matched and scrappy local squads and they'll draw from Peterborough, Omemee and Lindsay in large numbers. Ice should be okay by then and a ripsnortin' scrap can be looked for as the packs led by Red Creighton and Ned Vitarelli strive to grab that important first fray. Don't miss it.

* * * * * *

Hard to say how such a series will terminate, but we expect it to go the limit or nearly so. Neither club looks good enough to win in four straight, or in five games. Its pretty much of a tossup in our mind, though there are quite a few Petes' and Legion followers willing to lay it on the line to back their favorites. Can't ever recall such a setup before where two Peterborough OHA clubs of intermediate or senior "A" or "B" calibre fought it out for the group championship. We had two junior "B" clubs at one time, PHC and St. John's, but never two of higher class in the same grouping. And hockey history is liable to be made in more ways than one ere this scramble is o'er.

* * * * * *

It was curtains for the junior Oddfellows in Port Hope last gloaming as the Danforths pulled out a 4-2 win in the deciding game of their OHA junior "B" group semi-finals. The Weir-coached crew went down battling and, in fact, made it a keen series in the four frays staged in four different rinks. All credit to the Triple Link officials—who took a financial beating—the coach, manager and the boys themselves. But what could you expect? They actually had just four OHA games all winter—that was their season! No rink is the answer. For this reason, they were barred from group play but given a bye into group semi-finals. So they've slugged away practicing anywhere they could get a bit of ice, awaiting their chance. But what chance has a team handicapped like that against good opposition which has played itself into top shape by this time of year? Just another tough rap for officials and boys in this rinkless city.

* * * * * *

The bobby-soxers who helped fill the Brock Arena last eve for the mat show won't like this, But Ben Sharpe was the weak sister—if you can call a 235-pound husky such—in the team wrestling bout. He lost two falls to the Mask, while Earl McCready pinned the Mask once (and again for luck after the last bell) to show his stuff. He went to an hour's draw several weeks ago with the Marvel. Wee Willie was his usual villainous self on the Mask's side, and it was a hot affair throughout. Fans loved it. There was almost three-quarters of a ton of beef in there at one time—counting the referee and the announcer at the start! Goon Henry beat Pete Managoff in the semi-final and Bill Kusisto took the prelim from Lee Henning. A lively grapple card, indeed.

About The Cagers

Just one Girls' Basketball League playoff tomorrow night in the YWCA, as Normals are tied up at that time. So, it'll be CGE vs. Kawarthas at 8.15 in their semi-final round-robin struggle, and it should be an interesting hoop duel. At the Collegiate on Saturday evening, Ted Payne's pack plays Bill Jones' bunch at 7.15 in a City League opener, followed at 8.15 by the strong Toronto senior squad, Riverdale Grads, against Outboard Marines "A" outfit. And this will be a tilt worth seeing. Marines will be stepping shortly into OABA intermediate "A" playdowns to defend their title won last spring. No word at the moment on the PCVS cagers' activity for this week-end.

Marmora Squad The Finals In Trent Loop

MARMORA, Feb. 26.—(ENS)—Marmora's hockey team enters the Trent Valley League championship finals by virture of their third straight win over Stirling at Madoc on Wednesday evening, the final score being 8-3 in their favor. The ice was a little soft, causing the puck to be difficult to control in the first period and to make play a little ragged. In the third period, play, which can been clean up to that point, roughened and McInroy and D. Bastedo received major penalties.

The Marmora team were in their best form and E. Leonard's goal in the second period on a lone rush and the counter of Loveless in the third, were the highlights of some splendid allround efforts. Stapley's goals in the second topped off his good performance for the losers, and Cooke, who scored the final goal of the game, was very effective for his team. Gus Leonard, the Marmora captain, and Earl Cousins, the team's centre, with "Stubby" Trumble, showed some fine bursts of play. The game was witnessed by a capacity crowd.

Teams:

Stirling — Goal, Aquino; defence, Armstrong, Utman; centre, D. Bastedo; wings, B. Bastedo, Stapley; alternates, Cooks, Muffitt, Mason, Desjardins, Morton, Twigg.

Marmora — Goal, Koski; defence, G. Leonard, E. Leonard; wings, K. Trumble, Goodchild; alternates, McInroy, Loveless, E. Trumble, Doyle, Forestell. Spare goalie, Brooks.

Referee —Herb Payne, Peterborough; linesman, Tom Junkin, Lakefield.

Mask, Wee Willie Winners Over McCready and Sharpe

The Masked Marvel and Wee Willie Davis emerged triumphant over Earl McCready and Ben Sharpe in their team wrestling bout in the main go of the pro mat card at the Brock Arena last night. A full house saw Referee Ernie Powers stop the scrap, after each side had gained a fall, to save Ben Sharpe further punishment at the hands of Davis.

Ben was pinned in 21 minutes for the first fall by the 258-pound Mask, who outweighed him by 23 pounds, when he was thrown hard several times into the rope turnbuckles and also hit by Wee Willie (at 267 rough pounds) from outside the ropes. The Mask and McCready, who went 240, were the strong men of the foursome, with Earl and Ben popular as the other pair played it like villains all the way in a rousing slambang session. The referee was usually two campfires behind the action and no one paid attention to him.

McCready Won

McCready evened the tussle up in 12 minutes of the second bout by pinning the shoulders of the Marvel with his rolling scissors split, as Ben fought off Davis. The four were in there pitching at the end. It was a torrid go with fists flying, knees used and hair yanked. Davis conked the Mask once by mistake as the big crowd roared approval. Ben put up a fine show for a space but the other pair ganged up on him and had him hanging in the ropes at one stage. McCready was the most aggressive and effective man there. Ben was kneed hard in the stomach when he appeared to have the Mask set for a fall, but Ben wound up with a nose bleed.

Referee Powers stopped the final fray in 14 minutes when Ben was suffering from a twisted neck, a sore back and was sick. Wee Willie had pummeled him hard—after Ben started strongly—and knicked him out of the ring when Ben twisted his neck. Willie followed him out as the crowd swarmed around and banged his back against the ring apron. He had quite a time getting back in the ring and was being banged around when Powers stopped it and gave the bout to Davis. Previously it had been a sizzling scrap with all four in there once flying around and the referee running for his life. Earl came in after the bell and hung Davis up in the ropes and then pinned the Mask with his scissors split again—his second fall over the Marvel—but it didn't count.

Goon Victor

Jim (Goon) Henry at 259 downed Pete Managoff, 240, in 18 minutes of the semi-final with clubbing blows to the neck and a slam. The Goon was unpopular but proved too experienced and rough for Pete, who battled gamely and got in some blows and drop kicks a few times. Henry pulled the Cantonwine hangman trick once and got away with a lot of illegal stuff in a fair struggle.

Bill Kusisto, weighing 232, won the prelim when Lee Henning, 243 pounds, was disqualified after 16 minutes by the referee. He wrestled rough throughout and pulled a bunch of dirty grips to earn the fans' boos. He went out of the ring a couple of times to save himself as the other fought back hard in a bout filled with action. They were both outside the ropes on the ring apron at the last when Henning rammed Bill's head into the post hard. Lee was disqualified, and then he took a brief beating after the gong when Bill raced into the ring after him as the crowd howled with delight.

Campbell Plans To Interview Former Convict

DETROIT, Feb. 26.—(CP). — Main hope of clarifying the beclouded National Hockey League picture apparently rested today on possibility of President Clarence Campbell obtaining permission to see a former convict whose arrest brought out the possibility that two eastern members of the league had been betting on the outcome of NHL games.

Last night, Campbell said that investigation into the alleged player-betting will continue 'to the limit' and that if certain evidence exists "then that's strong circumstantial evidence that the hockey players were involved in betting and it must be investigated to the limit."

Campbell, working with Detroit police and state authorities, said that the reported incident involved only an individual attempt to bet and not even "a hint of an attempt to fix a game." It proved, however, that there is "a big field for investigation."

Police Commissioner Toy identified the "middle man" as James (Rocco) Tamer, picked up as a parole violator last week for association with "known hoodlums" and whisked away to prison at Jackson, in Southern Michigan.

Campbell said that "Tamer would be the man who could give us the information we need."

Performs In Paris

Canada's Barbara Ann Scott, European, Olympic and World figure-skating champion, last night charmed 18,000 spectators in a skating exhibition during the intermissions at a hockey game at Paris in which the Racing Club de Paris defeated a Canadian-Scottish club 7-2.

Maj.-Gen. Georges P. Vanier, Canadian Ambassador, was among the audience which saw Barbara Ann "bring the house down" with her performance.

In the hockey game, the Racing Club led 1-0 at the end of the first period and scored three times in each of the next two frames. The Canadian team tallied twice in the middle session.

Danforth Wins To Oust IOOF Juniors

At the Port Hope arena last evening Peterborough Junior 'B' club was ousted from further contention by the Danforth Byers 4-2 in a game played on soft ice, which rendered combination hockey useless, before a large crowd.

The winners opened the scoring at the 11-minute mark of the first when Hawkshaw scored from Watt. Seven minutes later the Petes tied it up, Pagett being the marksman from Montgomery. Byers went ahead on the only score of the second when Hawkshaw scored from Catherhill.

At the halfway mark of the third Collins tied it up on a pass from Pagett but Byers took only three minutes to go ahead when Watt scored from Catherhill. Watt closed out the scoring for the evening with four minutes to go, assisted by Keeble and Catherhill. The game was clean with each club drawing four penalties.

For the winners Catherhill led the scorers with three assists. Pagett was best for the losers with two scoring points.

The teams.

Leafs Take Lead In NHL Trouncing Bruins By 4-2

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In a night of goal-scoring feats, none stood out better than the performance of 22-year-old Ted (Teeter) Kennedy of the Toronto Maple Leafs. His two goals gave Toronto Maple Leafs a 4-2 victory over the Boston Bruins, and sent Toronto into the National Hockey League leadership by two points over the idle Detroit Red Wings.

While the Leafs were breaking the leadership tie, and also drawing level with Wings in total games played—each now has just 10 games left in the drive to the league title—the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks were beating the third-place New York Rangers 7-4 at Madison Square Garden.

The New York result put the Hawks within a game of the fifth-place Montreal Canadiens. But Hawks and Canadiens still are faced with the task of producing miracles if they are to break into the Stanley Cup play-off circle.

At Toronto, with 13,454 fans jamming Maple Leaf Gardens, Woody Dumart scored for Boston in 33 seconds of the opener. Bill Ezinicki split it up. Ed Sandford scored Boston's second. Then Kennedy produced some stick-handling wizardry to tie it up once more. It was in the last minute of the second period when Kennedy fired the winning goal, and Gus Mortson added one for good measure in the third period.

Free-for-All.

The Toronto ice saw a free-for-all in the second frame. Boston's great goalie Frankie Brimsek had suffered a facial gash from a flying puck and returned to his nets with three stitches in the wound. He promptly caught a hard shot from Ezinicki and was holding the puck when Wild Bill took a swipe at the hand with his stick. Murray Henderson of Boston was brawling with Ezinicki when Clare Martin of Boston elected to tackle Gus Mortson of Toronto. Mortson knocked Martin down, and at that moment all four were chased to the cooler for roughness.

Before the period was over, three more had joined that quartette to jam the penalty box. Ed Harrison was sent there for slashing and for roughing, Jim Thomson of the Leafs going off with Harrison in the roughing penalty, and Bill Barilko went there for slashing.

At New York, Rookie Don Raleigh from Winnipeg scored all four Ranger goals. But Gaye Stewart scored three goals for the Hawks, and Bud Poile, another former Leaf, scored two. Doug Bentley and Ernie Dickens got the other two counters.

Grey-haired Neil Colville, the Rangers' captain and master of defence, was hit in the mouth with a flying puck and required three stitches.

Ski Title Meet Held At Banff

BANFF, Feb. 26 — (CP). — More than 100 competitors and hundreds of spectators clad in bright-colored winter sports clothes formed a colorful gathering in front of the Banff Ice Palace to-day as the 1948 Canadian ski championships got under way.

J. A. Hutchinson, superintendent of Banff National Park, opened the four-day tournament and welcomed skiers and visitors to this resort.

The senior cross-country race was the first event scheduled. Fifteen competitors are entered.

Gault Gillespie of Ste. Agathe, Que., 1939 and 1940 Dominion cross-country champion, said the first half of the 11-mile course was the toughest and trickiest that he had run across in 18 years of competition.

Starting from the centre of Banff, the course runs in a westerly direction along the Spray River for about six miles and then returns to Banff along a flat run. The first two miles of the gruelling course are a steady uphill climb that puts a heavy drain on endurance, followed by approximately four miles of rolling twisting trails calling on skill and daring for fast time.

Hornets Edge Springfield 4-3

By The Canadian Press

Pittsburgh Hornets maintained their one-point edge over Cleveland Barons in the race for first place in the American Hockey League's western circuit last night by edging the lowly Springfield Indians 4-3.

Meanwhile the red-hot Barons thumped Hershey Bears 5-1, Washington Lions dropped Philadelphia 7-4 and Buffalo stopped New Haven 7-3.

Les Costello, Phil Samis, Tod Sloan and Peanuts O'Flaherty bulged the twine twice for Hornets. Paul Courteau, Bill Summerhill and Ross Johnstone counted for Ramblers.

Barons' marksmen were Johnny Holota, Hy Buller, Ab Demarco, Church Russell and Roger Gagne, one goal each. Herb Cain scored Hershey's counter.

Tigers Trip Marlies In Overtime As Generals Defeat Windsor 6-0

By The Canadian Press

It appears that home ice means a lot to hockey teams as three Ontario Hockey Association squads defeated their visitors in playoff games last night. In the lone Senior 'A' tilt, Hamilton Tigers entertained Toronto Marlboros and waited until 16.45 of overtime before taking a 6-5 decision. The win put Hamilton into a 2-1 lead in their best of seven semi-final series. Galt Rockets also had to play over regulation time to trip St. Catharines Teepees 6-5, and win the best of three quarter-final series. The greatest about-face was at Oshawa where the Generals took complete control of the game and handed Windsor Spitfires a 6-0 blanking. The victory cut Windsors' two-game lead to one in their best of seven semi-finals.

The Hamilton victory was a heartbreaker to the Marlies but wonderful for the Tigers as the pay-off goal was scored on a fluke shot. Bill Dinning shot the puck towards the goal where it went off a stray leg and into the Marlboro net.

Earlier, play was on much more even terms as Tigers had a 3-2 lead at the end of the initial frame and Marlies tied the score at 4-4 at the end of the second. Both teams scored in the third to force overtime play as the ice became sloppy and passing plays refused to work on the wet rink.

Clare Shillington paced the Tigers with two goals while Swat Mason, Ab Conick, Johnny Conick, Carl Smelle and Bill Dinning with his winning counter, added the others. The Marlboro goals were spread over five players, Johnny McLellan, Ray Hannigan, Ray Timgren, Ike Hilderbrand and Harry Psutka.

Oshawa Dominates

Oshawa completely dominated the game from start to finish as they blanked Windsor. The Generals started in all out fashion and scored twice before the three-minute mark. They added another to end the initial frame with a 3-0 lead. The Generals added two more tallies in the middle stanza and then scored the last marker in the final frame.

Joe Lafrance was top man as he rapped in two goals. Ray Ceresina, Ross Lowe, Sandy Air and Gerry Scott with the clincher, were one-goal snipers. Pete Piquette had to work for his shut-out in the first period but thereafter the pace eased off. Spitfires had few stars, with Marcel Pronovost and the Wilson brothers being the best.

Each period of the St. Catharines-Galt tilt ended in a stalemate as the first period ended at 2-2, the second at 5-5, the third at 5-5. Blonde Wiggie Wylie was the local hero as he potted the winning marker just 25 seconds after the start of overtime play. Incidentally, that goal put Galt in front for the first time in the game as they came from behind in all three frames to tie the count.

"MOM" PROUDLY VIEWS HER TWINS—Mom (her name happens to be "Sis") antelope watches proudly as her five-day-old twins try out their wobbly legs at the St. Louis, Mo., zoo. The youngsters, a male and a female, are rapidly overcoming their Leon Errol-ish leg bends. They are Nylghau antelopes, incidentally, which puts them in the upper strata of antelope society.

Bancroft Puts Out Apsley Aces 3-2

BANCROFT, Feb. 26.—(ENS).—Apsley Aces were edged from the play-off race last evening by the Bancroft Rovers by a 3-2 verdict. The Rovers went into the game with a two-goal margin, having won the first game in Apsleyeby virtue of a 4-2 score. Maxwell sunk the first goal for the Rovers at the 19.40 mark of the first period with Fox setting up the play. G. Tucker for Apsley tied it up in the second frame unassisted. In the third session Fox tied the score when he picked the upper right hand corner from the blue line shot, but G. Tucker gained the equalizer (his second of the night) minutes later. Watson potted the winning counter near the end of the period on a long shot from centre ice. Rovers now meet the Bancroft Trappers in the best of three series to determine the right to the championship. The Trappers were conceded their series when Coe Hill defaulted. Line-ups:

Apsley — Goal, Spenceley; defence, J. Tucker, R. Tucker; forwards, Dunford, Howden, K. Watson; subs, G. Watson, G. Tucker, Tanner, Lockman, Smith, Thompson, Jeff.

Rovers—Goal, T. O'Shaughnessy; defence, Watson, Severn; forwards, Maxwell, Fox, Moxam; subs, Stringer, Vance, McAlpine, J. O'Shaughnessy, Delyea, Bruce.

Referee—Dr. Fetterley; linesman, E. Carpenter.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press.

Harry Grebb, three-year king of the middleweights, was dethroned 29 years ago tonight by Tiger Flowers of Atlanta in a 12-round bout at New York Madison Square Gardens. Flowers, who became the first Negro to hold the division title, lost to Mickey Walker the same year and died shortly afterwards.

Polo Big Gun In Miami Sport

MIAMI, Feb. 26 — (AP). — The sport that really seems to be coming along in this town which showed remarkable lack of interest in a world championship fight appears to be polo.....The difference, of course, is in the promotion....All the things that happened in running the Willie Pep-Humberto Sierra bout probably never will be told, but we can guarantee that they should not happen to a Northerner in one of the Miami Beach boop-traps.. ..On the other hand, the guys who stage the indoor-outdoor polo matches in the Orange Bowl seem genuinely interested in promoting interest in the game. They put out elaborate programs, bring in the best players and run the thing in big league style....As a result they have averaged around 4,800 attendance over two years, hit close to 10,000 sometimes, and hope to win the inter-collegiate championship with the Texas-reared U. of Miami team.

Count-Off.

Clarence (Kay) Kantrowitz, promoter of the recent title fight here, claims it is true ...When he walked into the Orange Bowl for the big affair, a gateman refused to let him through....."But I am Kantrowitz the promoter," Kay insisted....."Nothing doing," growled the guardian of the portal. "You're the tenth Kantrowitz who has tried to get in here to-night."....PS: He probably was the only gate crasher who did not make it.

SPRING CLINIC SESSIONS

Vic Obeck, coach of McGill University's football Redmen, yesterday announced the team will turn out for spring clinic sessions May 3-8 at Molson Stadium, weather permitting. A top-flight American coach, unnamed as yet, will lend aid in coaching. The coach may possibly be "Buffy" Donelli, now head coach of Boston College.

Norwood Puckists Make Semi-Finals

NORWOOD, Feb. 26 (ENS).—Edging Campbellford 6-5 here in overtime last night on fair ice, Norwood eliminated the Hydro Town team to go into TVL semi-finals. They will open this series in Tweed on Friday with the return game of the goals-to-count series in Norwood on Monday.

The biggest hockey crowd ever to see a game in Norwood viewed the exciting struggle here last evening. Both teams battled every inch of the way in a rugged encounter, kept well under control. The homesters had a 5-4 margin late in the third period when the visitors pulled their goals with 14 seconds to go, and Peloquin tied it up with three seconds left. Then Hamilton, who shone all evening, scored the winner in overtime. He, Payne, and Morrison starred for Norwood, with Peloquin, Hay, and Blake the best for Campbellford.

The teams:

Campbellford— Goal, Hopping; defence, Hendy and Tanner; centre, Robinson; wings, Blake and Peloquin; alternates, Grey, Free, Hay, Bristow, Doherty and Donald.

Norwood— Goal, Morrison; defence, Pettersen and Hamilton; centre, Scott; wings, Brown and Payne; alternates, Puffer, B. Webb, Rogers, R. Webb, Fennell, Martin and Aldred.

President Peter Campbell of the International Baseball League Toronto Maple Leafs yesterday announced the outright release of Goody Rosen. Rosen, an out-fielder product of the Toronto sandlots, was bought outright at the start of last season for $10,00 from Jersey City Giants and played in the major leagues with New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers. Campbell also announced the release of Len Kensecke, first baseman.

Puerto Rico and Syria have been invited to compete in the Olympic Games at London, July 29-Aug. 14, the British organizing committee announced yesterday. If they accept, the total number of countries expected to participate will be 55. Salvador, which had previously accepted an invitation, now has withdrawn, the committee said.

Roimond, a favorite in the coming Grand National Steeplechase, fell yesterday in the $10,920 great Yorkshire handicap steeplechase at Doncaster, England, but escaped injury. The race was won by the topweighted Cool Customer, who carried 175 pounds in the gallop of three miles and 40 yards. Cool Customer is not a candidate for the Grand National, scheduled at Aintree, Liverpool, March 20.

CANCER

The newest precision tube x-ray machine for treating cancer costs $100,000.

Next to heart disease, cancer is the greatest single cause of death on this continent. It kills 1,000 Canadians every month.

Cancer is a deadly killer unless the patient seeks early medical advice. But when caught in its early stages, cancer is generally curable.

The cause of cancer is still unknown, and there is no specific cure. But if diagnosed in time and treated by surgery, X-ray or radium, a cure can be effected in a majority of all cancer cases.

The Ontario Cancer Foundation objectives are:

1—To organize and operate fully equipped cancer clinics at suitable centres, where people may be examined, and, if necessary, treated according to the most modern, scientific methods.

2—To pay a portion of the cost of treatment of cancer for those needing financial help.

3—To pay travelling expenses to and from clinics if needed.

4—To conduct an energetic program of cancer research.

To carry out this program, the first need is money. Your donation will definitely help to reduce the number of deaths from cancer in this province. It will help hundreds of people to be medically examined in time and to escape from the deadly clutches of cancer. It may well help research scientists to discover a cure for cancer and so free mankind forever from the dread scourge.

North American Economy Shows Strength

By The Canadian Press

So far this year, in the face of not-inconsiderable tests, the North American economy has shown considerable strength.

The Chicago grain break was the most spectacular development, but various factors had already led to caution in buying by business firms and the grain drop accentuated it.

This has a slowing-down effect on business which in ordinary circumstances, could be dangerously cumulative. However, the consensus seems to be that under present conditions the slowing-down process can go to only a certain point before it meets the resistance of effective demand.

This demand lies in still unsatisfied domestic purchasing power and European needs supported by the scheduled European recovery program.

Readjustment

The grain drop at its present stage is seen as a readjustment of abnormally high food prices in relation to general prices. Though still open to attack, grains have levelled off in the last 10 days.

The tests that are taking place do reveal some slowing down of activity from the late 1947 in both Canada and the United States.

However, on the whole there seems to be a see-saw contest as business and industry shake themselves out from hectic conditions of war and immediate post-war, with depressive factors making themselves felt here and there, but countered by influences which stir to further activity.

Dividend payments by Canadian corporations in February, as reported by J. R. Timmins, stock brokers, were $12,600,906, an increase fo $1,480,052 over a year ago.

Survey Bridge Plan For Ottawa River

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 — (CP) — Works Minister Fournier said yesterday in the Commons he has instructed his engineers to look into the posibility of building a bridge across the Ottawa River beyond Morrison's Island, near Pembroke and give him an estimate of cost.

Replying to R. M. Warken (L-Renfrew North) he said he would consider any estimate "that would be reasonable."

There have been requests from the Pembroke area for the bridging of the river at that point.

Mysteries of Human Nature Probed By Ohio Scientists

BY KEN DAVIS

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio, Feb. 26 (AP).—A jittery mother can make her unborn child a nervous wreck, scientists at Fels Institute believe after exhaustive studies of Ohio mother and fathers.

Dr. John I. Lacey head of the Institute's psychophysiology division, explained it the way:

"When a prospective mother becomes nervous or upset, there is a change in the function of her endocrine glands and in the composition of her blood.

"Such changes are passed on to the fetal bloodstream and act in a stimulating or irritating manner on the brain and nervous system of the baby."

Human development probably is charted more closely and at greater length at this comparatively unknown institute for the study of human beings than at any other place on earth.

Fels researchs begin studying their subjects when they are yet unborn, prehaps six months before that event. By the time their subjects are born, they have exhaustive records of their heart actions and movements through delicate instruments which simultaneously record the heart and nervous action of the mother.

These records are continued in regular sequence through the first 18 years of their lives and and will be extended intermittently in the years beyond. Probably nowhere else are human records kept so diligently, so completely and on the same persons over such a long period.

"Longitudinal Method"

Samuel S. Fels, a Philadelphia soap manufacturer who wondered what made his friends tick, founded the institute 18 years ago. Dr. Lester W. Sontag directs its work, following the "longitudinal method" of keeping records over long periods on the same subjects, the type of experimentation stipulated for the institute by its founder.

Most Fels scientists do not anticipate appreciable progress for a couple of decades, but already, in 18 years of research, they believe they can distinguish a few of the blaze marks along the right path. They believe, for instance, slowly but surely they are penetrating the mystery surrounding the tie-up between mind and body.

Through the most extensive and complicated series of physical measurements and records ever attempted, they feel they have added still one more refinement in the age-old attempt to assay the relationship of physical make-up--the distribution of such tissues as fat, muscle and bone--to behavior and personality.

People are not what they seem from the outside, says Dr. Earle L. Reynolds, who heads the Institute's physical growth division.

"For example," he explains "two girls may have exactly the same outward measurements and weight. One is athletic, energetic, fast-moving, aggressive; the other slower moving, not particularly energetic, perhaps of a retiring nature.

"X-ray examination of those girls might reveal entirely different interior distribution of fat, muscle and bone. Possible the aggressive girl would have a greater production of muscle and less fat than the more timid girl."

THEIR BIRTHDAYS UNUSUAL — Shirley Lloyd, 20, and her brother, Harry, 16, both of Guelph, are "Leap Year babies," born on Feb. 29, in the same hour, although four years apart. They will hold a party for about 100 friends this evening.

Protracted Freight Probe Has $100 Million At Stake

By JOHN LEBLANC

OTTAWA, Feb. 26—(CP).—A verdict that will be the pivot point for the disposition of some $100,000,000 a year in Canadians' money will be delivered here shortly. It is the decision of the Board of Transport Commissioners on the railways' application for freight-rate increases, and it will climax a case perhaps unparalleled in magnitude in Canadian judicial history.

Out of the case, for almost a certainty, will come some rate revisions. Any prediction on what they will be would be sheer guesswork now, but here are some of the possibilities as proposed before the board during its hearings on the application:

1. A straight percentage increase across the board, ranging anywhere up to 30 per cent.—the figure sought by the railways.
2. A percentage increase, but with some ceilings on the additional amount to be charged per 100 pounds. Such ceilings might apply to specific commodities, such as agricultural and other primary products, as well as to long-haul traffic generally.
3. An increase in the railways' depressed "competitive" rates — tolls that were lowered to meet competition — with the standard rates left untouched.
4. An increase in the eastern rate level to bring it up to that of the west.
5. Increases of varying extent for various types of commodities.
6. No increase at all.

Lengthy Litigation.

Months of multi-million-dollar litigation, fought out in every corner of the Dominion and even echoing in the Supreme Court of Canada, preceded the preparation of the decision.

At stake when hearings opened a year ago this month was an estimated $87,000,000 a year — the additional amount the railways hoped to gross on the basis of their forecast 1947 traffic. By the time the year was out, it appeared that swollen traffic volume would send the figure over $100,000,000.

The multi-zeroed figures formed the basis for a bitter fight between the Railway Association of Canada on one side and seven provinces on the other, with various segments of industry, business and the general public joining in the fray.

On behalf of its 23 member companies, the association sought generally a 30 per cent increase in all freight and express rates, with a few exceptions. Chief exceptions were certain grain tolls, fixed by statute; and coal and coke, on which graduated increases running from 20 to 40 cents per ton were asked.

Major claim of the railways in asking for these new rates was that their rate level had not increased in a quarter-century, while their costs — notably for labor and materials — had been sliding upward steadily since the start of the war.

Against the $87,000,000 a year they expected to gross from the proposed higher rates, they claimed wages and materials in 1946 would cost them $132,000,000 more than if 1939 cost levels had prevailed. This sum was divided between $79,200,000 for labor and $52,800,000 for materials.

As 1947 unfolded, the railways showed both rising costs and gross revenues, but they contended the rate of rise in revenues was outstripped by that of costs and that their net was dwindling. On the other hand, heir opponents held the carriers were not exercising economy to the full.

Opposition Argument

Chief opposition to the railway proposals came from the governments of the seven non-central provinces—all except Ontario and Quebec. They contended that a horizontal percentage increase would be inequitable in that it would fall more heavily on them than on the central region.

In 10 months of legal battling —from mid-February until mid-December of last year — they fought the case before the board here and at regional hearings in every one of the provinces. And they carried to the Supreme Court of Canada the contention that the Transport Commissioners had no jurisdiction to try the case. But the highest court upheld the authoriy of the judicial-administrative board in the issue.

Besides opposing the railways' right to percentage rate increases, the provinces generally held the roads could get along without increases at all—at least for the time being. From various provinces, there were suggestions that the carriers either could meet the situation through economies, or could draw on cash reserves to meet any temporary emergency, or could liquidate certain holdings to help tide them over.

The testimony and argument pro and con were aired in some 5,500,000 words put on the record in Ottawa and at regional hearings last summer in Saint John, N.B., Halifax, Charlottetown, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Edmonton and Vancouver.

Besides direct opposition from the seven governments represented in the case, objections develoPd from a wide range of basis and secondary industries; shippers, distributors and retailers; boards of trade, consumer groups and individuals.

One political group—the Communist party—also brought in objections at a few hearings.

In all, the board held 150 days of actual sittings, heard about 80 witnesses and received more than 150 exhibits, besides hundreds of thousands of words of briefs.

A Financial Case

Within the general framework of opposition to rate increases, varying provincial claims were advanced. These the railways opposed on the ground this was not a general inquiry into the freight-rate structure but was strictly a financial case, based on the fiscal need of the companies. They said they would have no objection to opening up the whole issue of the freight structure, though, after the present case was disposed of.

In these regional submissions, the Maritimes called for protection under the Maritime Freight Rates Act of 1927, under which the federal government bears the cost of 20-per-cent freight-rate reductions on certain types of haul in that area. The seaboard provinces claimed that, under the circumstances of the present case, the railways could not hoist these rates.

In the event the board should decide otherwise, the Maritimers held a percentage increase should not be granted across the board. Instead, they urged, their long-haul situation should be recognized in the imposition of "ceilings" in any increases to keep down the charges on long-haul traffic. It was claimed straight percentage boosts might exterminate some Maritime industries because of their distance from markets and sources of supply.

The Prairie Provinces, claiming their rate level was higher than in the east, urged that the eastern rate level should be brought up before any general increases were granted. They proposed, too, that before their standard rates be touched, de-

Action Charges Fall Influenced Mother's Death

The second case against the City of Peterborough where a woman sustained injuries opened Wednesday afternoon in the Peterborough Spring Session of the Supreme Court of Ontario, with Mr. Justice Wells presiding.

Administrator to the estate of the late Mrs. Little, 189 Lake Street, Mrs. R. E. Little, her son, 334 McKellar Sreet, sued the city for damages arising from injuries his mother sustained when she fell on the sidewalk on George Street, January 23, 1947. A. Elliott was counsel for Mr. Little and W. Huycke, K.C., acted for the City of Peterborough.

Mrs. Little died the following March and when Dr. Robert Bell testified, he said she died from a blood clot that had been caused by immobilization of the patient during her treatment for a fractured hip. Dr. Bell testified that he had been the family physician to Mrs. Little for more than a year prior to her death. He admitted her to the Civic Hospital on January 23 suffering from a fractured hip, sustained from a fall on the sidewalk. She was 75 years of age and suffered from shock when admitted to hospital. After the limb was immobilized it was apparent that everything was satisfactory and the fracture knitting, though she was suffering a lot of pain while in the cast.

Upon her discharge from hospital a fresh cast was put on, as sores had developed from the cast, and she had been at home ten days when this clot of blood developed, which caused her death.

Maxwell J. Swanston, Treasurer at the Peterborough Printing Company, said that he was familiar with the sidewalk where Mrs. Little fell. It was immediately outside 425 George Street. He did not see her fall but arrived in time to see her being picked up. He testified that part of the pavement was ice bound and the ice was about three inches thick. The sidewalk outside the adjacent premises on either side had been cleaned of all the snow and ice, but where the ice had not been cleared away there was a ridge about three inches thick.

N. Gibson, Aylmer St., said that at about 12.30 p.m. January 24, 1947, he was walking north on George Street and as he was near Burtol's Cleaners he saw a woman about eight feet in front of him slip on the ice ridge and fall over backwards. A police constable was walking towards him and the two picked the woman up and carried her into the Cleaners. The ice on the sidewalk was about three inches thick, the witness said, and it was uneven and hard. He testified that the other parts of the sidewalk had been chipped of ice and cleared of the snow through to the cement. There was a ridge nearly three or four inches thick. It was on this ridge that the woman slipped and fell. Light intermittent snow had been falling that morning. Witness said that there was no sign of any sand on the sidewalk.

Counsel for defence, W. Huycke, K.C., said that he would show that sand had been put on the sidewalk on the 18th, 19th, 20th and 21st of January.

R. E. Little said he was first notified of his mother's injury when he received a telephone call from the city police to say that his mother had fallen in George Street and was in the Civic Hospital suffering from a fractured hip.

Witness said that he visited his mother who was in the X-ray room. He testified that his mother was an active woman and attended all the dances at the Canadian Legion where she was caretaker in the ladies' room. She went to the Legion every Thursday morning.

"My mother told me where she had fallen," said the witness, "and when I left her I went to that part of the sidewalk on George Street and inspected it. The sidewalk was ice-bound. The ice would be about three inches thick. The sidewalk in front of the adjoining premises was cleared of ice through to the cement, but in front of the store where my mother fell the ice was rough and hard. It was very dangerous. There was a ridge of ice nearly four inches thick where it had not been chipped off." Witness further testified that there was no sand on the sidewalk either on the icebound part nor where it had been cleared.

He advised the counsel for defence, W. Huycke, K.C., that he was claiming $1,000 damages for expenses, pain and suffering.

Court was adjourned at this point and the case if proceeding.

LID FINALLY LIFTED ON BARBARA ANN'S AWARDS — The case containing the medals and a silver tray won by Barbara Ann Scott during her Olympic triumph —which passed through Toronto on its way to Ottawa and spent a night in a local vault—was finally opened by customs inspectors upon arrival at Uplands Airport in the capital. The medals and the tray, symbols of Barbara Ann's world supremacy in figure skating, will go on public display in Ottawa.

Judge Awards Damages To Mrs. Letellier

The three-day-long case, Letellier versus the City of Peterborough and the Board of Education, closed at noon Wednesday, when the Hon. Mr. Justice D. C. Wells gave judgment in favor of plaintiff, Mrs. A. Letellier, Crescent St., Peterborough. His Lordship awarded her damages of $11,800 with costs.

The case heard in the Peterborough Spring Session of the Supreme Court of Ontario commenced Monday morning. In giving judgment, His Lordship said that it was his intention to throw the case against the City of Peterborough out of court as evidence showed hat Mrs. Letellier fell on the pathway leading from the sidewalk in McDonnel St. leading to the main entrance of the PCVS and thus did not sustain her injuries on City property but on property of the Board of Education. He further ordered that all costs incurred by the city should be paid by the plaintiff.

The case arose from an injury sustained by Mrs. Letellier, when she fell and broke her left hip. She was attending a Catholic Youth Organization play, "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," held in the PCVS auditorium, March 18, 1947, and walking on the path leading from the sidewalk to the main entrance of the PCVS she fell and fractured her thigh.

Although evidence was given that the pathway had been sanded that evening, Detective Clarke said he was on duty at the PCVS that night, and he with other witnesses testified that when he arrived at the PCVS there was no sand on the pathway and people were slipping and sliding over the path.

John Amys, K.C., Toronto, and V. J. McElderry, K.C., were plaintiff's counsel and W. Huycke, K.C., acted for the City of Peterborough, while J. Watt, K.C., Ottawa, was counsel for the Board of Education.

Youths Stand Trial In Extortion Case

TORONTO, Feb. 26 — (CP) — George Miloff, 19, and Joseph Adams, 20, to-day were committed for jury trial when they appeared in Magistrate's Court on a charge of attempted extortion of $10,000 from Michael Blidner, part owner of the Dominion Fruit Company.

Magistrate R. L. Browne ruled there was not enough evidence against Samuel Adams, 32, held on similar charges, and the case against him was dismissed.

Blidner testified that he identified Miloff's voice as that which he heard over a telephone when repeated demands had been made asking him to pay $10,000 or suffer the consequences. Firing of a rifle bullet through an upstairs window followed one demand.

Strange Going On At Castle Give Ludlow Folks The Jitters

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LUDLOW, England, Feb. 26 (CP).—Maybe it's a screech owl, or a whimpering breeze caught between the gaunt, grey stones of Ludlow Castle. Perhaps it is the rumbling of a train that sets those old walls suddering in a ghostly wail . . .

Whatever it is, Ludlow people are convinced they hear mysterious gasping sounds coming from high up in one of the towers of the 11th century castle.

George Jeffs, a stolid timber sawyer, went home one night "quaking in every limb" from the pathway under the castle's "hanging tower."

Phlegmatic Joe May, truck driver, and his girl friend ran from under an old yew tree near the tower after hearing a "ghostly wheezing sound."

Most of the Ludlow townsfolk laughed when the story spread.

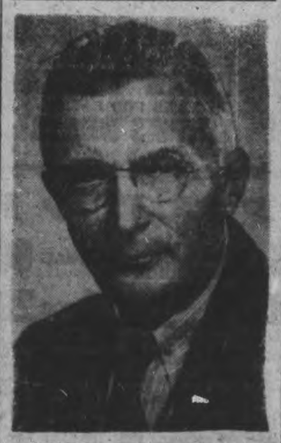
But up at the Cottage Hospital, Matron Miss N. A. Clifford said: "Four weeks ago I was taking my Scottie, Bruce, for an evening walk around the castle. As we passed the old yew tree the dog came shivering and whimpering to my legs . . .

Tower "Breathing"

"Then suddenly I heard the sound of heavy anguished breathing. My first thought was that someone had fallen and been injured . . . I shone my torch around but couldn't see anything. Then I realized the breathing was coming from half-way up the tower wall."

Mrs. May Davis, evacuated to Ludlow from Liverpool during the war tells of living in the castle for four months and says: "I wouldn't go near there again for all the tea in China — and heaven only knows, tea is short enough these days!

"From the time we moved in, queer things happened every night. Doors opened and closed of their own accord . . . we were awakened by creaks and bumps and moans."



Even John Lloyd, the castle caretaker, takes these stories seriously.

"There's been strange goings on here ever since I can remember. I'm always hearing noises I can't account for. In fact, I've got so used to them I don't think I'll give up my job after all."

Hornet's Sting Given As Cause Of Death

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa Feb. 26 (CP).—"Death as the result of a hornet sting" was the verdict after an inquest here on Gerhardus Laurentius Van Es of Glen, formerly of Holland. The evidence was that he had been stung on the back of the neck by a hornet.

Mrs. Johanna G. L. Van Es, the widow, said that she had tried to treat the sting, which looked like a blister the size of a pin's head, with ammonia. An hour and a half later his face began to swell and he died suddenly.

Traditional Unpreparedness Of British Forces Blamed For Fall Of Singapore

By JOHN DAUPHINEE

LONDON, Feb. 26—(CP).—Lt.-Gen. Arthur Ernest Percival, commander in Malaya when the Japanese took Singapore in 1942, said tonight that lack of air and naval support for his outnumbered ground forces was the main cause of defeat. His 100,000-word dispatch to the War Office blamed "traditional British unpreparedness" for the enemy's capture, in 10 weeks, of an area nearly as big as England and Wales, including the main Far East naval base, once considered impregnable.

But he forecast that the Malayan defeat, sometimes termed "the most impressive disaster ever to befall the British Empire," may let be assessed as a worth-while delaying action that saved more important parts of the Commonwealth.

Percival's day-by-day account of the first allied campaign fought with modern weapons in jungle warfare conditions was written after his release from Japanese prison camp and published just six years after Singapore fell Feb. 15, 1942.

Hopeless Battles

It is a recital of hopeless, bloody battles ending invariably in retreat as British, Australian, Indian and Malayan forces were pushed 400 miles from the Thailand frontier to Singapore Island.

These are statements Percival makes to explain his much-criticized failure to protect Singapore—a failure which contributed directly to a reorganization of Winston Churchill's war cabinet:

1. In 1937, defence policy was based on the assumption that the British home fleet would arrive at Singapore within 70 days of the outbreak of war with Japan. When war began in Europe, this assumption fell apart and policy was changed to include the holding of all Malaya.

2. Budget cuts in Whitehall delayed preparation of additional defences, including protection for Singapore against land attack.

3. In the autumn of 1940, London decided that Malayan defence must depend primarily on air power, but this policy was "in fact never implemented." Compared with a requested 466 first-line aircraft and an authorized 336 aircraft, the Malayan defenders had only 141 operational planes, few of them modern and a number of them "obsolescent." The Japanese launched their campaign with probably 300 modern planes, and at the end had more than 520 in South Thailand, Malaya and Indo-China.

4. Malaya had "nothing in the nature of a balanced fleet" and when the Prince of Wales and Repulse were sunk Dec. 10, 1941—the third day of the Pacific war—the Japanese had undisputed control of sea communications "and the whole of the east coast became exposed to attack.

Used 150,000 Japs

5. "In estimate that the Japanese employed a minimum of 150,000 men and 300 tanks in the Malayan campaign. . . . The total number of officers and men who took part in the campaign on the British side was a little over 125,000." The defenders had only one squadron of "obsolescent light tanks," and some troops were "unarmed owing to shortage of personal weapons."

6. "The troops generally were inexperienced, and far too large a proportion of them were only partially trained. There was a shortage of experienced leaders, especially in the Indian and Australian units. Instead of the 48 infantry battalions and supporting arms asked for, we had only 32."

7. "An atmosphere of unreality hung over Malaya. . . . It cannot be said that the people were fully prepared for the part they were to play in a total war."

8. "There is no doubt whatever that the Japanese obtained considerable assistance at times from the local inhabitants."

Lack Team Spirit

9. "There was a lack of the team spirit between the service departments on the one side and the civil government on the other in tackling problems of common interest."

"That our strategy was not successful was due primarily to a lack of strength in all three services, but particularly in the Navy and Air Force," wrote Percival, now 60 years old and living in retirement in Hertfordshire.

Percival said his report was "more detailed than would otherwise have been the case" because of statements about the Malayan campaign which were "based on false or incomplete information."

"The retreat from Mons and the retreat to Dunkerque have been hailed as epics," he said. "Each of these retreats lasted approximately three weeks.

Lasted 10 Weeks

"The retreat in Malay lasted 10 weeks in far more trying conditions. There was no strong ally to help us and no Navy to evacuate the force, even had it been desirable to do so.

"It has been hailed as a disaster, but perhaps the judgment of history will be that all the effort and money expended on the defence of Malaya and the sacrifice and subsequent suffering of many of those who fought in the Malaya campaign were not in vain.

Early Dec. 8, only a few hours after Japan bombed Pearl Harbor, the first Japanese troops landed near Kota Bharu, on the northeast Malay coast. Within 24 hours they had knocked out their first objective—Kota Bahru airdrome. From then on their progress was consistent.

By Feb. 14 all the mainland and most of Singapore island had been overrun. The island's water supply was in Japanese hands and military food stocks were down to only a few days' rations. Percival called a meeting of senior commanders at Fort Canning.

"The danger of the water situation, particularly as it affected the Indian troops and the vast civil population, was stressed," he wrote in his dispatch. "There was also the danger of a breakthrough into the crowded Singapore town area if the Japanese delivered another determined attack.

No Counter-Attack

"It was clearly no good remaining on the defensive as we were. As I viewed the situation, the alternatives were either (a) to counter-attack immediately to regain control of the reservoirs and of the military food depots and to drive back the enemy's artillery with a view to reducing the danger to the water-supply system, or (b) to capitulate immediately.

"Formation commanders were unanimously of the opinion that in the existing circumstances a counter-attack was impracticable.

"I could see no immediate solution for the critical water situation and decided to capitulate. The other members of the conference concurred unanimously with this decision."

The same afternoon, Percival was received by Lt.-Gen. Yamashita, the Japanese commander, in a factory north of the city and signed the unconditional surrender.

At several places in his report, Percival was critical of the quality of troops under his command.

The 45th Indian Infantry Brigade, cut off at Muar and virtually wiped out, had "never been fit for employment in a theatre of war," he said, though "it was not that there was anything wrong with the raw material but simply that it was raw."

The 11th Indian division, he said, was composed of "young and inexperienced troops" who sometimes found Malayan conditions "too trying."

Australian reinforcements which arrived in January had only a few weeks' training, he reported; "they had not been in the army long enough to learn true discipline."

But although the inexperienced troops became "more and more exhausted and were bewildered and often disheartened, their morale was never broken."

Blame Wages For Increase In City Tax Rate

Of the 1¾ mills increase in the general tax rate, 72 p.c. is for higher rates of wages. That was one of the explanatory remarks as the finance committee put the final stitches in the 1948 budget and tax rate.

Ald. Hugh Waddell was not saying much as the committee strove with its financial problem of adjusting expenditures to 41 mills instead of 41½, at the same time trying to keep some of the projects of construction in the list of prospects. After Ald. D. Miller's reference to the community need of a modern rink, ball park and so on, Ald. Waddell said: "There is nothing you can do except on salaries. They are the only thing that has gone up in our expenditures. If you are not going to tackle that, we might as well go home."

The chairman of the executive committee was not advocating revision of the salary changes. He was emphasizing the fact that at 11 p.m. Wednesday night when the council had gone as far as they could in trying to produce an acceptable rate.

Edward Humpage, city auditor, estimated the salary increase at $56,000. In the general conversation before Mayor Ovens changed the subject to the new housing agreement, Mr. Humpage said Peterborough property assessments had advanced perhaps no more than 15 p.c. in the last ten years, but general costs had gone up something like 70 p.c.; and wages were up to the same extent and in some instances were double the wages that were paid just before the war.

Mr. Humpage undertook to prepare an explanatory graph of contrasting changes, and a further statement is to be prepared for the informaton of the ratepayers.

Canadian Exports To Soviet Nearly 5 Million In 1947

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 (CP)—Value of Canadian exports to Russia during 1947 was $4,866,656, compared to the $181,120 value of imports from Russia, the government said in a return tabled today in the Commons.

The exports ranged from 13 gallons of gin and 62 of whiskey to 208,333 hundredweight of canned herring. The herring cost Russia $2,663,468, more than half of the entire export figure.

Other Canadian goods purchased by Russia included 30,128 pairs of men's boots and shoes, worth $45,590; 3,935,961 pounds of canned meats, worth $702,731; five cultivators, medicinal preparations worth $31,891; $60,000 worth of radium and salts; two refrigerators, worth $1,140; and a wide range of farm implements, electrical apparatus, glassware and dental, surgical and hospital equipment. The export total included $238,384 worth of donations and gift parcels.

Canadian imports from Russia included more than $150,000 worth of fur skins and manufactured furs; 13,017 square feet of Oriental carpets, worth $26,870; $509 worth of foreign-language books; $146 worth of phonograph records, and $125 worth of cameras and camera parts.

Greek Parliament Adjourns To May 10

ATHENS, Feb. 2.—(AP).—The Greek parliament voted today to adjourn until May 10. The vote was 147 to 73.

The government proposed a parliamentary recess last week, on the ground members could serve their country better by being near their constituents on the eve of an offensive against the guerrillas.

Minor party leaders opposed the recess. One Opposition leader declared the government is "just trying to get rid of us."

JEWISH YOUNGSTERS HELP—Sandbags for defence works are filled by Jewish girls in the Montefiore quarter of Jerusalem. The girls belong to the few Jewish families remaining in the beleaguered section with members of the Haganah. This section has been under almost constant attack by Arabs sniping from the old city.

Permit Smoking In Portion Of Collegiate

Smoking in designated sections of the Collegiate will now be permitted on nights when the auditorium and gymnasium are rented, it was decided by the Board of Education in accepting the report of the Supervision Committee.

It was reported that permission for the move had been received from the Fire Underwriters' Association. Smoking will be allowed in the corridor of the main floor in the Vocational Department to the right of the auditorium and in the corridor of the basement floor in that department to the upper right of the gymnasium.

On recommendation of the committee, a set of typmanis and an oboe will be purchased for the Collegiate Band. The cost of the two will be about $700.

"Due to the unsettled conditions and circumstances prevalent in the organization of the Cadet Corps in general throughout the province, the committee—and the Board—deemed it not advisable to grant the request of the Elizabeth Smellie Branch of the Canadian Legion for consideration in organizing a Girls' Cadet Corps in the Collegiate.

Judgment Is Reserved In Manslaughter Case

BRAMPTON, Feb. 26.—Judgment was reserved until Friday by Magistrate T. H. Moorehead in Brampton police court Wednesday morning when Robert S. Noll, Toronto, appeared on a preliminary hearing on a charge of manslaughter.

The charge arose from an accident on July 27 last on No. 50 Highway, south of Bolton, when the car Noll was driving collided with a CPR freight, causing the death of Ellen Marie Schuler, 67, and her son, Ronald, 27. Noll was himself seriously injured in the accident, suffering a fractured skull, both arms and legs broken and a fractured pelvis. He appeared in court this morning, supported by two canes.

Witnesses at the preliminary hearing included Dr. W. A. Wylie, the train crew, Albert Todd, a farmer living near the scene of the accident, and Provincial Constable George Yuile of Brampton.

At the inquest, held on Thursday, Feb. 5, the jury returned an open verdict, absolving the CPR of all blame in connection with the fatality.

Fraser Urges Building New Highway

OTTAWA, Feb. 26. (CP)—The federal government was urged in the Commons Wednesday by G. K. Fraser (PC, Peterborough West) to co-operate with the provinces in the building of a hard-surfaced, all-weather highway from Halifax to Vancouver.

He said Canada was losing millions of dollars annually because there was no trans-Canada highway and pointed out that a motorist seeking to drive from coast to coast had to make part of his journey through the United States.

The federal government should have the Resources Department draw up a plan for a trans-continental highway and seek the co-operation of the nine provinces in putting it into force.

Urging construction of a trans-Canada highway, Mr. Fraser said all of the provinces would undertake the project.

He said there should be tables and parking lots along any trans-Canada highway. Hotels and eating places along the highway should be under a commission that would keep them up to a definite standard.

Mr. Fraser said he wished to urge that veterans who bought houses under veterans' plans be given protection so that they would not lose their investment in times of sickness or unemployment.

Legal Precedent Believed Set In Damages Case

MONTREAL, Feb. 26. (CP) — Appeal today of a motion for dismissal of a $250,000 action, coming in the midst of the hearing, is believed to have set a legal precedent in Canada.

The action is that taken by Mrs. Howard S. Welch of New York, and her three daughters, against the Montreal Tramways Co. Howard Welch was killed when an automobile in which he was riding collided with a street car.

The motion for dismissal came yesterday after conclusion of evidence for the plaintiffs. Defense counsel claimed evidence was insufficient to establish a judgement against the company.

Further, it was claimed, no evidence had been presented to show that the motorman of the street car concerned was acting in the course of his duties for which he was employed.

Chief Justice Tyndale, presiding at the Superior Court hearing, dismissed the motion, and the defense normally would then have proceeded with its case.

In the interval before the hearing resumed today, defense counsel prepared a motion for leave to appeal. It was presented in chambers before Mr. Justice J. L. St. Jacques of the appeal court. It was granted after considerable argument participated in by counsel for both plaintiffs and company.

During the discussion it was said the point at issue—whether such a judgment, as the case then stood, was subject to appeal — had never previously been decided in courts of the provinces by the Supreme Court of Canada.

Jurors hearing the action were discharged pending further notice to return and resume their duties, if necessary, at some unknown date.

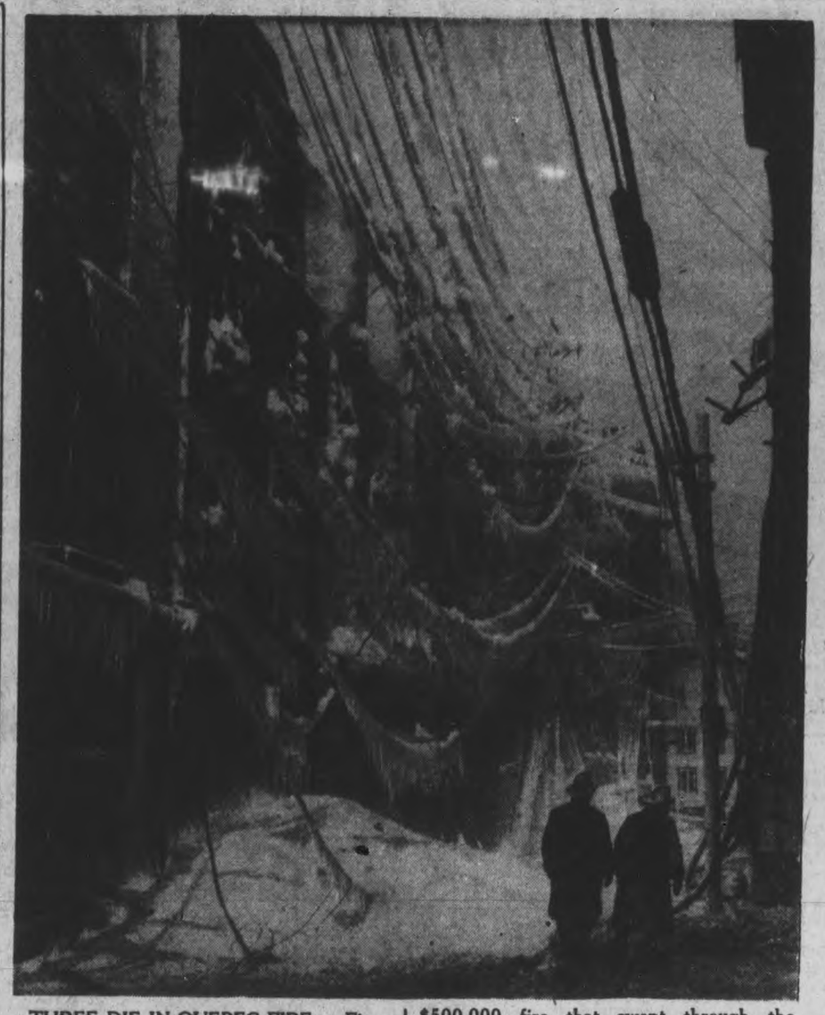
Predict Panic If UN Work Not Supported



TORONTO, Feb. 26.—(CP). — Failure of freedom-loving States to support the United Nations and its ideal would help precipitate "collective insecurity and irresponsibility among nations," Hon. Louis St. Laurent, Minister for External Affairs, told the Ontario Good Roads Association in a speech prepared for delivery yesterday.

"It is not pleasant to start thinking in terms of the armed force which can be mustered for the support of the United Nations or to maintain the position of free nations," Mr. Laurent said, "but these past decades have taught us hard lessons."

The minister said wavering support of U.N. could bring on among nations the same type of panic which seized banks and commercial enterprises "a few years ago."

"Some might be able to salvage partial security for themselves in that event, but none would have a free and orderly world for their traders, their statesmen and their missionaries to move in. Our own potential prosperity would definitely be restricted and we would be put on the defensive in many parts of the world."

Mr. St. Laurent said, "peace is so important to all of us that we must still regard the United Nations, either in its present form or in such modified form as circumstances may make inevitable, as an indispensable medium, and channel, and forum through which the peoples of the world can work out the institutions and arrangements which peace, security and even survival appear to require."

THREE DIE IN QUEBEC FIRE — Firemen survey the ice-shrouded but still smouldering ruins left in the wake of the $500,000 fire that swept through the Mountain Hill Hotel in the old city's Lower Town. Discovery of two charred bodies yesterday brought the death toll to three.

Nation-Wide Uranium Hunt Started In Australia

By LESLIE BRODIE
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 26 (CP).—A nation-wide hunt for raw materials of the atomic bomb is gathering momentum in Australia.

Prospectors are seeking uranium, plutonium, thorium, and the other radio-active minerals that go into the bomb, in all parts of the country. Scientists sailed on the exploration ship Wyatt Earp to the Antarctic to study cosmic rays close to the South Pole, where the cosmic ray is understood to be stronger than it is in other parts.

Financial help is given by the federal government and substantial rewards are offered for the discovery of new fields containing the radio-active minerals.

The Council for Scientific and Industrial Research is devoting much of its time to research into the minerals but it has been hinted at Canberra that the government will set up an Atomic Energy Commission to supervise and develop resources in the states.

It is almost certain that any information or materials gained by the Australian government will be pooled with the British, United States, and Dominion governments, regardless of any decisions the United Nations may make on the subject.

Thorium In East

The search for thorium in the sands of eastern Australia has taken prospectors to the fashionable seaside resort of Southport in southern Queensland. Thorium-bearing sands exist there and are believed to extend south almost to Sydney.

In the search for uranium, government authorities regard Mount Painter and Radium Hills of South Australia as the areas likely to yield large payable deposits of uranium.

But prospects of finding large deposits of uranium-bearing ores in Australia are not good, said R. O. Chambers, mineralogist at the Australian Museum. He told reporters that nowhere in Australia had anyone found pitch-blende, the most common and important source of uranium. He described the Mount Painter and Radium Hills deposits as "insignificant."

The federal government has been seeking the services of Prof. M. L. Oliphant, Australian-born leader of nuclear physics research in Britain, to direct atomic research in Australia. The professor refused a government offer last year to take charge of a proposed physics research institute at Canberra.

Urge Ontario Change Gasoline Sale Hours

TORONTO, Feb. 26 — (CP) — Revision of Ontario's Industrial Standards Acts which regulates the hours and days of sale of gasoline in Toronto, Windsor, Hamilton and Brantford was urged in a resolution passed yesterday at the annual meeting of the Ontario Good Roads Association.

Expressing opposition to early closing of service stations, the resolution said municipalities should have power to regulate the service stations. Then each municipality could make arrangements in the best interests of its own citizens.

Officers elected were: D. J. Emery of Waterloo County, president; V. H. Evans of Tisdale, near Timmins, and R. Elliott of Bruce County, vice-presidents.

Lakefield Hydro-Electric Power Commission requests its customers to reduce power consumption as much as possible in order to avoid arbitrary reduction in service.

Community Fund Campaign 12 Appeals In One; Donations Income Tax Free

Instead of the Red Cross Society and a dozen other community welfare agencies approaching local citizens individually throughout the year to raise subscriptions, the various organizations have combined in the Red Cross and Community Fund campaign slated to open for the week beginning Friday, Feb. 27, to March 5.

Based on actual requirements of the individual agencies, the budget for the year of each of these has to be approved by the executive of the Community Fund where it is carefully scrutinized and audited before approval is given.

With the financial objective set at $60,000, it is not believed that any further appeal will have to be made by the organizations throughout 1948.

Beneficiaries will be the Canadian Red Cross, Salvation Army, YMCA, YWCA, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Children's Aid Society, Navy League, St. Vincent's Orphanage, Victorian Order of Nurses, Peterborough Humane Society, Ontario Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation, Visiting Homemaker Services, and other agencies officially included.

Donors can allocate their contributions to whatever agency they desire as provision is made for this on the pledge card. An official receipt will be given from the treasurer when the money reaches its designated agency; a temporary receipt is given by the canvasser.

Amount of the subscription can be deducted from assessable income when calculating income tax. For those who wish to contribute over a period of time, special provision is made; they may do so up to Dec. 31, 1948.

To save extra time, effort, expense, and a ceaseless parade of tag days, the Canadian Red Cross and Community Fund Campaign Week was organized. Citizens will have the opportunity of financially supporting this worthy cause when the large-scale drive begins on Friday.

Traffic Fines Top $100 In City Court

There was a busy time in police court this morning, as the magistrate accepted written pleas of guilty of minor traffic offenders and levied fines and costs totalling more than $100.

Fined $5 and $2.50 costs for speeding: A. D. Ferguson, Brewers' Warehouse, Peterborough; H. Paige Rowell, 494 Gilmour St.; Kerman Q. Beatty, Beatty Transport, 500 Reid St.

For driving through a stop sign, and $2.50 costs were collected from: William Wood, 833 Water St.; James K. Webster, Bridgenorth; J. G. Crowley, 464 Donegal St.; Charles A. Goold, 190 Prince St.; Stanley Fife, Indian River; Thomas Cainne, Cobourg; Daniel O'Connell, Hamilton; E. H. Mills, R.R. 1, Peterborough; J. C. Drysdale, 184 Lansdowne St.; Harold McKay, Hamilton; D. J. Armstrong, Omemee; Ross Philp, Nestleton; John A. Andrews, 158 Dublin St.; Austin Gorman, 405 London St.; C. R. Cooper, 748 Brown St.

L. G. Lawrence of Oshawa, paid two fines of $2 and $1 costs each on separate charges—on the 2nd and 4th of this month—for overtime parking. Also fined for this was Robert McAdams, R.R. 2, Peterborough.

For failing to have proper rear lights, Harry Adlam, 508 Wolsley St. and Art. T. Dainton, 864 Water St., were each fined $2 and $1 costs.

SNOW ADDS TO HAZARD

A number of side streets are still caked in ice, and walking for elderly people has remained precarious. The light snow that fell Thursday morning covered the sidewalk making it doubly treacherous for pedestrians.

Treasury Guardians

City Council may have a new candidate for the unofficial title of "Watchdog of the Treasury" in Ald. Grant Miller if he continues to apply the microscope to items of expenditure, present and prospective. Guardians of the municipal dollar in other days were E. Rollie Wilson and the late William Langford. Councils as a whole are careful of the outgo, but some are more uncompromising than others.

KITCHENER ACCOUNTS

Here are some items Kitchener City Council has been asked to incorporate into their 1948 budget: Public Schools, $334,300; Kitchener-Waterloo Collegiate, $322,411; Police Commission $99,891; K.-W. Hospital, $70,025; Public Library, $41,2560; Children's lic Library, $41,250; Children's Aid Society, $23,245.

IT ISN'T VENICE—Residents in the new sections of the city down in the southwest corner are hoping the city hurry the building of sidewalks. This camera shot is a view looking west on Hamilton Street, in the McKellar subdivision, showing the road converted into a canal. Workmen were able to clear the water by opening manholes. Storm drains and sidewalks are in the distant future and meanwhile the vagaries of the weather pose problems.

41½ Mill Tax Rate Looming

Rate Likely To Be 5 Mills Higher Than In 1947

Peterborough's 1948 tax rate will be 41½ mills in the bylaw that is coming before the council in special session Friday night. The new levy is 5½ mills higher than the 36 mills last year.

The finance committee's recommendation to the council last night was proposed by Mayor Ovens and seconded by Ald. Douglas Miller after another long session of poring through those estimates which are controlable by the council in quest of items of expenditure which could be reasonably dispensed with.

The Swanston committee faced a 42-mill rate as it opened its meeting with the definite intention of going through the budget once more in a dim hope of compressing the rate to the 41-mill level.

At 42 mills the council would have a fairly comfortable allowance for what is called the miscellaneous fund, a bookkeeping credit for unforseen needs that may crop up during the rest of the year. The final winnowing yielded only $8,000, as compared with the $33,000 equivalent of one mill at which the committee was aiming.

Ald. Grant Miller remarked: "If the estimates of last year were exceeded by $30,000 in actual expenditure we are just kidding ourselves trying to cut down the rate any further."

"If we fix the rate at 41½ mills it must be understood by the chairmen of committees and of any other spending bodies that they must not overdraw their appropriations this year," said Mayor Ovens. "I think that should be put in the record."

At the close of the meeting His Worship translated that idea into a motion which Ald. Adam Sands promptly seconded.

Clipped $1,500

In the meantime A.d. Grant Miller was tenaciously trying to find a reductive way down to 41 mills to clip off that half mill. His eye lit on an item in the Board of Health estimates. The result of discussion was that the Board's total lost $1,500.

Some one pointed at $350 for Riverside Park topsoil, and it came out. But, those were only minor expenditures. The committee could not lay hold of anything sizeable. They halted on the $5,000 increase that is being charged by the Utilities Commission for fire protection, generally for water service to the city as a whole. It was suggested that the Commission could raise the water rate to consumers. Against that idea was the fact that the Commission has its own administration to look after, that it is an electric body, and that boosting the water rates would be unpopular with the public.

The committee finally threw in the sponge when Ald. D. Miller seconded Mayor Ovens' motion.

Ald. D. Miller had previously remarked that 41½-mills would have a better psychological effect than 42. As other aldermen have fancied before him Ald. G. Miller jokingly said: "I wonder how it would be if we started by fixing the rate and then worked backward from it."

Ald. Hugh Waddell expressed some concern as to "whether we have enough 'cushion' for the rest of the year," referring to the leanness of the contingent fund. He said he did not like the risk of a deficit at the end of the year, especially after the experience of 1947.

Ald. Waddell said there should be some moderate allowance available for unexpected expenditures the council would probably have to consider as the year advanced.

Final Dressing Friday

The exact amount of the contingent fund was not determined last night. Its sum will emerge in the ultimate revision of the appropriations prior to the formal striking of the rate Friday night. City Treasurer Couper and City Auditor Humpage were both present at last night's meeting, and to them the committee work of the last week, plus several components of the budget such as the requirements of the Board of Education and the Separate School Board, and was left for the final dressing.

In regard to the Utilities Commission's $5,000 increase on the water charge, Mr. Humpage said that they had only a few thousand dollars left in their waterworks account. Mayor Ovens recalled the Commission's contribution of $50,000 to the Civic Hospital, and Ald. Swanston laughingly suggested: "The Utilities gave $50,000 to the Hospital and it looks as if the council will have to pay $5,000 a year more for the next ten years."

In his questioning of the wisdom of cutting the rate too closely Ald. Waddell said: "Last year we thought it should be 37 mills, but we reduced it to 36 mills."

Mayor Ovens: "The trouble in the board of works was that works were approved that were not in the estimates. They were $53,000 over their appropriation without the subsidy of one mill we later got from the Department of Highways."

As to the $8,000, possibly somewhat more than that sum, for contingencies, it was thought that the council might tap some extra sources this year. Some charge may be made for the issuing of building permits and there may be more revenue from the special permits for trucks parking.

Effervescence Of Youth Hits Stone Wall

Ald. Doug Miller Dismayed By Budget Limits

"It looks as if all we'll have is a fine department and police force," was the comment of a disillusioned young alderman, Douglast Miller, at Wednesday night's finance committee meeting.

The committee had been laking about proposed minor changes at Riverside Park Ald. Miller said the ground level should be raised another foot or eighteen inches, continuing the work done by the council when Floyd Curtis was chairman of the parks committee. Seeding and grading was just a waste of effort and money until the park was given a deeper top of soil. Last year there was some talk of improving the stands, but the council has been concerned about an expense on old structures that could be jacked up into further use but would still be old. An alternative is the buying of portable bleachers that could be set up at Nicholls Oval when they were not needed at Riverside.

Ald. Miller remarked with a slightly bitter accent: "We seem to be shaping around now so that we won't have a ball park. We haven't a band stand. We have a junior hockey team advertising their playoffs in Port Hope. That's an awful black eye to a good city like Peterborough. There has been quite a lot of talk about a secondary rink. Mayor Ovens said possibly the city might be able to make a contribution of $10,000."

Not A Chance

At that late stage of making up the budget Ald. Miller knew there wasn't a snowball's chance of getting $10,000 or even $1,000 for either a secondary or primary rink. And in disappointment that was humorous he said apparently "all we are going to have is a police department and fire brigade." That was youth's unstudied protest against being straitjacketed within the bonds of a budget. Ald. Miller was squirming against the tightness of the financial clamps that were set upon the council as they adopted a tax rate of 41½ mills, and thereby he was getting experience and wisdom through in the democratic manner of administration of a community's affairs.

Ald. Swanston, one of the elders of the council who knows "when you're licked" and conserve their energies for some other point of attack, remarked to Ald. Miller that "these things can be had if we want the tax rate 46 mills."

"I've just been wondering (in the compulsion of doing without attractive things like ball stands and secondary rinks, shell band stands, etc.) whether we are going at it the right way," Ald. Miller replied.

Probably Mayor Ovens and his veterans, accustomed to the restrictions of rates and ratepayers appeared to have an attitude of sympathy for the young Alderman in his initiation to the necessities of paying for past borrowings, that is by the instalments and interest on debentures, also in having to forego municipal things you'd like to buy instead of having to pour out the money into the essentials of police and fire protection, lighting and cleaning the streets Of course, Ald Doug Miller had known those things in a general way before coming into the council Some of them Wednesday night seemed to be transformed into a high will in which there was no opening, and over which there was no climbing. They fence you in. Another word for it is frustration.

Wolves Attack Deer

That wolves are attacking deer in the Trent region is confirmed by a letter received by Wildlife Inspector A. M. Hodgson. He quoted a Dummer Township resident who told of two deer killed in that region by wolves. According to Mr. Hodgson these attacks are taking place not only in Peterborough County but also in Haliburton. Crusted snow reducing the speed of the fleeing deer is considered one of the chief aids to the killers.

Exhibition Board Officials Ask Re Grants

A deputation from the Exhibition Board motored to Ottawa on Tuesday to find out the facts of Federal grants to agricultural societies. Hugh Stewart, president, was accompanied by Tom Brown, N. W. McConkey, and Harold Rehill. They were taken in tow by Gordon K. Fraser, and interviewed R. S. Hamar, director of Productive Services of the Department of Agriculture.

The main information they obtained was that the Department would grant up to $3,000 on capital expenditure, providing the board spent an equal amount. It is a dollar-for-dollar contribution.

For a junior farmers branch of the exhibition, the government provides $500 and they make another grant of $500 for judges or other phases of the prize list.

The trip to Ottawa was for the purpose of getting for the Exhibition Board facts of Department assistance for guidance in the new planning which is being fashioned under the presidency of Mr. Stewart.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearings for the week ending Wednesday evening were normal in comparison to previous figures. This period it was $1,741,125.

LIGHTS OUT

The city is doing its part in the conservation of power and started this morning by turning off street lighting at 6.30 a.m. The lengthening days make ample morning light for the thin traffic volume that moves at that time of day, city fathers feel.

SMOKE BUT NO FIRE

Firemen were called to the Capitol Taxi premises, 421 Water St. late Thursday morning when smoke reversed and flooded the office. A wind that blocked the smoke's exit was believed responsible. A routine inspectoin was made by the fire department, but nothing else was amiss.

THEY JAMMED THE PLACE

Fred Scates was chuckling today at some of his critics who disagreed when he forecast that professional wrestling was gaining in favor. For the last three weeks the patrons packed every nook and cranny of the Brock, and not only were the ordinary Joes on hand, but several bankers, industrial executives and coffee club members were noticed hollering "blue murder" at the referee's decisions.

RIFLE CLUB DATES CHANGED

Beginning next week, meeting nights for the Rifle Club of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association will be changed to Tuesday and Thursday nights instead of Monday and Wednesday. It is expected that the choice of these nights will prove more convenient for members and prospective members.

RUN OWN POWER PLANT

A handy little gadget for times like the present, is one to be seen on George St. being used by Bell Telephone workers as they lay cables underground. It is a generator which manufacturers sufficient electrical energy to run electric lighting independent of other power supply Sounds like a good thing to have around home if the present hydro-electric shortage continues.

CHIMNEY FIRE REPORTED

Firemen went to the Peterborough District Co-operative Services, 199 George St. just before noon Wednesday. A sprinkler pipe broke as a result of freezing, causing an automatic alarm to be sounded. Early Thursday morning a chimney fire was reported from 501 Donegal St., residence of Joseph Ryan. It was the first fire since Tuesday noon.

81.62 Cents On Every Dollar Goes For Salaries; Est. Revenue Up $32,000

The Peterborough Board of Education will require $398,267 from the city treasury in 1948 according to the estimates approved Wednesday night at a special meeting. The total expenditure will be $630,751.35, an increase of $89,000, and the demand on the city is increased $56,830. "This year 1948," stated G. Wilson Craw, chairman of the finance committee, in presenting the budget for approval, "marks a new era in our school system, and with this new era, it means additional costs."

He mentioned in particular the opening of six new rooms in the Queen Mary School and at least four in the Confederation School, steps taken to overcome crowded conditions of the past five years.

Estimated revenue for the year was described as "a bright outlook." Other than the amount from the city, the board will receive $232,484, an increase of more than $32,000 over 1947.

Of this amount, $175,060 or 27.75 per cent of the total revenue is paid by the provincial government, compared to $164,218.94 last year. Other expected sources of revenue with the 1947 figures in brackets are: County of Peterborough, $27,000 ($20,214.79); United Counties, $4,300 ($2,688); County of Victoria $800 ($588.83); miscellaneous non-resident pupils $120 ($197.50); North Monaghan School Board, $3,000 ($1,220.45); wartime houses, $14,000 ($6,340); rental of collegiate auditorium, $600 ($745.42); night class fees, $2,000 ($3,459); surplus of North Monaghan Board, $801 (not applicable in 1947).

Salaries, it was shown by Mr. Craw, make up the greatest part of expenditures. Salaries for teachers, caretakers, shop workers, night school teachers and administration account for 81.62 cents of every dollar spent. Teachers' salary totals are $408,000, more than $40,000 greater than the amount spent last year. Of this increase, however, Mr. Craw pointed out, actual salary increases amount to only $17,000. Additional staff members and proposed taking over Grove School and past increases voted and not budgeted for last year make up the balance.

Public schools will cost $384,554 of the total. There will be $133,506.21 required for the collegiate academic section and $112,691.14 for the vocational part of the collegiate.

"Just as increases in the cost of living effect every man and woman in this city in everyday life, they have affected the business of the Board of Education," Mr. Craw said.

Opening the new rooms, buying extra equipment and the additional upkeep have largely contributed to the increased expenditures in the public schools and will continue for several years to come, the finance chairman said.

Two Pay Fines Stole Wood In Douro Twshp.

William McCormack was fined $25 and $2.50 costs or one month and Harold Kidd $20 and $2.50 costs or 20 days when the two pleaded guilty this morning to stealing a truckload of cordwood from a farmer in Douro township. The two had been caught with the wood by Lakefield Chief Samis and OPP Joseph Hanson, who found them trying to get the truck out of a ditch.

Kidd told Magistrate Philp that he had been told by someone whom he could not identify that the wood had been for sale, and that he intended to pay the owner for the wood today.

The magistrate commented that it was "an unusual procedure to buy wood from the owner without his knowledge." The accused agreed that it was unusual.

The city birthrate is still at its highest peak, and it was noted that these children will be entering the school system in four or five years.

There are nearly 5,000 pupils in the city's public schools and at PCVS this year. In 1945 there were 4,555 and in 1941 the school "population" was 3,539.

Major items listed for 1948 are as follows, (the 1947 figure, if different, is in brackets following):

Teachers' salaries $408,000

Urges Support Of Churchill Plan For Union

OTTAWA, Feb. 26. (CP)—Support for Churchill's plan for a United Europe was urged before the Canadian Club here today by Cmdr. Stephen King-Hall, British lecturer and author, who said many European politicians would welcome United States pressure for such a union.

"In Europe the time now is rife for some great step forward," he said. Leaders of Western Europe would meet at The Hague May 8 in a "great manifestation for a United Europe in a meeting which would be unofficial and which Mr. Churchill said "would serve to set the prairie fire of public opinion alight."

Stating American pressure on behalf of European union would be welcomed, Cmdr. King-Hall, retired member of the Royal Navy said there would not be the slightest fear of so-called American imperialism dominating Europe.

"I am sure that Europe's way of life would never be threatened by America," he said. "If the Americans want to come over and do something about the plumbing and coffee, I'm sure they'd be very welcome.

Union of Europe would solve the German problem, he added. Germany would never be a military threat within the next decade but might become a political threat, since the German people were ripe for some form of totalitarianism and a united Europe would give them a way to "earn their passage back" into the good graces of other nations.

Northern California Begins New Brownout

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26. —(AP).—Northern California began its first peacetime electric brownout today. A record drought cut the State's vital Hydro-Electric water supplies.

The only hope for an early end to the crisis lay in soaking rains and heavy falls of snow, but the weather bureau offered no encouragement.

Reductions ranging from 10 per cent in agriculture, business and industry to 50 per cent in night sports lighting went into effect last midnight by order of the State Public Utilities Commission.

Drastic penalties for violation were announced. Switches will be pulled.

Water storage is only 46.1 per cent of normal.

The youngsters had been "playing baker" in the back of the wagon when another youngster slammed the doors and trapped them inside. Twelve hours later they were found on bottom shelf of wagon by David Zavitz, railway employee, who heard their screams. Badly chilled, swollen from cold and terrified, the tots soon recuperated after they returned home.

See Anti-Lynching Act Splitting Democrat Party

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26—(AP).—A Federal anti-lynching law was approved yesterday by a House of Representatives judiciary sub-committee in the face of a growing southern Democratic revolt against this and other civil rights proposals of President Truman.

Seventy-four House Democrats, it was disclosed, now have pledged themselves to a finish fight against Truman's anti-lynching, anti-"Jim Crow" and other recommendations involving States' rights and race relations in the South.

Now striving openly to prevent Truman's nomination for a full term in the White House, "rebel" leaders focused their attention on Richmond, one-time capital of the Confederacy, where Gov. William Tuck plans a special message to the Virginia General Assembly today.

They considered it certain Tuck would call for State action against the Truman program. And there were indications he would propose that the name of the Democratic Presidential candidate be left off the Virginia ballot next November.

This would mean that Virginia's 11 electoral votes would not have to be cast for Truman if he is nominated by the Democratic National Convention next July. A similar half-secession threat is being considered in other Southern States.

Goes To Committee

The measure now goes to the full judiciary committee. This committee could send it to the House floor for an early vote. Of the 26 committee members, six are Democrats from the South.

The bill would permit the Federal government to prosecute person accused of taking part in a lynching or law officers charged with failing to do all they could to prepare a lynching.

Jail sentences up to 10 years and fines up to $20,000 could be imposed. And lynch victims — or their survivors—could be awarded damages up to $10,000 from the city or county where the violence occurred, if there was any negligence by police.

Backers of the measure say the Federal Government should be able to step in if local officials fail to prevent lynchings or prosecute the lynchers. Southerners fighting it say the problem is one for state and local governments, and that lynchings are few anyway.

3 Groups Study "Brotherhood"

TORONTO, Feb. 26 —(CP)— Murray G. Ballantyne of Montreal last night told a tri-denominational meeting here that the strength of communism lies not in what is false about it, but rather in what is true in it: that it offers a brotherhood of man, however inadequate.

Such a "brotherhood" is acceptable to some only because "we have failed to preach the whole gospel of the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God."

Chairman of the Roman Catholic delegation to the Montreal inter - credal council and outstanding proponent of unity and understanding between Catholics, Protestants and Jews, Mr. Ballantyne was catholic representative at the discussion, designed to foster goodwill among the three faiths.

Presenting the Protestant viewpoint was J. Alex Edmison, governor of Queen's Theological College, Kingston, who said the way to promote tolerance among members of different faiths was "to get to know the other fellow."

Rabbi Abraham Feinberg of Toronto said it was the obligation of all Jews "to have unshakable trust, despite all, in the potentiality of humanity."

Scrambling to make a Will when danger threatens is probably better than not making one at all but the preparation of such an important document should not be left to the confusion of a last minute rush.

Making a Will is something that can easily be attended to before emergencies arise. This duty should not be neglected. The logic and advantages of appointing a Corporate Executor and Trustee are obvious and well recognized.

All that is needed to get the job done, and done well, is to ask us to help you plan your Will, which we shall gladly do without charge. You can then have it drawn in proper legal form, naming The Royal Trust Company your Executor and Trustee, execute the Will and file it with us for safekeeping.

Parisian Youths Too Poor For Much Night-clubbing

By IAN FRASER

PARIS, Feb. 26 (Reuters). — Crippling taxation, huge overhead expenses and above all an impoverished younger generation is threatening to produce a serious slump among the "boites de nuit," the famous Paris night clubs, known to visitors from all parts of the world.

Already there is talk of closing down — although the manager of any individual club will deny it — at a number of the 170 registered night clubs which, much more than the night clubs of London and other European cities, are the traditional places of revelry of rich and poor alike, Frenchman and foreigner, policeman and "spiv."

Some of the well-known places in world-famous Montmartre and the less well-known districts of Montparnasse already look dilapidated.

A recent tour of a number of the better-known "boites" showed that 90 per cent of the male clients were middle-aged men and that the age of all was well over 30. The young men who brought the "boites" their gaiety in happier times, today have no money to spare for pleasures such as this.

"Young people have been coming less in recent months," the waiter behind the bar of the "Florence" said. "Sometimes we have the son of a regular customer or a young man with money from America or Belgium. But more often it is the older folk."

Foreigners, especially in the money-no-object clubs of the smart Champs Elysees district, were much in evidence. Americans, Swedes, all the hard-currency-country tourists are the best customers of night-club proprietors today.

At some of the less chic and more demi-mondain haunts, a prominent feature was the man in the flashy clothes and brightly-polished American car, known in London as the "spiv."

Clubs Only Half Full.

Some of the "boites" visited were only half full and even those which had large crowds — mainly those with floor shows and scantily-clad dancing girls — were not doing a great trade in the one article which brings the proprietor his revenue — drinks, for the Paris "boite" does not usually charge an entrance fee.

"This is not just the after-Christmas depression," one proprietor said. "The slump began after the November and December strikes. People are economizing because they lost earnings and are afraid they may lose more money about in the future and taxation — especially emergency taxation — will be less burdensome.

Secret Project Drives Inventor To Suicide

LONDON, Feb. 26 — (CP) — Geoffrey Nathaniel Pyke, 54-year-old inventor whose plan to build aircraft carriers from giant blocks of artificial ice was seriously considered by the Allies during the war, committed suicide because he was worrying about a secret project he was working on, a coroner's jury was told to-day.

The jury returned a verdict of suicide while Pyke's balance of mind was disturbed.

Mrs. Marjorie Lovell, secretary to Pyke, told the court that the inventor was worried because he was unable to complete a project he had been working on since 1946 by an April deadline. He was found poisoned in his Hampstead flat a few days ago.

Government Squeezes Through On Narrowest Margin This Year

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, Feb. 26—(CP).—Communism, the need for a trans-Canada highway, and the necessity for the reimposition of price controls were all discussed in the Commons yesterday, but an unexpected division prior to resumption of the Throne Speech debate provided the highlight of the short, mid-week sitting.

In the division, the Government squeezed through with its narrowest majority of this parliament when it defeated the Opposition 103 to 98 on a motion of D. King Hazen (PC—St. John-Albert) for production of certain Canadian National Railways' documents pertaining to the movement of Canadian goods through Maritime ports.

The government would not have been unseated if it had lost the division, but the result of the vote would have proved embarrassing and likely would have led to concerted opposition efforts to defeat the government at the earliest opportunity.

However, divisions on Wednesdays are an exception and some members on both sides of the House were absent. It is possible that all parties will ask their members to stay close to the Commons whether or not a vote is expected. In a full House, the government has a majority of about eight seats, but it can usually count on the votes of some Independents to extend that margin slightly.

Attacks Communism

In the throne speech debate, J. M. Dechene (L—Athabaska) said he wished to urge writers and others not to "lend an ear" to Communists and others who were ready to destroy the institutions and type of government Canada now had.

E. L. Bowerman (CCF—Prince Albert) called for reimposition of price controls, while John Sinnott (L—Springfield) called for the improvement of tourist facilities in his constituency.

Revenue Minister McCann said five employees of the income tax office at Saskatoon, Sask., were dismissed when investigation showed that returns of more than 100 taxpayers were manipulated to avoid penalties for late filing of returns.

Postmaster General Bertrand said no action has been taken to ban from the mails the Montreal weekly, Le Combat, whose offices were padlocked by the Quebec government last week on the grounds that the publication was communistic.

Works Minister Fournier said his department is calling for new tenders for the construction of a new dredge for the east coast.

Authority Declines

In the throne speech debate, Mr. Dechene quoted Gratton O'Leary, associate editor of the Ottawa Journal, as expressing surprise at the decline in the quality and authority of parliament. Mr. O'Leary had stated that because business and professional men were refusing to join a political party and to go to nominating conventions, the people were getting a weak executive and a strong bureaucracy.

Mr. Dechene said the present parliament was as strong as any in history and he was surprised at attempts of the press to belittle either its character or its strength. Such attempts simply aided those who would introduce Communism to Canada.

"I do not know about now, but a few weeks ago meetings of Communists, fellow travellers and believers in the communistic policy of Russia, some of them members of the civil service, were being held in the city of Ottawa, preparing to sabotage the service in case a call should come from overseas if the occasion arose," he said. "That is not far fetched."

Paris Sex Crimes Show Big Increase

PARIS, Feb. 26.—(AP).—Figures published today in a municipal bulletin showed that sex crimes have increased in Paris since licensed houses of prostitution were closed.

The bulletin said court action was taken on 1,432 sex offenses between April 3, 1944, and April 13, 1946. It was on the latter date the prostitution houses were padlocked. In the following 12 months, 2,160 sex crimes were prosecuted, said the bulletin.

The newspaper L'Ordre de Paris printed the statistics on its front page today under the headline: "Imbecile Puritanism."

Repeal of the law has been urged in the city council.

Lasf Of War Brides Sails On Aquitania

SOUTHAMPTON, Feb. 26 — (CP). — The last 12 of 69,000 Continental and British wives of Canadian servicemen to be transported to the Dominion under government auspices, yesterday boarded the liner Aquitania, due to sail to-day for Halifax.

The last person aboard was Mrs. Martin Muyres, 25, of Lancing, Sussex, who will rejoin her husband, a Montreal factory worker whom she married while he served as a trooper in a Canadian Tank Regiment during the war.

"I am thrilled to be going to Canada," she told the reporters "I am very glad to be getting away from rationing and I am looking forward to life in a new world."

WALLACE GETS A RUNNING MATE — U.S. Senator Glen H. Taylor, left, Idaho Democrat, is shown in a fond and happy pose with Henry A. Wallace in Washington after he announced that "I am going to cast my lot with Wallace in his brave and gallant fight for peace," by joining Wallace's third party movement. Taylor, speaking over a radio broadcast, said he will accept the vice-presidential nomination as Wallace's running-mate in the revolt against the Democratic party.

May Clamp Ban On Czech Aid

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP). —The United States Government may clamp rigid export controls on goods going to Czechoslovakia.

Government officials told a reporter that they are seriously considering this move as a way of expressing displeasure at the Communist overturn of the Czech Government.

Such controls, they said, would limit the amount of heavy machinery and equipment Czechoslovakia can buy in the United States.

During 1947, such heavy equipment made up $11,129,999 of the $49,000,000 Czechoslovakia spent for American goods.

The theory behind any export cut would be that "other friendly countries" could better use the products, many of them scarce items.

McNaughton and Pearson Hold Centre of Stage

By WALTER O'HEARN

LAKE SUCCESS, NY.—There was action in four big rings at the United Nations Tuesday. In the biggest ring of all was the Palestine matter steered with considerable skill by Canada's General McNaughton. But in one of the other rings—the "Little Assembly" —another Canadian gave a display of skill and daring which fascinated the expert journalistic spectators.

In a closely reasoned, vigorous 15 minute speech Letser B. Pearson argued that the UN could not now set up a state or a legislature in part of Korea. The Korea Commission's instructions from the General Assembly last autumn were to prepare the whole of Korea for self-government. Inasmuch as the Soviet Union, which rules Korea above the 38th parallel had made this impossible, the Commission could do nothing about it unless perhaps the UN General Assembly were convoked in special session.

This, of course, was contrary to the position which the United States had agreed for a good deal of the morning. And that in itself is news, for Canada does not take issue lightly with her powerful neighbor on international questions. There are good common sense reasons why she does not. Our interests today are almost identical and there is a great similarity in our political outlook.

But Canada is not the tail to a kite, nor the tail to a comet. Indeed, the Canadian pointed out that this healthy debate in opposition to an American plan, might serve to allay "the baseless assertion made at the last Assembly that this Korean Commission was set up by satelites to the United States of America."

Canada Stands Firm

There are times (another, last November in the General Assembly, was over the question of condemning war-mongering) when Canadians stand up on their feet and tell their big neighbor she is moving too fast or too far toward a position from which she cannot retreat.

Yesterday was such an occasion. While Mr. Pearson recognized the fact that responsibility for Korea's tragic situation today "must rest squarely on the USSR which by its non-co-operative and obstructive attitude has prevented, not accidentally but with calculation, the supervision by the United Nations of elections for the whole of Korea," he quite frankly did not like the American solution.

He cited the two resolutions of the General Assembly which set up the Korea commission. "Our position," he told the Little Assembly "is that the commission is not authorized under those resolutions to act in or for South Korea alone."

The Korean Commission cannot go outside the resolution or act, constitutionally in any way contrary to its terms," said the Canadan Undersecretary of State for External Affairs. At the same time he did not want his remarks interpreted "as to suggest that my government are not anxious to see a free, united and democratic Korea brought into being at the earliest possible date. My government strongly supports the view that the policy of the U.S.S.R. in preventing its realization is to be condemned."

Mr. Pearson actually touched very lightly on the question of convoking a special General Assembly, in one clause of a single sentence, but that has been enough to throw the question into the foreground. It is now engaging the minds of many delegates, although it may be speculated that Canada would oppose such a plan. Against it, of course, is the simple objection of cost. The UN's plan to hold the regular General Assembly in Paris this year will cost that body an estimated $2,000,000 more than an Assembly at Lake Success would cost. If a special, spring meeting of the General Assembly were called that might run the cost to another extra million. For an organization which habitually exceeds its budget and which relies for part of its support on some very poor nations indeed, that is an item.

Against this is the fact, so clearly put by Mr. Pearson that the "Little Assembly" which is no more than a committee cannot expand the powers of the Korea Commission by itself. If that view prevails, the Little Assembly must either confess failure, wait until the Paris meeting in September which would be the same thing as a confession of failure, or call a special meeting.

Lester Pearson did not advocate any of these courses. He merely threw the idea into the hopper. It is not the first idea which the Canadian has tossed, almost casually at the United Nations. He is credited here in many circles with having revived the idea of an international force to supervise the partition of Palestine.

This reporter has no means of knowing whether that is true. Whoever revived it, it has gained ground until now the Palestine Commission (the five lonely pilgrims as their Czech chairman Krel Lisicky calls them) will not go to the Holy Land without a UN force. It has gained ground until the Security Council, finally forced to wrestle with the problem is groaning and straining under it while a packed chamber watches.

General McNaughton is handling the groaning Security Council with a sure hand. Six months ago the proposed seating of a Jewish Agency delegate at the table of any UN body would have produced days and days of debate and objection. Yesterday the blunt General merely invited the Jewish Agency spokesman to the table and there he remained.

Hard To Imagine Britain Without Hereditary Peers

By JAMES McCOOK

LONDON, Feb. 26—(CP).—House of Lords reform is in the air but Britons, irrespective of political opinion, find it hard to imagine parliament without hereditary peers like Albert Edward Harry Meyer Archibald Primrose, sixth Earl of Rosebery, 66. As soldier, administrator and politician Lord Rosebery has influenced his times. But to the ordinary man he is known chiefly as a sportsman—twice winner of the Derby with Blue Peter in 1939 and Ocean Swell in 1944; senior steward of the Jockey Club, ruling body of British racing; former captain of cricket for Surrey and a member of the English team playing United States at polo in 1923.

A man of great wealth and possessions—his mother was the only daughter and heiress of Baron Meyer Rothschild, member of a family of financiers—Lord Rosebery once refused to pose in his shirtsleeves for a photograph because "my braces are gone and my trousers are held up by string." He removed his coat to prove the point and revealed that, like many another Briton, he was a victim of wartime elastic shortages.

No Orator

Stoutish, square-faced, slow in speech, Lord Rosebery is without the gifts of oratory and political understanding that made his father Foreign Secretary in 1886, and Prime Minister in 1894. He is president of the Liberal National Party, closely allied with the Conservatives.

Carefully reading his speeches, Lord Rosebery growls that the Labor Government has made Britain into "a vast new kingdom of paper and ink with no right of protest for the ordinary citizen." And then he will talk racing with a Labor backbencher with goodwill on both sides.

The Labor critics of the Lords complain that the Conservative and Liberal majority in the House is composed largely of "backwoodsmen" who make no contribution to public affairs but by right of birth can take their seats and delay legislation sent from the Commons.

Lord Rosebery is no "backwoodsman" although he is remembered for no sparkling speeches. He was an officer in the Grenadier Guards in the First World War and came home with a wound and the DSO and MC.

In the Second World War he was appointed Regional Commissioner for Scotland, and if the Germans had captured England he would have been left with dictatorial powers to continue the battle in the North.

War Savings Certificates Must Be Sent To Ottawa

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 — (CP). — Finance Minister Abbott, today in the Commons, ruled out the possibility of the government allowing the holders of maturing war savings certificates to cash them at banks or local postoffices and said they still must be sent to the Registrar of War Savings Certificates at Ottawa.

He said the government had given this question "serious" consideration during the last year but had come to the conclusion it would be "impossible to justify" such a procedure because of the "very large number" of duplicate certificates still outstanding.

These duplicates were issued by the government over the last few years to replace certificates reported lost or stolen.

"The number of certificates reported lost or stolen is much too great — it is of the order of 60,000 — to permit bank tellers or postmasters to check through a list before making settlement, nor could such a list possibly be kept up to date."

The only way to prevent overpayment is to have the certificates sent to Otawa, as now is being done, and have them checked against a central registry maintained here before payment is made.

Mr. Abbot said he wanted to emphasize "how simple and inexpensive the present procedure really is."

Simple Matter

All the holder of a maturing certificate has to do is endorse it on the back as required, insert it in an envelope addressed to the Registrar, War Savings Certificates, Ottawa, and drop the envelope into a mail box. There is no need for a covering letter, registration of the certificate or even a postage stamp on the envelope. Any change of address can be noted on the certificate.

Cheques issued in redemption of certificates may be negotiated free of charge at any branch of any chartered bank in Canada upon satisfactory identification.

Mr. Abbott noted that the banks have offered to provide a collection service for a modest charge through which they will forward the certificate to Ottawa for collection and credit the proceeds to the account of the certificate owner.

Dealing with complaints of delay in the issuance of cheques, he acknowledged that there had been some delay when the banks first began sending in certificates for redemption but said a test examination made recently showed that cheques now are being mailed not later than the fourth day after certificates are received.

When certificates are received in advance for their maturity date, they are either returned to the sender with an explanatory note or, if the time is short, are held until the month in which they mature and a cheque then mailed.

Canada Must Sell Itself Speaker Tells So-Ed Group

Introduced as a Canadian "by choice not by birth", Mr. Don Henshaw, Toronto, well-known speaker in the field of advertising, paid glowing tribute to Canada in the third weekly SO-ED lecture delivered Wednesday night at the Normal School.

Mr. Henshaw said he was born in the United States and lived most of his life there; however he came to the Dominion for a short visit and has remained ever since, becoming a Canadian citizen in the meanwhile.

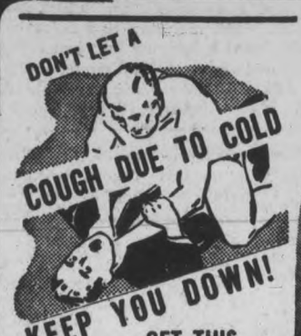
Commenting on the general American impression of Canada, he said, "I was shocked to learn how little the people of the United States know about Canada, particularly in its present financial position.

Some Americans, he said, thought that the Canadian "austerity program" was so bad that they were debating the advisability of sending food parcels here. A number of interested people wondered if any degree of comfort had been left to citizens on this side of the border. He said one "well-educated" American man had asked if the income of an average Canadian workman amounted to $750 per year.

Another misinformed member of an American audience had asked whether Britain collected taxes from the Dominion by direct or indirect means.

He described this as "abysmal ignorance" and said he was making two points: one, that there was considerable lack of information in the United States about Canada; and two, that there was still some vestige of assumed superiority in the attitude of Americans to strangers.

"But Canada is partially to blame for this lack of information," he said. Speaking in emphatic tones he said: "Let me say to you in all sincerity that the Dominion of Canada must sell itself to the rest of the world. We cannot wait for the world to come to us."



Using the vernacular of salesmanship, he said, "You can't sell to an American by backing away and deprecating.' Among Canadians he claimed the phrase "not too bad" was considered high praise.

He said he admired people who do not enthuse easily; and he felt this was part of the British tradition that has helped to mold the country. But he contended that with Canada now in a position of authority and responsibility in international circles — with the particular task of interpreting Britain to the United States, and vice versa—the Dominion should speak with a voice of greater assurance.

From Cape Breton Island to Vancouver Island he sketched the present developments of the various provinces and speculated on their potentialities. With the country's vast resources, he said, 15 to 20 times the present population could be supported in the generations to come.

But despite these great potential resources, and the favored position with regard to the rest of the world, he said the Dominion's greatest asset was "its people—its youth, its aged—representative of so many races and peoples who have settled in Canada, possessing the power to make this country what they will."

The speaker was introduced by Mr. Ian McRae and thanked by Mr. Quirt McKinney. Sustained applause gave ample indication of the popular reception given the address.

Children's Aid Society Works To Save Children From Neglect

One of the greatest tasks that any society is called upon to perform in the interests of the community in general, is perhaps the responsibility of the Children's Aid Society. This is one of the agencies benefitting from the Community Chest.

To this society lies the important duty of not only making wayward children fit for homes, but in many cases to make the parents' home fit for children. The Children's Aid Society is a voluntary organization to develop child welfare in the community. It has a special function to give protection, and whenever possible care of neglected, abandoned or sometimes neglected children.

It is governed by a board of governors comprised of citizens of the community, who are elected annually and it is arranged that some representative of the municipalities served shall be on that board.

Some of the problems presented, and reasons for the society taking into their charge some of the children are: non-support, desertion, drinking, inadequate supervision of children, housing, incorrigibility, mental defect or illness, poor housekeeping, immorality, or immaturity for marriage.

The Society endeavours as far as possible to direct the thinking of parents in cases where there is trouble in the home. Many cases can be cited where, after an interview with the superintendent of the society, parents who have home problems have been taught to arrive at a better plan of living, and with it a desire to do a better job.

A typical case of where the Children's Aid Society performs an important duty to the community can be cited as follows: "Johnny came to us through the Family Court. He couldn't enter a store without stealing; his parents told him not to, but made little attempt to control his hours or see that his leisure was profitably spent. The parents after an interview with the society have now been brought to a realization of their responsibility to Johnnie, and he can now enter a store and leave things alone."

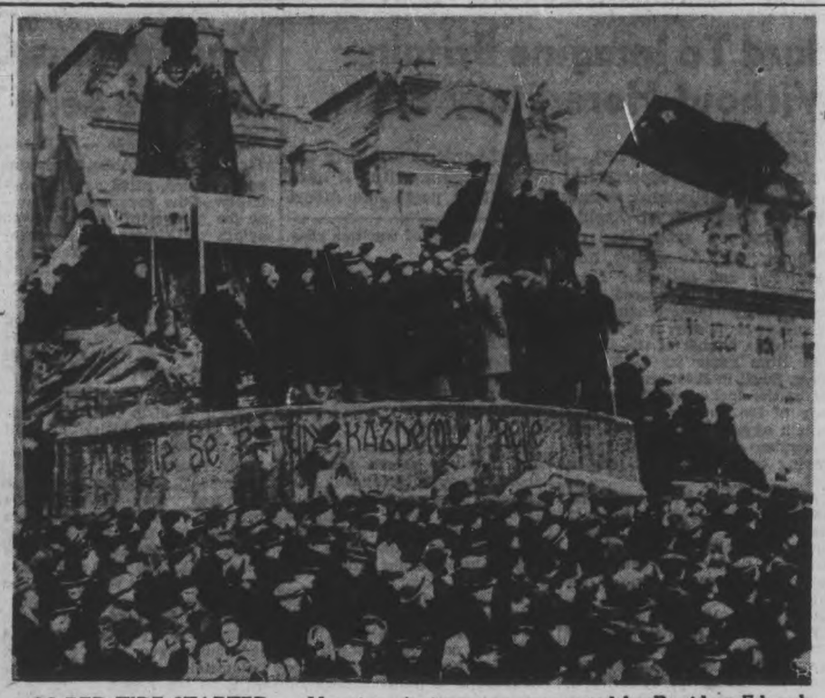
Often Parents at Fault

It is much easier for the society to work with those parents who want to improve, but in cases where this is almost impossible it is often necessary to remove the children; this is called Under Care Work, and under such heading children are removed under the following circumstances: Desertion, homeless, orphans, children born out of wedlock, whose mothers are unable to care for them, and where for the sake of the mother and the child, it is better that the children should come under the care of the society.

An important fact to be remembered is that it is NOT the children who are at fault but the parents. Children come into the care of the society from ages of less than two weeks to 16 years.

Many children come into the care of the society suffering from pediculi, scabies; many often needing training in social habits; others come with little more clothing than what they were born in. Some children are scared with the threat that they will be "sent to the Shelter," and this is a great wrong on the part of the parent, for invariably the child will not obey and waits for the dreadful things that are supposed to happen to him.

The society places children, except babies, in the Shelter, and the babies are placed in foster homes. Experience has proved that these foster homes are preferable to institutions, and these homes include boarding homes and free homes, where in the latter cases the children are properly looked after without any expense. There are also wage homes, where the children of mature years can work as domestics.



Others children are placed in adoption homes, but when this is the case the society supplies full information re the child's background,—educational and medical, necessary papers such as the registration of the child's birth and the mother's consent are completed before placement of the child.

Watches Courts.

The Children's Aid Society works closely with the Family and Juvenile Courts, and these courts have in many cases been responsible for bringing parents together again, and thus saving the community a considerable expense, by the child not having to become a ward. Again many wayward children have been saved from further trouble by being brought into the Family Court and a sharp talking to by this court in the presence of their parents has again meant saving the child from getting into further trouble. Non-support of their wives has been the cause of several husbands coming before this court which has given great assistance to the society in as much that the husband has been taught the error of his ways, and thus again have the children been saved coming under the care of the society.

When under the care of the society the children are not treated as criminals, but as in a state of delinquency, the cause of the delinquency is sought, and the child is directed into healthy leisure activities, and with but a few exceptions the results have been splendid.

The Children's Aid Society is fulfilling a major task in that it can hand over to society and the community in general a child that but for their intervention in guiding a child in the way it should go, another potential wrong-doer might be allowed to mix freely with his fellow man, and find himself in serious trouble with

Coal Output Humming

LONDON — (CP). — United Kingdom coal output in January was above the average needed to reach the 1948 target and nearly 1,000,000 tons higher than January 1947. Weekly output averaged 4,106,000 tons which is an annual average of 213,500,000. The government's target is 211,000,000 tons.

moval of the "mountain differential" scale. This is a rate of 1¼ times the prairie level imposed on certain hauls over the Rocky Mountains, and both the far-western provinces contended it worked against them.

Opposition to this removal, though, came from the city of Winnipeg and its Board of Trade, whose counsel submitted such a step would tend to permit shippers from the Pacific and Alberta areas to move into Manitoba territory.

The financial setup of the railways was a major issue of contention through the long hearings. The provinces unanimously argued that the Canadian National Railways should not be taken into account in rate-making—because of its debt-burdened corporate structure—and they concentrated their fire on the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The CPR's accounting system came under fire, opposing counsel claiming its depreciation methods absorbed too much money from earnings. Its spendings for maintenance were declared too high. It was criticized for not yet having made use of a $25,000,000 deferred maintenance fund during the war.

Another complaint of the provinces was that the company was attempting to charge up against current revenues certain expenditures which were properly capital. These, it was held, should be financed by borrowing to spread the burden over a period of years.

Would Increase Cost

The company's reply to this was that the questioned items were properly current expenditures, and that borrowing would only increase their cost through interest and carrying charges.

Witnesses and counsel for the railways opposed every one of the regional claims for special treatment. They declared that existing rate variations were not unjust to any particular section, and they urged that a flat increase be superimposed on the present tolls structure. If there were grounds for complaint then, they argued, the affected localities could come back to the board for redress.

The immediate issue, they contended, was one of the straight financial need on the part of the railways. They claimed that rising costs had put the carriers in a perilous position, and in the case of the Canadian Pacific it was claimed the company never had been in greater danger. As to the general effect of an increase, they denied the provincial claim that it would contribute to inflation.

Canada's freight rates, they said, were among the lowest in the world. They had remained static, while United States carriers were receiving several increases during the post-war period.

Defending the financial practices criticized by the provinces, the roads' counsel declared they had been carried out with the approval of the Board of Transport Commissioners and other authorities. In the case of the CNR, they had the specific approval of parliament annually.

structure — united with British Columbia in urging that there should be no increases before re- rates Ontario and Quebec should be hoisted.

From Saskatchewan, too, came the proposal that, if the board decided the railways must have more revenue and could not find it in their own resources, it should come in the form of a national subsidy rather than a rate increase. This, it was claimed, should spread the burden equally over the Dominion. This subsidy would be by loan from the federal treasury, the spending of which would be government-supervised.

Against Flat Increase

The thinly-populated Prairie Provinces claimed that a flat percentage increase would react particularly against them because, they held, they did not have the truck and water competition that held down rail rates elsewhere. This might result, they said, in the roads keeping up western rates to compensate for lowered rates that might be forced on them in the east.

Status of Women in Forces Debated in British Commons

BY JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 26 (CP)—More than 500,000 women served in His Majesty's forces during the war and the government would like others to enlists with the assurance that severe detention conditions and other stern punishments do not face them under military discipline.

The Commons debated the servicewomen's place in the defence organization when Defence Minister Alexander presented a bill to incorporate the Auxiliary Territorial Service in the army and the Women's Auxiliary Air Force in the Royal Air Force. They will have the new names of Women's Royal Army Corps and Women's Royal Air Force.

The Women's Royal Naval Ser- will remain a civilian organization, this method being considered most suitable by the senior service.

Alexander and War Minister Shinwell faced inquiries from members on whether severe army and R. A. F. discipline would be imposed on women as on men when they become part of these services.

"It will be necessary to establish special detention barracks, but there is no question of a 'glass house' or anything of that sort," said Shinwell.

To Move Cautiously

"I think it may be assumed that we should hardly dare to impose severe punishment upon women; I can imagine the resentment which would be expressed if we tried to do anything of that sort. But if there are serious offences and court martial, the women themselves can hardly expect to be excused."

Mrs. Leach Manning, Labor member for Epping, first raised the question of discipline in the women's services.

"I am not such a determined feminist that I think every kind of discipline and every kind of sanction which applies to a man must necessarily apply to a woman," she said.

Connolly Hugh Gage, Conservative member for Belfast, who served as assistant judge advocate general with the Canadian force in Belgium, said he believed a code of discipline would be worked out by officers and "that it is not necessary to bring in all the business which is inseparable from the operation of the Army Act.

"Trying girls and sentencing them by court martial is inappropriate, and I am sorry to see it perpetuated by the bill."

VERY SUPERIOR DUSTER—The duster was what the girl who rode with the man in the Stanley Steamer had to have, or she wasn't in the role of the demon motorist when the horseless carriage came to stay. Long the butt of jokes, in the same class with Mother Hubbards and bustles, it has now been rescued and restored as the sensible, small coverall for frail frocks that it always was intended to be. The 1948 model shown above is made of a stunning fabric of crash weave, composed of pedigreed rayon and cotton yarns. In soft blue, jade green or cardinal red, it will protect any frocks with its full, swirling silhouette day or night, and live a country and resort life in any warm climate.

Ava Gardner Now Seeking MGM Release

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 26 (AP)—This story gets familiar. Now it is Ava Gardner who is seeking her release from MGM.

She joins Robert Walker, Red Skelton, and others who want to end their contracts with the studio. But, like the others, it is doubtful if she will get her wish. Ava, now playing a convincing goddess in "One Touch of Venus" at U-I, is a cinch for top stardom.

Ava is slated to return to Metro for "House Along the River," writen by Dalton Trumbo, one of the 10 "unfriendly witnesses" at the Congressional movie hearings. The story was Trumbo's last stand at MGM.

Nine to Five

Claudette Colbert is still sticking to her demand for a working day that ends at 5 p.m. (That's the reason she was replaced by Katharine Hepburn in "State of the Union.") But most producers feel they need the long working day to pare costs.

The Canadian-born Mack Sennett, who is suing the "High Button Shoes" Company over the use of his bathing beauties and keystone cops in its "Mack Sennett" ballet, told me something which may prove maddening to the Broadway show's owners. Said he: "If they had asked me if they could use my properties, I would have said 'Go ahead, no charge.'" But they didn't ask, so he is suing for $250,000 damages.....

Religious Question

"The Gauntlet," the small-town minister yarn which Paramount has been preparing, has been shelved. It's the same old reason—the Protestants can't agree on how the story should be treated. That's why you see more pictures about the Roman Catholic church, which has a regular system for approving screen stories....

Abbott and Costello have located a story which they may film in England this summer. It is called "Horse Heaven," and Lou relates it hilariously. The comedy team will probably do another picture after "Brain of Frankenstein" and before their English trip. In it, Lou will play three brothers....

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, February 27.

A complex, confusing and complicated state of affairs may make of this day one most critical and difficult to successfully manipulate. There are sudden and hidden factors, some subtle and intangible, others of unpredictable and unfamiliar guise; all intriguing and surprising. Unusual events may prove disturbing and thrilling as well in both business and private affiliations. New and progressive ideas prevail and beckon, but fortunately there is steadfast and sound insight, with restraining and stabilizing depths for direction and safeguard.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of strange and complicated conditions, in which the business and personal life may prove dramatic and sensational, because of radical and surprising turns as well as of a basis of the subtle and intriguing. It will take shrewd and astute insight into conflicting and peculiar situations, with profound vision and sane reason along practical lines, to wean from danger, indulgence and lure romantic adventure.

Fortunately, there is deep foundation of the safe and sane at the core of the character and mentality, as well as the emotions and impulses. Unusual benefit might arise from balanced behavior in challenging situations.

A child born on this day may have a complex and unpredictable character, with much of the original, erratic and impetuous counterbalanced by the profound stable and dependable.

With The Girl Guides

1st St. Andrew's Brownie Pack

At St. Andrew's Brownie meeting Brownies were honored. The Brownies formed a "ladder" which Katherine Lewis and Margaret Horton had to climb, to reach the "Golden Ground." On arrival, they were presented with the Brownie second class badge, which is called the "Golden Bar." Then the Brownies who had formed the ladder turned and made an arch of triumph, and the new Golden Bar Brownies ran through the arch and were loudly applauded. Following a Union Jack test game, two Sixers, Shirley Dobson of the Elves and Marybeth Darling of the Gnones, travelled an even more difficult path, at the end of which, by the light of a golden candle, they were presented with the Brownie first-class badge, or the "Golden Hand." Then the new first-class Brownies lit a candle and stood on each side of Pack Leader Mary Curtis, as she received her warrant pin and tie as a "Tawny Owl."

1st St. Andrew's Guide Company

The company was happy to have District Captain Moira Whalon on Wednesday night as Capt. L'Homme was ill. Marlene Middleton was in charge of the opening drill, after which captain held inspection. The Kingfisher patrol was in charge of camp fire at which the district captain told the life story of the founder, Lord Baden-Powell.

3rd All Saints' Guide Company

The Guides of the Third All Saints' company met Friday night and welcomed two new recruits, Aileen Todd and June Adams. The Guides took part in a special candlelight "Thinking Day" ceremony when each Guide lit a candle placed around the outside of a large trefoil, for each country that is a full member of the World Association of Girl Guides. The ceremony concluded with the re-affirmation of the Guide promise, followed by a special "Thinking Day" prayer.

During the meeting the Guides packed parcels of soap, bobby pins and combs to be sent to their sister Guides of the 1st Wingham Guide company, Kent, England.

4th Salvation Army Guide Company

This company met Friday night, and during the evening the following tests were passed: Betty Guthrie, promise; Marilyn Wright, promise and law; Beverley Wright, law; Pauline Martin has now passed all the recruit tests.

5th Immaculate Conception Pack

The Brownies in this pack were divided into sixes at their meeting on Monday, with the names Leprechauns, Little People, Imps and Sprites. The sixes quickly learned the Brownie song and their six songs, and many were able to pass the Brownie promise.

Boy Scout-Girl Guide Week was brought to a fitting close with a special "Thinking Day" church parade, held at St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday evening. The service of worship was arranged by the Scouts, Cubs, Guides and Brownies attached to St. Andrew's, and all Protestant groups in the city were invited. A large pu[illegible] Lord Baden-Powell, the founder of the movement. Scouts from St. Andrew's troop acted as ushers, received the offering and directed the color-bearers. The service commenced with the re-affirmation of the promise, led by Scouter S. McGann for the Scouts, Akela R. MacNab for the Cubs, District Com. Mrs. R. Whalon for the Guides, and District Capt. Moira Whalon for the Brownies. Pack Leader Joyce Beggs of All Saints' Brownies read the scripture lesson, and Assistant PL Bob Hutchinson of St. Andrew's troop gave a short address on the life of Lord Baden-Powell. A choir composed of Guides from St. Andrew's, All Saints' and the Salvation Army, under the direction of Cadet Capt. Iris Whalon, sang the "Hymn of Guiding," and Miss Whalon sang "Just for Today." The minister preached a sermon of special interest to boys and girls, based on the text, "And I will give Him the morning star."

In view of the rapidly rising [illegible] costs of new Guide and Brownie uniforms, we are endeavoring to obtain as many second-hand ones as possible. Will any ex-Guides or Brownies who still have their uniforms, and would like to sell them, kindly get in touch with any Guide or Brownie leader in their district, or the district captain, phone 3044.

J. E. Girven Heads VON Reports Show Busy Year

Mr. J. E. Girven was elected president Wednesday at the annual meeting of officers and board of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Peterborough Branch, held in the YWCA. He succeeds Mr. F. J. Overend, whose resignation was accepted. Mr. W. M. Gemmell was appointed to the office of treasurer to fill the vacancy created when Mr. J. L. Thompson resigned after four years' service.

Complete report of the nominating committee as read by Mr. James Dutton was: Honorary Presidents, Judge Sheldon Smoke, Mayor W. G. Ovens, Mrs. R. R. Hall; Past Presidents, James Dutton, Charles H. Elliott, F. J. Overend; President, J. E. Girven; Vice-Presidents, J. A. Bradshaw, H. I. Bradburn, Mrs. F. J. Lynch; Secretary, Reginald J. Chandler; Treasurer, W. M. Gemmell.

Executive: W. R. Philp, KC, A. E. Borland, Miss L. Hurley, Mrs. A. A. Leach, Mrs. E. Boyer, J. L. Thompson, Mrs. J. R. Marshall, Miss Rachael Young, P. J Scollard. Three additional members will be appointed by the following groups as their representatives: Ministerial Association, Roman Catholic Church, Medical Association.

Finance committee, James Dutton; publicity committee, Alderman R. Raine, P. M. McCarrell; auxiliary committee, Mrs. Wm. Moorhead, Mrs. J. Cridland; honorary members, Senator Iva C. Fallis, Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH.

In his address, retiring president F. J. Overend paid special tribute to the labors of the first president Jas Dutton, and to charter member Chas. Elliott. "Too much credit cannot be given our supervisor, Miss Mary Ross, to whom the heavy responsibility of establishing our Branch was given," he continued. "Happily for those of us who are associated with VON work, she is still with us. The demands of her office are heavy and have been made more difficult still by repeated changes in staff and shortage of trained Public Health Nurses."

He explained that the local organization came into being in 1940 and is one of more than 100 situated from coast to coast which are part of a National Institution established in 1897. "The VON has become an important factor in our national and civic life," he said. "To all of our nurses we say a public 'Thank you' for their untiring and unselfish service." Mr. Overend also pointed out that besides bedside nursing and other activities VON work includes teaching the families to care for the patient between visits, at all times working with and strictly under supervision of the doctor. Classification of the 3,915 visits made last year showed that 54.8 per cent were free.

On behalf of the Directorate the president expressed thanks to the many individuals and organizations who have helped and co-operated during the year and very particularly to Peterborough Bus Lines for providing free transportation for the nurses, also members of the Department of Health and to Miss V. Bell and nurses in Queen Mary Hospital who take care of after-hours telephone calls. He stated that the VON is dependent upon the generous grant annually given by the City of Peterborough and the support received from the Community Fund for finances.

The treasurer's report, read by Mr. J. L. Thompson showed that $3,500.00 came to the VON from the Community Chest in the past year, and the same amount was forthcoming from the city treasury. Receipts from the township of Smith for services given in that community totalled $135.18.

The carefully prepared report read by Miss Mary Ross, supervisor of Peterborough Branch, presented facts and figures regarding the VON service that completely justified its existence and clearly showed progress in the past year.

Under Three Headings

She divided the case load in this district under three headings: morbidity, maternity and health education. The first group covered pneumonia, rheumatism, tuberculosis, cancer and chronic illnesses which required 3,456 visits. The care saved many from expense and inconvenience of going to hospital for minor conditions [illegible] rest with the VON at present and in addition to teaching the family to care for the patient intelligently, the nurse often helps the morale of the lonely patient and assists in planning and fostering new interests.

Forty-eight per cent of the total or 3,475 visits were made under the maternity group. Here the nurses have their finest opportunity to interpret the preventive phases of the service. During the year only 171 prenatal patients came under supervision, but there were more than 1,000 births in the city, so much further growth in this branch is hoped for.

If the Victorian Order of Nurses has not been called to visit the mother prenatally, or for the purpose of a demonstration baby bath, Miss Ross explained that weekly health supervision visits to the baby are not made by them as such cases come under the program of the Health Department nurses. The two organizations co-operate closely in this field and hold conferences to prevent duplication of services. When the baby is six weeks old the VON transfers information regarding weight, mode of feeding and other data to the Health Department for their continued supervision.

Every member of the family is included in the Health Education plan of the VON. Through day to day contacts the nurses arouse public awareness in preventive treatment and feel that much is to be accomplished in reducing illnesses of all types. Referring to the addition of a new agency in Peterborough, namely the Visiting Homemakers' Association, Miss Ross said "The need for such a service is evident as we visit in homes. Too often the breadwinner must stay away from work to attend to household duties due to a mother's illness. Too many people have added to the hazards of illness the worry of directing household duties from the bedside. Necessary hospitalization is too often postponed and mothers of new babies are resuming household tasks before they are physically able."

Miss Ross stated that adequate transportation for the nurses is an essential, and cars the most important item of VON equipment. "We can give much better care to the patients if energy is not expended on transportation, so the addition of a second car during the year has been much appreciated."

Affiliation of the VON with local hospitals enables intermediate student nurses to spend two days with the VON staff nurse observing the social and physical problems she encounters which helps to interpret to patients in hospital what service is available on their return home. In co-operation with the University of Toronto field practice for one month is afforded to three students who are taking the post-graduate course in Public Health Nursing, each year.

Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH, then rose to congratulate Miss Ross and every member of her staff for the very fine service they are rendering. He also spoke of the board of directors who expend a great deal of time and effort on this work, and said, truly "the community is greatest in which the greatest number of citizens assume unimposed obligations."

Dr. G. R. Scott added the ap- [illegible] Medical Society, [illegible] Mickleborough, [illegible] visor, had arranged her visit to coincide with the annual meeting, and she addressed the gathering briefly, discussing local problems of VON.

"Since its organization in 1940 with a staff of three nurses, the VON in Peterborough has had to sell itself to the citizens," she said. "This doesn't happen overnight and it isn't easy. It is now evident that the nurses have proved their worth and shown that it is an essential service."

She applauded the practice of bringing in new board members each year so that the interests of many people are centred on VON and more and more citizens learn the work and appreciate the service. This is most necessary because it is felt that many people in the city are not receiving the care they might have, in spite of the continued progress shown by reports.

The supervisor expressed a hope that more spacious office space might be secured and said that clerical assistance is needed to relieve the nurses of such [illegible] during the past month. Mrs. F. Stevenson reported for temperance, mentioning the evils of cocktail bars.

Report for the Mission Circle was given by Mrs. A. Scriver, for the CGIT by Mrs. G. Eason, and for the Baby Band by Mrs. K. Ferguson.

Devotional period was in charge of Mrs. G. Hunter who read a poem "School Hours." Bible reading was by Mrs. A. Roberts and Mrs. C. Howson led in prayer. Topic was the life of Adiram Judson, a missionary in India, taken by Mrs. A. Hunter, Mrs. G. Eason, Mrs. C. Logan, Mrs. E. A. King, Mrs. A. Scriver and Mrs. Sargent.

A pleasing duet was sung by Mrs. A. Scriver and Mrs. S. Stevenson, accompanied by Mrs. DeNure.

The Car, parked on the down slope of Plessis Street in Montreal, suddenly began to back towards traffic-heavy St. Catherine Street. There was just one passenger in the car—six-year-old Robert Vian! Mr. Armand Houde was sitting on his balcony when the car started its terrifying downhill trip. He immediately rushed towards the moving vehicle, jumped on the running board and, just in time to avoid St. Catherine Street, he steered the car into a fence. Thanks to his quick-thinking courage, the only harm done was to the fence. The little boy was safe and sound! As a tribute to his gallantry . . . the DOW AWARD, including a $100 Canada Savings Bond, is being presented to Armand Houde of Montreal, P.Q. The Dow Award, presented from time to time to a Canadian hero or heroine for outstanding bravery, is sponsored by DOW BREWERY in Montreal

Glamorize Everyday Dish With Perfect Flavorings

By MARY MOORE

Like Jiggs with his corned beef and cabbage, I have a friend in Michigan who loves Corned Beef Hash— so much so that he has publicized his wife's cooking until most folks think this is about all she can cook.

This is not true. She is a much better-than-average cook of almost everything. She makes a burnt sugar cake so velvety fine that none of her friends, including myself, can copy it. I've tried dozens of times.

Now Corned Beef Hash sounds like a humble dish, but if it can reach a status, in Garny's deft hands, of being the dish that draws her husband's friends to their house time and time again for their periodic bridge games—it must have big possibilities.

Just because prices are high, does not mean we have to eat in a pauper-like fashion. We can glamorize our economical dishes with perfect flavorings, and with attractive serving dishes.

Try this on a batch of company that includes men.

Garny's Corned Beef Hash

Put through food chopper enough corned beef cooked (or leftover pot roast or roast of beef) to make 1½ or 2 cups when ground. Put 1 medium sized onion through the food chopper with the meat. Add to the chopped meat 2 cups cooked potatoes which have been chopped in mixing bowl to approximately ⅜-inch cubes. Moisten this with either liquid from the corned beef or gravy from the pot roast or with about ½-cup cream. Garny says cream is best. Salt and pepper are added to taste and Garny is heavy on pepper. Bake in deep baking dish at 400 deg. Fahr. until hot through and beginning to brown; then make 4 depressions in the top and slip in 5-minute poached eggs. Garnish with parsley and sprinklings of paprika. Serve in silver ring or on silver platter, having casserole wrapped with snowy linen napkin.

Variation 1—If you would like to cook this on top of the stove add 2 tablespoons butter if iron frying pan, melt it and spread it evenly over bottom and sides of pan and carefully add prepared mixture. Spread evenly over pan, place over very low heat and let cook until bottom is golden and crusty. To turn out loosen sides carefully and invert on silver platter or chop plate. Garnish with parsley. Omit eggs entirely.

Variation 2—Use butter in frying pan as above, but add finely chopped green onions and green peppers to the pan—about 1 tablespoon of each, instead of adding onion to the meat and potato mixture. Spread evenly over pan. When hash is turned out on platter these make an attractive garnish.

Variation 3—This is a slightly different recipe where beets, or other vegetables may be added: 2 cups cooked roast beef, or corned beef chopped finely, 3 cups chopped boiled potatoes, 1½ cups chopped beef or carrots, turnips or a mixture of these (this is optional), ½ cup milk of cream, ¼ to ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 tablespoon onion juice or ½ cup ground onion, 2 tablespoons butter or fat. Mix all ingredients but fat. Spread evenly in a hot frying pan containing the butter and fry very slowly over very low heat until well-browned; this requires aobut 30 or 40 minutes. Fold as you would an omelette on hot platter, garnished with rings of green pepper in which one half of a hot hard cooked egg has been placed. Very pretty and very good.

Write to me if you would like methods of serving corned beef other ways or methods of stretching or varying leftover cooked beef.

DOMESTIC SQUABBLES
Science Seeks Causes Of Marital Friction

✧ ✧ ✧

Heretofore husbands' and wives spats have been considered one of the natural by-products of marriage. Nobody expected married people to be like the little birds that in their nest agree, and so when Mister and Missus went to the mat over dishwater coffee or the wife's new hat, or whether little Johnny should be spanked or taken to a psychologist, no one was shocked or surprised. It was regarded as just one of those things that we may deplore, but that we feel is inevitable.

Dorothy Dix

Now, however, we learn that Science has gotten around to investigating the why of the domestic rumpus and why so many husbands and wives, who are fine and noble Christian characters, and who get along so beautifully with everybody else, are in a perpetual fight with each other. It isn't because they don't love each other, because they do. We all know innumerable couples who work their fingers to the bone to provide each other with every physical comfort and luxury, yet with whom every word is the fighting word and who cannot carry on even the simplest conversation for five minutes without getting into a squabble.

Certainly there is nothing more inexplicable than that so many husbands and wives who know that they have to live together, and who desire to live together, do nothing to make their marriages happy. The world is full of nagging, fretful, complaining wives who never say a pleasant word to their husbands, and husbands who say cruel and abusive things to their wives, or else take refuge in silence that is more insulting than any words could be.

Enjoy Quarreling

So if the Clinic that has been appointed to investigate why married people act the way they do, finds out the why of it, they will confer an inestimable blessing on the world. Of course, there are several reasons for the domestic squabble that automatically present themselves. For instance, they don't marry for love. They marry to get a sparring partner.

Another reason why husbands and wives are in a perpetual quarrel is because so many marriages are just one long struggle over which one shall be the boss. Each one is determined to be the head of the house and they engage in a life and death struggle until one or the other is laid in a coffin.

But my own thought on the subject is that the reason so many husbands and wives lead a cat and dog life is because they are too stupid, or too inert, or too lacking in initiative to use any diplomacy in dealing with each other. They won't take the trouble to step high, wide and handsome around each other's peculiarities. They bump right into them and get bruises from which they never recover. They knowingly say the word that brings on a scrap, instead of using the soft answer that turneth away wrath. There never was a quarrel that couldn't have been stopped at the very beginning with a kiss.

Every man knows that his wife is vulnerable to flattery, yet thousands of wives would fall dead in surprise if their husbands would pay them a compliment. Every woman catches her husband by telling him what a world wonder he is, and as long as she continues to make that her theme song she never loses him.

When you think that a few complimnts can change a brawl into a peace conference, isn't it queer that we are so stingy about handing them out?

To Discuss Plans To Publicize Anglican Work

LONDON, Feb. 26 (CP). — A new organization to make Anglican church work better known is to be discussed by Britain's Church Assembly at its spring session next month. A central information board of 20 members is recommended, which will make used of all generally-recognized means of publicity.

The cost of this new organization is estimated at £14,000 ($56,000) a year. It would include a central staff, comprising a chief information secretary with an assistant, a press officer with two assistants, publishing officer and visual aids officer. The board would advise the Archbishop of Canterbury on public relations and stimulating press information and contacts in each diocese in Britain. It would also develop a liaison with publishing houses and organize the use of films and lantern slides, as well as modern exhibition techniques.

Gateman Sobs In Court Describing Train Accident

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—Charged with criminal negligence over a railway crossing accident, Ernest Wellington Whyte, 46, CNR gateman, sobbed in court yesterday as he told how he had misjudged the speed of a freight train and had not lowered the crossing gates in time to prevent its demolishing an automobile and injuring the car driver. In the accident at Woodbine Ave., and Gerrard St., last month, Robert Buckham of Montreal, a commercial artist, suffered a fractured left shoulder, two broken fingers and several broken ribs.

Whyte said he had seen the approaching train and had shut off the electrical warning it set off. A long freight, he said, usually took about 10 minutes to reach the crossing from the point where the warning system went into operation. He thought he had time to put fuel on the stove in his tower before letting down the gates.

"The train looked to be going slowly," he said. "The stove was low and I thought I had plenty of time to put on some more fuel. As I put in a couple of lumps of coal, I heard a noise and grabbed for the levers. I didn't see the automobile until after the train had passed. I can't put both gates down at once.

At this point, Whyte broke down and wiped his eyes with a handkerchief while the court waited for him to regain his composure. As he concluded his evidence, he sobbed: "I've told the truth. That's all I can do."

He admitted that the south gate wasn't lowered but said the north gate went down just as the train passed. "I can't move very fast as I have arihritis of the spine," he told Magistrate Prentice. "I never saw the car. My judgment was poor. I put the north gate down before the train had passed the crossing, but I wasn't able to get the south gate down until the caboose of the freight had just passed it."

Magistrate Prentice reserved judgment until March 3.

Prairies Want Some Action On Health Plan

By The Canadian Press

A resolution calling for a Dominion-Provincial conference to implement 1945 federal health and welfare proposals was debated yesterday in the Saskatchewan Legislature.

Mrs. Beatrice Trew (CCF-Maple Creek), who introduced the resolution, said that any further delay in calling a conference between the Dominion and the seven provinces which signed taxation agreements with it would lead to doubts as to the Federal government's security.

Premier T. C. Douglas said most provincial and municipal governments no longer could adequately finance health, welfare and education. They needed either federal contributions or new sources of revenue such as indirect taxation.

Rap Immigration

Quebec's Legislative Assembly heard Rene Chalout, Nationalist member for Quebec county, criticize federal immigration policies. Speaking on a private motion concerning immigration in Beauce county, he said Canada's present immigration policies were applied under a principle of "Keep Canada British."

Chaloult said immigration figures showed that last year Canada obtained 38,000 immigrants from the British Isles, 9,000 from the United States, 5,000 from Northern Europe, 3,000 from Holland and 10,000 from other countries.

"Nothing shows us that one French, Belgian, Swiss, Italian, Spanish or Latin person came into Canada," he added.

Replying to Tuesday's Throne Speech at Charlottetown, Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan, Leader of the Progressive Conservative Opposition in the Prince Edward Island Legislature, questioned the legality of the Government's taking over and operating a Canso-bound meat packing plant last year. He said he approved the result, but did not agree with the method.

Dr. J. S. Poole (PC-Beautiful Plains) at Winnipeg urged that the number of seats in the Manitoba Legislature be reduced from the present 55 to 40.

Menu Of 1913 Had Some Odd Remarks

[illegible] key Assoc. in 1913 makes interesting reading at this particular time. (Perhaps the most interesting thing is that the Association could at least boast of a rink to play on 35 years ago.

But the menu, complete with facetious remarks a-la-1913, has Oysters--half shell--(hold for arrival of goods); Cream of Tomato Soup (if refused, please return at once and report answer given); Lobster Salad (hold one day and advise fate); Roast Lamb, Mint Sauce, Roast Veal, Green Peas, Mashed Potatoes (the possession of this does not necessarily confer control over deposit); Charlotte Russe (threaten suit if refused); [illegible] (imposition already followed); Coffee, Cigars, and Cigarettes (debit "inland exchange") Wines and Liqueurs ("N. S. F.)

Though the humor of the comments may seem questionable by modern standards, the old timers still have the last laugh: instead of talking about secondary rinks they played hockey.

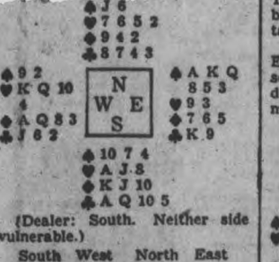
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

DOUBLE IF YOU CAN



THERE is one position in which a player should strain every resource to double instead of bidding, if he can find justification for doing so. That is when the opening bid has been passed by the next two players and you are in fourth-hand position. There is always the chance then that

The best East-West score, however, was at the tables where South bid the 1-No Trump without spades stopped and East was smart enough to double instead of bidding. West passed that and, reckoning that the double must have been based mainly on spades, led his 9 of the suit. That gave the defense the first ... followed by a switch ... contra... doubled. That produced a score of 700, best that any East-West pair attained by more than 200 points.

Please realize that a double by East would have been just as sound in rubber bridge as in a duplicate tournament, if not more so.

South	West	North	East
1. 1 NT	Pass	Pass	2 ♠

2. 1 NT	Pass	Pass	Dbl

Lots of things happened on this tournament deal, including opening bids of 1-Club and contracts of 4-Spades. East and West making every contract they bid, usually with extra tricks. Where a club was led by North against the 3-No Trumps, the declarer got a trick there; six in spades and two in diamonds.

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

What difference in playing method should be caused by the opening lead against 6-Diamonds, in one case the heart A, in the other the club 2?

($367,938.97); caretakers' salaries, $43,700 ($35,982.90); workshop wages, $11,000 ($7,625.16); salaries of officials and stenographers, $19,500 ($16,156.40); repairs, $22,775 ($14,365.32); fuel, $18,700 ($14,733.86); advisory vocational committee, $18,589.14 ($16,202.63).

Property Costs Up

In reviewing the estimates of the various committees, Mr. Craw said that the property committee is requiring $14,148 more. But that the proposed heating job at King Edward school which was estimated to cost $11,500 had been reduced $6,000 and only part of the work will be done this year. The estimated cost of coal was up $4,000 and caretakers' supplies $2,000. These along with the extra cost of maintaining the schools accounted for the increase.

The supervision committee is asking for $6,553 more and this is principally due to the new classrooms, and extra costs of all school supplies and equipment.

The finance chairman reported the health committee estimates were unchanged from last year and the Advisory Vocational Committee estimates up $2,000 of which $1,000 was an increase in night school salaries.

Mr. Arthur Pitchford reported a break-down on the estimated receipts and expenditures as follows:

Obituaries

JOHN McGRATH

Requiem mass was said Wednesday morning at 9 a.m. for the late John McGrath, 73, by Msgr. F. J. O'Sullivan at the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Pallbearers were William Fitzgerald, John Casey, Michael O'Keefe, James McGrath, W. J. Crough and Frank O'Connor. Burial took place in the family plot at St. Peter's Cemetery.

Mr. McGrath died Monday at the House of Providence after a short illness. He formerly lived on Ford St. and was born in Otonabee, son of the late David McGrath and Margaret Fitzgerald.

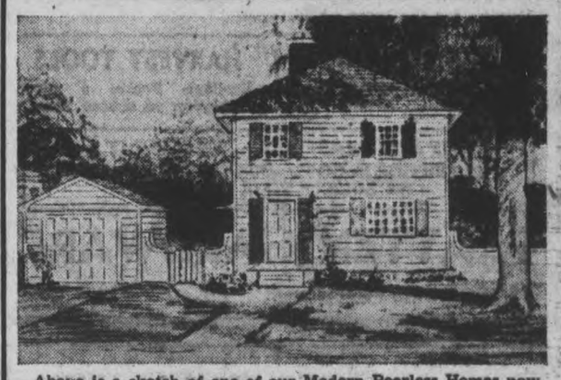
He is survived by one brother, David, of Peterborough and for many years was known as a very excellent carpenter and worked on many city buildings and homes. He was formerly a member of Sacred Heart Church but in later years was attached to the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

HENRY H. POLLOCK

TRENT RIVER, Feb. 26.—Funeral of Henry H. Pollock took place from his home in Trent River, with the service in Trent River United Church on February 17, with interment at Maple Grove Cemetery. Mr. Pollock was the oldest resident of this hamlet and his passing is mourned by a large circle of friends and relatives. Mr. Pollock's funeral was attended by relatives from widely scattered points throughout Ontario, Toronto, Hamilton and Peterborough being among the many places from which sorrowing friends and relatives gathered.

Mr. Pollock was born in Cramahe township in 1859, where he lived with his family until about 1877, when he came to Trent River, where he engaged in farming, later taking over the store now occupied by F. McLaughlin. During his later years Mr. Pollock was widely known for his skill in the construction of canoes and the repairs of the same. All his life Mr. Pollock was a member of the Methodist Church. It is recalled by older members of the community that Henry Pollock was one of those who helped to build the present United Church where he officiated as Sunday School superintendent, class teacher and leader of the church choir.

Left to mourn his loss in his immediate family are his wife and family, consisting of Mrs. S. Ellis, Harry, Frank (deceased), Ross, Fred and Mrs. K. Green.



Attending the funeral were his sisters, Mrs. E. Kennedy and daughter, Mrs. W. J. Hyssop and husband of Kingston; Mrs. Annie Nancarrow and daughter Eddy Kish of Kingston; also a niece, Mrs. Annie Patterson and husband; Miss Effie Camps and Wilfred Camps, niece and nephew of Hamilton.

Youth Took Lumber Sentence Suspended

Robert Morrison, Lakefield, was placed on one year's suspended sentence for theft of two pieces of lumber from the McManus Saw Mills, Lakefield, when he appeared for sentence before Magistrate W. R. Philp this morning. He had pleaded guilty previously. He was assessed costs of $6.

The youth, formerly of Niagara Falls, told the magistrate that he had intended to use the lumber to do repair work.

Chief Garnet Samis, Lakefield, told the court that he had caught the accused dragging the lumber on a hand sleigh.

Bakery Firm's Finances Reviewed By Price Group

By JOHN LEBLANC

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 — (CP) — Finances of one of Canada's major break-making firms — General Bakeries, Ltd. — are due for scrutiny by the Commons prices committee in its search for the causes of higher bread prices.

From a company executive, the committee looks for information on a financial condition that prompted it to jump its prices last September by more than the production-cost increase caused by removal of flour controls.

James A. MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the firm, told the committee yesterday the three-cents-a-loaf increase had been ordered to take up both the increase in flour costs and other cost expansions that had been accumulating for months.

Hughes Cleaver (L—Halton) called for the company's financial statements covering the period to show whether "deteriorating financial conditions proved the need for an increase beyond the increase in flour prices."

Mr. MacDonald also said his firm's average cost of baking a standard 24-ounce loaf in five cities—Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Brandon, Man., and Vancouver — had almost doubled in the last five months.

From 2.129 cents at last Sept. 1, it had gone to 4.101 cents at Feb. 4.

Other Increases

During the same time, the company had raised its wholesale prices in Montreal and Toronto by amounts — depending on the type of bread — varying from 2.3 to four cents a loaf.

Before the committee turned directly to the baking industry yesterday, it heard claims from some of its members that a "combine" existed to keep up bread prices and that the combines act had been breached.

C. E. Johnston (SC—Bow River) cited the fact that Dominion Stores and Loblaw Groceterias raised some bread prices simultaneously and there was evidence of "suggestions" from bakers as to retail prices to be charged. These, he held, looked like a "combine" on prices.

Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver East) said he thought Dominion Stores had violated the act in following bakers' suggestions as to retail prices to be charged.

Their accusations came while the committee was hearing the end of two days of testimony from Louis B. Squairs of Toronto, executive vice-president of Dominion Stores.

To Have Paraphrased Copy Of Hong Kong Evidence

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 — (CP) — The Commons yesterday adopted a motion for production of a "paraphrased" copy of the evidence taken by the Royal Commission on Canadian participation in the defence of Hong Kong, but Defence Minister Claxton said it would take considerable time before the evidence could be tabled.

Mr. Claxton said there were more than 200 exhibits and 2,300 pages of evidence which frequently refer to the exhibits. About 90 of the exhibits were service communications between the Canadian and British armies and would have to be paraphrased before the evidence was tabled.

Mr. Claxton made his statement when a motion placed on the order papers by John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, was called for adoption. The minister said the government had no objection to adoption of the motion for production of the evidence, subject to the conditions laid down Tuesday by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

No Objection

Mr. King said the United Kingdom government had stated it would not object to the tabling of the evidence if code messages were paraphrased and if certain others were shown only to Opposition leaders.

Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) recalled that Mr. King had agreed to make new representations to the U.K. government after such action had been urged by Hon. C. G. Power, former air minister.

Mr. Claxton said he understood Mr. Power's request for production of all the evidence has been forwarded to the U.K. government.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, asked if it would not be wiser to await a reply before a start was made on paraphrasing the evidence.

Mr. Claxton repeated the government had no objection to adoption of the motion, and Mr. Bracken asked that it be carried.

Predicts Czech Crisis Only 'The Beginning'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26—(AP)—Ferenc Nagy, former Hungarian Premier, sees the Czech crisis as only the start of new Communist moves in Europe. He thinks the Western powers can now expect a series of Moscow-inspired threats against the governments of Austria, France and Italy.

Nagy fled his country last May after a Communist coup similar to the one in Czechoslovakia.

He said in an interview today, "The fate of Czechoslovakia shows how indefensible the other nations were whose governments were unseated by Moscow. Czechoslovakia was the only middle European nation not occupied by Russian troops; and yet nothing could save her."

Woman 70 Years Convcited Of Manslaughter

MONTREAL, Feb. 26—(CP)—Convicted of manslaughters in the abortion death of a 32-year-old widow, 70-year-old Mrs. Marie Montpetit was in a prison cell here today waiting for sentence which might not come for another month.

The woman, charged with murder of Mrs. Laurette Favreau of Sorel, Que., was convicted of the lesser charge of manslaughter by a court of King's Bench jury late yesterday afternoon. The jury asked that clemency be given the aged woman.

Date of sentence has not been fixed, but will likely follow the present court session which ends next month.

The woman, who was convicted mostly on the strength of a confession she made to police after her arrest, took the verdict without any sign of emotion. Her counsel, Alexander Chevalier, KC, said the question of an appeal was being studied.

Second Trial

This was her second trial since proceedings last October, when her first trial was declared void by Mr. Justice Wilfred Lazure, after an illegal part of the statement she gave police was inadvertently placed before the jury.

In her statement, Mrs. Montpetit admitted she had performed the illegal operation on Mrs. Favreau for a fee of $15. Evidence given during the trial disclosed that Mrs. Montpetit could not write and had to be instructed by detectives how to spell her name to sign the confession.

Mr. Justice Lazure instructed the 12 jurymen on matters of law before informing them that they must give the accused any benefit of the doubt before returning a guilty verdict.

By-Pass Reception

Bloated With Gas, Got Dizzy Feelings, "Often Afraid to Eat," Says This Man. Tells How Syntona Overcame Trouble and Made Him Feel "Better Than I Have In Years."

"My stomach was in bad shape for a long time. I was often afraid to eat and my entire system became rundown," said Mr. R. Len Rodgers, well-known resident of Highland Road, London, Ontario, in a recent report.

"Indigestion, dyspepsia and a sick feeling in my stomach followed almost every meal. I would bloat with gas so bad it caused heart-fluttering and a full, heavy feeling in my stomach and chest. Sometimes I got light-headed, dizzy feelings, especially when I first got out of bed in the mornings. I began to feel tired all the time and couldn't seem to get anything to help me.

"I had read a great deal about Syntona helping other people, so a few weeks ago I decided to get some and I want to say that since I've been taking this medicine the troubles with my digestion have cleared up for the first time in several years. I can eat a good meal now without having any gas, or indigestion afterwards. All that full, bloated feeling is gone away. I am now free of dizziness and also I have gained more energy. I don't feel all tired out as I did before."

Syntona is bringing splendid relief to many men and women suffering this way, because its special ingredients of roots and herbs are so combined to act on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels all at the same time. Thus, Syntona aids in the elimination of excess acids and impurities from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. Find out how it can help you, too.—(Advt.)

Benes Keeps His Job, Won't Resign

Yielded To 'Reds' Only To Avert Civil War, Friends Say

By A. I. GOLDBERG

PRAGUE, Feb. 27 — (AP). — President Eduard Benes today swore in a new government loaded with Communists—a cabinet he is reported to have said "could have only evil results."

Prague radio announced this afternoon that 60 officials of the Ministry of Information had been dismissed.

The frail, weary President received Communist Premier Klement Gottwald and the 12 new members of the cabinet, at the presidential palace and told them "the decision to accept you was difficult personally for me."

The meeting was polite and stiffly formal. As the President spoke, Communists throughout the country were going ahead with swift determination to reorganize the country's entire industrial, educational and everyday life.

A presidential secretary said Benes has not resigned, but declined to make any further comment for the time being.

Gottwald, the radio said, thanked the president "for your confidence" and told him:

"The attempt to split the government was a wilful act against the interests of the people. The people wanted to throw out the traitors and wanted an assurance of a people's democracy. You, Mr. President, helped dissolve the crisis."

Gottwald, the radio reported, told Benes, "I am sure that parliament will acknowledge this government, too."

He was quoted as saying he rejected the criticism "of the foreign countries which were responsible for Munich."

"We have demonstrated to the whole world the principles of democracy," the broadcast said the premier told the president.

The radio said President Benes told the cabinet he wished "that your way will be successful and happy."

"The decision to accept you was difficult personally for me," the official report quoted him as saying. "I came to the opinion that the crisis must be dissolved. I saw that the crisis would sharpen. Will you lead the state into the new paths of democracy?"

A close friend of Benes said last night the little president told Gottwald his new government "could have only evil results" and that he yielded only because he feared civil war. Just before giving in, he related, Benes told the premier, "You're talking to me like Hitler."

Will Study Removal Of Rent Control

Says Competition Forced Bakers To Conform To Bread Price

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—(CP).—Effect of the impending removal of commercial rent control on March 8 will be studied by the steering committee of the Commons price committee, it was decided today.

Health Minister Martin, chairman of the body investigating high prices, announced the steering committee would study the rent question over the week-end and report to the main committee on Monday.

His announcement came after CCF committee members had called for such a rent inquiry.

First witness called today was Col. Charles Ruttan of Toronto, former bakery administrator for the Prices Board and now secretary of the Ontario Bakers' Association. He was called to tell of a meeting he held last September with Toronto bakers, following the decontrol of bread prices and removal of flour subsidnes.

At the time of the meeting, Col. Ruttan was bakery administrator.

Price Worries

Col. Ruttan was asked if he recalled any particular remarks about prices at the meeting. He said he had noted a feeling by those bakers who were not mill-controlled that they were being more or less railroaded and that they would not be in a position to increase their price to what they considered a reasonable level.

H. A. Dyde, committee counsel, asked if there was agreement that 13 cents was the price to be set and the witness said some of those present thought it was too low. They wanted a sufficient amount, probably an extra cent, to cover extra charges.

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) asked if the price had been settled.

The witness said a large baker, Browns Bread, had said their price would be 13 cents and competition forced the others to conform.

Under questioning by Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton), he declared there had been no "agreement" reached at the meeting.

Cut Support On Gov't Bonds

TORONTO, Feb. 27—(CP).—The Bank of Canada today further reduced the support it has been giving to Dominion of Canada bonds in a move which is interpreted as setting higher interest rate for money. The bank last Jan. 5 removed the firm bids it had been making daily and quotations on long-term issues fell from under $104 to $102. However, since then, it has been known that the bank would buy bonds at $102.

Today dealers were informed that the bank was not buying at that price. There were unconfirmed reports that it would deal at $100.50.

In the meantime bond dealings are in an uncertain state, and dealers stated it might require two or three days to establish their real values.

Good Trade

There has been a good recent public trade in government bonds with relatively few going to the Bank of Canada, but the fact that the bank has been willing to deal at $102 was a support to the market.

When the bank withdrew its bids in January the effect was to raise the interest yield on government bonds from 2.60 to 2.80 per cent. This compared with a rate of 3 per cent in the United Kingdom and 2.44 in the United States, where steps also had been taken to raise the money rate.

Raising the money rate is an anti-inflation step, making it more expensive for people and business to borrow, and thus discouraging expenditures on expansion.

Australians Find Suitable Bride For Bluey Belle Of Ball Before Becoming Housewife

SYDNEY, Feb. 27.—(CP).—After a country-wide search, a suitable bride has been found for Bluey, the kangaroo that flew the Pacific Ocean to represent Australian journalists at the Toronto Byline ball last June.

The future Madame Bluey is Amana, an eight-months-old grey kangaroo pet of Mrs. C. Merideth of Cairns in North Queensland.

Amana will be given free passage by the Australian National Airways from Cairns, about 1,500 miles north of here, first to Sydney and then to Vancouver, the airways' British Columbia terminal.

Mrs. Merideth said she decided to donate Amana after reading a story telling of the correspondents' search for a mate for Bluey, who also would qualify as belle of the Byline ball to be held in Toronto April 10.

The part of the story that swayed Mrs. Merideth read:

"The kangaroo selected as Miss Australia would leave her homeland at Sydney, touch down at several ports crossing the Pacific, and wed her beloved husband-to-be at this year's Toronto press ball. Then after a honeymoon she would set up housekeeping in the Toronto Zoo."

Guatemala Willing To have Honduras Claim Mediated

GUATEMALA, Guatemala, Feb. 27 (AP).—Guatemala said last night she is willing to have her claim to British Honduras mediated, but probably will protest the ordering of a British cruiser into "Guatemalan territorial waters." Foreign Minister Enrique Munoz Meany said this Central American republic is ready to have the disputed claim with Britain submitted to mediation, and added:

"Guatemala has faith in her rights and the justice of her cause."

Earlier, a government spokesman said Guatemala regards the ordering of the British cruiser Sheffield from Colombia to British Honduras as a hostile act. He said unofficially a protest probably will be made.

Guatemalan newspapers said the whole incident may have stemmed from British misunderstanding of remarks made during a hot debate in Gutemala's Congress over press freedom.

Britain is sending a second cruiser to British Honduras in a show of strength.

Navy Strength Heavily Cut

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(Reuters).—The Government disclosed today the strength of the Royal Navy, showing heavy cuts in the numbers of battleships, cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

The operational strength of the navy disclosed for the first time since 1939 is: two battleships, four light fleet carriers, 16 cruisers, 34 destroyers, 25 frigates, 26 submarines and 12 minesweepers.

In 1939 Britain had nine battleships, two battle cruisers, four aircraft carriers, 26 cruisers, 70 destroyers and 39 submarines, the official "return of fleets," said.

Government dispatches reported bitter, "no-quarter" assaults by continually reinforced Red troops. The attackers seemed determined to prevent use of the port for supplying almost isolated government forces in Manchuria.

Former Russian Count Convicted Of Theft

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—(CP). — Constantine Michael Nakashidze, former financier reputed to be a Russian count or prince, was convicted today of the first nine of 15 charges involving theft of money and bonds, and sentence was reserved until trial is completed on a total of 35 charges, all similar in nature.

Judge James Parker dismissed six charges in county criminal court today. The counts on which he was found guilty involved $47,000.

Top Republicans Propose Funds Go To Chiang's Army

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27 (AP) —Two top Republicans proposed to-day that the United States Congress lump military help for China with the $275,000,000 State Secretary Marshall asked for Greece and Turkey.

Senators Robert Taft (Ohio) and Styles Bridges (NH) told reporters they will suggest that some funds be found to help Chiang Kai-Shek's government fight Communists with bullets when the Greek-Turkish proposal comes before the Senate.

Taft heads the Senate's Republican Policy Committee. Bridges is chairman of its Appropriations Committee which helps decide how wide to open the government's purse.

In letters to both Houses, Marshall yesterday said it will be necessary to make an additional $275,000,000 available to keep the pipe-lines to Greece and Turkey full of military supplies after April 1.

The cabinet officer coupled with his appeal this warning: That those behind Russian expansion are counting on American weariness in helping "far-off Mediterranean countries" to let the Communists take over "by default."

Marshall's request for the new aid program was his first major action in the "cold war" with Russia since the Communists seized power in Czechoslovakia.

Actually, it had been decided to ask additional military help for Greece and Turkey before the Czech crisis developed.

Five Passport Employees Held

LONDON, Feb. 27 — (CP). — Scotland Yard to-day announced that five persons would appear in Bow Street Police Court next Friday in connection with passport offences.

Yard officials declined to give any further details but it was believed some, if not all, of the offences were concerned with the illegal entry of aliens into Can... [illegible] ...had also confirmed the arrival in the United Kingdom by air of two aliens believed to have entered Canada with illegal papers. They are to appear as witnesses in the hearing.

Newspapers here said the charges followed air journeys to Canada by displaced persons from Germany. They added that the two witnesses were Morduch Szulc and Maniek Kuper, the only English-speaking imigrants in a group of seven Polish Jews who entered Canada recently.

Two Poles Executed For 'Aiding' Arabs

JERUSALEM, Feb. 27 (AP)—Two Christian Poles were found slain in Jerusalem today and police said they believed the men were "executed" by Jews convinced they had aided Arabs.

Private sources identified the two Poles as Witold Hulanitzkyn, pre-war Polish consul general in Jerusalem, and Stefan Arnold, director of the Palestine branch of the Polish Telegraphic Agency, which was the official news agency of the former London Polish government-in-exile.

Stalin Asks New Pact; No Details

Secret Meeting Held By Cabinet Men; Crisis Worries Finns

HELSINKI, Feb. 27.—(AP).—Prime Minister Stalin has informed Finland she should sign a pact with Russia similar to those linking the Soviet Union and its other neighbors, sources close to the government said tonight.

A diplomatic note from Stalin to President Juho E. Paasikivi said such a pact is desirable.

Tension suggesting an atmosphere of a government crisis hung over Finland.

The news burst upon the Finns even as the Communists in Czechoslokakia were consolidating their grip on that country.

It is well known that Finnish leaders for some time have been studying closely the agreements the Soviet Union has made one after another with the Balkan countries, a network of pacts linking those countries closely to Russia.

Authoritative sources said Karl August Fagerholm, Speaker of Parliament, would go to Stockholm, perhaps to inform the Swedish government of the Russian proposal.

Reports persisted that high-level discussions were under way in the Finnish government concerning a "new development in Russian-Finnish relations."

The cabinet met with the president this morning. Its discussions were strictly secret. The president had met for an hour with the Foreign Relations committee and members of his government.

Ever since the Communist success in Czechoslovakia, rumors have spread swiftly in this country concerning relations with Russia.

As in many of Finland's political crises, the news of this development reached the outside world before it reached the Finns. The country learned of it only in this afternoon's newspapers.

Informed sources said they believe the Soviet letter asks for some kind of friendship or mutual defence pact, or both, from the Finns. Such a pact has been discussed previously many times, the Finns themselves taking the initiative shortly after the armistice in September, 1944.

UN May Do Bargaining With King Abdullah

NEW YORK, Feb. 27—(CP)—The Herald Tribune today reported that "an ambitious and practical intrigue, which might take Palestine off the critical list" was being discussed unofficially by United Nations delegates.

The plan, the newspaper said, is to have King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan take over the land assigned to Palestine's Arabs under the U.N. partition plan. ...it is believed, ...

In return for his part in the "Palestine Intrigue," Abdullah is reported to want some "high official blessing" as well as a guarantee of U.N. membership which he has been denied twice on Russian vetoes.

HELD FOR ABDUCTION — Jack Henry McClentic of Brockville, who was arrested at Port Hope on a charge of abducting a 14-year-old Brockville girl. McClentic was picked up exactly six months after he and the girl disappeared. The girl was found by police in a Lindsay hotel.

Pleads Guilty To Abducting 14-Year-Old Girl

BROCKVILLE, Feb. 27.—(CP).—Appearing before Magistrate George A. Wright here tonight, John Henry McClentic, 27, pleaded guilty to a charge of abducting a 14-year-old Brockville girl on Aug. 25, 1947 and was remanded for one week for trial.

McClentic also pleaded guilty to theft of a typewriter and innocent to a charge of failing to pay wages to a former employee of his sign-painting business which he operated here for about eight months.

The girl was released on a $100 bond to appear as a material witness at the trial.

Good Memory

PORT HOPE, Ont., Feb. 27.—(CP).—Six months to the day after he allegedly abducted a 14-year-old Brockville girl, John Henry McClentic, 27, was arrested here yesterday by a Cobourg constable with a photographic memory. The girl was found in a home in Lindsay after his arrest.

Provincial Constable Don Nicol said he saw the accused get off a bus here and thought he recognized him from police files. After checking at the local police station Nocol placed the suspect under arrest for Brockville police.

Police said the man had been living with the Brockville girl in Lindsay until a few days ago when he left her and made arrangements to go to Port Hope with a 17-year-old girl who was subsequently charged with vagrancy.

Arrest Girl

The 14-year-old girl was picked up by police Thursday and is being held for Brockville authorities.

Some time ago Lindsay police received a circular from the police at Brockville to be on the lookout for McClentic.

A week ago, police say, a local ...chant sold goods ... the same merchan... this time presenting a cheque for $30 in payment. The merchant discovered the cheque was worthless Monday and notified police.

Drew Planning 60-Cycle Power Changes; Cost Likely 191 Million

Consumers Pay Less For New Equipment Also Can Draw On US Systems In Case Of a Severe Power Emergency

TORONTO, Feb. 27 — (CP). — Central and southwestern Ontario today had a promise of an end to flickering lights—to be achieved, among other things, at a gross cost of $191,000,000 in a frequently standardization program recommended by Premier Drew's government. In a radio broadcast last night the Premier cited the finish of the flicker as one of the benefits which would result if the Ontario Legislature and Municipal Hydro Commissions approve his government's proposal to change the frequency of the southern Ontario system of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario from 25 to 60 cycles.

The conversion program, coupled with present and future power-generating projects, would increase the capital investment in the "greatest publicly - owned power development in the world" to around $1,000,000,000 and its generating capacity to more than 2,500,000 horsepower.

The Premier did not set any time limit for the conversion program nor did he give details of financing, beyond saying that the gross cost would be reduced to a net of $163,000,000 because of a saving of about $28,000,000 which would result from extension of life of equipment and other capital improvements to publicly-owned properties and that Provincial Treasurer Frost and his Department experts had said that it could be done.

However, he said that full details would be given to a meeting of representatives of municipal Hydro commissions in Toronto next Tuesday and Wednesday, March 2 and 3. The Legislature—in which his Progressive Conservative government holds 66 of the 90 seats—convenes next Wednesday.

Wants 3 Satellites To Discuss Germany

LONDON, Feb. 27 — (AP). — Moscow radio said today Russia wants the three Western powers to let Czechoslovakia, Poland and Yugoslavia participate in planning the future of Germany.

She sent notes to the United States, Great Britain and France asking that they be permitted to sit in, the broadcast reported.

The Western powers have been in conference here since Monday on western Germany and a delegation from Belgium, the Nether... ...and Luxe... ...then issued a declaration that any merger of Germany's western zones would violate the Potsdam and Yalta agreements and encourage German militarism, "which may become the source of a new attack."

Cycle Changes Unpopular In W. Ontario

KITCHENER, Feb. 27 (CP)—President of Ontario Municipal Electric Association, District 6, George Gordon here today termed the move to convert Hydro from 25 to 60 cycles "as surprising" and "a shock."

He said the O.M.E.A. had no inkling of the proposed change. "Had the conversion plan been put to the eight districts of the O.M.E.A. for a vote it would have been swamped," he claimed.

Speaking as chairman of the Kitchener Public Utilities Commission, he said: "The change-over of equipment in our plant alone will cost nearly $1,000,000 and this expense must be borne by the P.U.C.

W. R. Catton, manager of Brantford's Hydro, said today that abandonment of 25-cycle power by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario would mean that consumers here and elsewhere would pay increased rates—possibly 25 per cent higher than at present.

He estimated approximately $2,000,000 as the cost of a change to 60-cycle for Brantford's system.

Other local Hydro managers in Ontario and Hydro engineers, who have discussed the change-over proposal, have agreed with Mr. Catton in the past.

Glad To Use Detroit List

WINDSOR, Feb. 27 — (CP). — If Detroit's police commissioner, Harry Toy, will provide Windsor police with the location of what he claims is a "central wire service in Windsor servicing all bookie establishments in the Detroit area," it will be "dismantled within an hour," Judge A. J. Gordon, chairman of the Windsor police commission, said today.

In a former statement replying to Toy's charges, Judge Gordon said "It is difficult to believe that "If Mr. Toy is sincere and wants to be helpful and co-operative he will be given ample opportunity. If he can at any time give this commission useful information—information that will aid in detecting crime and arresting criminals—it will be always appreciated. But we want no more of his childish, ridiculous allegations."

Gamblers Deny Windsor Nest of Iniquity

Blame Detroit Complaints For Sudden Interest In Their Activities

WINDSOR, Feb. 27—(CP).—A Windsor gambling operator said most local handbooks would be closed up today as a result of the heat generated by vice charges leveled at the city from the office of Police Commissioner Harry Toy in Detroit.

He added there is resentment at Toy's allegations that Windsor is a "nest of iniquity" in which gambling, dope peddling and prostitution flourishes.

It's not the truth or untruth of the statements they resent. They object because they feel it might mean even closer surveillance by Windsor police than they are accustomed to.

The operator said the bookies are inclined to blame the "complaints" of Detroiters who were run out of Windsor last fall for providing the basis of Toy's charges.

He said a Detroit newspaper dealer had bought a place in Windsor and started to operate last October. Soon the Detroiters were trying to move in on Windsor places and set up a syndicate. Then there was a shuffle and police cracked down in Windsor with the result that local spots closed down completely for a while. When they reopened the Detroiters had abandoned their venture, the gambler said.

Little Violence

The operator declared that Windsor has had little violence. One gambler was shot several months ago but police insisted it was an attempted holdup and not a gang war.

He added that bookie operators make every effort to control their clientele, most of whom come from Detroit.

"One woman came and complained her husband had lost his entire pay of $100 and left her destitute. The boss gave her back $150 and posted the husband's picture. After that he was blacklisted all over Windsor. At one time we had a whole row of such pictures."

Hoodlums are kept out, he said. "There are about 640 men employed in Windsor betting places and at least 620 of them are married with families. The lowest anyone gets is $10 a day. You won't find any hoodlum element here."

Radar Experts Ready To Map Moon Surface

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27—(AP). — American radar experimenters don't want just the moon. They now are aiming at more distant goals.

Signal corps technicians said today early plans to explore the face of the moon with radar are but a step toward an eventual attempt to bounce a radar signal off some neighboring planet like Mars.

With equipment improved since the original 1946 experiment in which radar recorded signals reflected by the moon, the signal corps men at Belmar, NJ, will seek to "map" the moon's surface some time next month.

U.S. Proposal On Palestine Faces Crisis

Await Russ Views On International Force In Holy Land

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Feb. 27 (CP)—The United States' proposal to throw the Palestine problem to the five great powers for a solution appeared headed today for rough going—and possibly defeat—in the United Nations Security Council. Preliminary estimates were that the plan would not obtain the required seven of the 11 votes necessary.

Eagerly awaited were Russia's views on establishment of an international army to enforce division of Palestine into Jewish and Arab states, as recommended by a special U.N. commission. Andrei A. Gromyko, Russian delegates, is expected to speak when the council reopens debate at 3 p.m.

The five-member Palestine partition commission, set up to carry out the recommendation of the U.N. general assembly, has said it will be unable to enforce partition without an adequate military force after Britain gives up her mandate May 15.

Ask Big Five

The United States, through Warren Austin, its permanent U.N. delegate, has proposed that the council ask the big five—Great Britain, the United States, Russia, France and China—to attempt to find a solution of the problem.

Trygve Lie, U.N. secretary-general, said yesterday that chaos will envelop Palestine unless the world organization acts quickly.

A Columbia delegate said in an interview that "Palestine partitions looks like a corpse to me."

Laymen's Association Hears Address On Communism

Monthly meeting of the Laymen's Association of George St. United Church was held Wednesday evening in the Sunday School room. More than 75 were present for dinner and enjoyed the address of Mr. W. L. Woodruff, guest speaker.

Introduced by Rev. Dr. Semple, Mr. Woodruff announced his topic as "Me, Communism and Joe Stalin." He outlined the theory of communism expounded by Karl Marx a century ago, and showed that this idea was present to some extent in the beginning of the Christian Church 2,000 years ago. He traced the course of communism in several European countries and showed how it rose and fell periodically. The speaker mentioned the differences between land and property owners and industrial workers and peasants in contrast to the present system of capital and labour.

Comparing the democratic system with the communist regime in Russia, Mr. Woodruff said "We would not tolerate complete domination as Stalin practices it in his country.

A vote of thanks was extended by Mr. Arthur Bacon and by President Cliff Hurl.

During the evening an interesting film on the negro singer, Kenneth Spencer, was shown by Mr. Lewis Bird. Mr. Tom Pritchard led the group in a sing-song with Mr. Charles Allen accompanying at the piano.

Cost Likely

Premier said that "no work on the Ottawa River was abandoned for the very simple reason that none had been undertaken while the previous government was in power."

He mentioned eight developments now completed or in construction which will produce an additional 1,250,000 horse-power, and spoke of future plans which call for at least two steam units to produce 120,000 horse-power and construction of 10 units on the St. Lawrence "either as part of the combined power and seaway plan now before Congress of the United States, or simply as a power development to be carried out jointly by the governments of the State of New York and the Province of Ontario, under alternate plans now prepared."

"The Commission is planning for the construction during the next four years of new generating plants, transmission lines and other facilities involving an expenditure of more than $300,000,000, in addition to the money spent on frequency conversion during those years."

Important Decision

The frequency decision was the most important "made by any government in regard to the production and supply of electricity since the Legislature passed the Act of 1906" which brought the Provincial Hydro Commission into being.

It had been considered many times during the last 30 years. Each time, the cost involved was greater and "perhaps for that very reason, no decision was ever reached." But now 'if plans are carried out for the doubling of our generating capacity without changing the 25-cycle to 60-cycle production, then the cost will become so great that it would be practically impossible to standardize frequency at any time in the future."

The decision was recommended by engineering and other experts as well as by the Hydro Commission. Consumers would benefit because they would pay less for 60-cycle than 25-cycle equipment and during the conversion period would save $20,000,000 in the purchase of domestic equipment and another $37,000,000 in extended life of present equipment when converted.

The Premier listed some other benefits: making it possible to draw in an emergency on power from 60-cycle systems in Michigan, New York State and Quebec; a wider range of consumer equipment would be available; many important machine tools were available only for 60-cycle frequency; as well as eliminating flickering lights, it would be more economical; in the event of war, it would be important to have the same frequency in adjoining industrial areas in the event power plants were destroyed or damaged.

Under the plan, there would be no charge of $1.50 a horsepower on electricity delivered to municipal commissions as proposed in an earlier recommendation. Equipment of domestic and commercial consumers would be converted without charge and without interruption to use; industrial users would pay one-third of the cost of converting their equipment because its life would be increased by more than that amount.

"The importance of the conversion of domestic, commercial and industrial equipment cannot be over-emphasized, as it represents over two-thirds of the gross and four-fifths of the net conversion costs."

Ontario and municipal commissions are in a strong financial position and "the financial experts agree they are well able to finance their respective shares of this decisive advance in the production and distribution of electric power throughout the province."

J. Pue Death 'Accidental'; Say Driving Bad

A five-man coroner's jury Thursday night found that the death of Judson Pue on No. 7 highway Feb. 4 had been accidental. The decision was reached after a half-hour's deliberations following the evidence of nine witnesses concerning the fatal highway accident in which Pue was killed behind the wheel of a truck by the car of Thomas R. Lawrence, R.R. 2, Peterborough.

Focal point of the inquiry was the degree of vision which Lawrence had at the time of the collision. He stated that "I didn't see a thing until I was almost on the truck," estimating that he had been only four feet from the rear of the truck when it first came into his view. He attributed the lack of vision to the brightness of the setting sun at the time (the accident occurred about 5.15 p.m.) and to the erratically blowing snow, which hampered vision badly.

The two passengers in the Lawrence car, the wife of the driver and Mrs. Nettie Hunter, R.R. 2, Peterborough, also testified that their vision had been blocked almost to the collision itself. (Mrs. Hunter's head was cut in the collision).

From the first witness, Frank Coyle, Lakefield, owner of the truck and employer of Pue, the jury learned that the victim had been on his way with the plow-equipped truck to clear a path at a home in Ennismore township, where death had occurred and which had been snowbound.

On Top of Hill

Lawrence, giving his account of the accident, said that the truck had been parked at the top of a hill near Fowler's Corners, about seven miles north-west of Peterborough. He jumped from the car after the impact, he said, and saw Pue crawl from under the truck and lie beside the road. His first words to Lawrence, the witness said, was: "I've had it." He said that Pue said that he thought his legs were broken. He had not moved the injured man, he said.

Milford Payne, R.R. 2, Peterborough, who lives about a quarter of a mile from the scene of the accident, said that he reached the scene about 5.30. The Lawrence car had been driven into the rear of the truck and the hood was cramped under the end of the truck body, he said. There had been some clouds, but the driving surface had been "fairly good." He added that the traction on the road was sufficient to stop a car. He emphasized that he could see the truck "plainly" for 200 yards as he walked up the hill towards it.

Ross Williamson, who lives with Payne, stated that he was shovelling snow at the Payne laneway when he heard the collision. He did not have any trouble seeing the truck from the bottom of the hill. There had been "very good traction" on the road, he said.

Dr. C. B. White, provincial pathologist, gave details of his findings in a post-mortem examination, describing internal and external injuries. His conclusion as to cause of death was that death had been caused by hemorrhage and shock. An important factor, he said, was the fact that the thigh bone had been fractured, causing the fat embolism of the bone to get into the lungs, a condition which is always fatal.

Died 2 Hours Later

Dr. H. N. Young, who attended the victim, said that Pue had died about seven o'clock the evening of the accident. The doctor added that he had noted when driving to the scene that the blustery nature of the snow had made driving and visibility difficult.

OPP Joseph Hanson, investigating officer, also testified that the snow had been blowing heavily and that the road was slippery. He described experiments which had been made reaching [illegible] where the truck had been parked. The dead man had been fixing the chains on the tires of the truck when he had been struck, the witnesses said, was evident from the position of Pue and the tools scattered around the broken chains, he continued.

The court of inqury was presided over by Coroner Dr. H. G. Carleton, Court Attorney V. J. McElderry conducted the examination.

The courtroor at the police station was nearly filled during the inquest.

Foreman of the jury was Edward Riley. Other jury members were William Saunders, John Buck, F. S. Gibbons and Andrew Pearson.

The wording of the jury's decision: "We are convinced that Judson Pue came to his death by being accidentally hit by a car driven by Thomas Roy Lawrence . . . we are of the opinion that conditions were such at that time as to make driving conditions extremely difficult. . . ."

TORONTO, Feb. 27 — (CP) — An assize court jury yesterday awarded $12,000 damages and costs to William Francis Higgins, 63, and $84 expenses to his stepson, Ernest V. Northcote, for injuries sustained July 12 when struck by an automobile driven by Harold J. Ricketts of Whitby.

Higgins and his step-son testified they were struck on Highland Creek bridge near here while attending to an accident which had happened 20 minutes earlier.

Ricketts denied seeing a flashlight which Police Constable George Mattison said he waved to warn the approaching car.

Police Box Raids

SEOUL, Korea, Feb. 27 — (AP) —The United States Army reported today 19 Koreans were killed in raids on police boxes in South Korea— attacks which American authorities described as Communist inspired.

United States Occupation Headquarters for South Korea said it was not certain whether the figure included the policemen and five or six civilians reported slain yesterday.

The raids were a renewal of outbreaks which American authorities said are aimed at forcing the United Nations Commission for Korea to leave the country. Russia denied the Commission entry to its occupation zone in North Korea.

The raids were similar to others Feb. 7-8, in and near Seoul, when 47 were killed.

Heart Trouble Caused Death

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 27 — Death of Alfonse Clements, 33, following a tonsillectomy last Nov. 12, was due to heart failure, a coroner's jury decided here, but greater care should have been exercised, since the man was known to be anaemic.

Clements underwent a tonsillectomy at Belleville General Hospital, and died on the operating table. At the inquest 10 witnesses were called, including Dr. J. B. McKay, Belleville pathologist, who testified that an autopsy showed Clements' heart was dilated and three of the valve openings were larger than normal. His evidence was supported by Dr. H. J. Shields of Toronto General Hospital, and Dr. W. Robinson, Toronto pathologist.

The operation was performed by Dr. A. C. Locke, assisted by Dr. L. B. Mathieson. The latter said Clements was very nervous. He showed increasing signs of cyanosis during the operation she said and both artificial respiration and oxygen were given.

Scottish People See Grand Film

The wild strains of Highland music sounded down George St. Thursday evening as the Peterborough Pipe Band skirled into the Odeon theatre as guests of the management to view an Old Country film produced on the islands off the north of Scotland. Scots from the city and county round about were also there in full force on receipt of invitations to listen to the kilties and enjoy the program. More than 500 were invited and most of them attended.

The low Scots burr predominated in the audience as they voiced their appreciation or disapproval of scenes from Home. There were few dissenters for the picture "pulled no punches" when it came to settings in the wild and windy ruggedness of the coastline scenery and stormy seascapes. The management was gratified that their presentation was so well received with true appreciation of an audience who would stand for no sham.

They found that the man was living in a local hotel, apparently with the girl, but had left for Peterborough. From there McClentic was traced to Port Hope, where he was apprehended.

Constable T. Bolderstone took the girl into custody and recovered the good purchased. They were found at the hotel where the two had been staying. Police say they had been told McClentic had been working here as a sign painter for some time, and that his work had been satisfactory.

Ask Federal Tourist Minister Be Appointed By King Gov't

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, Feb. 27—(CP).—The current situation in Palestine, Canadian participation in the defence of Hong Kong and a wide variety of domestic topics were discussed in the Commons yesterday as 11 members carried on the debate on the Throne Speech. David Croll (L—Toronto Spadina) introduced the Palestine issue, and said Canada could serve as the 'conscience' of the United Nations in helping the international organization to implement its decision to partition the Holy Land.

Mr. Croll, son of Russian-Jewish immigrants, said the partition issue involved the larger question of the United Nations to solve major problems as well as the immediate matter of the welfare of Palestine itself.

L. O. Breithaupt (L-Waterloo North) said he was anxious to see the European recovery plan in operation. He was pleased to note that the Hyde Park agreement apparently still is in effect.

Mr. Breithaupt said Canada's exchange problem could be solved through greater exports to dollar countries. He believed more agricultural products, including cattle, could be shipped to the U.S. when they are not needed in Canada or to the United Kingdom.

He said that before the war Britain supplied more than 50 per cent of Canada's imports. Now she supplied little more than seven per cent. While Canada had turned to the U.S. for her needs, the U.S. had not reciprocated by taking more of Canada's exports.

Surely the U.S. should be prepared to give more patronage to her best customer—Canuada.

He declared the partition decision must be implemented, and warned that failure to do so would lead to civil war in Palestine—and on Soviet Russia's doorstep. Palestine must thus become another war-torn Spain.

Failure of the UN on this issue would put the world in an "unthinkable position."

Other speakers in the debate included George R. Webb (PC-Leeds), Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East), L. O. Breithaupt (L-Waterloo North), H. O. White (PC-Middlesex East) and Lionel Bertrand (L-Terrebonne).

The House opening was marked only by a statement by External Affairs Minister St. Laurent to the effect that no international agreement signed by Canada can repeal the Dominion's ban on the import of oleomargarine, the butter substitute.

Want Tourist Minister

Both Mr. Bertrand and Mr. Webb called for the appointment of a Federal Minister of Tourist Trade and Publicity. They said the tourist business was one of this country's most profitable and could be made even more so under proper direction.

Mr. Webb, whose riding covers part of the 1,000 Islands area on the St. Lawrence River, said if a full-time minister could not be appointed there should be at least a Dominion Commission established. The Canadian Travel Bureau was no longer able to handle the growing trade.

Mr. Webb said he wished to stress the need for a properly-developed national park in his constituency and for vastly-improved tourist accommodation generally throughout the country.

The growing tourist trade should mean more than money. The more Canadians met people from other countries, the better the international understanding would be.

Efforts should be made to see that tourists carried away at least friendship and understanding. If this was done, the financial side would take care of itself.

Mr. Webb said Canadians generally felt the tourist season was confined to two or three summer months. Not enough was being done to attract tourists to the fairyland which was Canada in the winter time.

REDS IN CONTROL—Here is a section of the great mass meeting held in Prague, Czechoslovakia, at which Communist Premier Klement Gottwald showed his hand and made plain his intention of putting the Communists in complete control of Czechoslovakia. Today that control is all but complete with all government offices with the exception of the presidency in the hands of Communists or pro-Communists.

Fish And Game Are Crops Speaker Says

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 27.—(ENS).—Conservation of wild life and fish were the main subjects presented to the Campbellford Fish and Game Association by Douglas Omand and W. Glenister, representatives of the Department of Lands and Forests, at a meeting in the Parish Hall Thursday night.

Conservation of wild life is similar to conservation of forests and farms, said Mr. Omand. There must be a satisfactory medium between depletion and surplus if fish or game are to survive. They cannot be allowed to become too scarce, neither can they be allowed to become too plentiful. During the winter of 1941, 80 per cent of the deer killed in Northern Wisconsin were killed by starvation. The preferred diet of deer is dogwood, hemlock, cedar and spruce, and when an area is not overstocked the deer eat only these foods. However an indication of an overstocked area is when the deer are eating alder, balsam, spruce and tamarac.

The annual removal of fish in ponds per acre he said, should not exceed ½ pound for lake trout, two pounds for pike and 1/6 for muskies.

Mr. Glenister showed films on fish protection, speckled trout and bass fishing and pheasant hunting.

Prodded By Shut-off, Cuts 180 Kwh. In 7 Mins.

COBOURG, Feb. 27 (ENS). — There will be no more electric shut-offs at night, it was announced last night by Percy Greene, manager of the Cobourg Public Utilities.

Wednesday night the lights were flicked off and on quickly to signal consumers to turn off unnecessary lights for the rest of the night and to turn off hot water heaters for two hours. During the intervening 10 minutes which are given the consumers in which to trim their electric consumption, there was not the slightest drop in the use of electricty the meters showed. The power was then shut off for nine minutes and turned on, without decrease.

On the contrary, consumption showed an increase.

Another shut-off occurred and results were again negligible. After the lights went on for the rest of the night, there was no tapering off until the usual late hour drop when people turn out all lights for the night.

Thursday morning there was much "grousing" by householders over the inconvenience they suffered, although previous announcements by the Commission warned that if the seven o'clock signal was not obeyed, the power would go off until the overall 10 per cent reduction for the 24 hours was realized.

Last night, it was a different story. Perhaps the jolt the public received by Wednesday night's experience prodded them into action. In seven minutes after last night's seven p.m. signal, consumption dropped 180 kwh.

"We just about made our 10 per cent," Mr. Green said. "The night before it had jumped 130 kwh higher than it was at seven p.m. Over the five-hour period from seven until midnight, more than 900 kwh is the saving on the basis of the drop recorded right after seven p.m. This is one-third of the town's daily quota. If the public can better its overall effort, we might be able to eliminate the half-hour shut-off from 11.30 until noon entirely, and thus benefit industrial production."

Mr. Green added that, due to the hazards involved there would be no more power cut-offs at night.

However, a trip through a section of the town last night just before seven o'clock revealed five service stations with gas tanks lit up. One service station was ablaze with lights. This was contrary to a request from the utilities commission that service stations close at six p.m. instead of seven. After seven o'clock, when houses were supposed to be using minimum light, a trip along a half dozen of the town's 70 streets showed many houses lit top and bottom. Eight houses had their verandah lights on. However, as evident from the reduction noted in power consumption last night, a considerable number co-operated.

Cobourg, unlike Port Hope and other centres, has no device whereby a frequency impulse over the system will shut off for a period all the hot water electric heaters, Mr. Greene said.

Set Tax Rate At 55.8 Mills

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 27. — (ENS).—At a special meeting of the council Thursday night, R. L. Kennedy, Department of Municipal Affairs supervisor, was present to advise the council in setting the 1948 mill rate. The expense budget was pared to an estimtaed $72,460, making mill rate of 46.3, plus 9.5 for schools, totaling 55.8.

The chief cuts were made by delaying the issue of the Public school and Memorial hospital debentures (total $54,606) so that the first payment comes in 1949. Another item was the police estimate from $6,000 to $4,800.

The budget now has to go to the Department of Municipal Affairs for sanction.

Council Refuses Request To Arrange Beer Plebiscite

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 27 — (ENS)— Who will bear the responsibility of giving the people of Campbellford a chance to vote for or against a beer and a liquor store in town?

The newly-formed Campbellford Business Men's Association (approx. 100 members) through the town council should, but were soundly spanked for their temerity by a 6-3 vote in council against their resolution persented at a special meeting last night.

This resolution by the Business Men's Association asking the council to apply to the Liquor Control board of Ontario for a plebiscite was presented to the council in lieu of a petition which was found insufficinet and not properly worded.

During the discussion before the council polled their votes, W. A. Hogle, who acted as spokesman for the Business Men's Association (many of whom were present) said that if the resolution were turned down by the council, he was certain a legally correct petition could and would be presented to the council at a later date.

Mayor Donald said a proper petition would take the responsibility off the council but to vote on said a resolution, one way or another, put the council on the spot. Rev. J. O. Ralston, Rev. W. J. Lennox and Rev. R. N. Maxwell agreed that the responsibility must not be thrown on the council because of something the Business Men's Association failed to do. If, they said, such a petition must have according to law, 25 per cent of the voter's signatures, as checked against the 1945 municipal voters' List, then the council should carry out the law according to the law and insist on a proper petition.

Councillors Walter Burgess, Peter MacMillan and deputy-reeve Ralph Locke, expressed the opinion that the council should pass the resolution and leave the deciding vote up to the people.

Councillor Charles Palliser made a motion to the effect that whereas the petition put the whole responsibiliy on the council, the council will not act on it. This motion was later changed to read, whereas the Business Men request the council to ask Queen's Park for a plebiscite, and whereas there is a large delegation requesting the council not to ask, that this council do not entertain the request contained in the resolution. The motion was seconded by W. A. Kingston and the vote polled.

The Business Men's Association left promising bigger and better petitions.

CLOAKED IN MYSTERY — Impenetrable mystery surrounds the presence in Nanking of Gen. He is a guest of the government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and no member of that government will discuss his status or reason for his presence.

'Liberal Entry Would Risk Political Life' Judge German Tells Nothumberland Party

COBOURG, Feb. 27—(ENS).—New life was injected in an admittedly dormant Cobourg Liberal Association at an organization meeting held last night.

J. C. M. German startled the meeting when he said "a candidate would take his political life in his hands to run as a Liberal in Northumberland riding now. I think if we could get one or two thousand Liberals willing to contribute a dollar for general expenses we could use a central office and a secretary. When a man is willing to put up a little money he will follow the fortunes of that greenback and see that his candidate is elected," Mr. German declared.

New officers elected were Alan Field, president; Truman Jones, secretary, and J. C. M. German, treasurer. Each of the six wards is represented by a chairman and vice-chairman. Ward 1 is represented by Jack Lavis, chairman, and Mrs. Ruth Harrison, vice-chairman; Ward 2, Charles Jackson and Mrs. Jack Butler; Ward 3, Claude Fowler and Mrs. George Campbell; Ward 4, no appointee yet for chairman but the vice-chairman is Jack Richardson; Ward 5, Jack Burnet and Mrs. Percy Macklin; Ward 6, George Turpin, Sr., and Miss Lena Fisher.

Members of the county Liberal Association were present but several Cobourg members expressed doubt that the parent body would be strong enough to obtain good candidates unless the Cobourg group "started the ball rolling."

Chairman of the meeting was Jack Burnet who said that organized Liberalism in Cobourg needed pepping up. He stressed the amount of work that would have to be done before the next elections.

Is The Mill Rate A Sacred Cow?

The City Council proposes a tax rate of 41½ mills for the current year, having cut its estimates to the lowest possible figure. We are not convinced that a rate of 42 mills might not prove safer and wiser in the long run. It will be remembered that last year the city closed its business with a deficit in the neighbourhood of $30,000, and that sum has to be paid out of this year's taxes or from city funds. By cutting the mill-rate to the bone are we not running the risk of another deficit and another carry-over this year? Is there anything to be gained by running that risk for the sake of half a mill?

* * *

Frankly, we think that this desire for a low mill-rate has been a sacred cow with too many of our City Councils. It is easy for a Council to make a show of efficiency and economy by cutting estimates and getting the lowest possible mill-rate but it could also be shown that, over the years, such financing looks more like short-sighted cheese-paring than real saving. There are certain jobs around the city that have to be done and the cost of doing them can be closely estimated: but there are also jobs (the Riverside Park project comes to mind) which ought to be done and which will eventually have to be done, and if they are passed on from one Council to another they will eventually involve a large aggregate expenditure—and meanwhile the city is deprived of the benefit which would accrue from having such work done a little at a time. The members of the Council are men of business, and they must know that it is better to take care of improvements as they become necessary than it is to postpone them until they all have to be undertaken at one time. There is no real economy in such penny-pinching. Certainly the Council should be economical, but it is not economical to run the City's business on the cheap.

* * *

The addition of half a mill to the tax rate would cause very little protest or dissatisfaction in the City. These are days of high prices, and the average taxpayer is better able to pay the extra half mill now than he may be in a few years time. Furthermore, it must be realized that money wisely spent in the improvement of the City is not lost to the taxpayer; he receives direct benefit from it, in better streets, better parks, better city services and all the satisfaction that comes from living in a thriving community. There are a minority of taxpayers, of course, who love a nickel better than they love their right eye, and who feel that it is their duty to complain that taxes are too high, whatever they may be. But the average taxpayer is content if he feels sure that his tax money is being spent intelligently and that the City's business is well to reconsider its proposed tax-rate in the light of what Peterborough needs, and without too much regard for an immediate and dearly-bought popularity.

The Crisis In Czechoslovakia

The years 1918, 1938 and 1948 have special significance in Czechoslovakia, and, because of that nation's peculiar strategical and political situation, for the world. In 1918 Czechoslovakia was declared an independent republic comprising the lands of the ancient kingdom of Bohemia, Slovakia, and Ruthenia. Other nations hailed its creation as the dawn of freedom for central Europeans; no longer would Germany, Austria, Hungary or Russia, or any combination of them, oppress the Czechs and Slovenes. In 1938 came the Munich Agreement which deprived Czechoslovakia of one-third of her territory and made the war inevitable. In the next year Hitler completely overran the country and it ceased to exist until the end of the European war. Now, in 1948, ten years later, it is again in danger of losing its independence: on Wednesday the Communists gained control of the administration of country.

* * *

Czechoslovakia has always been at the cross-roads. It feels with the east and thinks with the west. Its economy is based on trade with eastern European countries but it is industrially dependent on the west. It is in a central position, is landlocked, and dependent on its neighbours for communications. It has always had to compromise—with other nations, and domestically with its own ethnic groups. It is therefore not surprising to find that Benes, President and national hero of Czechoslovakia, is Europe's most skilful negotiator

* * *

Since the war it has been almost surrounded by Communist and Russian dominated countries. Until this week it has been able to maintain its cherished democratic system of government and political independence from Russia. Economic conditions in central Europe and the destruction of German industry which formerly supplied eastern European countries, have made it both necessary and desirable for Czechoslovakia to be on good terms with Soviet Russia and to cultivate trade with her satellites. Nevertheless, Czech industry and economic well-being is still dependent on western Europe and America. It has therefore been hoped that the country could maintain its political balance.

* * *

The Government is under the premiership of the Communist Gottwald, whose party is the strongest in Czechoslovakia; it polled 30 per cent. of the votes in the post-war elections. Last week 14 anti-Communist ministers resigned; the Premier insisted that President Benes accept their resignations. He has now done so. Though the new 23-man ministry contains 11 non-communists, including Van Masaryk, son of the revered founder of the Republic, Thomas Masaryk, the key posts (police, communications and the like) are in Communist hands.

* * *

There are two hopeful signs that Czechoslovakia may not yet be closed in behind the iron curtain: the prestige and influence of President Benes and the intense regard the people have for personal liberty, the heritage bestowed by Thomas Masaryk. These are weak weapons against a police dictatorship. The method of conducting the elections scheduled for May and their results will tell the tale.

Heaven-Sent Franco

Political oratory has achieved some fairly fancy flights in this country and sycophantic praise of political leaders has been kept at a tolerable level. But no Canadian has ever, to our knowledge, approached the heights scaled by Senor Joaquin Perez Madrigal, who spoke on the Spanish radio after the re-opening of the frontier between Spain and France. The re-opening was described by this gentleman as "the word of God and of Franco, who is His prophet". This was pretty good, but Madrigal had better things up his sleeve. He proceeded to elaborate upon the wonders of Franco and his regime, pointing out that, in 1936, the Spanish people had called upon God for help. "God paid heed to them", he went on, "and replied, 'I will send Franco unto thee, with 100,000 archangels' ". It was this Heavenly gift, Senor Madrigal assured his hearers, which had kept the enemies of Spain at bay.

It is interesting to have this assurance that Franco was particularly sent by God to rescue Spain from her difficulties. We had heard other, less distinguished antecedents attributed to

NOTE AND COMMENT

The report comes to us that Barbara Ann Scott is the toast of Paris. What has happened to the croissants that used to be the popular breakfast food there?

An enthusiastic British columnist compares Sir Stafford Cripps to Gandhi. Funny, we never recall seeing a picture of Gandhi chastening his spirit with one of those big, black, expensive cigars.

Some people whose car hit a train at a level crossing last week explained (they were lucky enough to be able to explain) "We couldn't see the train from the side windows, which were frosted over". This happens often in our winters, and we suggest that the proper thing to do in such cases is to open the door and look, and not to assume that what cannot be seen does not exist.

By J. D. CAMBRIDGE

THE sudden cold wave has abruptly ended the optimistic view of spring-around-the-corner. On Wednesday (Feb. 18) the thermometer sank rapidly, and Thursday night was the coldest of the winter,—the coldest temperature recorded in London since the Big Freeze of last year, and of most unpleasant memory. The weatherman offers little encouragement for those who plan outdoor week-ends, unless the plan is for winter sports. A number of cancellations of racing and soccer events have already been announced. More snow and continuing cold is the cheery forecast, with the added information that it is part of a cold front out of Asiatic Russia. Must be the Russian answer to the cold war. For the miserable who love company, all of western and southern Europe are suffering from the same drops in temperature. By Peterborough standards it is not very cold,—lowest so far about 20 degrees F., —but when your heating facilities are limited to the parlour fireplace, it is cold enough. Those who use electric heaters are liable to find their power cut off at crucial periods of the day when the load on the system is heavy, and the gas pressure is down for those using gas heaters.

THERE must have been a sigh of relief from 10 Downing Street with the announcement of the Trades Union Congress executive that they would support the government in the new wages and profits policy, with certain "ifs" attached. Notably, an assurance that the cost of living will be kept down, and profits of industry checked and even reduced. This was potentially the most dangerous opposition the government faced,—the rejection by organized labour of the principle of a freezing of labour costs. A refusal to accept the sacrifices demanded,—and they are sacrifices,—would have led almost inevitably to the fall of the Attlee government. Probably the executive of the T.U.C. dislike the idea, but feel any other government would scarcely propose any more acceptable solution. The executive's own position is weakened, especially with the radical wing of trade unionism, and the Communists are doing their best to exploit it. The "Daily Worker"—the Communist daily,—accuses the executive of a sell-out to the industrialists, and of a "betrayal" of the workers' interests. The decision of the T.U.C. should at least have the affect of stifling any revolt amongst the Labour Party's backbenchers on this issue, a revolt that seemed quite possible up until the announcement.

THE murder of a policeman in London last Friday brought on one of the biggest manhunts in the history of the city. A man was finally arrested on Tuesday, charged with the crime. These are the bare details.

❖ ❖ ❖

THE story is a familiar one to any reader of the Canadian or American press,—a suspicious loiterer is challenged by a policeman doing his rounds, a resulting scuffle, shots fired, a fleeing criminal, and a policeman is found dying. To the Canadian, there were several points of unusual interest however. Fortunately, in Canada, the murder of a policeman is a comparatively rare occurrance, although I can think off-hand of at least two instances within the last ten years. But in the United States it is far from rare, especially in New York City, the city that most resembles London in size. I remember some years ago being taken on a tour of the headquarters of the New York Police Force, and seeing on the wall of the main entrance a memorial tablet listing the names of more than 700 policemen who had been killed in the course of their duty since 1900. I was told that approximately 20 per year were killed, although this of course would include those in motor accidents and others not necessarily murdered. In comparison to this, this was the first murder of a London police officer for many years, and excitement was intense. For four days the case was priority front-page news, and the funeral of the police officer was attended by the Home Secretary,—the equivalent of Mr. St. Laurent in Canada,—and by a vast number of Londoners.

THE second point of interest was the extreme caution, engendered by the strict libel laws of the country, with which the police and newspapers dealt with the suspect, a man named Thomas. He was apparently known to the police as a suspect before his arrest, because radio and press appeals were made for information of his whereabouts as he was "thought to be able to give information about the case". Even when he was seized, in terms that left no doubt but he was the suspect, no na[illegible] til [illegible] seizure was he formally charged with the murder. Newspapers here are under constraints undreamt of in Canada or the United States. Incidentally, the same fear of libel makes the use of a credit rating system almost impossible in this country. If anything unfavourable is known, it is not mentioned, and the enquirer can only read between the lines to find the information he desires.

THE public has been deeply angered by the seizure of British Antarctic territory by Argentina and Chile. The British position (referring the dispute to the International Court at the Hague) is dignified, courteous, and reasonable, in sharp contrast to the proclamations of the two South American countries. The refusal of these two to submit the matter to arbitration brings up serious problems, which, to the regret of many, cannot be solved by sending a squadron to "show the flag", in the good old style. But it is unthinkable that British territory can be seized with impunity. If in the Antarctic, why not in Africa, or Asia, or even in England itself? The government has a very delicate problem to solve. As for the public, one speaker has summarized its feeling"....when the lion is wounded, the jackals gather at the flanks."

Letters To The Editor

ORILLIA'S POWER

Sir: In your editorial in tonight's paper, you create the impression that Orillia's power is both cheaper and more dependable than that of Hydro. The former is true; the latter is incorrect.

As long ago as the summer of 1946 Orillia cut off power for two hours each afternoon. To prevent the recurrence of such shortages a Deisel generator was purchased, but power cuts were resumed last month in spite of this precaution.

Orillia gets its power from two sources: (1) Its own power plant on the Severn river, (2) A Hydro-owned plant near Minden.

I have recently read that Hydro has reduced its quota to Orillia; so it's dubious if Orillia at present is enjoying abundant electrical power.

It would appear that if Orillia wishes to expand, it must buy an ever-increasing amount of power from Hydro...if they want to sell!

SYMPATHETIC.

HIGH PRICE OF WORK BOOTS

Sir: I have read an item from Toronto, in your paper where Mr. H. R. Pollock, president of the Canadian Shoe Retailers' Association said: "If retail shoe prices are to come down, and we retailers are as anxious as all other citizens to see prices lower in this country, they will have to come down through the manufacturer and the wholesaler. It is a well known fact that retailers in Canada are working on a normal mark-up despite the abnormal times, and cannot reduce shoe prices further unless they are able to purchase from suppliers at a lower cost. When you think of the hundreds of operations required to convert hides and skins into finished footwear, even at today's prices shoes are the best value of any commodity on the market", he said.

I firmly disagree with Mr. H. R. Pollock, especially in the work boot class. I would just like to see Mr. H. R. Pollock wear some of the shoes that are in the stores today, and then see if he can keep a straight face as he runs over that song about shoes being of the best value of any commodity on the market.

My opinion is, that there is more inferior quality and value of shoes on the market today than there was before the war.

A couple of weeks ago I went from one store to another to buy a pair of shoes that would give me good wear and comfort. I saw a pair in one of the stores priced between $6 and $7, but this firm could not give me my size. Eventually I found the same make of shoe, in my size in another store. These shoes are the well known Sisman police boot; these were identical as those in the other store, now these boots were priced at $10.50, approximately $4 more.

I enquired if there hadn't been a mistake and was informed that prices had recently went up. I bought this pair as the way the cheaper shoes are constructed they would not last half the time, and cripple my feet in nothing flat.

Now last Saturday I was informed through the well known grapevine, that if I returned to this store I would receive a refund, as there had been a mistake in the price of the shoes I had bought. On going to the store I could not contact the person I had purchased them from, but on asking another clerk in that department about this refund, I was told that there was no refund as they could not sell them any cheaper, as the firm paid $7.49 for them. In fact I was shown these figures in a book on the desk.

In my way of looking at that, it is very big profits for the retailer. If they are working on normal mark-up prices in abnormal times, I am afraid the Sisman Shoe Company made the same shoe just for the fun of making them during the depression.

Incidentally I believe the same shoe sold for something like $3.50 to $4.50 at that time. Is there not a board of investigation from Ottawa inquiring into price of bread and flour, why not find out about the price of shoes when they are at it?

Yours respectfully,
J. E. ROBINSON.

Television And Short People

It's becoming more and more apparent that television cameras are not kind to those who are of medium height or less. Especially men.

There is something about the camera or transmission which distorts the human figure into being very short of limb. This can amount to a definite handicap to performers and is something which the costume department will probably have to try to overcome.

Any man under 5.6 who gets in front of a tele lens wearing a suit with a long jacket is crazy. He well nigh looks ridiculous. The only answer for him is medium or close-up views or to sit down.

This distortion also can extend to the girls and especially ballet dancers. It's pretty funny, even silly, when the camera moves in to show the lower half of the figure in action. For let it always be remembered that from the waist down any ballet dancer could well be Groucho Marx.—Variety.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

For I am the Lord, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed. (Mal. 3: 6.)

❖ ❖ ❖

But unto you that fear my name shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings. (Mal. 4: 2.)

❖ ❖ ❖

I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day, and heard behind me a great voice, as of a trumpet, saying, I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last....

And I turned to see the voice that spake with me. And being turned, I saw seven golden candlesticks; and in the midst of the seven candlesticks one like unto the Son of man, clothed with a garment down to the foot, and girt about the paps with a golden girdle....

And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead. And he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not; I am the first and the last: I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore. Amen. (Rev. 1: 10-13, 17, 18.)

Geographer Says World Needs Co-operation

OTTAWA, Feb. 27—(CP)—The Royal Architectural Institute of Canada yesterday concluded a three-day annual convention on a plea by a prominent geographer for greater world co-operation.

"If the experience of the past generation is any guide, regional self-sufficiency —or national self-sufficiency for that matter—is no Prof. G. H. T. Kimble of McGill university, Montreal, last night told 300 persons attending the annual banquet.

"Whether... the world can continue to need, let alone provide an adequate standard of living for its inhabitants would seem to depend largely upon the readiness of engineers, architects, regional planners, geographers and governments to join forces in furthering the enjoyment—to quote the words of the Atlantic charter —"by all states, great or small, victor or vanquished, or access on equal terms to the trade and raw materials of the world which are needed for their economic prosperity."

Choosing as his subject, "expanding horizons in a shrinking world," Prof. Kimble said that if world peace was to last, "we need the inspiration and support of a God-given faith..."

Another highlight of closing ceremonies was the election of A. J. Hazelgrove of Ottawa, as national president, succeeding Charles David of Montreal.

Admit High Cost Of Under-Rating Jap Air Power

LONDON, Feb. 27 — (AP). — The high cost of under-rating the Japanese air power in Southwest Pacific fighting was added up by Air Vice-Marshal Sir Paul Maltby in a report made public to-day.

Sir Paul, captured by the Japanese in the fall of Java, told of the disheartening early days of the Second World War in the Pacific in a report an air fighting reelased by the War Office.

The report told a story of an enemy bill presented against poor intelligence, misunderstanding, a lack of preparedness, and perhaps the most costly item: Failure to recognize Japan as a dangerous air power.

Sir Paul said one expensive bobble in the Malaya-Sumatra-Java fighting was ignorance of the fact that the Japanese Army air force was highly efficient.

In addition, the Allies did not realize that the prime Japanese fighter plane early in the war was the Zero, an aircraft which "proved superior to our own fighters."

Serious Consequences

This lack of technical knowledge of Japanese airplanes which continued "up to the outbreak of the war," was destined to have far-reaching consequences in Malaya.

At the outset the Japanese had not only superior equipment but struck in overwhelming numbers. He estimated that in the Malaya fighting the Japanese used about 700 first-line aircraft against 158 Allied planes of obsolete and obsolescent types."

Sir Paul was Assistant Air Officer commanding the RAF Far East Command up to the fall of Singapore in February, then escaping with what he could, he went to Java where he was top RAF officer to March 12. At his capture he was the highest British officer to be taken captive.

Will Investigate Plane Crash

HAILEYBURY, Feb. 27 (CP)— A board of inquiry under the authority of the Department of Transport met here today to seek the cause of a plane crash which yesterday killed one person and seriously injured another.

Moise Charron of Notre Dame de la Paix, near Montreal, was killed when a private two-seater plane plummetted to earth on the outskirts of this northern Ontario town. The pilot, Russell James Gray of Kingston, was seriously injured. Hospital authorities today, however, reported his condition as "fair" and said he was expected to survive.

The board of inquiry consists of William Lavery of North Bay, inspector for the Civil Aviation Branch of the Department and chairman of the board, and two other members of the Aviation Branch. Inspector Lavery flew here yesterday to conduct a preliminary examination. The investigation is expected to take two days.

Eye-witnesses said the low-flying plane was "acting queerly" and suddenly dived earthward.

Grabs $6,000 In Purse Says "Pardon Me"

VANCOUVER, Feb. 27 — (CP). — Three bandits, the leader a "polite man," snatched more than $6,000 in cash and cheques today from a girl messenger on a busy waterfront street.

One bandit grabbed a zipper brief case from Miss Audrey Blaikie, 21, cashier of the Vancouver Supply Co., saying:

"Pardon me," as he jumped into the getaway car carrying his two accomplices.

The raiders got $1,141 in cash and $5,000 in cheques. Miss Blaikie was en route to the bank, and the robbery occurred only a few yards from her office.

"I was really frightened," she said. "I'll never go to the bank again.

Police last night recovered more than $5,000 in cheques and the brief case which had been snatched. Still missing is $1,271 in cash and cheques totalling $971.

Lions Capture OMHA Semi-Finals Taking Midland Round By 16 to 7

Peterborough Lions blanked Midland 8-0 last night in Midland to sweep the Ontario Minor Hockey Association Bantam "B" semi-final series, 16 to 7, and advance into provincial finals. They had won in Omemee by an 8-7 count earlier in the week, but showed much improved hockey to hand the Midland lads a goose-egg in their own classy rink. There was some talk of a protest on referee's decisions by the losers.

It was a fast, rough game with the Midland crew high-sticking and boarding hard as the score piled up against them. Ray Pammett's pack retaliated to draw nine of the 16 penalties handed out. The crowd was quite hostile and some of the visiting players had soft drinks sprinkled on them during play. The Midland linesman argued bitterly with the referee throughout, proving most partial.

Fine Checking

The Lions' forwards tore up and down like boys possessed last night and their back-checking was the deciding factor as they tied the homesters up completely. This and the four-star goaltending by Delahaye (in brilliant form) accounted for the one-sided shutout. Actually, play was much closer than the score indicated but Midland just couldn't count. Delahaye and Stewart (with three goals and an assist) were the big stars for the Pammett-Board bunch, but the whole team turned in a sparkling performance.

After the joust, the losing players and their coach came in to congratulate the winners—though their sponsor didn't—who now go into Ontario finals. Preston or Port Colborne will be playing Chatham or Woodstock in the other semi-final bracket, with the survivors of this setup meeting Lions in the last series.

The teams:

Lions: Goal, Delahaye; defence, Stewart and Byrne; centre, Pammett; wings, Langhorne and Ferguson; alternates, Scriver, McGrath, Allan, McCormick, Spencer and Cunningham.

Midland: Goal, Smith; defence, Greene and Ritchie; centre, Sturgeon; wings, Yorke and Arbour; alternates, Moreau, Brooks, Kennedy, Roberts and Vasey.

Referee, A. Giardino; linesman, E. Bolan.

Summary:

First Period

Lions—Scriver (McGrath) .. 4.06
Lions—McGrath 7.25
Penalties — Moreau, Kennedy, Arbour, Pammett (2).

Second Period

Lions—Ferguson (Pammett) 1.20
Lions—Stewart 17.58
Penalties — Arbour, Yorke, Kennedy, Stewart, Byrne, Pammett.

Lions—Pammett (Spencer) . 7.39

Kawarthas High With 3782 In City League

Kawarthas rolled outstanding ball in the Men's City Five Pin League to blank the Plaza entry and move up from sixth to fourth in the standing. They had high pinnage of 3782 and high single game of 1357 to win team honors. Fashion Craft took six points from Freeman's to retain their 20-point lead and with six nights to go nothing short of a miracle can dislodge them.

Ramblers continue to hold down second place as they won six points from DeLaval. Shockey's showing a complete reversal of form blanked Spartons and had 3706 for total pinnage. McGillis took four points from King George, Legion took six points from Empress Old Timers while Clapper's and Sunocos were taking four points from Grant's and Generals.

Irv Hanes for the second week took down high three with 890 and also made a fine bid for season's high single when he rolled 405. Roy Suddards rolled 835, G. Walton 828, Norm Gordon 813 and Ches Grant 800.

Closest single to Hanes big one was Norm Gordon 348, folowed by Roy Suddards 347, Ches Grant 315, Mel Anthony 311, Holly Mowry 309, Frank McCormack 307, Tony Vitarelli 303, Tom Martin 300 and Jack Playford 300.

The Martin family were too much for the Downer boys in the challenge match, winning handily as they rolled 3524 to 2695. Tom Martin was top man with 800.

Glenn Cunningham set a world's indoor record for the 1,500-metre run at New York 10 years ago tonight. The barrel-chested miler from Kansas covered the "metric mile" in three minutes, two seconds, clipping 1/2 seconds from the former mark set by Venzio Ugo (Italian) second, 35 yards behind Cunningham.

Electrics play Kawarthas at 8.15 tonight in the YWCA, the only girls' basketball fixture of the evening. It's a round-robin semi-final playoff. Likely another one on Monday. And two men's melees are on tap tomorrow night in the Big Collegiate gym. City Loop opens at 7.15 with Ted Payne's crew mixing with Bill Jones' squad, and there's a promising 8.15 exhibition betwixt Toronto Riverdale Grads, a strong senior team, against the Outboard Marines "A" intermediate champs. Latter may not be playing any more ere their provincial playdowns start. They'll have to hustle to take the Grads.

Quinte columnist tells of a recent incident in Kingston where the Belleville junior "B" boys lost out. One of their players, Angy Defelice, was accosted after the game by a stranger who told him he was now on the Canadiens' negotiation list and he couldn't sign with any other team. The kid bristled a bit and asked: "Why can't I sign with any other team?" The reply was: "Because you are now on the Canadiens' negotiation list. That's all, son." And the stranger strolled off leaving a surprised young man wondering what it was all about. That's the way these monopolistic NHL-ers do. But the lad can crack that business easily enough by taking it to court, if he wishes.

Lo, Many Will Attend

There may not be any NHL scouts at Omemee tonight but there'll be a great many other people. When Legion and the Petes open their four-in-seven OHA senior "B" group finals at 8.30 of the clock. And it should be a swell struggle between these bitter local rivals. Legions are out to crack that grip the Petes have held so long on puck titles around this area, and the Petes are of course out to continue their winning ways. They finished one-two in their grouping and both squads will shoot the works to grab this first playoff. It ought to be a honey.

* * * * * *

Ice may be a bit heavy tonight, and indeed from now on—who knows? It always comes up that way when the important playoffs arrive in places with no artificial ice. Whether Legion or the Petes are the better "mudders" remains to be seen. A sticky surface certainly spoils combination plays and stick-handling, and often the element of luck is prominent under such circs. But both clubs will battle hard against each other regardless of the footing and neither team will win in a walk this game or any other of the serial. They go to Lindsay on Monday, back in Omemee on Wednesday, and Lindsay again a week from tonight. If they don't have to transfer a tilt or two to Belleville.

Lions Oust Midlands

Our bantam "B" Lions came through in Midland last night while our midget "B" Rotarians faded from the provincial picture in Belleville. Latter lads did well to go into the fourth round of OMHA playdowns but met a strong squad on Quinte ice and had to bow out. Tough luck to Coach Eric Jones and his young gallants. And congrats to Ray Pammett (aided by Don Board) and his scrappy young Lions for eliminating Midland handily to capture Ontario semi-finals. They blanked their opponents 8-0 on Midland ice and the big home crowd and the losers didn't like it a bit. Boys felt they did well to get out of the place in one piece. Anyway, the Lions did scrumptious.

Kawarthas weren't fooling on the alleys this week in City Bowling League competition. They smashed the pins for a 3782 total which included high single game of 1357. With six nights to go, Fashion-Crafts are well out in front of the pack, and Ramblers are running in the second slot. Irv Hanes hit top triple of 890 this time and had a swelegant 405 single—an 18-carat effort. In that recent challenge match, the Martins were too much for the Downers as they smeared the maples at a 3524 clip, though the Downer Clan may insist upon a return match. Tomorrow aft at 1.30, the Martins will take on the Mattucci brothers—Joe, Vic, Tony, Alf and Ernie—in a challenge affair.

Type Of Rink Decided

Rink committee held a huddle last gloaming and decided that, before hitting into the financial drive, they had better settle on a definite type of rink to be built. So they ruled in favor of a timber-rig type of structure as most suited to Peterborough's needs. It will be of cement block construction with a galvanized iron roof. The arena is expected to seat some 3,200 with about 500 standing. Approximate figures as yet. The ice surface would be 180 by 80, which is ample for OHA play. More details later, but the committee is by no means idle and will really go to town in March.

CURLING NEWS

By HERB MARTIN

Playing at Midland on Wednesday and Thursday in the open bonspiel, sponsored by the ladies of the Midland Curling Club, for the Edward's Trophy, Mrs. O. M. Steer successfully skipped her rink to win all three games and to come in third place. Each of her rink received a tablecloth for her efforts. The ladies report a grand time. They met many of the lady curlers who were here at the ladies' bonspiel in January.

There were rinks entered from Bobcaygeon, Toronto, Midland, Peterborough and many other curling centres.

The rink was—Mrs. J. Dunkerly, Mrs. H. R. Martin, Mrs. H. Dulmage, Mrs. O. M. Steer, skip.

At 9 o'clock this morning Umpire R. Downey sent seven rinks away in the annual Colts competition. It is a straight knock-out affair, with the final game coming late this afternoon.

Our men's schedule continues this evening at the usual hours.

Belleville Wins To Rub Out The Rotarians

Belleville Merchants defeated Peterborough Rotarians 6-2 on Quinte ice last night to take the Eastern Ontario Midget "B" OMHA title and advance into provincial semi-finals. They had won earlier in the week in Omemee by an 8-3 count to capture the round, 14 to 5.

Rotary battled hard all the way, tallying a goal each in the second and third periods last night, but the powerful Merchants showed superiority on the attack and defensively. They had fine goal-tending and a solid defence, while their forwards worked hard both ways. Douglas scored from Jones for Coach Eric Jones' boys in the second and Robinson got their other in the third. Strachan and Brown led the homesters in scoring in the speedy and fairly clean fray. The teams:

Rotary—Goal, Batley; defence, Bigford and R. Ferguson; centre, Jensen; wings, Douglas and Jones; alternates, Telford, Robinson, D. Ferguson, Gooley, Gandy and Shearer.

Belleville—Goal, Barclay; defence, Green and Milligan; centre, Brown; wings, Strachan and Gilmour; alternates, Barrett, Carey, Doran, O'Brien, Hurst, Jones and Schrieder.

Referee—W. Leggitt; linesman, D. Lee.

Sudbury Ace Keeps Cross-Country Title

BANFF, Alta., Feb. 27.—(CP)—The east and west are running neck-and-neck with one championship apiece today as the second day of the annual Canadian ski championship tournament got under way.

Fifteen-year-old Johnny Ray of Princeon, B.C., gave the west its first championship yesterday after veteran Lauri Huuki, 42-year-old Sudbury man, had out-paced younger rivals to retain his Canadian cross-country championship. Ray displayed near-perfect form off the Mount Norquay jump to edge out his fellow-townsman Andy Kassa, 17, for the national junior men's jumping crown.

Three vivacious Montreal lassies have been rated as major threats in the ladies' downhill event. The three are Joy Abbey, Dorothy Burden and Joan Erzinger.

Elect Pennock, Traynor To The Hall Of Fame

NEW YORK, Feb. 27 (AP). — The late Herb Pennock and Harold (Pie) Traynor were voted into baseball's Hall of Fame today by the United States Baseball Writers Association. Their names will be enrolled in the Cooperstown (N.Y.) shrine alongside 46 others who were so honored in previous years.

Pennock, the great left-handed pitcher who died Jan. 30 en route to a National League meeting in New York, led the candidates with 94 votes. Traynor, Pittsburgh third baseman for 17 years, polled 93 votes. According to the rules, 75 per cent of the votes cast —or 91 votes—were required for election. More than 300 writers were eligible to vote. A total of 121 votes were cast.

Boston Bruins Coach Has Little To Say

Dit Clapper, coach of the Boston Bruins, could throw no light on the recent charges of gambling in the NHL.

"I don't know anything more about it than what was in the papers," he said, but expressed the opinion that it would be unlikely that responsible officials would make such serious statements if there were not some basis.

"Where there's smoke there's fire," Dit remarked.

In the city visiting his family on Thursday, he left this morning to rejoin his team on their trip to Chicago for the Sunday night game there.

Canadiens, Hawks Facing Elimination

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Dick Irvin, the celebrated pigeon fancier from Regina, and Charles Conacher, former Toronto Maple Leaf hockey star, are brothers under the skin right now. They'd like it better if they could get under the skins of some of the other National Hockey League coaches.

For Irvin, and his Montreal Canadiens, And for Conacher and his Chicago Black Hawks, this coming week-end might well rub out any lingering hopes they have of pulling their teams into the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The two bottom clubs are seeing their chances of surviving diminishing with mathematical precision. And they both essay the role of giant-killer on Saturday night. The Canadiens entertain the second-place Detroit Red Wings, and the Hawks play at the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs.

As it stands now, Canadiens are seven points behind Boston Bruins who hold the fourth and last play-off spot, and the Hawks are nine points behind. The Canadiens have only 11 games left, the Hawks 10, before the wind-up March 21.

Have Another Go

The Toronto and Montreal games are the only ones down for decision Saturday night. On Sunday the tail-enders have another go, with the Canadiens at New York Ranger, and the Hawks entertaining the Boston Bruins.

It probably won't happen, but a double victory for the Canadiens and for the Hawks would throw consternation into the ranks of Boston and New York supporters.

The tail-enders can't hurt Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings. Those two clubs, with Toronto holding a two-point advantage, promise to duel all the way to the final for the league championship.

At Toronto today three of the six clubs will be using the same ice at Maple Leaf Gardens, but not of course at the same time. Leafs will work out for their game against Chicago, and the Hawks will do likewise. Charlie Conacher, who has revitalized the Hawks, would love nothing better than a victory over the Leafs on their own ground.

The third club working out at Toronto is Boston, polishing up for the Sunday night game at Chicago after losing to Leafs 4-2 Wednesday night.

March Hatcher Gets Boost In New Role

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 27 (AP)—After marking time as heroine in the "Oklahoma" road company, March Hatcher is due for a big boost in her career.

Mary, who made her film debut in "Variety Girl," is currently making "Isn't It Romantic?" and is about set to be loaned out for "Babes in Toyland" with Donnis Day.

All this activity is heartening to Mary, who suffered a setback when she lost out on the "Conn. Yankee" lead. Bing Crosby said she was too young to play opposite him.

New Contract

Robert Ryan was given a new contract the day after his Academy nomination for "Crossfire." His former salary was doubled and there are no options until the third year.

Bob works only three days (10 minutes' screen time) in "The Boy With Green Hair," but he is not complaining. "My first big break was a hit in a B picture," he says. "After that, I figured on how important a role is, not how big." Note Gloria Grahame is up for an Oscar for her three-day part in "Crossfire."....

Grapevine Dept.

Ginger Rogers' asking price is reported down to $175,000, from a high of $300,000. Another sign of the times....MGM is reported nearing a deal for "Oklahoma" rights, now that the show is closing in New York....

William Powell was surprised when I told him on the "Peabody" set that MGM is planning a comedy for him. "They'd better—if they expect to get their money's worth out of me," he said. "They are scheduled to pay me for the next five years"....

Notes to You

Barbara Stanwyck spends one-third of "Sorry, Wrong Number" on the telephone.....Did you know those two great character actors, Edmund Gwenn and Cecil Kellaway are cousins? Kellaway is playing a Gwenn-like role of a leprechaun in "For Fear of Little Men"....Harry Sherman says he has given up the California gold country as a location site for "Tennessee's Partner." Too many telephone wires and other newfangled things for a 49er film.

PARADE TO PENALTY BOX AS LEAFS BEAT BRUINS—Toronto Maple Leafs took over, Wednesday night, sole possession of first place in the NHL, when they beat the Boston Bruins 4-2 in a game played at Maple Leafs Gardens in Toronto. The first period was a standout exhibition of hockey at its best. The second period was a different story. It was highlighted by an outbreak of fisticuffs and bad tempers. It all started when Bill Ezinicki of the Leafs and Murray Henderson of the Bruins clashed behind the Boston goal. Seconds later a "mass feud" started. At one stage of the game the penalty bench was filled to capacity as three Bruins and four Leafs huddled around the busiest man of the evening, penalty timekeeper Ace Bailey. Above is a view of the "housing shortage" hitting the penalty box. The players, reading from left to right, are: Ed Harrison, Gus Mortson, Clare Martin, Bill Barilko, Bill Ezinicki and Murray Henderson. That's Ace Bailey, the penalty timekeeper, at the end of the bench. And on the ice, looking over the culprits, are Linesman George Hayes and Referee Butch Keeling.

Walcott Agrees To Meet Louis June 23

CAMDEN, N.J., Feb. 27 (AP). — The return heavyweight title bout between champion Joe Louis and challenger Jersey Joe Walcott is scheduled to become official today.

Jersey Joe, beaten in a split decision fight last December, announced last night he had agreed to meet the Brown Bomber at the Yankee Stadium June 23 and would place his name on the contract in the offices of the Twentieth Century Sport Club in New York.

Louis in England for a series of exhibition bouts, previously had affirmed a return engagement against the 34-year-old Camden man who twice floored him in their previous engagement.

Under the terms announced, Jersey Joe will receive 20 per cent of the net receipts and 22½ per cent of the movie rights. Walcott's advisory board, headed by Felix Bocchichio, who has first call on his services, and manager Joe Webster, had been holding out for 30 per cent. Louis will receive 40 per cent of the gate and 30 per cent of the movie income.

Walcott also consented to give Louis a return bout in the event he wins the title. If a third fight is necessary, they will split the purse on a 30-30 basis.

Acceptance by Walcott came at the presentation of the heavyweight "championship" belt to Jersey Joe by the Police Gazette before some 5,000 of his admirers at Convention Hall. The Police Gazette said it believed Walcott beat Louis in December and was rating him the champion.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Walter Brown, vice-president of the Amateur Hockey Association, whose team represented the United States in the Olympic games, said on his arrival at New York from Europe yesterday that "I doubt very much whether there will be any more winter Olympics."

"The whole thing is too commercial," he said. "The international Olympic committee is a self-appointed and self-perpetuated organization. There is nothing democratic about it. . ."

He said, however, that the United States team "got everything that anyone else got." He added: "Avery Brundage said if the Amateur Hockey Association played he would withdraw all American competitors from the game. I hated that, because I didn't want to be a dog in the manger. Well we played, and they didn't withdraw."

Lord Chief Justice Godbard in the High Court at London yesterday dismissed with costs an action brought against the Jockey Club which controls flat racing in Britain. Trainer James Russel had claimed damages for alleged breach of contract and for alleged libel in the racing calendar.

Heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis and his wife moved out of their $30-a-week apart in London yesterday because it was too cold, said promotor Jack Solomons. The apartment, heated only by fireplaces, is one of the swankiest in London.

Mike Spinelli, manager of the late Sam Baroudi who died after a Chicago fight with Ezzard Charles last Friday, has been suspended by the New York Athletic Association because he no longer manages any fighter.

Likely Extend Import Rule At Rugby Meet

By JACK MITCHELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Feb. 27 — (CP). — Football's import rule, its two-year trial period run out, comes up for renewal by the game's policy - makers here Saturday amid every indication the regulation will be extended at least in its present restricted form.

That means in effect that there's scant chance of gridiron's Grey Cup division departing from its post-war mode of unprofessed professionalism before next season.

The rule permitting any team to buy up to five United States imports was voted into effect at thte Canadian Rugby Union's 1946 annual meeting. It brought the U.S. stars back to the game, and thus the big money brigade, following a noble experiment in near-amateurism.

The highwater mark of simonpure was reached in 1941 when Balmy Beach's Bobby Porter was temporarily barred because, as a former pro baseballer, he didn't have an AAU amateur card.

It seems unlikely any of this spirit of '41 will crop up at the CRU's annual conclave tomorrow, however—at least among the three senior leagues that challenge for the Grey Cup.

The only team raising its voice for a change in the import rule was Montreal Alouettes, and the Als want the rule liberalized. Leo Dandurand, Alouettes president, pumped for wiping out the clauses that classify all Americans not resident in Canada before Jan. 1, 1946, as imports. That would make homebrews of a couple of Alouettes holdovers from last season and permit them to start afresh with five more imports this fall.

But this proposal was voted down at the annual meeting of the Big Four so isn't likely to reach the CRU floor.

Invite Campbell To Mich. Meeting

DETROIT, Feb. 27.—(AP). — The National Hockey League's probe of reported gambling within its ranks waited today while Michigan authorities attempted to tie together the numerous angles of an underworld inquiry it started.

Governor Kim Sigler asked N. H. President Clarence Campbell to attend a meeting in Lansing next Tuesday, when reports that two players placed bets on league games will be aired further.

Present also at the session will be Detroit Police Commissioner Harry S. Toy, whose investigation into the activities of James Tamer, paroled convict, touched off the hockey flurry.

Toy told Sigler that by Tuesday he would try to pick up "all the loose ends" in the picture and give his report to the governor, Campell and other state officials.

Reds Clinch Top AHL Spot

By The Canadian Press

Providence Reds have clinched first place in the American Hockey League's eastern circuit.

While most fans watched Cleveland and Pittsburgh fight it out for leadership in the west, the Reds gradually pulled away from the eastern pack and their 8-5 conquest of Buffalo last night added the finishing touches.

In the only other game played last night, Washington Lions edged Indianapolis 5-4.

Carl Liscombe and Harry Taylor paced the Providence attack with a pair of goals each while Chuck Scherza, Pete Kaputsa, Harvey Fraser and Roger Bedard accounted for the others. Freddie Hunt led the Buffalo scoring with a pair of timely goals. Les Hickey and Hal Laycoe netted one apiece for Bisons.

At Washington, Lions grabbed a 3-0 lead and held on to edge Caps. Bob Walton and Roger Wilson led the Washington goalgetters with two each while Frank Porteous scored the other one. Barry Sullivan picked up two tallies for Indianapolis while Murdo McKay and Stan Podlosky picked up one each.

Huskies Win 5-4

By the Associated Press.

Walt Hergesheimer and Ducky Skinner received major credit as Houston and Minneapolis won United States Hockey League victories last night.

Skinner poked in three goals at Houston, his final tally being the victory margin in the 5-4 win the Huskies scored over St. Paul.

The third straight victory for Houston left the Huskies only a point behind first-place Fort Worth in the Southern Division standings.

Hergesheimer's role was not as spectacular, He was the last Minneapolis player to touch the puck before Fort Worth defenceman Bob Drainville accidentally knocked it into the Fort Worth goal for a 3-2 overtime Minneapolis win. Hergesheimer automatically received credit for the goal.

Think Coaltown May Take Crown

MIAMI, Feb. 27 — (AP). — The folks hereabouts who tell you that Citation will be the winner of racing's "triple crown" as well as to-morrow's Flamingo also will tell you that Warren Wright's Calumet colors may finish 1-2-3 in the Kentucky Derby—Calumet has entered seven horses in the Derby and they figure that Coaltown and Free America or Whirlblast could chase Citation home at Churchill Downs.....Coaltown, which was not raced as a two-year-old because trainer Jimmy Jones said he was "windbroken," really was something to see yesterday...He won by 12 lengths under 122 pounds and equalled the track record for seven furlongs.

In the Coal, Coal Ground

In case you are wondering about the name "Coaltown," here is the story behind his name.... Leslie Combs, a close friend of Wright, is constantly joking about being "the boy from Coaltown," a tiny hamlet near Lexington, Ky.....So when this colt came along, Wright decided: "Let's call him Coaltown," instead of letting Mrs. Wright pick the name.

IT RUNS, TOO—Back in 1905 gay blades had reason to yell "Get a horse" when a contraption like this backfired down muddy city streets, but, it was a beginning of the motor age. Constructed chiefly of wood, no top or windshield, brass oil lamps and tail light, its four-cylinder motor got the vehicle around. Owner Ross Hood points to the ancient power plant but Frank Coyle looks sceptical. Mr. Hood worked on this car as a boy in Port Perry, later bought it for a novelty. —Examiner Staff Photo

Cab Ontario Man Playing Bandit

DETROIT, Feb. 27—(CP)—A 18-year-old father of four children from Erieau, Ont., is held here today after Detroit police nipped what they said was his embryo career as a bandit who rode to the scene of robberies in taxi cabs.

Charles McGuire, who said he entered Detroit from Windsor last week, was arrested last night after a cab driver tipped police off that McGuire was going to attempt a holdup.

McGuire admitted hiring a cab to take him to a drug store where he robbed the clerk, Mrs. Gladys Dearnely, of $100.

Cab driver Baldessari Gusmona went to police with a story that McGuire had tipped him $20 and had asked to be picked up Wednesday night for "another ride."

Police asked Gusmona to return to his taxi stand in front of the hotel and wait until McGuire showed up. McGuire arrived on schedule. Police found a gun in his pocket.

Portugal Grows Restive Under Veteran Statesman

By STUART UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LISBON, Feb. 27 — (CP). — Storm signals are flying in Portugal for Dr. Oliveira Salazar, whose austere hand has been firmly on the tiller of the ship of state for 20 years.

Even his enemies admire the grimly efficient manner in which he has restored the Portuguese economy, but the semi-dictatorship he imposed to achieve his end is becoming intolerable to an increasing number of people.

"A deterioration has set in during the last two years," said one observer. "People are fatigued by these restrictions. They realize that they were necessary in 1928, when Salazar took over. But why should they be necessary now."

The more cynical say the spirit of revolt exists also among Salazar's' political followers, hungry for the plums of office which the former university professor has denied them. Apparently indifferent to material benefits himself, he expects his colleagues to serve with the same disinterest.

Some say his grasp is weakening due to ill health; others that his intense concentration of foreign policy during the war caused him to neglect domestic affairs, with the result that civic administration has become corrupt.

A showdown may be speeded this year by the impending resignation of aging President Carmono, beloved holder of an influential office. Salazar, now finance minister and chief of government has said he will never try to kick himself upstairs to this honorary position. But Carmona"s retirement will create a political vacuum that may touch off a wide series of changes. The post is filled by a free nationwide vote.

The 59-year-old Salazar must be embittered by the growing muttering against him. When he took office in 1928, at the request of military authorities who had seized power, the country had been disunited and impoverished by a succession of bloody revolutions.

He insisted on a carte blanche, pruned expenses, balanced the budget and began a program of industrial and social improvements. Standards of living in Portugal are low, but his goal has been to raise them gradually, in step with a slowly-strenghtening economy.

In Family's Interests

Salazar's political objective has been to establish a state that will protect the interests of the family. The state, he has said should "create the largest possible number of small proprietors who, far from assisting Communism or Socialism, will become a solid conservative foundation."

His views were embodies in the constitution of 1933, calling for a corporative state in which representatives of various industries and classes of society would have a voice in government. His critics admire many of his principles, but say too few have been put into practice and that government in Portugal is still too much a one-man affair.

Opposition to him is strongest among the professional and intellectual classes, but of late it has spread among the working classes, largely because of increased costs of living. Some Communist agitators are said to be at work, winning sympathy — if not support — because they identify themselves with the workers' 'interests.

Police keep a tight rein on civil affairs and have checked more than one conspiracy, the latest alleged to involve high-ranking army officers, now under arrest. Newspaper censorship excludes reports of domestic or foreign events which might have a disquieting effect on the people—in other words, give them ideas.

But the grumbling bubbles up as Lisbonese chatter in their cafes or sun themselves on the waterfront. It emerges in cruel little stories, like the one which has Salazar flying in an aircraft over a poor section of Lisbon.

"Those people down there need help — I'll drop down a 1,000-ecudo ($40) note and benefit some poor family," he says.

"Why not drop two 500-escudo notes, and benefit two families?"

After an argument they consult the pilot, who says: "Why not throw yourself down, and benefit thousands?"

Say Police Chief Assaulted Veteran Prisoner

ENGLEHART, Ont., Feb. 27—(CP).—E. E. Pearlman, counsel for the people of this town 30 miles south of Kirkland Lake, said today he would present the town's case tomorrow in the judicial hearing into a demand for the dismissal of Police Chief Carmen Eric Hostrawser.

In the enquiry instituted by the Attorney General's Department, Judge J. B. Robinson ordered a recess today but proceedings will continue tomorrow on the question of whether Hostrawser assaulted War Veteran John Kittner while arresting him last Dec. 23.

No legal charges have been laid against the police chief.

Allegations of perjury were heard at the enquiry yesterday. Witnesses told the Commission that Hostrawser had given inaccurate testimony in the case of a man arrested for driving while under the influence of liquor.

Beaten

Earlier, former council member James Legary said he had visited the jail the night of Kittner's arrest and seen bloodstains on the veteran's jaw and shirt, a mark under his left eye and a swollen nose.

Kittner testified he had been arrested in a restaurant, taken into a lane and slugged by Hostrawser while Provincial Police Constable Soroka held him helpless. He added that the chief had wanted to fight him upon arrival at the jail and had slapped him "a couple of times," when the challenge was refused.

What's the Good of
UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

$87,500,000 was paid from the Unemployment Insurance fund to unemployed Canadians from September 1, 1945, to October 31, 1947.

$31,000,000 was contributed to this fund by the Government of Canada.

500,000 individual unemployed workers and their dependants benefitted from these payments.

In many cases had payments not been available the unemployed would have suffered want!

What's the good of Unemployment Insurance?—Can there be any doubt!

Unemployment Insurance helps the employer by providing unemployed with purchasing power; and helps the worker by providing maintenance allowances during unemployment. Employer and Employee and the Government all have an interest—Unemployment Insurance is a large factor in a healthy National Economy.

Condemn Communist Coup In Czechoslovakia Clergymen Rap Russians

Opinions varying from condemnation of the present Communist-dominated government of Czechoslovakia, to a frank declaration that Russia must be smashed "before it is too late" were voiced by local ministers when canvassed by the Examiner on Friday morning regarding their attitude toward the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia.

Local ministers expressed a definite opinion but four had comment.

Rev. Dr. Semple

"A lasting world order can only be attained by smashing Russia," said Rev. Dr. James Semple, George Street United Church. Referring to the coup in Czechoslovakia, he said: "It was nothing more than what was expected. We are paying the penalty of an easy compromise.

"Stalin is a greater menace than Hitler. From every part of the world outside the Russian orbit come declarations that only a positive lead from the democratic nations can save mankind from the horror which overshadows tomorrow." That he said was the view of the Christian Century and other leading Christian publications.

Advocating positive steps to stop the Soviet advancement on Europe, he said: "A lasting world order can only be attained by smashing Russia. It may mean war if so let us have it before it is too late. Russia has ripped the Marshall Plan to shreds."

Rev. Ivan C. Morgan

"There is nothing new in Russia's code relative to Czechoslovakia. Mr. Stalin has made an astute and a long planned move, and he now has a complete block cutting off Greece and Turkey from the rest of Europe," said Rev. Ivan Morgan of Murray St. Baptist Church.

"Other moves can be expected, and the thing about which I am most concerned at the moment is what will happen to the churches in Czechoslovakia, and of course in particular my own, the Baptist Church. The vice-president of the Baptist World Alliance is a Czech, Dr. Henry Prochazka.

The churches are taking as active a part as they can, we are working on parallel lines with the U.N., and their work (the U.N.'s) cannot be completed without the church. The church is endeavoring to remake man and to raise man to the proper sense of values, and for that reason Communism is violently opposed to any activities the church may use.

Rev. E. C. Moore

"It looks very much like another Munich to me," said the Rev. E. C. Moore, St. George's Anglican Church.

"It is a dark day for all of us," he said; "the matter is more spiritual than political. Russia is a Godless nation and the sooner we realize this the better. In spite of all the ravings of the Dean of Canterbury there is no such thing as consideration of spiritual values there."

He said he had always admired Czechoslovakia, and described it as a land of spiritual culture—the contributions of both Roman Catholic and Protestant people. "It is a land that has produced great scholars right up to the present day. Czechoslovakia held out something very fine for us."

"The situation is worse than if Hitler had conquered," he said. "Only force will put them out."

Lindsay Rate May Jump One Mill To 38

LINDSAY, Feb. 27 — (ENS)—Lindsay Town Council met Thursday night to strike the estimates for 1948. Council hopes to set the 1948 mill rate at 37½ providing the Board of Education can reduce its estimates by a half a mill. If not Lindsay's rate will be 38 mills. The rate was 37 mills in 1947. The Board of Education placed its estimated expenditures before the council at $10,000 more than the 1947 expenditures. It was pointed out that the greater part of this increase is teachers' salaries. Following the receipt of applications for salary increases from both police and firemen, council gave a 5 per cent wage boost to every town employee. $900 was set aside for Old Home Week, and $1,200 for the Provincial Plowing Match to be held here in October. The request for a grant to the Victorian Order of Nurses was deferred. The usual grants were made to the hospital and exhibition. Council turned down an application from the Registered Nurses of the town for a grant to hire a secretary.

Court Was Brief

Court lasted exactly 75 seconds this morning, a record of some kind or other. Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, entered the courtroom at 10:02. The court adjourned at 10:03½.

Only two cases were written pleas of guilty of Francis Tedford, RR 2, Lakefield, who paid $5, and $4.50 costs, for failing to observe a stop sign, and Arthur Page, 291 Stewart Street, fined $5, and $2.50 costs, for speeding.

All Sections Of Tax Rate Show Increase

That part of the tax rate which comes within the direct control of the city council is 2.15 mills higher than last year. On an assessment of $3,000 that amounts to $6.45.

The items of the tax rate fall into three groups. In the general rate are included: police commission, public library, health department, charity, fire department, board of works and other spending sections of the municipal household.

In the special rate, which is increased 2.77 mills, is provision for the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, Public Schools, Separate Schools, Civic Hospital, Anson House, House of Providence, Welfare.

The third division of the tax rate, where there is an increase of 3.11 mills is allotted to debenture charges, principal and interest on past borrowings.

With that explanation, a comparison of the rate in its constituents may be of interest. The three divisions of the rate, again, are general, Special and debentures, and the figures are in mills.

HOW TRUE!

An "aside" story a speaker told his audience in the city earlier this week will find sympathetic hearing from many amateur gardeners. Both he and his wife are part-time agriculturalists, he said, his wife looking after the flowers in the borders, while hubby struggles with the vegetables. He pointed out, last summer, to his wife, that there was a bag of properly mixed fertilizer in the garage which could be used on the flower beds. Several weeks later, checking to see if more was needed, he was startled to discover that his diligent helpmeet had been delving deeply into a bag of CEMENT. He reported, with some amazement, that the flowers seemed to do all right on it, too.—R.B.

Operatic Group Coming To City

The Canada Packers Operatic Society of Toronto under the direction of W. Richard Curry is coming to Peterborough on Saturday April 3 to present its annual operatic show in the collegiate auditorium. This year the company is presenting the comic opera Merrie England. The company is being brought to Peterborough by the Men's Association of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

The story of Merrie England takes place during Queen Elizabeth's reign, complete with such historical characters as the Queen Sir Walter Raleigh and the Earl of Essex. Some of the most popular songs are the English Rose, The Yoemen of England, and the lovely Waltz Song. There are also several impressive dance ensembles executed by the Bettina Byers Academy of Ballet.

The Canada Packers Operatic Society is a voluntary amateur group composed of Canada Packers employees and members of their families. It originated 12 years ago to offer leadership in the annual singing of Christmas carols by the Company's employees, a function which it still performs. The society has a membership of 90. They meet once or twice weekly the year around for rehearsals and the past performances have included The Gondoliers, Iolanthe, The Pirates of Penzance, Utopia Limited and The Mikado.

This year besides their six-day presentatiaon in Toronto they are appearing in Peterborough, Guelph Orillia and Kitchener.

Over The Top

Paige Rowell, one of the team captains in the Community Chest Drive reports that Goodwin Machine Tool with its nine employees went over the top today. All the donations were in cash, and not only did every employee give, but they reached out and took care of the 20 per cent increase in their stride, which everyone is being asked for during this campaign. Last year the objective was $50,000, and this year it is $60,000.

Banquet Starts Campaign To Get $60,000

Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund Campaign will be officially launched Friday night at a special dinner meeting for all workers participating in the campaign to be held in the CGE cafeteria at 6 p.m. Guest speaker to mark the beginning of this drive will be Hydro Commissioner Robert Saunders, who was recently appointed to that post, resigning as mayor of Toronto in order to do so.

Through this appeal it is hoped to do away with the individual soliciting of financial support by the various social agencies over the period of a year.

The campaign is for $60,000 and will last for the week of Feb. 27 to March 5. Campaign headquarters will be at 332½ George St. in the Bradburn Building.

Campaign Chairman R. L. Dobbin organized four divisions for effective canvassing. Together with the amount they are expected to raise, they are: Retail, $13,000; Industrial, $25,000; Special Names, $18,000; and Women's Division, $4,000.

Workers present at Friday night's dinner meeting will include representatives from various industries who are organizing the campaign in their own firms.

Mr. Dobbin said today he expects every canvasser to report returns daily, and also the first report meeting for captains will be held on Wednesday at four in the afternoon at Grafton's store.

The cost of the dinner tonight is borne by one of the local industries, and does not come out of the campaign fund.

May Stagger Hours

Wilson, president of the Toronto Hotelkeepers' Association, said yesterday hotel operators had received a suggestion from the Ontario Liquor License Board that beverage rooms might reduce consumption of electric power by staggering hours and possible earlier closing.

CPC Employees Treat Athletes

Thirty young hockey players will leave for Toronto Saturday morning to enjoy a trip to the museum, dinner and a hockey game, through the generosity and interest of the employees of Canada Packers. The two bantam teams making the trip are Morrow Park and Mark St. church.

Organized by a committee headed by Angus Bradley and including Thomas Ball, William Nash, James Goldie and William Downer, the thought behind the trip is to secure the interest of the industry in minor hockey and sponsor a team next year. The employees of the plan hope to sponsor the Morrow Park team. The Mark St. Church Bantams were also invited to make the trip, as they are winners of the church championship.

The trip will include a conducted tour of the Canada Packer's Toronto plant.

Colonel V. M. Eastwood, M.C., E.D., commanding officer of the 50th Heavy A.A., took the parade Thursday night, but deferred presenting the decoration to Major Hamilton in order that it might come from the hands of his former comrade of World War II.

Bread Increase Said Sanctioned

OTTAWA, Feb. 27 — (CP) — Evidence that the Domonion bakery administrator had given sanction to a three-cent increase in the price of bread in Toronto last September was presented today to the Commons price committee.

J. Leo Kelleher, at the time a Toronto bakery executive, testified Administrator Charles Ruttan had attended a September meeting of bakers and had told them a three-cent increase consequent on the removal of bread controls and flour subsidies would be justified.

Mr. Kelleher, Toronto plant manager of General Bakeries, had not recalled in previous testimony the presence of the bakery administrator at the Toronto meeting. He had thought it was attended only by bakers.

Today, he said the administrator advised the meeting the removal of subsidies on flour probably would add two cents to the costs of a loaf, and other increased costs would account for another cent.

Shortly after the session, Toronto bread prices went up by three cents generally.

Later Health Minister Martin, committee chairman, announced arrangements were being made to bring Col. Ruttan before the inquiry for evidence on the Toronto meeting. Also, K. J. Taylor, Prices Board chairman and Ruttan's superior, was to be asked to stand by for testimony.

Bishop Criticizes British Policy

MANCHESTER, Feb. 27 (Reuters).—Rt. Rev. Charles Venn Pilcher, Bishop Coadjutor of Sydney, Australia, and a former professor at the University of Toronto, today criticized the British Government's policy in Palestine and said that it appeared to be preparing for a "wholesale massacre" of the Jews in Palestine. The criticism was made in a letter in The Manchester Guardian.

"It is distressing that our policy, which apparently allows the Arabs to arm themselves to the top of their bent, should refuse to recognize the Jewish defence force as legal, and should endeavor, aided by the action of the American State Department, to prevent that army from securing necessary arms," he wrote.

"This policy appears to be preparing for a wholesale massacre of the Jewish inhabitants of Palestine when the British troops move out in May next."

Geo. R. Laird, 50 Held For Fraud

LONDON, Ont. Feb. 27 (CP)— Trial of George Ralph Laird, 50, of Peterborough, and Toronto, on a charge of fraud in connection with the publication of a "Masonic directory" was adjourned late yesterday at the request of defence counsel. Mr. Olch explained he wanted to catch a train to attend last night's NHL hockey game between the Maple Leafs and the Boston Bruins.

Laird is charged specifically with obtaining $15 for false pretences from Simon Gelech, local painting contractor.

Detective Oliver Sonley read his notes on questions put to Laird after his arrest and the answers given. Laird did not give a signed statement to police.

Mr. Olch argued that the answers given to Detective Sonley was inadmissable as evidence since the question and answers were not filled out until 14 minutes after Laird was returned to a police cell.

Magistrate Donald Mensies admitted the statements when Detective Sonley said he took notes at the time and he read the questions and answers from the notes. The magistrate ruled the accused had been properly warned and there was no inducement offered him to make any statement.

Single Veterans May Get Boost

OTTAWA, Feb. 27 — (CP) — Increases in the allowances of single student veterans with dependent mothers are under "active consideration," and an announcement granting them an additional $10 monthly is expected to be made shortly, it was learned today.

This would bring their allowances into line with increases being granted to married student veterans, announced Feb. 26 in the Commons by Prime Minister MacKenzie King. At that time married veterans were granted an increase from $80 to $90 a month, with increases to $18, $14, $12 and $10 for the first, second, third, fourth and subsequent children. Previously the allowance for children was $12 for the first two, $10 for the third and $8 for each additional child.

No increase was announced for single veterans, who receive $60 a month, and Veterans Minister Gregg, in response to a question from T. A. Kidd (PC-Kingston), said he would take under advisement a suggestion that student veterans with dependent mothers be granted the $10 increase.

All the increases concerning students will be made by order-in-Council, retroactive to last Jan. 1, although the increase is not expected to be reflected in cheques until April.

Chiang Decides To 'Steal' Communist Plan Woos Peasant Support With Land Reform

NANKING, Feb. 27—(AP)—The Chinese Government is about to set up its own land reform program in competition with the one now used by the Communists to woo support of China's millions of peasants.

Ministry of land administration officials say the first redistribution of land will be made in 17 provinces.

One official said the program is designed to convince China's long-suffering peasants that the government "is much more concerned with their welfare than the Communists."

He said the Communist land reform consists of taking the estates and properties of the rich and distributing farm land among the tenants. In return, the tenants must serve in the Communist armies.

This policy, the official added, "ruins the rich without helping the poor."

He said the government would buy from two sources: land taken by the Communists and subsequently recovered by government troops, and land reclaimed from once flooded areas along the Yellow River.

The government will finance the purchases with long-term "land bonds." The official said a survey of farm lands will be started soon.

2 European Aliens Flown To England

MONTREAL, Feb. 27—(CP)—Two members of a group of seven European aliens arrested in Toronto last month for entering Canada with bogus passports and ordered deported were flown to England Wednesday, imimgration officials said to-day.

The seven were brought here after their arrest and held in immigration detention quarters until their cases were reviewed. After their deportation was ordered they were freed on bond pending arrangements for their return to Europe.

The remaining five were said to be still in Toronto. All seven said they had paid large sums for the false papers which enabled them to enter Canada.

Make Mercy Trip

OTTAWA, Feb. 27 (CP)—Mrs. J. J. Hunt of Winnipeg, wife of a Hudson's Bay Company factor at Clyde River, Baffin Island, who was taken to Goose Bay, Labrador, in serious condition Tuesday, will be flown to Montreal today, air force headquarters announced last night.

District Scouter Fred Ford presented Second Class badges to Roderick Delaney, David Bacon, Don Wood, Trevor Hawkins and Hugh Bertram. Other guests at the banquet included Arch-Deacon Balfour, Scouters Pete Dominik, Albert Ingham, and Gordon Clegg.

Community Chest To Aid Visiting Homemakers

An organization created "to go into homes during sickness or other emergency to give, as far as possible, such service as the mother would give," is still in its formative stages in Peterborough. It is the Visiting Homemakers Association which includes members of the community who place a special value on home life, with representation from the professions, medicine, nursing, social service agencies.

Two other objectives of the association are "to teach the art of homemaking as opportunity offers, and to advance, by investigation and other methods, the present knowledge of nutrition and household management."

In carrying out these objectives, the association contributes to the development of stable homes in which children can grow up with health and a sense of security.

It is being established in Peterborough as a result of several years of experience on the part of social service workers. When the mother is confined or ill, and thus unable to fulfill her household tasks, small children do not receive the proper attention. Ofter the breadwinner is forced to remain at home to look after them, incurring a loss of income while doing so.

In Peterborough it is hoped to have a permanent Supervisor who will work on a part-time basis, and two permanent Homemakers who will be employed full time. During periods of abnormal pressure, auxiliary homemakers are used. For these homemakers there is no definite standard of training. They are selected on the basis of experience and reliability. They have no permanent employment with the Association. A number of resident homemarkers will also be available. They will live with the family to avoid the alternative of the broken home caused by the death of the mother or by her need for prolonged care in a sanatorium or other institution.

In allocating homemakers, whose average stay with one family will be 11 days, the deciding factor will be the need which has arisen and the opportunity for helpful service, not the fee which the family may be expected to pay.

Can Pay Little

It is apparent that most families are not able to afford the full cost of such a service and that as with hospitals, education, etc., it would have to be supported on a co-operative basis with the families paying all that they could afford and the balance made up from other sources—chiefly the Community Chest Fund.

Officers of this Visiting Homemakers Association include James Dutton Sr., president; Mrs. Maurice Holt, secretary; Wilson Gemmell, treasurer. Executives—Miss Rachael Young, superintendent Children's Aid Shelter; Miss Mary Ross, supervisor Victorian Order of Nurses; Miss Gene Clark, supervisor Department Public Health nursing; Miss Mary Greer, industrial nurse at CGE; Mrs. J. Hornal, and Mrs. J. Gallivan.

The visiting homemaker should prove a boon to the incapacitated mother and housewife. This is the youngest of social agencies that will benefit from the Red Cross and Community Chest Fund Campaign and it solicits your support.

Prime Minister and Mayor To Welcome Barbara Ann

OTTAWA, Feb. 27 — (CP). — Civic officials and officers of the Minto Skating Club said today that plans are just about ready for a "monster" reception March 9 for Barbara Ann Scott, Olympic figure-skating champion.

Present plans call for the young skater's reception at the Union Station by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Mayor Stanley Lewis of Ottawa, and various other dignitaries. She will participate in an open-car parade, accompanied by three bands, and at a specially erected reviewing stand in Confederation Sq. she will be accorded a public reception.

So far there is no indication of what form the city's presentation to Miss Scott will take. It is not known whether she will be able to accept the canary-colored phaeton she was given last year and which she was forced to give up in order to keep her amateur status.

Meanwhile, a huge pile of mail was accumulating at Miss Scott's home. Letters, parcels and postcards from all parts of the world have been streaming in, and some of the addresses are unique.

Items from various parts of Europe have been addressed to her in localized forms of her Christian name with which she was dubbed overseas. A number of others are addressed "O Canada," instead of just "Canada."

Pointing up romance, many of the letters are marked "Personal," with the word heavily underlined.

Firm Plans To Cancel Preferred Shares

MONTREAL, Feb. 27—(CP)—The directors of Aluminum Limited at a meeting yesterday called a special general meeting of the shareholders of the company for March 23, to consider a special by-law cancelling the authorized preferred shares, all of which are unissued or retired and splitting the common shares five-for-one.

If the bylaw is approved by the shareholders, the company will immediately apply for the supplementary letters patent required to make the by-law effective.

Common shareholders of record at the close of business on the day such supplementary letters patent are granted will automatically become the registered holders of five common shares of the company for each one share held.

There are 744,410 common shares now outstanding, and the five-for-one subdivision will change them into 3,722,050 shares.

1,000 Guerrillas Kidnap 200 Villagers

ATHENS, Feb. 27—(AP)—The Greek Ministry of Public Order announced that 1,000 guerrillas had raided the villages of Almyros and Xeinopuolis two nights ago. The villages are approximately a mile apart, south of Volos, in the plain of Thessaly.

The attackers managed to penetrate both towns, the ministry said. Press reports said between 170 and 200 persons were adducted by the insurgents. The ministry did not specify the number taken.

The guerrillas came down out of 5,000-foot Mount Othrys. The ministry said six guerrillas were known to have been killed and two others wounded. The retreating insurgents were believed to have carried away another 30 dead. Greek Government forces lost two dead and three wounded.

Despatches said Greek Army offensive operations were under way in the Zagoria district northeast of Ioannina in Epirus. Fifteen guerrillas were killed and six captured.

Suggest Mother Left Children When Ordered

OTTAWA, Feb. 27 — (CP). — Mrs. Edna Emery, with her four children in the care of the Children's Aid Society, today is expected to mount the witness stand in defence of a charge that she had abandoned and neglected to provide for two sons and two daughters. She also faces an additional charge of neglect with resultant injury to health.

Yesterday, some 300 spectators packed county court to hear testimony by crown witnesses that the 29-year-old woman had left her four children alone in a "filthy, nauseating" trailer on a night when the temperature dropped to 19 below zero and that she had left them at least three times previously this winter.

One witness, Dr. Henry Loeb, said he had examined the 11-months-old boy, George Emery, when the children were placed in custody of the Children's Aid Feb. 10.

The infant was underweight, dehydrated, suffering from "diaper rash" and showing signs of rickets.

He had also examined June Emery, 18-months-old, but had found her "fairly well nourished."

Ordered To Leave

Earlier, the defence suggested Mrs. Emery had been ordered to leave by her husband, Leo Emery, whose trial on similar charges will be heard later. The defence stated Mrs. Emery had gone to an Ottawa lodging house with a black eye and bloody legs, after her husband had beaten her four days before police found the children alone early Feb. 10.

Jack Finan, Toronto salesman, testified he had visited the trailer with provincial police constable Hugh Robertson and found four children, ranging from five months to six years, alone amidst "a nauseating odor and very unsanitary conditions."

The baby was "blue with cold," soaking wet and scantily clad in a basket beside a "very draughty window." The others were sleeping on abutments or shelves, covered with coats or a blanket that bore human excrement.

The neighbor who called police, Jack Morris, said he considered the Emerys an unhappy, fighting couple. The husband "gets drunk quite often" and Morris had seen Mrs. Emery with a black eye and scars.

It was Amateur Night for Murray St. CGIT Wednesday. "We Are Climbing Jacob's Ladder," sung by the group as processional music, opened the worship service led by Irene Kelly and Joan Naish. Diane Burnley was in the chair for a brief business session, following which the amateur program began. Much talent was displayed by the girls, providing an evening of hilarious entertainment. Three piano solos found a place on the program—Alice Pilling played "Knicknacks"; Arlene Nixon, sometimes with music and sometimes without, skillfully played "Lily Ponds"; and Joy Arnott chose "The Merry Peasant" as her number. New riddles, led by Patsy Weston, kept the girls guessing and Irene Kelly delighted her audience with a camp version of "Let Me Call You Sweetheart." Diane Vernley chose Stephen Foster's song "Beautiful Dreamer" as her vocal solo. Barbara Yelland and Blance Quinn were also among the vocal soloists. "Home On The Range" was a selection sung in duet form by Audrey Sylvester and Alyson Preston. Wilma Wright entertained the girls with "Ballerina." Herbie, the flea, under the direction of Magician Jean Mailing, taught the girls how to do double back flips, and Marion Pogue entertained with "Inky Pinky Pider."

Two new members were welcomed to the group, Joan Naish and Ruth Drury.

Note that henceforth meetings begin at 6.45 p.m., on Wednesday.

Pageant Shows Progress To Temperance

A clever pageant depicted the course of temperance in the Dominion during and since two world wars, and marked the observance of Frances E. Willard day by the WCTU at their meeting Thursday in the YWCA. Opening remarks by the president, Mrs. E. Wand, asked for a wider outlook in the temperance field.

Actors in the pageant took their places on the platform to the strains of "Onward Christian Soldiers." Miss Emma Might represented Miss Willard and Miss M. Ferguson appeared as "Canada."

Questioned as to the changes that have taken place in temperance work and reform since early days, Canada gave an interesting summary of conditions and legislations. She stressed the fact that during World War I there were no open canteens as in the second.

Nine ladies, representing as many provinces, commented upon the temperance situation as it is at present in that province. This vivid picture, not only of the past, but of present conditions, showed progress in many ways.

Temperance hymns interspersed the program and Mrs. F. Board contributed a group of solos, "Just For Today" and "It Was For Me," accompanied by Mrs. McNeill. The scripture was read by Mrs. A. Campbell, after which Mrs. H. T. Rehill offered prayer.

A brief business period consisted of a letter of thanks from Mrs. Taylor of Curve Lake for the fine Christmas bale received. An appropiation of $50 was voted to the budget fund and the date of next meeting was advanced one week to Thursday, April 1st.

The new pension rate is $35 a month. The insurance change gives "standard public liability coverage of $5,000 for one person of $10,000 for any accident and property damage of $1,000" to all motorists with no change in the annual rates of $1 for operators and from $4.50 to $6 for owners.

No new taxes were announced and for, the first time the budget included in its revenue estimate anticipated profits of $600,000 from the 15 Government enterprises started since CCF came to power in 1944.

He said the RCMP seized documents in raids on the home of Mrs. Eleanor Griffith of Edmonton, secretary of the IODE Alberta Chapter, and on the organization's headquarters, and added:

Banks Report $1410 Donated To Aid the Children Fund

Peterborough citizens, up until Wednesday evening, have donated a total of $1,416 to the Appeal for Children. A check on all the chartered banks of the city show that donations to the appeal vary from a dollar to fifty dollars — and higher yet. All chartered banks are authorized to receive donations for this, and will provide temporary receipts. Official receipts, eligible for income tax deductions, will be mailed from the national headquarters of the drive later.

The campaign, which will be open for donations until the end of March, is sponsored by the Canadian section of the United Nations Appeal for Children, combined with the appeal of the Canadian Council for Reconstruction through UNESCO.

National objective for the fund has been set at $10,000,000. Chairman of the Ontario drive is Chief Justice J. C. McRuer.

The object of the drive is to provide food and clothing, and, wherever possible, education, for the destitute children of Europe, victims of the recent war. It will be distributed and administered under UN direction.

Oven-Cooked Meals Offer Way to Save Electricity

BY KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Feb. 27 —(CP)— Housewives in Canada's power-short areas might try turning out more oven-cooked meals as one means of economizing on electricity.

And if they started out on a day of cake and cookie baking, it is much easier to cook dinner in the directly-heated oven--and it does save on electricity.

For The Main Courses:

Liver Loaf--Ingredients: one pound beef of pork liver; two cups bread crumbs; one cup medium onion; one quarter-cup tomato juice or vegetable juice; one teaspoon salt.

Method: Put liver through meat grinder; add bread crumbs, onion, tomato juice and salt; put in greased baking dish and place in pan containing warm water; bake slowly 30 or 40 minutes.

As An Alternative:

Liver with vegetables-- Ingredients: 1½ pounds beef or pork liver; two tablespoons fat; one tablespoon salt; one cup celery; or two teaspoons dried celery leaves; two small onions; six carrots; one-half cup tomatoes; one-quarter cup vegetable water; two tablespoon flour.

Method: Prepare celery, cut in pieces and put in bottom of greased baking dish, sprinkle with salt. Cut liver in pieces for serving, place on top of celery, and dot with fat. Chop onion and dice carrots. Put these with the tomato and vegetable water. Add to liver. Bake in moderate oven 45 minutes, keeping dish covered during first half hour of cooking. Thicken gravy with flour and serve hot.

For Dessert:

Indian pudding--Ingredients: One-third cup cornmeal; four cups milk; one-half teaspoon ginger; one-half teaspoon cinnamon; three-quarters teaspoon salt, one-half cup light molasses.

Heat milk in double boiler, whisk in cornmeal with a fork and cook for 20 minutes, stirring until mixture thickens; add molasses, salt, spices; pour into buttered dish; place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven about one hour, or until set.

Bread and butter pudding--Ingredients: Raisins, two cups bread crumbs; four cups milk; one-third cup brown sugar; one-half teaspoon salt; flavoring; two tablespoons butter; one or two eggs.

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

WEDDING FRILLS
Girl Demands Elaborate Church Ceremony

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My daughter, 17 years old, has just announced to me that she is not going to return to college to finish even her first year there, and that she is going to be married, and she insists upon having a church wedding. We are people of very modern means and as we had considerable expense with her high school graduation last June, then getting her off to college in September, we do not feel that we can financially afford a wedding at this time, though we would like to make her as happy as possible under the circumstances.

Will you please suggest the most informal and inexpensive church service that we might have that would be free from the criticism of the small town in which we live?

MOTHER.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If your daughter wanted a church wedding because it gives an added solemnity to the marriage ceremony for a man and woman to make their vows to cleave unto each other in sickness and health, for richer for poorer, until death do them part, it would be easy enough to answer your question. It would be a mere matter of stepping around to the nearest church of their faith, with a few friends or relatives, and there have their clergyman say over them the most solemn words that human ears ever hear.

Simple Ceremony Economized

It would cost only a few dollars, for there would be no flummery of satin and tulle veils and bridal attendants and music and flowers, etc.

But your 17-year-old daughter isn't considering the solemnity of the occasion. She is thinking of how beautiful she is going to look in a bridal gown, and there is no way of doing that cheaply. Even a home wedding runs into money, and by the time father has paid for the wedding finery and the decorations (and the refreshments he is burdened with debts.

It is easy to say how silly girls are to want a swanky wedding that they can't afford and how weak the parents are to indulge their daughters in their folly, but I don't know. From the time every girl baby can plan at all, she is dreaming about walking up the church aisle in white satin and orange blossoms, while everybody ohs and ahs about what a lovely bride she makes.

It is the one great moment of her life. Often it is the last one. But is is the one thing she remembers through all the years of cooking and washing and baby-tending, and maybe it is worth what it costs.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl of 17 and I have never done anything in my life to be ashamed of. I respect my parents in every way, but I have an old-fashioned father who will not permit me to have any of my boy friends come to the house. Every time a boy comes to my home to pick me up to take me out my father yells at me and tells me to break away, and that he is going to kick him out the door the next time he comes.

This has gotten on my nerves so bad that I feel they are jumping out of my body. Is it right for my father to treat me this way?

A VERY NERVOUS GIRL.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It is not only wrong but shows that your father is not using his judgment and commonsense. For he must know that a pretty young girl is going to have dates and boy friends, and that if she cannot have her company in her own home and with the knowledge and approval of her parents, she will do it on the sly and goodness knows where, with goodness knows whom.

Probably your father thinks he is protecting you when he keeps you from going with boys, but, in reality, he is throwing you to the wolves. Tell him to have a heart and also some commonsense.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My girl and I are engaged, but we are very young and do not intend to get married until we both graduate from college, which will be in 1950 for me and 1949 for her Do you think any harm will be done if we are engaged?

PERPLEXED.

ANSWER: Not if you wait until 1950-1949. That will give you time to think it over and find out if you really want to get married.

CAMPUS QUEEN—McGill University in Montreal has a "campus queen"—and she's some baby! It all began when the University of British Columbia branch of the Canadian Legion challenged Second Great War Veterans to a Dominion-wide Beautiful Baby Contest. The UBC Legion at a meeting early in February passed a resolution expressing the belief that their members' babies were "not only the most beautiful babies at UBC but also at all universities in Canada." So "Operation Diaper," as it is known, started for married veterans attending university throughout the Dominion. More than 60 entries were submitted for the post, campus officials disclosed as they accorded the crown to 10-months-old Miss Helen Fefebvre, who has already submitted to be photographed from various angles. The new campus queen's father is a former captain in the Canadian Army. His home is at Beauport, Que. After serving in the armed forces, he resumed his interrupted education and entered second year engineering at McGill in 1945-46. He hopes to gain his engineering degree this year.

ALTHOUGH an undercurrent of the treacherous, hidden and perhaps sinister, still pervades the affairs, business as well as personal, yet there is excellent promise for successful endeavors in launching most ambitious programs. These may involve change, travel, fresh tactics and ideas, in which originality, ingenuity and skill may attract keen interest from those in influential places The element of personality, charm, even romance, may add to the powers for achievement but in all keep alert to duplicity, false pretenses, and safeguard reputation.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have to cope with hidden and undercover factors, affecting the personal as well as business life. Promises of exceptional success and progress are sutained by brilliant idea, surprising change of methods, skills and techniques involving a complete about-face in ways and means. Fresh environs and dramatic adventure are in sight, but all demand alert and circumspect conduct less duplicity and treachery involve the reputation and standing.

A child born on this day is endowed with exceptional talents, skills and qualities for outstanding success and honors in life, albeit best by deception, suspicion and duplicity with reflection on its good work and name.

Farm Economy Very Confused Urge Ottawa To Aid Agriculture

OTTAWA, Feb. 27—(CP).—The Canadian Federation of Agriculture said yesterday the Dominion is "in a sort of no-man's-land between a controlled and a so-called free economy" and urged Government steps to stabilize agricultural markets and prices.

At an annual meeting with members of the Federal Cabinet, CFA directors presented a brief recommending:

1. International commodity agreements.
2. Stabilization of feed prices and placement of coarse grains marketing under the Canadian Wheat Board.
3. Continuation of freight assistance on feeds "until such time as it may be embodied in a national grain policy."
4. Floor prices for agricultural products.
5. Federal marketing legislation "without further delay."

The aggregate return of agriculture last year probably was about the highest in Canadian history "but it by no means follows that all Canadian farmers had satisfactory incomes," the brief continued.

Profits Cut

Farmers' profits margins had been reduced by higher production costs, principally caused by increased prices. The situation now is "unsettled and confused" and there is "much uncertainty" about prospects for 1948.

"The international situation is disturbing to agriculture as it is to all governments. Although we are in the third postwar year, peace is not by any means assured, recovery is lagging badly and political disorders and upheavals are widespread.

"In Canada apparently we are at a crucial point in the transition from a wartime to a peacetime economy. We are in a sort of no-man's-land between a controlled and a so-called free economy. We are torn by the pull between sterling and dollar markets. Our economy is in somewhat of a precarious position because of inflation trends, which unless checked soon are riding for a fall if not a crash."

Price Control

Anglo-Canadian food contracts and embargoes on Canadian exports in the United States "have subjected agriculture to a type of price control which does not apply in other industries," the CFA said.

"This control works to the benefit of consumers in Canada by holding prices lower than they otherwise would be." A balanced national economy required that agriculture's returns be on a par with those of other major industries.

"We do not believe that prices received by farmers for food products are relatively as high as other prices in our Canadian economy.

Therefore, any attempt to single out farm produce as special objects of attack by arbitrary price-fixing is unfair unless price controls are also placed upon major items entering into farmers' costs of production.

No Need for Ceiling

"In the case of meats, the operation of the contract with the United Kingdom acts as an effective price control and our feeling is that there is no need of fiixng any arbitrary ceilings on meats as far as the producers are concerned. This does not mean that we condone unfair markups (margins of profit) in the wholesale and retail trade and, if action is to be taken, it should apply only to marginal markups."

In the brief, the CFA "emphatically protests" introduction of net-worth statements into farmers' income tax returns. The Federation's tax recommendations:

1—Government appointment of a board of review—with farmer representation—to pass on all cases where farmers were taxed on the basis of net worth.

2—Removal of a regulation requiring farmers to deduct tax from the wages of seasonal employees.

3—That the official assessment be made on tax returns within 12 months from the date of filing.

4—Exemptions for single persons be boosted to $1,200, for married persons to $2,400.

The Federation urged a national health insurance plan to include all Canadians, "with equal service for rural and urban areas; more adequate assistance for educational work in cancer; provision of hospitals to further educational work in arthritic and rheumatic research; and "greater emphasis" on a clean bill of health for immigrants.

Wants To Know If Mr. King Had Warning of Jap War

OTTAWA, Feb. 27—(CP).—The Progressive Conservative Opposition, pressing for details of the ill-fated defence of Hong Kong in 1941, tossed another demand for information into the Government's lap yesterday. Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel) asked in the Commons whether Prime Minister Mackenzie King was aware, three days before Canada's Hong Kong force of 2,017 sailed for the Far East, that war in the Pacific was imminent.

The Hong Kong controversy, subject of full-dress debate earlier this week, was injected by Mr. Graydon into the Throne Speech debate. He also demanded that the Government make public the complete evidence of the Royal Commission which in 1942 investigated the organization and dispatch of two Canadian regiments.

Prime Minister King, absent from the Commons yesterday because of a cold, announced Tuesday that the commission evidence will be tabled, with certain coded messages "paraphrased." He said a letter written in 1942 by Premier Drew of Ontario, criticizing the commission findings, will not be tabled.

Quotes Editorial

Mr. Graydon quoted an editorial in yesterday's edition of a Toronto paper which said, in part:

"Could it be that Mr. King's reluctance (to table the Drew letter), which is going to fantastic lengths, is due to the fact that Mr. Drew referred to a communication from a high British diplomat, dated October 24, 1941, telling Mr. King that 'altered circumstances' obtained in the Pacific?

"Is this the document he is afraid to put before the public, because it shows that Mr. King knew, three days before the sailing of the Hong Kong expedition, that these untrained, unarmed men would not be facing a period of ordinary garrison duty, but the virtual certainty of brutal war?"

Mr. Graydon continued:

"What I want to know....and what Canadians generally want to know is, did the Prime Minister receive, see or have any knowledge of the communication referred to in this editorial?"

He wondered how the Prime Minister—if he did not know of the communication— could condone that part of the commission report which said "best-informed opinion" available at the time of the sailing was that "hostilities would not arise in the near future."

Kingston School Tax Raised 2.18 Mills

KINGSTON, Feb. 7.—Kingstonians will pay taxes for general school purposes this year at the rate of 2.18 mills, if estimates approved by the board of education are endorsed by city council. Rate of taxation this year for school purposes will be 20.19 mills as compared with 18.01 mills in 1947.

This increase represents an over-all cash increase of $41,858.91. Tax levy in 1947 was $314,254.91; estimated for this year it will be $356,113.82. Increase in expenditures for public schools is estimated to be $16,597.32 this year; for collegiate purposes, $6,214.62; for vocational, $19,046.97.

Major items are the larger salaries being paid the staff, the salaries of four new teachers who will be required this fall for new Frontenac school and the increased overhead resultant from the 10-room Churchill school and the 16-room Frontenac school.

Provincials Checking On Hockey Tickets

LINDSAY, Feb. 27 (CP). — Officials of the Provincial Police anti-gambling squad, acting on information that hockey pool tickets were being distributed from Montreal to stores here, searched a number of premises yesterday.

In one store, police said they uncovered a number of tickets in which the prizes were large.

"We seized a number of these hockey pool tickets in Toronto about a month ago," a senior police official said. "They had been sent from Montreal."

No arrests were reported.

Britain Shows Some Signs Of Recovering

By The Canadian Press

Overshadowed by the events in Czechoslovakia, the announcement yesterday by Britain's Fuel Minister Hugh Gaitskel that the United Kingdom intends to export up to 16,000,000 tons of coal this year ranks high in importance for the European recovery program.

Added to the recent reports of greatly improved European crop conditions, the success potential of the entire program is considerably enhanced.

Western Europe's recovery from the devastation of the war years has been delayed largely by the need for coal to bring into production scores of idle factories. Before the war this highly industrialized area depended on British coal for power and fuel but in the immediate post-war period Britain was unable to continue her role.

Just as news of improved crop conditions in Europe played a considerable part in the drop in grain prices early this month and thereby acted as a brake to inflationary trends in food prices, such improvement in British coal production and its aid to European industry may have similar reactions on prices generally. It is precisely because of world-wide shortages and the resultant competition for the available supplies that price levels have reached present heights.

Markets both in Canada and the United States continued to mark time with professional trading in the security markets providing the major action.

Mr. Abbott said the control of these items is part of the government's exchange - conservation program.

Pigeon In Two Wars Has 31st Birthday

FORT MONMOUTH, N.J., Feb. 27.—(AP).—Kaiser attains his 31st birthday today to the wonderment of the pigeon breeding world.

The famous United States Signal Corps bird, rated by Signal Corps experts as the oldest pigeon in the history of the breed, served with honors in two wars and with two armies.

Kaiser was captured during the First Great War during an American charge on a front line trench in the Meuse offensive of 1918. He had been trained by the German Army as a carrier pigeon. The United States services of supply immediately pressed him into service.

During the Second Great War his offspring carried on in the Kaiser tradition.

CANON CITY, Colo., Feb. 27—(AP)—Rough, tough Warden Roy Best said yesterday he is going to raise Jimmy Melton, 12-year-old convicted killer, "Like my own kid." "I can't put that kid behind bars to be with the toughest thugs and bums in the state," Best declared. "I'm going to take him into my home, let him go to school."

Fear Czech 'Red' Victory Means Strikes In France

PARIS, Feb. 27. — (AP).—A new batle over the barricades at Marseille raised fears today that the Communist victory in Czechoslovakia will be followed by a second round of strike troubles for France.

Press reports from Marseille said 2,000 strikers at the big Mediterranean port city blocked approaches to a sugar refinery there yesterday and fought with troops who cleared them away.

Strikes and disturbance at Marseille set off the string of troubles last November and December which almost developed into a general walkout.

Moderate labor circles eyed the calendar seriously. They speculated on the charges which have been made by rightwing leaders that Communists are planning a spring offensive to start March 1 in France and Italy and reach a peak about April 15. Socialists in the Belgian Government recently declared Communists were trying to bring that country into the strike operation.

Earlier this week Marseille dock workers, who were in the van of the disturbances there last November, staged a two-day "warning walkout" that brought all activity to a standstill in France's greatest port. They threatened a repeat performance.

A HOLD OUT — Vaclav Majer (right), Social Democratic leader and minister of food, is shown here with President Eduard Benes. Majer, the last important right-wing holdout against the Communists who took over Czechoslovakia, was reported to have been attacked by Communist strong-arm men armed with knives. The reported attack came after Majer refused to go along with party left-wingers in siding with the Communists of Premier Klement Gottwald, who announced a new cabinet composed of Communists and pro-Communists. Fears are expressed that Benes is being held a "virtual" prisoner in the presidential castle in Prague.

Dr. L. H. Newman Retires As Dominion Cerealist

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—(CP). — Dr. Leonard H Newman, for 25 years a power behind the throne of wheat kings, will retire tomorrow from the post of Dominion cerealist.

He was appointed in 1923 to succeed the late Sir Charles Edward Saunders, developer of the world-famous arquis wheat.

Under Mr. Newman's direction as head of the cereal division of the Agriculture Department's experimental farms service, have been evolved important new varieties, notably the rust-resistant Renown, Regent and Saunders wheats used in western Canada.

These and other varieties—Coronation and Cascade wheats, Vanguard and Beaver oats and Garnet and Reward wheats — have brought wheat-king titles to many growers.

Born in Ontario

Dr. Newman, 66, was born at Merrickville, Ont He graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph in 1903 and did post-graduate work at Iowa State College, Cambridge Univeersity and at Svalof, Sweden.

From 1905 until his appointment as cerealist, he was secretary- treasurer of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association In 1936 the University of New Brunswick conferred on him an honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

He is a past president of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists and a member of the American Society of Agronomists, the Genetics Society of America, the Association Francais Pour L'Advance Des Sciences, the Sveriges Utsadesforening, Sweden, and the Association Internationale Des Slectionneurs De Plants.

2 Ground Men Enjoy Ride In Stolen B-27

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Feb. 27—(AP)—"This was the most fun I've had since the war." That was the enthusiastic comment of Sgt. Glen D. Woods, a radio operator accused by the United Stase Air Forces of taking a B-17 on an unauthorized 1,700-mile jaunt.

Arrested with Woods was his "co-pilot" Sgt. Theodore A. Havens Jr. They arrived under military custody from Caracas, Venezuela, where they landed the Flying Fortress on Monday. The two sergeants told questioners they made the flight only for adventure.

It was the first time either man had flown a plane. Woods, who said he handled the controls the entire trip, said he just did what he had seen pilots do.

DEFENCE MINISTER — The iron curtain has rung down on Czechoslovakia. With the exception of the presidency, held by Eduard Benes at the moment, every office is believed to be in the hands of Communists or pro-Communists. A hint of things to come came from National Defence Minister Ludvik Svoboda (above) in an order of the day to the Czech army, in which he said that the army must rally around President Benes—but, "we must remain true to the Soviet Union and our Allies . . . . be on guard against foreign spies, their domestic helpers and people who speak against the Soviet Union."

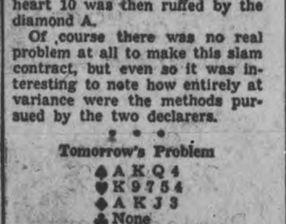
NOT THE SAME JOB

WHEN you note, by the scores at two tables of a duplicate tournament, that the same contract was bid at two tables and the same result obtained, your natural tendency is to imagine that the two declarers did exactly the same job, or approximately the same. If so, you will be wrong plenty of the time. The defense put up against the two may have been quite different, especially the opening lead, which sometimes very largely sets the tempo for what happens afterward.

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1♥	1♠	2♥	3♦
3♥	4♣	Pass	4♦
4♥	5♣	Dbl	5♦
Pass	6♦	Pass	Pass
Dbl



Opening leads of entirely different types, and for entirely different purposes, altered the course of events on this tournament deal. In one case West chose the club 2, as the secondly-bid suit of the dummy which might contain a re-entry for the spades. In the other West picked the heart A to make the dummy ruff with his surely short trump holding and thus upset the even tenor of the procedure.

Against the club lead, the K won, the A furnished a discard of the heart 7 and a third club was ruffed, eliminating the Q and setting up the suit's remainders. Then the diamond K and A removed hostile trumps and made the clubs useful to discard the last two hearts, leaving South only one loser, in spades.

Where the heart A was opened, the dummy's diamond 10 ruffed it. Two top clubs got rid of a second heart, a club ruff put South in his own hand and the heart 10 was then ruffed by the diamond A.

Of course there was no real problem at all to make this slam contract, but even so it was interesting to note how entirely at variance were the methods pursued by the two declarers.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

Why is "dummy reversal" play necessary for North to make 6-Spades here after East leads the club Q?

6—In Memoriam

HOPE — In loving memory of Mrs. Edna P. Hope, who died February 27, 1946.
The depths of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of one we loved so well.
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep.
—Ever remembered by the children, Mary, Jack and Victor.

SCRIVER—In memory of Nelson Scriver, who passed away three years ago Thursday, February 27, 1945.
When evening shades are falling
And we sit quietly alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing
If he only could come home
Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartache
Our smiles hide all the while.
—Ever remembered by wife and family, Hastings.

Damage Action Against City Is Dismissed

Mr. Justice D. C. Wells dismissed the action against the City of Peterborough brought by the administrator of the late Mrs. Little's estate, in the Spring sittings of the Supreme Court Thursday afternoon.

The case arose from injuries received when she fell on the icy sidewalk on George Street, January 23, 1947.

Mr. Justice Wells in summing up said there was no proof of gross negligence against the City of Peterborough. They had done what they could to keep the sidewalk clear, and though it had not been sanded on the day that the accident happened, it had been sanded for several days prior.

Counsel of plaintiff, Mr. A. Elliott, endeavored to show that the onus was on the city for not enforcing the Bylaw No. 195, passed December 30, 1900, which says that the City Engineer shall cause to have removed all snow and ice on sidewalks the property of persons who have neglected to clear away the snow and expense of such shall be charged against such person.

His Lordship said that there was no question that the condition of the sidewalk was bad and the bylaw was not enforced.

In dismissing the action against the City, His Lordship said that no costs would be allowed the plaintiff, despite the fact that expenses had been incurred to the sum of $390.

Mrs. Little died in March, 1947, and it is alleged that the cause of her death was due to pulmonary embolism resultant from her fall which fractured her hip.

Coast-To-Coast Trip Described

His pride in becoming a Canadian citizen was expressed by a province-to-province travelogue when Don Henshaw addressed the Kinsmen Club at their bi-monthly meeting held at the Kawartha Club Thursday night.

"I am proud of Canada," said the speaker. "It takes a lot of courage to leave the country of one's birth, but here I have found happiness, and I am glad that the Government has seen fit to pass a law that makes us all Canadians, when hitherto people born in this country did not hold that status."

Mr. Henshaw gave a graphic description of his travels from coast to coast. From happy associations with the miners and farmers of Cape Breton, he went on to describe the customs of the fishing folk of Nova Scotia, the boat builders of Lunenburg, across the 40-foot tide of Bay of Fundy he took his audience up the St. John River as far as the border of Maine, then on to Quebec, Montreal, Ontario.

His descriptions of the prairie farmers of Saskatchewan and Manitoba were interesting and huomorous. Through field and trail, he passed on to the Rockies and the wonders of BC.

Speaking for considerably more than the usual half hour allotted to the after dinner speakers at Kin he held his audience in keen attention, at a first recital of their own land.

Mayor W. G. Ovens was at the head table with Chairman J. M. King, and at the close of the meeting the Mayor was presented with a Kinsmen Club pin and made an honorary member.

The speaker was introduced by Don Loucks and a vote of thanks was moved by J. Wharry.

City Tax Rate 41½ Mills; Big Increase

Sign Agreement For 125 Homes With Housing Firm

Peterborough's tax rate was formally fixed Friday night at 41½ mills for Public School supporters and 42½ mills for Separate School supporters as the estimates of municipal revenue and expenditure for 1948 were framed in the authority of a bylaw.

The final business was brief. All the members were present with Mayor William Ovens presiding. The bylaw was "taken as read", after it was introduced by Ald. Swanston, signifying that the members were familiar with the details of recent sessions of scrutiny. The motion by Aldermen Swanston and Raine adopted the assessment roll, which was prepared in 1947, fixed the rate, and authorized the collection of taxes.

The signing of an agreement with Central Mortgages and Housing Corporation for the construction of 125 houses here this year, as recommended in the report of the special housing committee, was approved in a motion by Ald. Gordon Armstrong, seconded by Ald. H. Dodds. A bylaw embodying authority for the signing of the agreement was passed.

City Clerk Outram was directed to prepare an analysis of the tax rate, copies of which are to accompany the tax bills when delivered.

Benes Action May Avert World War

Masaryk Colleague Says Reds Won't Last Long

(Editor's Note: Dr. Stefan Osusky, who wrote the following comment on the Czechoslovakian crisis, was a close collaborator of Thomas Masaryk in establishing the Czechoslovak Republic in 1918. He says he is the only intimate colleague of the Republic's first President 'now outside the iron curtain." He represented his country in London in 1918, and later, for 20 years, was Minister to France. During the Second World War Dr. Osusky was Minister of State in the Czechoslovakian Government-in-exile. He now teaches European history and culture at Colgate University, Hamilton, NY.)

Written for the Associated Press By DR. STEFAN OSUSKY.

Tragic though it is for the Czechoslovak people, the Communist coup climaxed by Dr. Eduard Benes' decision to sanction and collaborate with the newly-formed Communistic government of Klement Gottwald may well be the act which prevents a Third World War.

The tragedy of Czechoslovakia to-day is the final proof that the Soviet Union is seeking something more than her own national security and friendly governments around her.

As a result, I believe this tragedy will bring the Western European nations and the United States into closer co-operation, and thus frustrate Soviet Russia and the Communist plans to dominate Europe.

Therein lies the only salvation for Czechoslovakia, Europe and the peace.

As far as the decision of Dr. Benes to take the oath of the Communist Cabinet is concerned, I feel it was as much a disaster for the Czechoslovak people as the act of force accomplished by Klement Gottwald.

Dr. Benes, it must be remembered, was the symbol of liberty of which Czechoslovakia was born. His capitulation will tend to undermine all resistance of the Czechoslovak people to Communist dictatorship for the present.

Only the protests of the United States, Great Britain and France will convince them that they are not abandoned.

Although I decry Dr. Benes' decision to approve the new government and take its oath, I believe that Russia will be unable to maintain control over Czechoslovakia for more than a year or two.

Russia is weaker than the world knows.

THIS WAY OUT—Quite unconcerned is 2-year-old Douglas Miller, of Dayton, O., as he is shown a screw he swallowed a year ago which had just been removed from his left lung. Nurse Flossie Hortin of Children's hospital, Chicago, is holding both child and evidence.

Close Friend Of Benes Badly Hurt

Intended Victim Of Bomb Plot Attempts Suicide

PRAGUE, Feb. 28.—(AP).—A former Czech minister of justice, Dr. Prokop Drtina, was found severely injured in front of his Prague villa today, police announced.

They said a letter was found which indicated Dr. Drtina had tried to kill himself by jumping from a window. He is in a hospital with head injuries, but will live if further complications do not set in, the official announcement said.

Dr. Drtina was one of three cabinet ministers who were intended victims of intercepted bombs last September. He is a close friend of President Eduard Benes.

Meanwhile, Communist Premier Klement Gottwald today promised "a complete change" for this country.

Drtina blamed the Communists for the bomb plot against himself and his two colleagues and had several members of the party arrested in an investigation of the incident. He was one of the cabinet members whose resignation preceded the Communist coup this week.

And while Communist Premier Klement Gottswald today promised "a complete change" for Czechoslovakia, V. A. Zorin, Soviet deputy foreign minister and former ambassador to Prague, left this morning for Moscow after a 10-day visit.

Members of the government, including Foreign Minister Masaryk, saw him off at the airport.

Gottwald made his statement at the opening of a farmers' and peasants' rally here.

"Merely changing a few people in the government is not enough"

Finland Ponders Ultimatum Premier Calls for Opinions

HELSINKI, Feb. 28—(AP).—Reliable sources said today President Juho K. Paasikivi has sounded out parliamentary groups on Prime Minister Stalin's proposal for a Soviet-Finnish treaty of mutual defence. They said he had asked these groups to tell him their attitude toward the proposed agreement by Tuesday.

Political circles in Helsinki were reported already discussing the procedure of negotiations suggested by Stalin in his diplomatic note to the president.

Sources close to the government said yesterday Stalin sent his note Monday.

They said he asked that the Finnish government take immediate steps to open negotiations toward a treaty either in Moscow or Helsinki.

A defence treaty with Finland would give Russia a chain of such pacts with neighbors from the Black Sea on the south to far north of the Baltic.

The Soviet note to Finland is expected to be placed before Parliament Monday or later as a question concerning a foreign power.

Under parliamentary procedure such a question must be dealt with in three hearings by parliament unless the chamber, by a five-sixth majority, votes it to be urgent.

Even if the note reaches parliament on Monday, any final decision could not be expected before Wednesday or Thursday.

Parliament has 200 seats and no one party has a majority. The largest delegation, 51 seats, is that of the Popular Democrats, a bloc made up of the Communist and Socialist Unity Parties.

The cabinet consists of three Communists, three Socialist Unity men, five Social Democrats, five Agrarians, one minister from the Swedish People's Party, and one non-party member. The Premier, Mauno Pekkala, belongs to the Socialist Unity Party.

The Communist Party claims some 45,000 members among Finland's more than 3,800,000 people.

The main concern expressed by political observers here today was: Is Stalin's request dictated exclusively by a wish to safeguard Soviet territory, especially Leningrad, or is there something more behind it.

Authoritative government sources stressed that so far Russia has requested negotiations with the intention of getting a defence

Million Dollars Unclaimed Banks Report

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 — (CP). — A cool $1,500,000—not in one big beautiful pile, mind you, but in the fact-packed ledgers of banks from coast to coast — is just sitting there waiting for people to come along and claim it.

Canada's banks told the same old wonderful-but-almost-unbelievable story of unclaimed balances, dividends, certified cheques, drafts and bills of exchange.

Tabled in the Commons yesterday were the annual reports of 12 Canadian banks conforming routinely to the requirements of subsections 1-4 of section 117 of the bank act.

They told—on a day a lot of us got brave little income-tax return forms — that supposedly better heeled persons have apparently forgotten the tidy sum of $1,431,477.25.

Here's a breakdown on the big heap of bucks you'd just love to let trickle through your fingers:

The unclaimed sums range from 17 cents to $24,623.12. The address of the woman in whose name the big amount is listed is "unknown." Many of the thousands of dormant amounts run into four figuer but by far the great majority are the savings of little people — $10.27 and $39.03 and $21.94.

Lots of the blunt entries hint at lonely, frugal lives—the unclaimed bank balance of $83.47, for instance, in the name of a deceased woman whose last address was the House of Providence, Kingston.

There's a $14,025 balance on the books at Cobalt for Wasylina Hurka, whose address is "Russia" and who has not been heard of since 1939.

936 Warplanes Already Sent To Chinese Army

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. — (AP). A secret but once-suspended agreement to arm China with 1,000 American warplanes is in full force again.

The Administration let it be known today in reply to Congressional critcs demanding military help for Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist armies, which are locked in battle with Communist forces.

At least 936 planes already have been transferred to China. In addition, the United States has trained 5,137 Chinese to man and service the planes.

State Secretary Marshall, then President Truman's special envoy to China, called a halt to the program in August, 1946, when his efforts to stop the Chinese civil war broke down.

The ban was relaxed gradually until Marshall lifted the final barrier to fulfillment of the air force program last Dec. 16, it was disclosed last night.

Whether the new information would silence Republican critics of the pending $570,000,000 economic aid program remained to be seen.

A number of Republicans have contended the money would be wasted unless Chiang were given weapons to beat down the Communists.

Moslem Thrown To Lions French Police Rescue Him

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—(CP).—The New York Times in a Paris dispatch today told of an incident which might have been drawn from the Arabian Nights involving a Moslem, a den of lions and Franco-Moroccan relations. A Moslem employee of the French residency in Morocco who "had incurred the displeasure of the Sultan of Morocco" was thrown into the Sultan's lions' den, the report said, quoting "official sources" in Paris.

"This incident," the Times story added, "... has complicated the already strained relations between the Sultan and the resident general, Pierre-Alphonse Juin.

"The unfortunate employee was snatched, almost literally, from a lion's jaws by French police and will go on trial before a French court within the next few days on charges of having circulated a pamphlet containing scurrilous matter about the Sultan and members of his family."

The dispatch said that the pamphlets first appeared in December and members of the Sultan's household suspected they had originated in the offices of the French Resident General, and involved, Si Mohammed Farfara, 47, a secretary-translator there.

"When Mr. Farfara left the residency one evening he was arrested by several members of the Sultan's bodyguard and was soon on his way to the lion's den near the Sultan's palace," the dispatch continued.

"Word that an employee of the Resident-General was about to undergo a form of summary punishment now rare reached the residency and the police were dispatched to rescue the terrified translator, whose piercing yells were beginning to attract the crowds."

Persons associated with the residency have branded as "ridiculous" the charges made by the Sultan's sympathizers who claimed that the residency had known about the pamphlet before it was circulated.

Wires Snapped During Storm

TORONTO, Feb. 28 — (CP). — Highways in many parts of Ontario were transformed into slushy bogs early today and telegraph communications disrupted as light rain soaked last night's sudden heavy snowfall.

Efforts of highways department crews to sand slippery patches of road were hampered by high winds. Temperatures in southern Ontario were rising and weathermen predicted 40-degree readings which offered little danger that roads would become ice-covered. At Ottawa, however, and in more northern areas such as Bancroft, Huntsville, North Bay, Sudbury and Blind River temperatures hovered between 25 and 36 degrees and a three to six-inch snowfall was forecast for today.

Last night's snowfall which left an estimated two-inches over Toronto was fairly widespread, extending north to North Bay, east to Killaloe and Trenton and west almost to White River.

Heavy wind-driven snow which took many Ontario centres by surprise was caused by the clash between a cold air current moving south from northern Ontario and a body of warm air over the central United States.

Ice-coated telegraph wires snapped breaking off telegraph communications between Toronto, Chatham, Galt, Owen Sound and Stratford.

Communist Moves Out

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 —(AP)— Hanns Eisler, Hollywood composer charged with being an alien Communist, will fly to Rome Monday following an income tax "compromise" with the United States government.

LONDON, Feb. 28 — (AP). — Sir Malcolm Campbell won a divorce yesterday on grounds that his wife committed adultery with a French count, Andre Louis de La Salle.

Falls In Love Favors Russians

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 28 (AP)— The father of Annabelle Irene Bucar, ex-University of Pittsburgh co-ed who announced her marriage to a Russian singer and quit her United States embassy job in Moscow, said today: "I won't let her come home."

"I cannot understand her leaving the best country in the world," declared Ivan Bucar, 51, a farmer. "I don't approve of her becoming Russian and I don't approve of Russia."

Miss Bucar said in Moscow that for 13 months she has been the wife of Konstantin Lapshin. Lapshin, about 35, sings with the Moscow Operetta Theatre. The couple met about two years ago in Moscow when Miss Bucar came to the Soviet Union as a member of the United States information service.

She said she felt further work with the embassy "would be incomptabile with my present views."

In her letter of resignation, Miss Bucar said she had acquired a real understanding of the Russians. She said the policy of the United States embassy "is directed against these people."

Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith said last night he had not received the letter yet. He added Miss Bucar had been "very remiss" in not informing the embassy earlier of her marriage.

Quebec Revenue All-Time High

QUEBEC, Feb. 28 (CP)—Revenues reaching an all-time peak in Quebec's fiscal year ending next month and reduced provincial income in the next financial term were forecast last night by Provincial Treasurer Onesime Gagnon.

Mr. Gagnon, whose two-hour budget speech covered practically the entire field of provincial administration and also attacked the federal government's economic policies, estimated that final figures for the current year ending March 31 will show revenues of $166,980,000, exceeding estimates by nearly $20,000,000.

For 1948-49, the treasurer estimated revenues of $142,411,000, compared with the estimate in last year's budget of $147,434,000.

The current year's figures which were final for 10 months and provincial for the last two months of the period, give the province a surplus on ordinary account by the end of March of $43,012,000, reduced to an overall credit of $1,640,000 after capital expenditures of $41,372,000 are deducted.

The treasurer forecast a surplus to $420,543.

No taxation changes were mentioned by Mr. Gagnon who told the legislative assembly there was "every reason to believe" that the top would soon be reached in the "ascending curve of our revenues."

Just Good Neighbors

BROOKLINE, Mass., Feb. 28 — (AP). — Everybody in the '40-family apartment house where Patrick J. Kelly lives—and is superintendent—is happy because Patrick Joseph, Jr., will be ordained to the priesthood in May. Invitations went to all other 39 families to the propective priest's first mass and for the reception to follow. Somebody started a fund which grew to $300 as a gift to the young seminary student—to buy vestments and other religious articles which a young priest needs.

A reporter asked Kelly today if it was correct that all the other tenants were Jews. Kelly stopped to think for a moment and replied: "Golly, I guess they are."

Donegal Fishermen Fight Claims of English Firm

DUBLIN, Feb. 28.—(Reuters).—A legal battle is being waged in the Dublin high court to establish the ownership of fishing rights in Lough Foyle, which runs through both Northern Ireland and Eire.

The capital value of these fisheries is estimated today at £500,000 ($2,000,000), and an English society, relying upon two royal quarters granted in the 17th century, is endeavoring to prove its claaim to the fishing rights.

The plaintiffs in the action are the Society of the Governors and Assistants, London, of the new plantation in Ulster within the realm of Ireland, and the Foyle and Bann Fisheries Ltd., to whom they have leased the fishing rights.

The claim is contested by the attorney-general of Eire and some 80 Donegal fishermen whose livelihood is threatened if the English Society succeeds in its claim.

The case took two years to prepare. The London Society, claiming ownership of the fisheries of the river Foyle from the sea to the town of Lifford, bases its case on royal charters granted in 1613 and 1662.

The fishermen defendants claim that the statute of Queen Anne, vesting the fishery in the London Society, is inconsistent with the constitution of Eire and is, accordingly, void. They assert that they have a right, as members of the public, to fish in these waters.

The action is being heard before the president of the High Court, Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy, who was a signatory to the Anglo-Irish treaty of 1921. To meet the heavy expense involved in fighting the case, the Donegal fishermen have organized whist drives, bazaars, dances, and house-to-house collections to raise a defence fund.

Angry Farmer Raps Permits

WINNIPEG, Feb. 28.—(CP).—John McDowell (PC-Iberville) spoke his mind in the Manitoba Legislature last night about the permit system for purchase of liquor.

"I don't think any government in a free country should have the right to sell any commodity, whisky or anything else, under a permit system," argued Mr. McDowell. "I should have the right to go into a store like my forefathers did and buy whisky when I want it. This business of permits is the beginning of the police state."

Mr. McDowell also had another gripe.

"If I, as a farmer, put as much water in the milk I sell as the government does into its whisky I would go to the jug for 90 days," he complained.

Government's Wheat Plan Sharply Criticized In House Of Commons

Gardiner Says Bill Would Increase Initial Wheat Payment To 1.55 Bus.; Revision Of Criminal Code Likely

OTTAWA, Feb. 28—(CP).—The Government's wheat policies drew sharp Opposition criticism in the Commons yesterday after Trade Minister Howe announced that the proposed increase in the initial wheat payment will not be made known until legislation now on the order paper becomes law. The Opposition opened their attack by criticizing the Government for refusing to disclose amount of the increase planned for Western farmers. Terming this "political trickery," the members said the legislation was a typical "pre-election" measure. They went further and criticized some phases of the long-term wheat agreement with the United Kingdom and Government plans for the future handling of grains.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, in reply, said the new bill would increase the initial wheat payment from $1.35 to at least $1.55 a bushel. He said the Government planned to see that the Canadian farmer made as much under Canadian wheat policies as other farmers did under any other system.

Mr. Howe, moving a resolution to a bill amending the Canadian Wheat Board Act, made these main points:

1. The Government is taking the power, now held by parliament, to make periodic increases in the initial wheat payment.

2. The Government, while taking power to place the domestic marketing of barley and oats under the Wheat Board, will not use this authority — because of constitutional barriers—until the Prairie Provinces have passed complementary legislation.

3. The new legislation, in giving the Wheat Board control over wheat products as well as wheat, will strengthen control over the basic wheat situation. The Board now has no control over the movement of wheat products across provincial boundaries.

4. A pension plan which the Board wil be authorized to establish will be similar to the civil service pension system and will provide for equal contributions by employees and the board, with the board's contribution being regarded as an expense item.

J. A. Ross (PC-Souris) moved an amendment that would provide for introduction of three bills, on each for the initial payment, the marketing of oats and barley and the pension plan.

Mr. Gardiner expressed belief that the amendment, supported by CCF and Social Credit party spokesmen, was out of order. He said it was an unheard-of thing for a government to bring in three bills in one session to amend the same Act. Such procedure would delay payment of the increased prices and possibly would mean untold hardship for some people.

Other speakers included T. J. Bentley (CCF-Swift Current); Douglas Harkness (PC-Calgary East); Jean Francois Pouliot (Ind.-L-Temiscouata); and Cal Miller (PC-Portage La Prairie).

At the House opening, External Affairs Minister St. Laurent said the financial, diplomatic and economic relations between Canada and Czechoslovakia are under consideration in view of the political upheaval there.

Justice Minister Ilsley said he expects to be able to announce later in the session the establishment of a commission to study revision of the criminal code.

Have Big Surplus

At the night sitting, Mr. Howe said the Wheat Board, sole marketing agency for Canadian wheat, now holds a surplus of $154,000,000 as a profit on the export sale of 1945 and 1946 crops, and said it was expected the surplus from the 1947 crop would total another $80,000,000.

He confirmed that the proposed increase will be made retroactive to the 1945 crop and said that any further increases also will be made retroactive to that year.

CONFUSION OVER COLD STAMPING GROUND — Rival claims in the Antarctic by Argentina, Chile and the British Empire's Falkland Islands dependencies are portrayed on these postage stamps issued last year. Argentina's claims lie between 25 degrees west and 74 degrees west longitude; Chile claims between 53 degrees west and 90 degrees west longitude; the Falkland Islands dependencies' claim is between 20 degrees west and 80 degrees longitude. The U.S., while making no claim, does not recognize the claims of other nations. The U.S. Board of Geographical Names calls the area "Palmer Peninsula," in honor of Capt. Nathaniel B. Palmer, who explored the mainland south of Deception Island in 1820.

MP's Tough On Mr. Howe But He Can Hand It Out

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA, Feb. 28—(CP).—These have been trying days for Clarence Decatur Howe. But they've been even tougher on a few members of His Majesty's loyal and harassed Opposition. Never one to revel in parliament's passion for the prolix, the Trade Minister has finally explained and hammered and occasionally insulted his way through passage of the Exchange-Conservation Bill. That's the one that gave him tremendous powers over imports to save United States dollars. It went through the Commons this week, after weeks of deliberation and questions and questions and questions.

Hunched in his seat, his shaggy brows throwing a close thick roof over his impatient eyes, Mr. Howe pocked those weeks with many a jagged retort; got many in return.

John Diefenbaker (PS—Lake Centre), the lean windstorm off the Prairies, cried that the program would be run "by guess and by Howe." A. L. Smith (PC—Calgary West), puckish and droll, suggested that Mr. Howe rub baking powder where he chafed most. Voices arose to accuse him of assuming dictatorial powers.

Through it all, the man intimates call C.D. mirrored an abundant capacity for both reply and provocation.

Wanted Understanding

Mr. Howe and J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Muskoka-Ontario) tangled about an estimated saving on automobile restrictions. It was climaxed with Mr. Howe uttering the cold sarcasm that, "I have told you four times already it was a preliminary estimate. I just wanted to be sure you understood.

Harold Timmins (PC—Toronto-Parkdale) went to considerable lengths in querying about steel. Cracked C.D.: "That is a perfect example of a speech that could have been avoided if my honorable friend had allowed me to answer his first question."

Again, Mr. Timmins suggested that some lesser man might find himself Mr. Howe's successor and less able to handle "this inverted form of Socialism."

Most unkindly, he was informed: "I thought probably you would succeed me."

Later, Mr. Timmins asked what figures he had in mind on a certain item. "Nothing in my mind at all," said Mr. Howe. "Get that on Hansard," shouted E. D. Fulton (PC—L Kamloops).

It went on that way, until at last third reading was on the horizon. Mr. Macdonnell rose for one last word. He said he thought business men found the Minister easier to deal with than the Commons.

The heavy brows wagged a bit and the growl came out again. "They are much more intelligent," said Mr. Howe.

$15,000 List Established For Exhibition

Facing a budgetary problem of their own Friday night, Peterborough Exhibition Board clipped $4,000 off the first draft of their prize list for this year's show, adopting a motion by Bruce Sargent to set the amount at $15,000.

Gordon Hancock proposed a $12,000 amendment, but the majority of the directors voted for the larger sum.

"This is no laughing matter," said Hugh Stewart, president, when the chairmen of the committees in charge of the various classes of exhibits reported their separate requirements, adding up to $19,000. "This looks real serious right now, and it's a case of getting our pencils to work."

Tom Brown's advice was to remember that the Exhibition was trying to get back on its feet again after the long wartime suspension, that the prize list should not be too ambitious at first, and that exhibits might be enlarged in 1949 based on the experience of the new board in its re-organization the fair.

$11,000 Before War

Harold Rehill argued that the expenditure should be estimated according to expected revenues. The amount of the prize list offered in the last year of the show before the war was $11,000, Mr. Hancock said.

The prize list total of $15,000 does not include the purses for horse races and the $3,000 allotted to the grand stand attractions committee of which Mr. Hancock is chairman.

N. W. McConkey and C. E. Moore of the cattle committee had asked for $8,000, but at the suggestion of the president they and several other members of that committee reconsidered their requisition and knocked off $2,000, leaving their allowance at $6,000. They reported that they would have to omit Angus and Guernsey cattle. The prize list as a whole was not definitely decided last night.

The directors present were: Mr. Stewart, Stan Lowe, secretary, Everett Birdsall, Tom Brown, Bruce Sargent, Merton Storey, Clarence Mann, C. E. Moore, N. W. McConkey, G. A. Gillespie, Alex Huston, John Kitney, Burritt Mann, M. H. Johnston, Don Milburn, Morris Telford, Archie Clysdale, Gordon Hancock, Frank Savigny, Manson Cathcart, Vern Campbell, Harold Rehill, Art McIntyre and F. C. Paterson.

The secretary was instructed to write the Peterborough service clubs to ascertain whether any of them were interested in undertaking a midway. That detail has not been settled, and Mr. Hancock said that he expected to have something definite to report on amusement features probably within a week.

Economic, Social Security Answer To Communism

QUEBEC, Feb. 28—(CP).—Canada's answer to Communism is economic and social security providing a level of life that Communism cannot match, Health Minister Martin said today. He said in an address prepared for delivery in French at a meeting of the Quebec Reform Club that "these are decisive years for democracy."

"As world citizens, we cannot escape the fate of our generation. In the parliament of the world, the political leadership of mankind has long been debated and in many countries will soon be put to the vote.... Soon we shall know whether this century will be rededicated to democracy or whether, under Communism, the lights will go out all over the world."

Mr. Martin said the measure of Canadian Liberalism in economic and social security "is its best record of achievement." The Dominion's "three outstanding federal measures" in this field were the old-age pension, unemployment insurance and family allowance, all put into operation by Liberal governments.

In family allowances and old-age pensions alone, total Federal payments to Quebec province now exceeded $324,000,000.

Not all Canadians were convinced of the validity of government action for social security, however. Some still put forth "19th century ideas in 20th century language."

Mr. Martin emphasized that Canadians' needs can be met only by "concerted and co-operative action by all levels of government —local, provincial and federal — with the valuable aid of hundreds of voluntary agencies."

Must Locate Goat For Summer Resort Before American Tourist Will Come

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 28. — (ENS).—"Where can I find a goat?" That's the question Carl Maier, accountant for Ayrhart Enterprises, is asking these days.

The Ayrhart Woodland estate has many attractions and conveniences, but no goat. Mr. Maier checked all goat leads he could find yesterday, and now he's at the end of the tether. Can anyone help him out?

OAC Workers Create Mould By Synthetic Means

Research in agriculture has had "far-reaching effects on the health of our people," said M. McIntyre Hood, director of public relations of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, addressing the Kiwanis Club Friday. The speaker emphasized the great strides which had been made in this work during the war years.

Food, he pointed out, is the basic need of human beings, and, in the complexity of our highly organized civilization, it has been found most practical that the production of this fundamental requirement be handled by a single, large group—the farmers.

Farming today is not a mere tilling of the soil, he said. The research worker has taken his place as a partner with the farmer.

The work of research departments, such as that at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, although having an important bearing on our day-to-day life, is not generally known to the public. This is because the nature of the work is a long-term process, and does not produce sensational effects overnight. One single discovery may be a lifetime of work. Also, the scientific workers do not court public acclaim for their work, leaving much of the important information for the limited number who read their scientific reports.

One of the examples of the work which had been done in the province was in the growth of production of poultry and eggs, due largely to research work.

During the war, the normal outside sources of vitamin D were cut off. In the search for a substitute, workers at the OAC made some "amazing discoveries," the speaker said. They found that the vitamin could be obtained from the brains and spinal cords of pigs and other animals, former waste material. He also outlined the battle which had been successfully fought by the researchers against poultry diseases.

Mr. Hood told of the development, over ten years of intensive experimentation, at the Guelph College, of a new native-made cheese which is now sold in stores and known as "Canadian Blue Cheese." It is of the same quality and texture as the famed Roquefort cheese of France. The original French cheese is made of sheep's milk and is processed in the caves near Roquefort, France, where the humidity conditions are the only known ones in nature which will produce the cheese mould so renowned. The problem confronting the Guelph scientists was to devise a method of operation so that Canadian cow's milk could be made into this cheese—the atmospheric conditions of the French caves had to be synthetically created in a room which would remain constant at the proper temperature and humidity.

The "Guelph formula" today is the result of that decade of work, a means of producing as high quality of cheese which now sells for about half that of the imported product, as well as providing yet another market for the Ontario farmer.

Another development during the war, Mr. Hood described, was one which involved going back to the instinctive actions of the original Indians of Canada. In their search for a substitute for Vitamin C, an important one for humans, the scientists investigated many possible edibles in nature not usually eaten. They found, for example, that a source of high Vitamin C content was pine trees.

They developed and used a system of testing the vitamin content of vegetables, and fruits and carried on thousands of complicated tests to cross the varieties with the best qualities. For example, he said, that cross-breeding of tomatoes, started in 1944, now promises to provide a new brand of tomato, as large as the normal Ontario fruit, but having double the vitamin C content.

The speaker was introduced by Charles Leishman of Toronto. Thanks of the club were expressed by Ralph O. Standish. President Ted Pridham was chairman of the meeting.

Quebec Expects Revenue To Set New High

By The Canadian Press

The Quebec budget speech yesterday forecast that provincial revenues for the current year will exceed estimates by nearly $20,000,000.

Provincial treasurer Onesime Gagnon reported that revenues for the fiscal year ending March 31 will reach the record figure of $166,980,000. He predicted revenues during the 1948-49 fiscal year of $142,411,000, with an over-all surplus of $420,543.

No taxation changes were proposed. Mr. Gagnon promised that during the coming year the government would reduce Quebec's net debt by an estimated $7,000,000 compared with $8,000,000 during the current year. He said that during three years of Union Nationale administration, debt reduction amounted to $31,000,000.

Mr. Gagnon charged the Federal government with "incoherent policy," despite which Quebec had maintained "equilibrium and stability." He said the effect of Federal embargo on a number of United States products and of customs duties on others coupled with excise tax increases on Canadian goods, was increased costs.

Tabling of accounts in the Prince Edward Island Legislature showed that total expenditures of the island province for the fiscal year, reported at $4,900,502, exceeded revenue by $212,350. Largest departmental account was that of the health department which operated at an expenditure of $990,700.

Notice was given that Attorney-General Frederic A. Large would introduce an act to amend present liquor legislation by removing the requirement for a doctor's prescription when making purchases of liquor, beer or wine. Prescriptions are valid for six months and entitle the holder to one purchase a week at government stores.

Saskatchewan's legislature in committee of the whole approved an agreement with the federal government by which the province receives $8,031,250 in final settlement of a 1930 agreement under which control of natural resources was transferred to the province. The sum is compensation for "depletion and alienation" of the resources while under federal jurisdiction and was recommended in a majority report of a 1935 commission.

F. C. Colborne, Air Force representative in the Alberta legislature, criticized Canada's defence plans. He said the country's permanent armed force is less than five per cent of the number required and quoted a newspaper article as saying that many reserve units have not one-third or even one-tenth of the strength sought.

Corruption Rumors Spreading As Pakistan People Dissatisfied

By NOEL BUCKLEY

KARACHI, Pakistan, Feb. 28 — (Reuters). — Whispers of corruption, an accusation which comes quickly to the lips of distressed and discontented people, have been wide spread for many months in the Moslem dominion of Pakistan. The charge has been levelled against many branches of the administration, central and local; against agents, officials, and business men; against virtually all branches of the community who have had to deal officially or unofficially, with the movement or resettlement of the more than 5,000,000 refugees.

In the west Punjab the clamor against corruption grew so loud that an anti-corruption committee was formed in the civil supplies department of the west Punjab government.

Addressing the inaugural meeting of the committee, Finance Minister Mian Mumtaz Daulatana said: "We must attack the evil of corruption on all fronts. We must arouse the civic conscience of our people and bring home to them the relationship between the anti-social tendencies of individuals and the national disaster which might face all of us.

"We must appeal to their instincts of self-preservation and to their ancient traditions as Moslems.

Tighten Control

"We must tigten our control over government officials and deal with their anti-social misdeeds sternly."

In an editorial, Dawn, leading Moslem daily, commented: "The word 'corruption' has lately loomed large in the public mind. Some, not usually given to irresponsible talk, have talked of it. Many, less accustomed to sift their facts and weigh their words, have used it more frequently. Borne on the wings of rumor, an impression has gained ground that corruption is rampant in Pakistan.

"That there is exaggeration in all this talk is obvious. Nevertheless, even members of the government have from time to time condemned the nameless corrupt and held forthr threats to 'root out corruption.' Therefore corruption undoubtedly exists, and it is time to do something about it beyond mere talking."

Dawn forecast that the government of Pakistan was about to take special powers to deal with corruption; but in the meantime if offered its services to the publice to investigate any changes.

CANADIAN BULWARKS OF DEMOCRACY

FREEDOM'S WATCHDOG
"The Ballot"

Power Tends To Corrupt And Absolute Power Corrupts Absolutely

Inherent, inviolable is the free man's right to the ballot. Through the ages, man struggled for that right . . . the right to express himself on the means, methods, measures and men governing him. Government by ballots, not bullets, is the Canadian way . . . power gained by trickery, violence or infiltration and disruption won't do for us. Too much of history highlights the grim lessons of tyranny: And, too, the Canadians' innate sense of decency, honour and tolerance make repellant the thought of government by despotism.

With the ballot, we can (and do) remove the men and parties who fail to gauge our wishes, our temper. As for the myth of the efficiency of one-party rule—well, the Canadian of tenderest years recalls the Nazis, the Fascists, the Tojoites.

The ballot is our check, our safeguard, our watchdog . . . the valve with which we let off steam. If government, men or measures irk us, we make the change by balloting.

We know that, inevitably, if sometimes slowly, our legislators act on our ballots. Movements for a change in legislation or legislators, like a snowball rolling down hill, gather weight, momentum, speed . . . and our government acts . . . or else!

Whether it be voting on a new floor for the high school gym . . . or the election of a Premier . . . we can be heard through the ballot. In evaluating the worth of the ballot to us as free men, let no complacency, no cynicism mark us as a people. It is said: "A cynic is a man who knows the price of everything and the value of nothing."

Let us give long, serious thought to our costly gained right . . . say to ourselves: I am one of 12,000,000 rulers of my country . . . of few men, in few lands can that be said: I have

The Community Chest

The annual Community Chest campaign for funds was opened yesterday. That is a dull statement; it is not good news, not even news to most people. Here is what it really means. It means that dozens and dozens of men and women are giving their time so that every citizen will personally be canvassed. They are asking you to donate generously to a dozen different charitable and social welfare organizations for the benefit of your fellow-citizens and their children.

* * *

Your money will permit these organizations to continue their necessary good work. They are asking for but one inclusive donation. In computing the size of your donation think what you in generous mood would give to each one of the twelve organizations which now draw from one money-chest. Add those together and you will have the right amount for your donation. Add five or ten per cent. to that, as a thankoffering for not being canvassed twelve times during the year, and your and all other citizens' gifts will fill the Community Chest to the required $60,000 level.

The Gigantic Hydro Plans

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the Ontario Government have taken a square look at this Province's present and future needs and have adopted large plans to meet them. Mr. Drew is showing that his Government, if slow to act, can act with praiseworthy magnitude and with confidence in the Province's future.

* * *

The plans are open to general adverse criticism on two counts—costs and timing. As the plans are great so are the estimated costs: more than 300 million dollars on new construction and 191 millions to convert existing 25-cycle lines and equipment to a uniform 60. Despite the gloss of Mr. Drew's phrases in his radio address on Thursday night, the expensive conversion program is going to cost the citizens a lot of money. Premier Drew said that the conversion could be made, according to his financial experts, "without any direct increase in the cost of power to domestic, commercial, or industrial consumers". We are sure that he does not believe that fairies are going to put up those 191 million dollars. 'The Government' may pay. But that means that the money comes from us somehow. Make no mistake about it, the people will pay.

* * *

Even household appliances equipped for use in the 25-cycle areas will be converted free of charge by the Hydro. That is a boon to Toronto householders but not to people in 60-cycle areas. It means that Peterborough citizens will be helping to pay the cost of converting a Toronto housewife's washing machine. That is no reason for Peterborough people to leap with joy. As a matter of fact, citizens of the 127 municipalities in Southern Ontario (the figures are from the 1946 Hydro Report) which already have 60-cycle service will be paying equally with the people in the 82 Niagara communities (of which Toronto is the largest) which are not on the 60-cycle circuits. Though we here in Peterborough are not isolationists and are interested in the welfare of the Province as a whole, the huge dollar cost of conversion does not make us particularly gleeful.

* * *

Premier Drew spoke plausibly about the reasons for initiating the large Hydro plans so late. Shortages of manpower and material did of course impede development during the war. It is likewise true that huge plants cannot be built over-night. (The Des Joachims plant is not expected to be in operation until 1950.) Nevertheless the Government has been in office since 1943. Reorganization of the Hydro Commission from the top down was not begun until last year and was completed only this month. Only now has the Government decided to give the chief executives of the Commission the power to make policy. Construction work on the largest development on the Ottawa (Des Joachims) was not begun until the autumn of 1946. The main inquiry into the advisability of converting the whole system to uniform 60-cycles was not begun until last year and was finished only last week.

* * *

The gigantic Hydro program may not be too little, but it is certainly late. Even Mr. Drew must feel the people's dissatisfaction, for twice in the last five weeks he has spoken at length over the radio about the Hydro situation.

The Palestine Commission Has An Impossible Task

Since the last day of last year's sessions of the U.N. Assembly when U.N. voted to partition Palestine, the situation in that country has deteriorated. Sir Alexander Cadogan has told the special Palestine Commission of U.N. that:

> Violent conflict between the two communities has been intensified. The courts and essential Government services had been seriously crippled. There was but one month's supply of certain types of fuel oil in the country. There was general insecurity. Communications were obstructed...

These and worse are the conditions now, although the British administration is still there and has a large and efficient army to do its bidding.

On May 15th, unless the Security Council intervenes in the plans, the five men of the Commission are to arrive in Palestine without a police force, without an army, with almost no administration and with no protection other than the prestige of U.N.—a U.N. which wants to force partition on the majority of the citizens (the Arabs) against their will.

There are three possible ways out of the dilemma, though none is likely to be acceptable in Palestine or peacefully successful. U.N., the Security Council and the Commission, could allow the Jews to organize the defence of their own new state so that when Britain moves out the Jewish forces could take control. The Arabs in Palestine would object militantly to such a proposal, and Britain has already refused to permit private armies to be organized within the country while she holds the mandate.

The second method the Commission might attempt would be to arrive with an armed U.N. force. Such a force could not act effectively after only two weeks' occupation—and that is all it would have, for the British Government has refused to allow the Commission to enter Palestine, or to send in survey parties, earlier than a fortnight before the British relinquish the administration. A further obstacle to the Commission's having an international armed force is the American Government's attitude. It approves of a joint force for Palestine but has told the Security Council that such a force must be directed solely to keeping the peace and "not to enforcing partition". It would be a very pretty piece of sophistry indeed which could draw the line between the operation of a U.N. armed force for the preservation of peace and its operation for the imposition of partition.

A third way out for U.N. would be to postpone the partition and to go humbly to the British Government, asking it to please keep its mandate for a little while longer. U.N. is more likely to make such a request than Britain is to grant it.

Britain has been made the goat in Palestine for thirty years. The ills of that distressful country have been attributed too long to British domination for Britain to look favourably on a request that it remain for a while longer. If partition is postponed and Britain is still the occupying power, hell has no furies greater than those which the Jewish population in Palestine and their sympathizers in the United States will concoct. Britain has steadfastly refused to take part in a settlement not acceptable to both Jews and Arabs. It is the plain duty of the U.N. and the Security Council to shoulder the problem, and of the United States, which took the lead in persuading the Assembly to vote for partition.

Diary Of A Power Conserver

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Passed a sign this afternoon which read "Real Antiques For Sale Here". This seems to indicate a long-awaited development in the antique business; hitherto the distinction between real antiques and the other sort has been made (frequently after purchase) by the buyer. Surely there ought to be some sort of generally accepted age at which an article becomes an antique. At present today's fashion is tomorrow's bad taste and next week's antique. Would it not be wise to decide that nothing under a century old is a "real antique"?....Later had a brief chat with a gum-chewer, whose technique, I was interested to observe, was very poor. She chopped vigorously, with much wasteful jaw-movement and audible squelching. If I had had the time, I would have given her a lesson. The experienced chewer wastes no motion; he keeps his teeth together, merely nudging his quid from time to time with a single molar; he does not seek to produce the maximum of saliva, but is content with enough to keep his palate gently afloat; he does not work at this gum—rather let us say that he cherishes it; his technique is that of the cow, rather than the cement-mixer.

❖ ❖ ❖

MONDAY: As it must to all men, the realization came to me today that I must order a new suit. I am sorry for men whose work demands that they present an appearance of neatness and prosperity; I rejoice that I belong to a traditionally frowsy trade. But even the vilest rags must be refreshed from time to time, and I went to the tailor's with a heavy heart. Soon I was fingering little squares of cloth and trying to imagine what they would look like if swollen into suits and hung upon my frame; this is the sort of job at which my imagination boggles, and when my imagination is boggling my mouth drops open, my tongue lolls out foolishly, and a film creeps over my eyeballs. "This is a nice thing", I say, trying to curry favour with the tailor, "but I think I like this even better"—as I pick up my own pocket handkerchief or perhaps a penwiper from the desk. At last the tailor puts me out of my agony, and measuring begins. Here I exhibit devilish cunning, sucking myself in where I am too big and blowing myself out where I am deficient, in a Protean manner, so that the record gives a completely false impression of my figure. "You sit a good deal at your work, Mr. Marchbanks?" says the tailor. "When I'm not lying down", I reply. "We'll allow a little extra for that", says he, and makes marks on his chart which he will not allow me to see. In time I escape into the street, shaking like a leaf.

❖ ❖ ❖

TUESDAY: A dreadful day. Frightful pain assailed me this morning while reading the paper. At this unfortunate moment a man came in to talk to me about insurance. "Useless", I gasped; "I'd never pass the test. Unbearable pain at this very moment. Think it's thrombosis". He did not seem impressed. "What kind of a pain?" he asked. "Here, around the heart", I wheezed; "a kind of stabbing, which creeps over to my left arm every now and then. Ouch! Tell them all I died game". At this point I sank low in my chair, and closed my eyes. "Probably gas", he said, callously. "Get up and walk around and it will pass off". He may not have known it, but he killed a sale by his crass attitude....This evening a man showed me the "fireman's hitch" and hoisted me off the floor with a great show of ease. Politeness then demanded that I do the same for him, and I did so, producing multiple hernia in twenty seconds. However, I learned years ago that there is nothing for hernia like a strong rum Collins, and as soon as I had one I felt much better.

❖ ❖ ❖

WEDNESDAY: To the movies, and saw a short about wild life which made me angry, for it made fools of a lot of handsome wild creatures. A moose appeared, whom the commentator felt impelled to call "Elmer the Moose"; the moose's mate was called "his mooing momma". A fawn was referred to throughout this tiresome piece as "Junior", and when the fawn was being suckled by its dam there was a lot of facetiousness about cafeterias. A fine owl was seen blinking in the sun, and the commenator shouted wittily: "Hey, I gotta get my sleep!" The whole thing was on the lowest level of taste and vulgarity, and the commentator had a voice which would have seemed unnecessarily uncultivated in a baseball umpire. God knows I have little interest in animals, but I do not like to see them insulted. I used to feel the same thing in the days when I was a frequent visitor at the London Zoo; in the lion house there were always ninnies who mocked the captive lions. I often wished that the bars would turn to butter and that the great, noble beasts would practise their particular form of wit upon the little, ignoble men.

❖ ❖ ❖

THURSDAY: A little girl was showing me some of her piano exercises today. They were simple things with fanciful names, and she seemed to like them. When I was a child piano lessons involved an intimate acquaintance with the exercises of a fiend named Carl Czerny, all of which were intended to be performed at incredible speed. The pupil of those days began with a variety of Czerny, and soon passed on to thick books called "The School of Velocity", "The School of Finger Dexterity", and so forth until he approached a work of blood-chilling difficulty called "The Virtuoso Pianist". I never scaled this awful eminence (I broke down and was flung aside in "Finger Dexterity") but I heard other students playing it, and such swoops, crashes and wrist-paralyzing convulsions of sound were never heard. The object of learning all this, I was told, was so that if, in later life, one broke down in the performance of a concerto, one could always fill in with a few spasms of Czerny; the musically ignorant in the audience would never notice the difference, and the musically elite would understand that the pianist was perfectly capable of playing anything.

❖ ❖ ❖

FRIDAY: On my way to the dentist this afternoon, I was pursued by an elderly bum, who kept murmuring, "Hey Perfessor, wanta speakcha minute, Perfessor". Indigents almost always address me as Professor, a title to which I have no claim. But I observe that men of very upright carriage are usually spoken to by beggars as "Captain", whereas fellows whose spines are noticeably out of plumb ("Bible-backed" is the phrase in some circles) are called "Professor." I suppose this is my fate, but I wish that once in a while a beggar would call me "Sport", or something dashing of that kind, suggesting that he took me for a frequenter of race-courses, an habitual drinker of champagne, and altogether a knowing and dangerous character.

❖ ❖ ❖

SATURDAY: Am getting severe eye-strain from co-operating with Hydro people in their attempts to save power. Unlike the other citizens of Ontario, I sympathize with the Hydro in its dark hour, and I have been saving all the current I can. Read many years ago that Abe Lincoln used to study, when a boy, with his book pushed almost into the fireplace as he lay on the floor. I, too, have been trying this scheme, but Lincoln must have had a technique unknown to me. I have scorched all the hair off the top of my head, and I have been burned by flying sparks, and my newspaper has caught fire several times, and I have spoiled the binding of a valuable book, and I have breathed in a lot of ashes, but I have not got much reading done. I find, also that my fire gives a fitful light, quite unlike what I am used to, and strongly resembling the wavering, spasmodic light to which the underprivileged citizens of Toronto are accustomed. A Chinese scholar, with a few glow-worms confined in a bottle, gets a better light than a Torontonian.

Literature As A Means of Education

(From a Convocation Address by Dr. W. E. McNeill, Former Vice-Principal and Treasurer, Queen's University)

THE value of literature as a means of education has been well tested. For five hundred great years of Greece and Rome and for nearly fifteen hundred years more, education consisted mainly of a study of the poets. The literary education that nourished the great men of twenty centuries has proved its high use. It must not perish. Latin and Greek are passing but English Literature worthily succeeds. Much of it has been written by men who knew the classics as well as their own tongue. Thus it enriches our native northern thinking and feeling with the great Mediterranean cultures. It is now the main accessible repository of the sayings of renowned men. It is the main subject with values beyond skills. Sir William Fyfe, Principal of Aberdeen, formerly of Queen's, as Chairman of the Advisory Council on Education in Scotland has issued a Report with these words: To fail in mathematics or Latin is to be deficient in these subjects; to fail in English is to be fundamentally uneducated.

❖ ❖ ❖

Further, English Literature is the best single subject to provide a common element in the bewildering diversity of modern education. Fifty years ago almost everyone studied the same subjects—literature, and language, history and philosophy, mathematics and science. Because teachers were similarly trained, a student who passed from a class in Greek to a class in history or philosophy found the same set of values. Common beliefs and common ideals widely prevailed. An excellent way of life was firmly established. It may have been too stereotyped. But today, an alarmingly opposite condition exists. Mass education has filled schools and universities with those who have no interest in the traditional studies and a vast variety of instruction has been provided to meet the vast variety of interests and ability. A postcard request to a large American university for information brought one hundred and seventeen different publications with offerings of thirty-two modern languages and fifty-two kinds of psychology. Education has lost its common element. There is national danger in this diversity. A common element in education is a requisite for a common citizenship. English Literature best provides it since it enshrines our way of life.

All our past acclaims our future: Shakespeare's voice and Nelson's hand,
Milton's faith and Wordsworths trust in this our chosen and chainless land.

❖ ❖ ❖

From this a corollary: if English is the subject best suited to transmit the cultural heritage and to provide a common element in education, it must be taught so as to serve these high purposes, and not be made as sometimes,

An undigested mass of dates and sources
Roll'd round in academe's diurnal courses,
Where scholars prepare scholars not for life
But gaudy footnotes and a threadbare wife.

And it must be more widely required.

Following Wars Europeans Have Looked To Canada As Land of Opportunity

By CHARLES IRESON

The immigration policy of the Government has received of late much publicity and some adverse comment.

It is an aftermath of the war and it brings the fact to mind that the first real immigration to his country more than a century ago was also an aftermath of war. The Battle of Waterloo in 1815 was the drop of the curtain on the lengthy Napoleonic War and the advent of real peace necessarily brought large numbers of army officers and men to a loose end. In order to ease this situation, serious consideration of existing conditions seemed to indicate what were then known as the North American Colonies (now Canada) as a land of promise and opportunity for these men.

It was at the close of another war, the Seven Years War, that the Treaty of Paris was signed in 1763. It was by this treaty that the French territories in North America were ceded to Great Britain.

This territory was first known as the Province of Quebec, later became Lower and Upper Canada, the latter being Ontario of today. This project was strongly supported by the Government, and achieved a great success. According to the records during the years 1824-1834 inclusive, 198,632 persons came to what is now Canada. In 1834 there were 4,095 entries to lower Canada, and 22,210 to Upper Canada, and it is of local interest to note that 2,650 of these come to the District of Newcastle, of which Peterborough was a part. It is rather a shock to find that of the some 30,000 arrivals in that year, 800 died of cholera, always now regarded as an Oriental tropical disease, and from which we are now free. Here in Peterborough in 1828 with an estimated population of 500, there were 30 deaths from this dread disease.

From the records it would appear that every effort was made by the British Government to protect the person and the property of the immigrant during the voyage, upon their arrival and during their subsequent career. The duties of the newcomers to be performed before they got a clear title to their land were not onerous. In 1832 they were further relaxed, and patents were granted to settlers on proof that they were definitely settled on the land. An official statement by the Chief Emigration Agent in London says that extensive tracts are surveyed and offered for sale in Upper Canada at from 2½ to 3 dollars per acre, and that large areas could be bought from the Upper Canada Company on very easy terms.

Many immigrants preferred to go to Canada via New York, and could get advice and directions by applying to the British in New York. The total number of immigrants arriving in New York from Great Britain en route for Canada for the six years 1829-1834 was 126,464.

In the year 1932 a pamphlet was published entitled "Information published by His Majesty's Commissioner for Emigration respecting the British Colonies in North America, London, 1832 — price two pence." Later an agent for the furtherance of emigration was appointed to whom enquiries should be made. With a full information being available to all concerned nine Lieutenants of the Royal Navy were appointed as agents at nine large shipping ports —two in England, two in Scotland, and five in Ireland.

Passage could be engaged with or without provision. In the latter case the ship owner only provided water, fuel, bed place, but no bedding, at prices varying from $30 with provisions to $15 without, downwards. Those who took their own provisions were faced with the problem of the length of the voyage, and 50 days was the shortest time for which it was safe to provide, and it was sometimes 75 days.

To further protect the immigrant, an American Passenger Act was passed with the object of assuring the passenger's health and comfort during the voyage. On their arrival competent advisors were available to do all in their power to help the new arrivals. To arrange their financial affairs, to arrange for their transportation to their final destinations.

Of course, it must be remembered that all these early immigrants were British subjects from the British Isles, and not as under present arrangements.

Beaver In Building Dams Doing Good Irrigation Job

Contributed By The Kawartha Conservation Association

A previous article gave several reasons why the beaver earns a very high regard as a conservationist, and we hope that it was shown clearly enough that he deserves special protection through our game laws. To further the story, and to strengthen the plea for greater protection, we will endeavor to point out how the beaver benefits mankind in other aspects.

As stated before, the chief work done by this creature is the construction of dams across the smaller creeks and rivers which of course provides the county with a number of beaver ponds of varying sizes. These splendid little bodies of water are in reality nature's own reservoirs, and they resemble on a small scale the huge man-made artificial lakes that we find in great irrigation projects in Western United States. In effect, the beaver in holding back the water is simply doing a splendid irrigation job just as Mother Nature intended him to, the only difference being that his method is to hold small quantities of water but more of them. But if we chose to make further comparison we would find that old man beaver would put the modern immigation engineer in the shade, for in using nature's materials and his sharp teeth versus man's sand, cement and costly machinery the beaver would win easily on a dollar-for-dollar basis! Seriously, though, nature's methods are very often far superior to those employed by man. These many beaver-pond reservoirs have the effect of keeping the water table to the district at a high level which is necessary for normal conditions of growth for trees and other vegetation. Not only would the soil be more productive but even the atmosphere woul dretain a more natural humidity since the breezes pick up moisture from bodies of water and moist soil. Rainfall would be more frequent too, which is just the reverse of what happens when the land loses its bodies of water and moisture content, for then the dry soil robs the air of its natural humidity.

Other benefits seem to fit in with the scheme too. For instance, the early settlers, trappers and lumbermen took advantage of the fact that the beaver ponds often provided a series of miniature lakes that offered a means of transportation by canoe. Less than sixty years ago Squaw River was easily traversed in this manner right to its source at Otter lake. There were dozen of dams across the river then but today we find nothing but a shallow creek.

Lumbermen took advantage also of the flooded condition in those years to bring down huge drives of logs to the bigger lakes. In wintertime these same ponds provide ideal routes for the settlers to haul out their wood and return with supplies. If our small rivers of Peterborough County were blessed with those beaver ponds today what a unique and pleasant form of recreation would be available to those seeking new scenery and a canoe trip.

Today, probably the greatest benefit provided by beaver ponds would be their value in fighting forest fires. Aside from the fire prevention standpoint, one could visualize no better means of hemming a fire into a small territory than a wide flood creek. Where in former years one would have found flooded beaver meadows, today there remains nothing but dry marsh grass which constitutes instead a fire hazard. The modern trend in fighting these fires is to use portable pumpers and hose, so that an abundance of small flooded areas would provide the ideal source of water supply. If the water table of the wooded lands was at a proper level the fire ranger in an emergency could dig temporary wells for a source of water in the swamp even though a creek were not right at hand.

While much more could be written, it is felt that the above remarks apply definitely to Peterborough County, since the writer's knowledge of the subject has been gathered by observations in this district, and by conversations with many of the older, wiser and certainly some of the finer citizens of the country. In fact the opinions of some of those residents who remember the district when it presented a more luxuriant condition, form the basis for the ideas expressed here.

With PETE McGILLEN

WHAT EXTENT is the presence of pickerel in Kawartha waters to blame for the reduction in the bass and maskinonge population? Immediately hundreds of veteran fishermen will say "Plenty—pickerel are a curse". I am inclined to agree with them. Pickerel are foreigners to Kawartha waters, while the bass and muskies have been here since time immemorial. The first pickerel recognized as such, and caught in Peterborough waters came out of what is now the Quaker Oats raceway, and was taken by the late George Duncan, one-time mayor of Peterborough. The catch was made in 1910. He took the fish to the late Mr. Elcombe the taxidermist for identification, and Mr. Elcombe said it was a "wall-eyed pike", another name for the pickerel. At that time the fish apparently were starting to find their way up through the Trent chain of waters from Lake Ontario. Before the building of the dam and lock at Healey Falls, no pickerel could climb that precipitious waterfall.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

MANY YEARS AGO, some person conceived the idea that it would be a good idea to stock the waters with this species of fish, and since that time the pickerel have been here in the thousands. Gradually the entire Kawartha chain of waters received its quota, and today there are pickerel in every lake from Campbellford to Norland at the top end of Shadow lake on the Gull river. Fortunately, as yet, there are none known to be in Haliburton. It's somewhat strange, too, that once a lake is stocked with pickerel, none are caught, or even seen until eight or nine years pass. Why this is, nobody can explain. When the first pickerel were put in Stony lake, nothing was heard of them for years, and natives thought they had either perished or had been eaten by other fish. Finally, one day, an angler was trolling for lake trout with copper line and he caught his quota of walleyes. From that time on, all the die-hard fishermen used the copper lines. Now pickerel are caught in Stony, still-fishing, casting, and by fishing deep.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

THEIR ARRIVAL in Stony lake was a tragic development. This spot was a natural lake trout lake, and the deep water held thousands of the fresh water ciscoes (blue herring) which are the natural food of the trout. Spearmen using jacklights and dynamite exterminated the lake trout — and there were some beauties taken up to 60 pounds in weight. However, if the pickerel had not been introduced it would not have been difficult to re-establish the lakers. Now, the voracious pickerel have practically wiped out the herring. Certainly no fall herring run has been reported for the past three years. These tasty little fish, used to swarm up into the fast water during the first change of the moon in November, and the cottagers and natives would get baskets full of them. Why, the old-timers like Keith Lech, Fred Roy, Vincent Eastwood, Heber Rogers, and others will tell you they used to give many pounds of the herring to the neighbors. There was no end to them it seemed, and it was a simple matter to catch hundreds. When I was a boy, they were sold on the market in six-quart baskets.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

IN ITS FEEDING HABITS, the pickerel is closely related to the muskie and unlike the bass which prefers crawfish. The pickerel has the head and jaw-structure of the pike or muskie, grows rapidly, feeds almost exclusively on other fish, and is the poorest game fish in the waters. Fact is, I have hooked mudcats that put up a greater battle than the pickerel. On one count though, as a table fish, the pickerel is rivalled only by the succulent speckled trout. Obviously these walleyes must destroy thousands of smaller fish, bass, small muskies, herring, suckers, sunfish, rockbass, mudcats and minnows. I am not suggesting for a minute that a six-inch pickerel is a match for a six-inch muskie. He isn't. But a big pickerel would undoubtedly clean up a number of small muskies. They are terrific feeders. Many anglers will tell you they have taken as many as 27 minnows out of a fresh-caught pickerel. In short when a pickerel is feeding, he just gorges himself on chub, suckers and any other fish that is available and smaller than the pickerel.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

IN AN OPEN BATTLE between pickerel and muskies, I am sure the muskies would eliminate the pickerel then turn on each other. Often in the evening I have seen a seven or eight pound pickerel jump clear of the water in a lake, and a swirl behind indicated that a muskie was chasing it. I have been hauling in a pickerel in Belmont lake when a muskie bit the pickerel in half, clean as a knife could do it. Others claim the muskies have attacked hooked pickerel, and left nothing except the head and some of the backbone. Yes, perhaps the pickerel are taking a worse beating from the muskies, than the muskies are taking from them—but what about the black bass. The pickerel is normally a surface feeder, and many a time, I have seen them at twilight swooping into the shallows and gobbling small bass and raiding shoals of minnows. The pickerel spawn early in the spring, about the same time as the suckers, and are out of the fast water and back in the lakes and shallows feeding, when the bass are guarding the spawning beds.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

GIVING AN OPINION based purely on personal knowledge and on the experiences of many guides, it would appear that bass and maskinonge get along admirably in the same waters, but when pickerel are introduced, the latter multiply, and the bass and muskie populations drop. Immediately the question arises about Stony lake. What will the pickerel feed on, once the herring are gone? It seems reasonable to expect they will move into the shallows and weed beds and prey on the perch, sunfish and bass. It is true, too, that if the pickerel could reduce the panfish populations, particularly the rock bass it would help, too, but this is not happening. The rock bass and sunfish are steadily increasing and they too are predators of the other game fish. Most fishermen will agree there are too many panfish in Kawartha waters—and too many pickerel.

✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦ ✦

WOULD IT NOT BE DESIRABLE to try and increase the bass and muskie populations, by heavier restocking of these species, and cut down on the number of pickerel fry throughout the Kawartha lakes? In the normal course of events, the pickerel should gradually become fewer in numbers if no stocking was done, and fishermen continued to fish heavily for them. Then, if the emphasis was placed on more bass fry and muskie fingerling, and also more protection given these two species from the brigands who do not respect the game laws, the fishing picture should improve considerably. I doubt very much if any true sportsman would endorse a heavy restocking of pickerel in the northern lakes, such as Jacks, Chandos or Long. They would, I am sure, vote solidly for a program aimed at restoring the lake trout and small-mouth black bass in these spots. It all lies with the people who make the requests for fish from the Dept. of Lands and Forests—and my humble opinion is, that they would be well-advised to ease up on the pickerel, and insist on the type of fish that nature saw fit to put in the lakes in the first place. That, gentlemen, is only one man's opinion, and if you disagree, I will be glad to quote your views on the question.

Westward — No, Writes Young Woman Who Left Peterborough For West Coast

By SHEILA GLENNIE

Most of us know, in the words of the poet, what happens to a young man's fancy with the advent of Spring, and with the rising of the sap a great many of us also become aware of a vague and disturbing desire for migration and adventure. The old familiar scene that was snug and comforting during the long winter months suddenly becomes a little drab and dreary, and you find yourself restless and dreary —and even a little irritable.

If you are a married man with the responsibilities of a family and a home of your own, you sigh a little sadly, shrug your shoulders with a semblance of despair, and philosophically turn to the more urgent matter of mending the outhouse roof, which has been severely ravaged by the rigors of winter. But if you are young and unattached, or have a wife who shares your spirit of adventure, you may turn your thoughts to new worlds to conquer—or at least to discover for yourself.

The Tourist Agencies give you every encouragment. Their colourful and alluring pamphlets supply just the required amount of stimulus, especially in the case of British Columbia, where the many natural attractions are enhanced by the promise of a mild climate and rumours of high wages.

As transients in Peterborough last summer, my husband and I met many married couples and others who were leaving for the West Coast and with one of these we drank a beer of good cheer on the eve of our departure. They were to follow us four days later and we have since spent Christmas with them in Victoria. Some of these people, like ourselves, had a definite reason for the move. Others were just victims of the "migration" epidemic which seemed fairly widespread at that time.

The railway company clerk who issued our tickets seemed somewhat mystified by so much passenger traffic westward. Moreover he did not appear to have the company's interests at heart. "What do all you folk think you are going to find out there that you can't get right here in Peterborough?" he asked in a disgruntled voice. "We don't know," I replied, "but that's just what we are going to find out—and when we do we'll write and let you know." What follows is for the benefit of our friend behind the counter, and for the many others who have since written for simliar information.

If it is beauty you are in search of, you will not be disappointed in British Columbia. The pamphlets do not exaggerate and it is difficult to imagine that "earth has anything to show more fair." I shall never forget my first impression of the Rocky Mountains as I saw them from our Pullman on a golden autumn day. Every bend in the track revealed a new vista of towering peak and crag, and far below, where giant forests fell into deep valleys, the mighty Fraser swept wildly on its course!

But unfortunately not all the aspects of this pleasant land are quite so fair. There is, of course, the perennial housing problem, which is much the same here as elsewhere, though we did have the unexpected and almost unprecedented experience of finding a small but pleasant unfurnished suite within a few days of our arrival in Vancouver. There is also the climate, which lives up to expectations in being pleasantly mild, but let's one down badly by being unpleasantly moist. And last, but most certainly not least, is the province's current and seasonal unemployment problem.

A recent edition of "The Vancouver Sun" gave the unemployed in Vancouver alone as 16,000 of whom 200 are described as "destitute jobless." The total number of unemployed in the province at the February peak level is expected to outnumber the 1947 figure for the same period—namely 30,000.

Many factors contribute to this unfavorable situation but I shall not have time or space to mention more than a few.

This province has only four major industries to absorb the bulk of labor. These are the primary ones of logging, mining, fishing and agriculture. There are as yet no by-products industries to supplement and stabilize the demand for workers, and all four primaries are subject to operational fluctuation throughout the year. Winter weather conditions often bind logging and sawmill operations and are at present responsible for the slowing down or temporary suspensions in the construction industry and allied trades. Fishing and canning activities are also at a low level during the winter months which constitute a "closed" season for halibut and other major sea merchandise. The same slackness in activity and demand applies to the wholesale and retail trades, manufacture and hotel and restaurant sections.

To all this must be added the heavy annual influx of Prairie agricultural workers in the fall, which considerably aggravates the already unfavorable outlook in the cities.

The position will gradually improve and it is anticipated that the bulk of the unemployed will be absorbed by March or April. Nevertheless it should be obvious to those who contemplate settling in the province that though they may for a while earn higher wages here than in the East, this is no guarantee that they will be better off in the long run, and they would be well advised to bring sufficient capital to see them through the winter months at least.

To the undaunted I will pass on the words of a friend who came to see us off on our long trip Westward:

"Goodbye, kids—and good luck! You may not make much money in the West but it's a beautiful country to starve in."

And we are not dead yet!

Men Unable To Carry Dead During Ague Plague of 1846

By HELEN MARRYAT

The vile habit of keeping green vegetables in the shallow, moist cellars below the kitchen caused much of the sickness that attacked the settlers under the various forms of ague, intermittent and remittent fever and lake fever. That was the opinion of Mrs. Traill, writing of "The Backwoods of Canada" in 1834. Few persons escaped this weakening complaint and the mode of treatment was repeated doses of calomel, with castor oil or salts, followed up by quinine. Those who did not employ a doctor dosed themselves with ginger tea, strong infusion of hyson, or any other powerful green tea; pepper and whiskey "with many other remedies that have the sanction of custom or quackery."

Mrs. Traill backed up her views by quoting the saying of a "Blunt but experienced American doctor...". Do not tell me of lakes and swamps," said he, "as the cause of fever and agues; look to your cellars...". She also added her method of fumigation after the refuse of winter had been removed, namely the burning of dry cedar bark on the floor, and shutting the smoke in for some time, afterwards leaving the door open to air the place.

The exact conditions of rotting vegetation and moist heat produced the same effect, and dirty cellars were certainly not responsible for the epidemic nature of a disease, which, John Langton described in October, 1835 as "one more draw back to this climate." No amount of taking-care, prevented an attack of ague; but it often followed a thorough wetting and chilling. He found the settlers suffering from it when first he came to Buckhorn, whole families lying ill and nothing to eat in the place; but he hoped until 1835 that Sturgeon Lake was comparatively free; it certainly was better than Ops, and some other places; but soon he had to admit that it was not exempt.

He knew more about ague, (adds a footnote by his son, on page 154 of "Early Days In Upper Canada) when it came to its climax in 1846, when whole families lay helpless, unable to get in the harvest, and there were many

Petes Edge Legionnaires, 4-3 In First Of Senior "B" Finals

The Petes pulled out a 4-3 decision over Legionnaires in Omemee last night in the first game of their four-in-seven A Senior "B" group finals. Over a thousand fans saw a fairly tussle on heavy ice. The next game is listed for Lindsay Monday. Referee Maurice Walsh of Toronto ruled with an iron hand, and passed out 21 penalties, 11 to the winners. Even at that, play was pretty ragged through the third period as the ice—which held well—became heavier. The Petes took a 3-1 lead in the first game, it was 11 in the second, while Legion had a 1-0 scoring margin in the last stanza. It wasn't fast hockey but it was speedy and exciting throughout.

Thrusts

Both goalies turned in a good game and had some hot stabs to their credit in every inning. There wasn't much to choose between their rival defencemen, Godfrey starring as a second goalie at times by stopping shots. Kingdon and Freddie Mortimer led the Petes with two points apiece, while Rochetta and Crowley combined for two Legion goals, with Dootch Vitarelli also dangerous on the attack. All players on both squads entered in a hustling performance and most of them were wearing their tempers high at times.

Penalties started off with slap-bang regularity in fast fashion and, after Referee Walsh had pressed a bit, the penalties broke loose for one on poor ice clearing. Joe Blewett opened on one and scored in close with a backhander, aided by Jack Creighton and Art Heal—Art played his first game of the season. Ned Vitarelli went off for tripping, Kingdon counted in a similar ramble, Freddie Mortimer and Jack Creighton assisting. Blewett got the nod for high-sticking and Burns-E. Nicholls thrust was minor. Later, Garvey drew a similar penalty and Rochetta counted on Crowley at close range. Near the finish, Kingdon's angle shot went in off a skate to make it 3-1. Heal was gated for hooking but returned before the gong sounded.

High Sticks

Heal was aired for high-sticking early in the second and Ned Vitarelli followed for the same thing, but nothing happened in their absence. Play was slower and scrambly for a space and quite even. F. Mortimer came close and then Blewett drew a penalty for high-sticking and Legion peppered Harding unsuccessfully. Freddie Mortimer made it 4-1 later on a neat pass from Jopling and a backhand drive into the twine in close. Heal got it for high-sticking but his side kept the disc out, and it soon speeded up again. F. Mortimer was waved away for holding and Crowley for charging as Blewett nearly tallied. H. Greenlaw got in fast to count for the visitors from D. Vitarelli with a hot shot on a neat play at the end.

Horton got one early in the third for holding and Rochetta scored from Crowley, though the Petes argued this goal. Burns went over for interference and Harding drew a similar penalty, F. Parsons serving it. Ned Vitarelli was next for hooking as Burns came back. D. Vitarelli pulled a nice try. Floyd returned and then Horton and Ross Nicholls were penalized for high-sticking, H. Greenlaw sitting out the goalie's penance. Ned got back and a Blewett-Garvey drive made Ross hop. Tompkins pulled a nice rush and then Rochetta tested Ray in close. There was a pushing mixup with four penalties handed out, going to Rochetta, Red Creighton, Crowley and Harding, F. Parsons again doing Ray's punishment. It was called "roughing." Bob Greenlaw got a delayed penalty for tripping and they all got back with no harm done. Fred Garvey went off hurt near the finish, and play was slower, even and with both goalies doing well at the windup.

The teams:

Legion: Goal, R. Nicholls; defence, Godfrey and N. Vitarelli; centre, Rochetta; wings, R. Greenlaw and Crowley; alternates, E. Nicholls, A. Nicholls, Burns, D. Vitarelli, H. Greenlaw, Parnell, and Hicks.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press.

George "Twinkletoes" Selkirk, so ticklish he giggled himself out of wrestling into baseball, was put on the spot 13 years ago today when he was mooted as successor to Babe Ruth, the game's greatest home-run hitter. The Huntsville, Ont., born player promptly made good and tickled New York Yankee fans with a first-year .312 average.

FOR HEAVY BRIDES?

The custom of having a best man at a wedding is believed to date back to primitive times when the bride was captured and carried away by force.

WENT WELL — In his first senior "B" playoff game, Freddie Mortimer (a junior last year) turned in a good effort in Omemee last night as Petes beat Legion 4-3. Freddie scored one goal and assisted on another.

Arn Dugan Tops Juniors Scoring Parade

Arn Dugan, first-line winger for the junior "B" Oddfellows, led the scorers this season in their brief whirl at OHA play. They took part in but four OHA games, having no schedule—because of no rink—and getting into group semi-finals on a bye, where they lost out to Danforths. Dugan had six goals and two assists for eight points to finish first in sniping. Collins and Pagett were tied for second place with six points each, as Conlin got five and Montgomery four. The results showing games, goals, assists and total points:

	G	G	A	P
Dugan	4	6	2	8
Collins	4	4	2	6
Pagett	4	4	2	6
Conlin	4	3	2	5
Montgomery	4	2	2	4

Menzies	4	0	1	1
Berwick	2	0	0	0

Instructors' School For Water Safety

An instructors' school, conducted by the Swimming and Water Safety committee of the Ontario division of the Red Cross Society, and sponsored by the local Red Cross branch, will be held in Peterborough in March, with the co-operation of the YWCA and the YMCA. It begins on March 3.

The course of about 16 hours includes some eight hours of lectures and eight hours pool periods, and begins in the YWCA on March 3 at seven p.m., running Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings from seven to 10 a.m. and on Saturday from 10 to 12 a.m. and two to five p.m. Candidates must (1) be 16 years or over, (2) hold a life-saving award from a recognized society or be able to pass a life-saving test, (3) be capable of passing the senior swimming test, and (4) possess some experience in leadership.

It is open to anyone interested and capable and the course is free, being planned for lifeguards, camp counsellors and others who might help out on beaches or water fronts. Those wishing to attend are asked to write to Mrs. Fred Hooper, 298 Hunter St. W. (phone 7538), or Mrs. Charles Ray, 808 Water St. (phone 8633) by Feb. 28. A number of letters have been sent various local and di strict organizations concerning this school.

Riverdale Grads of Toronto, a classy senior cage crew, plays Outboard Marines "A" team at 8.15 tonight in the Collegiate gym, following a 7.15 touch betwixt City Loop squads, Payne's vs. Jones. Grads are coached by Spike Bacon, oldtime baseball and hoop mentor, and their lineup includes established aces like Shag Park, Bill Devitt Ken Bundy and Moose McNair. This is the last home exhibition for Marines ere they start in provincial playdowns to defend their intermediate "A" title as spring nears. Info on last night's PCVS and girls' games should be in elsewhere. Bantam PCI-ers have their return district final Monday in Bowman Villa.

Comes a copy of the Canadian Sports Digest and one article asks: "Do Wrestlers Pretend Pain?" Phil Lawson says yes, they often do. He points out that they frequently grimace in apparent agony and also they often go down when hit not overly hard. Phil argues that it is simply to get the opponent off guard, and 'tis the same sort of faking as boxers use and to some extent those deceptive gridders with their masked and suck-in plays. On the other hand, he says they usually hide real injuries so that opponents won't aggravate these hurts. We have seen boxers grinning and waving their opponents in when they could hardly navigate on wobbly legs. All part of the game.

About "Broken Time"

Lot of hot arguments expected in London, Eng., in July when the International Olympic Committee and the Sports Federations meet to discuss "broken time" amendments. Up to now, the Olympian lords insist on pure amateurism, untainted by money in any manner or form. More modern sports' moguls argue that "broken time" should be allowed athletes who leave their work and pay to compete for their countries in the Olympics. Time is gradually coming when shamateurism will go by the boards everywhere, though it may take a little time yet.

It didn't take long to compile the scoring marks of the junior "B" Oddfellows this season. As they took part in but four OHA games—group semi-finals. Arn Dugan led the way with six goals and two assists for eight points. Two teammates, Collins and Pagett, had six points apiece, with Conlin having five and Montgomery four. Stock, Griffin and Menzies had one each. The one series they were in was a good one as far as that goes. Four games, one being a tie and two overtime tilts, with Danforth outscoring 'em 20 to 18 in the series. But it was a mighty short and expensive season for the IOOF-ers. All due to there being no covered rink here.

Fall By The Wayside

Local puck clubs are falling rapidly by the wayside now as February bows out and March meanders in. Ditto with district teams. TVL-ers are down to a trio of teams now and the Rural Loop is winding up business. Many OMHA squads have come and gone, with only the local bantam "B" Lions still representing Peterborough minor entries. We have Legion and Petes fighting it out for senior "B" group supremacy, and one of them will hit the discard ere long. A little local hockey to be cleaned up yet on the outdoor cushions if there's ice and then—within two weeks—all Peterborough hockey should be finished for this season. Unless maybe one senior "B" club is still fighting it out in provincial playdowns. A short puck semester we have up this way.

* * * * * *

Scrambly as a tin of worms, the puck playoff in Omemee last e'en was still exciting. And fairly fast for heavy ice. Rough enough, too. Both sides were kicking at Referee Walsh for dishing out "cheap" penalties at times, but look what might have happened had he let 'em get away with much. They drew 21 penalties betwixt them and were getting rougher as the game wore on. He had his orders from the OHA and he warned both teams before the game that they'd draw penalties for lifting their sticks higher than their elbows. They did. We trust the officiating is as stiff the rest of the serial or someone will get hurt—as these classy local clubs are really playing for keeps now. And with no love lost at all.

* * * * * *

They'll Play Monday

They go again Monday in Lindsay, unless the ice is real soft—in which case they'll play it in Belleville. And we heard a rumor that the OHA may order the series cut down to a best-of-five in order to hurry the provincial playdowns along. In any case, this next number ought to be a sizzler before another big city and district crowd. Petes got the jump on Legion last night for a 3-1 margin in the first period. It was an even 1-1 middle chukker and Legion got the only goal of the third. Can't come much closer than a 4-3 score, unless it's a tie. Art Heal made his first appearance of the season in Petes' livery and helped on one goal. They all went well, and it should be a swell series ere it's o'er.

The local rink skipped by J. Willey will be the one which will represent this district in the Colts competition. But before his opponent, F. Stenson, in the final game would concede this, the game had to go into overtime. It was a swell exhibition of curling.

This colts competition is for curlers who have not played more than a total of seven years.

There were rinks entered from Lindsay and Peterborough with R. F. Downey, official umpire. Just where or when the next round will be played we are not sure—but the best wishes of all the curlers will go with J. Willey's rink.

City Carpetball

One or two of the back games were played this week and the standings show that the president is slowly losing the grip he had on first place. We thought those Thistles were going places this year. The main back-sliders at present are the Old Sweats under O. Varty.

The Posties and Wardens had a pretty close tussle but apparently those poor mail carriers get tired out by the time night comes and just can't stand the strain, the scores running 10-9 and 10-11.

The Paper Dolls have slipped badly this year and fell before the Big Bens two games 4-13 and 2-17, making it 3-1 for the Alarmists over the round.

The Thistles received two knockouts from the Fighting Parsons to chalk up a complete blank on the season, the last two results being 9-13 and 9-10.

The games between the Busy Bees and the Old Sweats were close the first being a draw 10-all but the Old Sweats trampled on the Bees in the second for 13-8.

The Bees did well with the Alarmists when they stopped that aggregation by taking one game 14-4 but just lost the other 10-11.

King Billie met the Wanderers in a good tussle, dividing the points 11-13 and 13-5.

In the other games played the Wardens and Paper Dolls were kind to each other by breaking even—5-11 and 10-6.

Two games were played in the Bill Gracie Cup, one in which A. Nokes and A. Bromley beat the O. Varty-A. Barber pair in two straight, 14-6 and 10-4 but in the other game, J. Cridland and C. Joyes had to go the limit to eliminate the Lundy-Parsons combine, 7-5, 12-14, 11-7.

The following couples are to be played: F. Bell-H. McMahon vs. H. Clapham-H. Nokes; A. Price-G. Foster vs. A. Sims-J. Wilson; C. Joyes-J. Cridland vs. A. Moscrop-F. Hopgood.

There is still one game in the semi-finals of the President's Cup, that between Wardens No. 9 and Big Bens No. 10.

The following games are the balance of the regular schedule with the first five games to be played first:

Big Bens vs. BESL No. 8; LOL No. 4 vs. Big Bens No. 10; SOE No. 2 vs. BESL No. 8; BESL No. 7 vs. LOL No. 4; Wanderers No. 1 vs. Wardens No. 9; Wardens No. 9 vs. BESL No. 6; BESL No. 8 vs. LOL No. 4; BESL No. 7 vs. LOL No. 3; BESL No. 5 vs. Wanderers No. 1; SOE No. 2 vs. Big Bens No. 10; LOL No. 4 vs. Wardens No. 9; LOL No. 3 vs. BESL No. 5; SOE No. 2 vs. BESL No. 7; Wanderers No. 1 vs. BESL No. 8; Big Bens No. 10 vs BESL No. 6.

Finals Commence Next Wednesday

MARMORA, Feb. 28.—(ENS). —After their qualifying as finalists through their third win over Stirling in the Trent Valley play-offs on Wednesday evening, the Marmora hockey team has a rest until Wednesday next, when they will engage the winners of the Tweed-Norwood semi-finals in the first game of the final series at Madoc. Owing to their fine performance this season the agitation for a covered rink in Marmora has again broken out and a committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce here is going into the matter thoroughly to end if possible the team's position as a rinkless team.

Kawarthas Take Win From Electrics

Kawarthas took a 27-18 round-robin playoff win over CGE in the Girls' Basketball League last night at the YWCA. It was 10-all in a tight first half, but the Kawarthas had a 17-8 margin the rest of the route to earn the win with better staying power. While checking was fairly close, not too many foul shots were drawn and the winners cashed in on but one in seven as CGE got two in 10 tries.

A fair-sized gallery witnessed the tilt—the only one of the evening—and saw some good basketball served up by both sides. Marion McKee and Mamie Sullivan sparked the K's to the win with nice shooting, while M. Kennedy led the way for Electrics with B. Stewart right behind her. Only in the late stages did the victors really pull away. The teams:

Kawarthas —M. McKee 10, E. McIlhagga 2, M. Honour, J. Smith, M. Sullivan 11, A. Metheral, J. O'Brien 2, D. McFadden, D. McNeely 2.

CGE—H. Gardner, B. Stewart 7, T. Stewart 1, N. Shearer, M. Kennedy 8, M. Perrin 2.

McCready To Meet Mask In No-Time-Limit Match

Earl McCready will wrestle the Masked Marvel here next Wednesday in a No Time Limit bout with the winner to take all. That's the agreement which Arena Manager Jim Laidlaw signed with the two big matmen yesterday.

McCready and the Mask have been rivals for several weeks now in the team bouts and both men have finally consented to a finish bout.

McCready really proved the mystery-wrestler's master in their team bout exchanges but with the assistance of Wee Willie Davis the Masked Marvel has always been able to save himself from final extinction. Now the chips will be down in deadly earnest and it will be a case of one man or the other being eliminated and the unmasking of the hooded one if he loses.

Eastern Skiers Dominate Championships

BANFF, Alta., Feb. 28 — (CP). — Eastern Canada's small but potent ski squad stood as hot favorites to repeat their sweeping victory over western representatives in the slalom races of the annual Canadian ski championships today.

Main interest was focused on a quartet of Quebec skiers who swept men's and women's senior and junior downhill championships yesterday with a display of form and skill that left little doubt of their all-round superiority. All were given a better-than-average chance of adding the slalom titles to their already impressive list of victories.

Yesterday Peter Johnson and Dorothy Burden, both of Montreal, raced over the steep, nerve-testing Mount Norquay course here to capture the men's and women's senior amateur and open championships, respectively. Johnson's time for the men's mile and three quarter course slashed 21 seconds off the old course mark of 1:43.8 set earlier this year by Wally Cranston of Montana State College.

No fewer than 15 men broke the former mark, including Remi Cloutier, who covered the course in 1:24.2 to capture the Canadian junior downhill championship and also the runner-up position in the senior and open events.

Already rated a leading Canadian for the next winter Olympics 13-year-old Lucille Wheeler of St. Jovite, Que., demonstrated that she was without equal in women's junior ranks as she won her second straight downhill championship.

Her time of 1:30.8 was only 4.4 seconds more than that clocked by senior champion Burden. Lucille tied Joey Abbey of Montreal for second place in the senior and open competitions.

Barbara Whyte of Banff topped western competitors by capturing fourth place. Leading westerner in the men's was stylish Doug Fraser of Vancouver.

Williams Edges Cuban Fighter

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(AP).—The first thing you know an Ike Williams-Ray Robinson bout will be a must. Every time he starts, lightweight king Ike clips another welter contender off Ray's trail.

Kid Gavilan, flashy bolo-puncher from Havana is the latest. Williams barely got past the Cuban in a close fight last night at Madison Square Garden, but both judges and referee Ruby Goldstein gave him the decision. The crowd of 14,907 paid $67,561.

Now a Robinson-Williams pairing is just about the best match that could be made among the lighter weight divisions.

Punching with the cool, efficiency of an automatic drill, Ike at 136½ pounds looked his best last night.

The kid from Cuba who had a five pound weight pull, likes to fight in flurries. But Williams didn't let him get away with it consistently. Ike would change direction, shift his feet and carry the attack to Gavilan before he could flurry.

Many thought Gavilan deserved a slim edge. The AP card showed it even in rounds with Williams out front on points. Goldstein and Judge Jim Hagen had it 5-4 for Williams with one even. Judge Jack O'Sullivan made it Williams 6-4.

Warsaw Blanks Keene Crew 6-0

NORWOOD, Feb. 28 — (ENS). — Warsaw continued on their winnings way Thursday evening in Norwood Arena, before a fair sized crowd, defeating Keene 6-0.

Ivan Watts scored twice in the first periods, Paterson assisting on both. Ted McCarthy and Anderson were given penalties.

Joe Watts from Ivan Watts tallied after 90 seconds of play. Four penalties handed out in the second stanza. Joe McCarthy, Simpson, E. Payne, and Joe Watts.

Murray Paterson with Ivan Wats settling it up at the 8 minute mark, Paterson alone at 16.10, and the Watts brothers Ivan from Joe and M. Patterson at 19.45, to end the game 6-0 for Warsaw. Musgrove, despite the score, stopped a lot of rubber in the Keene goal. The Watts brothers Joe and Ivan and Murray Paterson stood out well for Warsaw, with G. Payne splendid on defence. Penalties, E. Payne and Kempt for roughing, Simpson and G. Payne.

Lineup, Warsaw: Goal, Paterson; defence, Payne, Simpson; centre, I. Watts; wings, M. Paterson and Joe Watts, alternates, L. Lonsberry, Stan Lonsbery, E. Payne, Doug Evans.

Keene: Goal, Musgrove; defence, Anderson, Acheson; centre, Ted McCarthy; wings, Wright and Kempt, alternates, N. Paudash, B. Thomson, Joe McCarthy, Adamson.

Referee Vic Brt[illegible] linesman Hartley Morrison.

Getting their accommodation straight for thte trip out to Calgary where they will play in the Macdonald's Brier Tankard granites championship at Calgary, is the Prince Edward Island team from the Summerside Curling club. Left to right they are G. J. Hayes, skip; T. D. Morrison, third; N. A. MacLellan, second; and F. G. McRae, lead, as they passed through Windsor station.

Tigers Blank Marlboros 4-0

By The Canadian Press.

The old smoothies — Hamilton Tigers — did it again last night, and this time in no uncertain terms as they blanked the youthful Marlboros 4-0 to increase their lead to three games in their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Senior A semi-final series. The Marlboros lone win came in their first meeting at Toronto. In the only other game last nikht, the second semi-final series, this time a best-of-five affair, got under way as Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen handed Owen Sound Mercurys a 7-2 setback and took a one-game lead.

There wasn't any doubt in the minds of 13,416 fans which was the better team as the veteran Tigers baffled Marlboros with their smooth passing and solid defensive checking. And it would not have been a scoreless first period if Howie Harvey in the Marlie nets had let down. The young goalie played brilliantly in that initial frame in clearing away Hamilton shots.

A five-goal scoring splurge gave Kitchener-Waterloo their 7-2 win over Owen Sound. The Dutchmen had previously jumped into a 2-0 lead at the end of the first period on goals by Doug Verity and Georgie Zuk, but the Mercurys bounced back in the second to knot the count as Jack Ingoldsby and Jim Boddy connected.

Then in the final stanza Ted Grasser scored what proved to be the winning marker, while Don Bauer and Wib Heller added two goals apiece for insurance.

The junior loop again swings into action to-night when Windsor Spitfires move into Oshawa for the fourth game of their best-of-seven semi-finals, which Spitfires now lead 2-1. The Galt-Barrie tilt, previously scheduled for last night, was held over until to-night when the Flyers entertain the Rockets in the first tilt of their semi-finals.

The Sports Round-up

MIAMI, Feb. 28 — (AP). — The Chicago Bears' Joe Omanski dropped in at Hialeah the other day to visit his old schoolmate, Jocky Rocco Sisto. First thing he began telling Cy Miller, who keeps the jockeys in condition, was how he had taken off 30 pounds by eating at the Bears' "fat men's table".....Warren Wright likely would like to have that diet to feed racing secretaries. He has been moaning that they can't get up a race in which his horses don't have to carry top weight...Sisto, incidentally, seems to be the champ at the jockeys' favorite pool game, a tricky affair in which they set up the balls in certain positions and then try to clear the table with the fewest shots....Larry MacPhail reports the arrival of the first colt born to one of the three brood mares he acquired last year ....That 63 that Ben Hogan shot in the St. Pete open-golf tournament the other day was only one stroke above the world record, which Ben has equalled twice.

Dot's All, Brothers

Horsemen hereabouts won't adopt the old "Break-up-the-Yankees" cry in reference to the Calumet Stable because they feel that merely would mean the Jones boys would win everything in sight at three tracks instead of just one....But they did say Ben Jones hangs his cribs "around up" just the way the Yank were accused of hiding good ball players in the minors. And, speaking of that Calumet array, Jimmy Jones won't admit that Coaltown is a really good colt until he sees him run against other fast ones ...."That kind of a horse is like a fighter who moves around so fast you can't hit him," Jimmy maintains.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

More than 15 Ontario Rugby Football Union junior club delegates at a meeting at London yesterday voted unanimously to leave the parent body and while no definite action was taken, it appeared likely that the ORFU would be without their junior clubs next fall.

The meeting was an aftermath to a situation last year when the ORFU refused to uphold London jujniors' protest that five Hamilton Wildcat players were over age, and was held to draft plans to form an independent grouping.

The group drafted a resolution which will ask the Canadian Rugby Union with which the group wants affiliation, to accept the new grouping. They also will ask the CRU to name a junior football governor for Canada and to hold an annual Canadian junior championship series.

Interprovincial Football Union delegates at the meeting expressed their desire to give Ontario's junior football a square deal and promised to support an affiliation application made to the CRU.

W. A. Irwin, secretary of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association announced at Montreal last night that senior playdowns for the Dominion title would start April 10 with the Ontario winner at Ottawa playing the first of a two-game total point series. The second game will be April 12.

The winner of the Ontario-Ottawa series plays a best-of-three games set with Montreal's representative April 14, 15 and 17 and the winner of this set plays the Maritimes champion at Saint John, NB, in a three-game series April 19, 20 and 22. The Western finalist will play the East in a best-of-five games series May 1, 3, 5, 7 and 8.

The Port Arthur Legion Boxing Club went ahead with a scheduled fight card here last night amid indications of strained relations between the Thunder Bay branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and its boxing committee. Only two fighters failed to appear for the bouts after a warning by the boxing committee that the card had been sanctioned and that all officials and fighters who participated face suspension. The boxing club had countered with a threat to sue for damages if the bouts had to be cancelled because of the committee action.

U of T Swamps Queen's 16 to 3

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—(CP). — Led by Harry Johnston who scored four goals, University of Toronto Blues swamped the third-place Queens University 16-3 here last night to win the senior intercollegiate hockey championship.

A shifty Ed Kryzanowsik who bagged the first hat-trick of the night, led the Blues to their easy victory. They scored seven goals in the first period, the first coming after only 45 seconds of play. Don Bark also scored three goals.

Although the game Kingston squad trailed 6-1 at the end of the first period, they counted twice on ganging attacks in the first seven minutes of the second frame. Don Hedley and Jerry Wagar bagged the goals.

The Toronto squad, however, roared back to squash any hope the visitors had of getting back into the fight by rapping in seven goals again.

The win was Varsity's third in their three meetings with Queens.

Bill Spence and Bob Henry scored twice for Toronto while Warren Winslow and Harry Boyd each counted once.

The only other Queen's scorer was Charley Hews.

Queen's —Goal, Urie; defence, Moffatt, Flanigan; cente, Wagar; wings, Mercier, H. Hamilton. Subs, Gulick, B. Hamilton, Le-Febvre, Kemp, Murray, Sadler, Wallis, Hews, Hedley.

Glory, Curtains Facing Hawks, Montreal

By The Canadian Press

It looked like old home week on the Maple Leaf Gardens' ice surface in Toronto yesterday as three National Hockey League clubs worked out, one after another. A demon statistician estimated that coaches and railbirds who stayed all through saw more than a quarter million dollars' worth of hockey talent.

The players were from the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs, the fourth-place Boston Bruins and the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks. Schedule arrangements resulted in all three clubs being at Toronto at the same time.

The Leafs and Hawks were working out for their game tonight on the same ice. The only other Saturday night fixture has the second-place Detroit Red Wings playing at Montreal Canadiens.

The Bruins were working out for their Sunday night game at Chicago, after losing to Leafs Wednesday. There's only two games Sunday night also, the other being Canadiens at New York Rangers.

The Montreal and Chicago clubs, almost certain to be left out when the Stanley Cup play-offs start among the League's four top teams, each have a chance at glory this week-end as they tangle with the League leaders. For Dick Irvin of the Canadiens and Charlie Conacher of the Hawks, in fact, it's glory or curtains.

But the players were in a happy frame in the unusual series of workouts. Team Captain Johnny Crawford directed the Bruins in absence of Dit Clapper, who seized the opportunity to visit his folks in Peterborough. Johnny took some good-natured ribbing from the railbirds while Charlie Conacher was later directing the Hawks workout.

Soo Greyhounds Seeking Title

TIMMINS, Ont., Feb. 28. — (CP).—Four teams launch playoffs next week in the hunt for Senior A championship honors in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association and two teams start their duel for the junior tile.

North Bay and the Porcupine champions are drawn in one of the two best-of-five senior semi-finals. They play at North Bay March 1-2, at Timmins March 5, 6 and 8. Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds and the Sudbury district champions meet in the other half of the draw, at the Sault March 1-2, at Sudbury March 5, 6 and 8. Dates for the final have not been set.

Porcupine Combines and Sudbury battle it out over a best-of-seven course for the junior title. They are in Sudbury March 1-2, at Timmins March 10, 11 and 13 and at Sudbury March 16-17.

Plan Track Meet

St. John Banks On Juniors To Win Curling

By IRVING C. WHYNOT
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

SAINT JOHN, NB, Feb. 28 — (CP). — If athletic ability means anything, the St. Andrew's Curling Club rink skipped by Henry Hollies stands a fair chance of providing keen competition at the Dominion Curling championship play at Calgary next week.

The youngest team ever to represent New Brunswick in Dominion play, the Hollies rink had played as a unit only several times before taking the provincial title at Moncton two weeks ago in the final against a rink skipepd by Judge Walter F. Limerick.

All four members of the rink, W. D. Timmerman, mate; P. C. Soulis, second stone; Walter P. Logan, lead; and Hollies himself, have been outstanding in various sport fields.

Hollies, who has been curling for 10 years, still has two years to go before jumping into senior ranks at the St. Andrew's club.

Timmerman, a native of Kingston, Ont., played for an Army rink in Ontario during the Second World War and also has been active in several sports.

Soulis, a Halifax man, has been curling for only two years, but plays a smart second stone.

Logan, another two-year man, came into the curling wars after a sport-filled life during which he starred at basketball and rugby in his High School days.

Westwood Clips Norwood 6 to 1

NORWOOD, Feb. 28—(ENS)—Westwood came out on top in the first of three games with Norwood on Thursday evening. Andrews started the scoring at 13:45 in the first period with Edwards setting up the play. Vernon Warr from Simpson tied it four minutes later, and Woods from Mortlock put Westwood ahead with just a few seconds left in the period.

Mortlock scored at 2:30, the only goal in the second with Sargent getting the first penalty of the game.

Starke was gated just after the start of the third. Thompson banged home a couple three minutes apart, and Mason from Thompson, at the fifteen minute mark, completed the scoring. Shearer was given a penalty for interference.

The teams:

Westwood: Goal, Renwick; defence, Shearer and B. Mortlock; centre, Mason; wings, B. Thompson and T. Woods; alternates, V. Warr, B. Warr, L. Sargent.

Norwood: Goal, R. Parcels; defence, J. Robson and H. Rogers; centre, Bedore; wings, D. Andrews and Bob Edwards; alternates, A. Spring, A. Fairfield, T. Brown, L. Starke, K. Cuthbertson, H. Scott.

Referee, Vic Brown; linesman, Hartley Morrison.

Boxer Collapses Dies In Ring First Pro Fight

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Ten seconds before the end of his first professional fight, Leroy De Catur, 20-year-old negro lightweight boxer, collapsed and died in the ring last night.

It was the last round of a four-round preliminary bout at Hollywood Legion Stadium. De Catur, a Los Angeles fighter who had some 40 amateur bouts, was ahead, on points, of his opponent, Fred Herrera, 20, Mexican battler from Jerome, Raiz, when the tragedy occurred. Herrera also was fighting for the first time professionally.

It was the second professional boxing fatality within a week. Sam Baroudi of New York died in Chicago a week ago today after he was knocked out the night before by Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati.

Only once before in the 27-year history of the Legion Stadium here had there been a ring death. Benny Cleveland, Los Angeles bantamweight, died last July 11 after a preliminary fight with Robert Andrade.

When last night's fight was nearly over Herrera smacked a goodly punch to De Catur's mid-section. He followed it with a right to De Catur's jaw. They clinched for a moment, then Herrera stepped back.

De Catur collapsed, his head thumping the floor in a neutral corner. Referee Tommy Hart of Bakersfield, Calif., started to count. Then he saw something was wrong, called off the fight, summoned the seconds into the ring and they gave De Catur first aid.

Without regaining consciousness, he was carried by stretcher to his dressing room. Dr. William F. Carver, stadium physician, administered artificial respiration for 20 minutes. He then pronounced De Catur dead and said if was his opinion the boxer died in the ring.

Dr. Carver declined to say what caused death.

The coroner's office tentatively scheduled an autopsy for today.

a Drama of the Wilderness

by John Fisher

● The baby didn't whimper as the minister lifted up the tikinagum—the strange cradle in which our Northern Indians still carry their papooses. The minister's words had a familiar rhythm in the little church. I couldn't understand anything, though, save the name 'Robert George'.

I saw the mother's shawled head bow in prayer, her soft Ojibway face reverent. Beside her, the father stood bareheaded; his features sharper, more hawklike—a Cree. Neither spoke English, so the baptismal service flowed on alternately in two Indian tongues. It was an unexpected moment in my life. A few hours previously I had stepped off a modern train at this remote outpost. Now, I felt I was back in the days of Champlain's voyageurs.

18 miles through the wilderness

After the service I looked closer at tiny Robert George, just two weeks old. His brown eyes blinked, then his plump little cheeks creased, and he grinned. Healthy! That youngster would have taken prizes anywhere. The minister said the family had hiked into the tiny settlement a few weeks ago, eighteen miles through the never-ending spruce forests. Why? So the Indian mother could have her baby safely at the Red Cross Outpost Hospital. I had heard that these hospitals are dots of mercy and life-saving from McBride on Vancouver Island to the Magdalena in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. I had read dramatic newspaper stories of how blood plasma was parachuted by mercy plane to the Red Cross Outpost at Hudson Bay Junction in Saskatchewan.

But here, as a mother had her healthy baby christened, I realized that Red Cross Outpost Hospitals meant more than dots on the map and newspaper headlines.

A story as big as Canada

Sometimes, very rarely, these outpost stations get publicity for startling rescues. More often such drama goes unnoticed. More often still we all forget the everyday hospital round. Babies being born, routine operations, the sick cured, broken bodies mended.

To me this case was symbolic—parent walking 18 miles for help; receiving it (and more) at the Red Cross Hospital. I went to a christening in a little outpost and found a story as big as Canada.

Red Cross Services include: Blood Transfusion, Outpost Hospitals, Aid to Sick and Disabled Veterans, Treatment for Crippled Children, Disaster Relief, Nutrition Services, Home Nursing Courses, Swimming and Water Safety, etc.

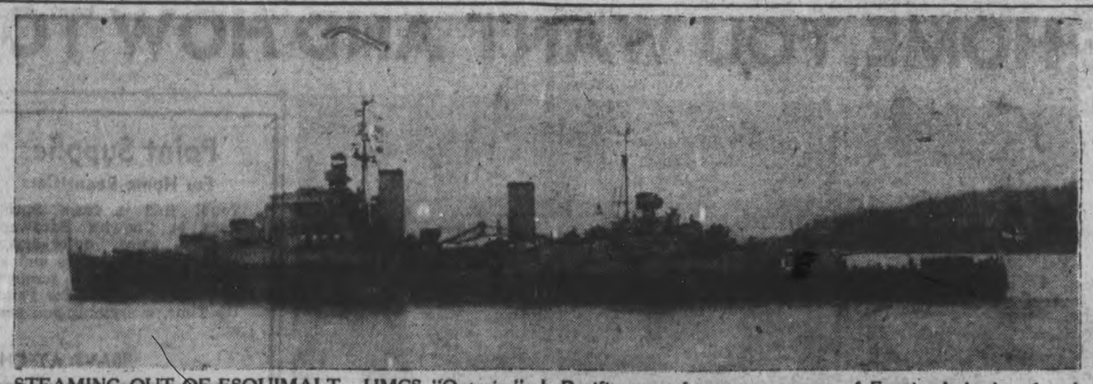
Compromise Needed For World Peace

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 (CP).—External Affairs Minister St. Laurent said today the world's "great task" is to transfer to the international scene "that readiness to compromise and to co-operate which springs from the conviction that the end in view is worthwhile."

He told a meeting of the campaign executive of the Canadian Appeal for Children that "in a world that harbors so many bitter rivalries and menacing fears," the CAC is "encouraging evidence that at least a large part of mankind can be moved to take common action for a simple and a good objective."

"This is our great task today: to transfer to the international scene that readiness to compromise and to co-operate which springs from the conviction that the end in view is worthwhile, so completely worthwhile that nothing can stem our determination to achieve it . . .

It Takes Times



"For a generation now there has been hate and fear and jealousy and suspicion, as never before in history; and we cannot expect that these evils can be stopped at once.

"But there is much to encourus. The specialized agencies of the United Nations are making progress with world problems of food, of refugees, of international trade; and in many technical matters, such as aviation and ship, a basis has been laid for fairly wide co-operation.

"The sessions of the world health organization have been remarkable for their noteworthy spirit of unanimity, and this world-wide appeal of which you are the Canadian part suggests that, if indeed hunger and disease recognize no frontiers, kindliness and generosity are equally cosmopolitan."

COUNCIL TALKS POLICY

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) —Agreeing with Mayor J. M. Cuelensere's complaint that too much time was spent discussing routine details of city business, Prince Albert City Council voted to devote one meeting a month to "policy discussions" and formation of long-range plans for the city.

Canadian Navy To Maintain Twelve Operational Units

OTTAWA, Feb. 28—In the most extensive training program in its peacetime history, providing sea experience for a Royal Canadian Navy (Reserve) which now numbers more than 3,000, and making it possible for permanent service men to obtain advancement in their specialized branches, the R. C. N. will maintain twelve operational units during the forthcoming spring and summer, it was announced today by Hon. Brooke Claxton, Minister of National Defence. The primary duty of nine of these, including that of the cruiser "Ontario", will be the all-essential training program. To make it possible two ships the frigate "Swansea" and the Algerine escort vessel "Portage", will be recommissioned.

Several of the ships concerned are already at sea for spring exercises, some of them being scheduled to join forces for a period with the Royal Navy's America and West Indies squadron for fleet exercises. A West Coast group, consisting of the cruiser "Ontario," the destroyer "Crescent" and the frigate "Antigonish" is moving down the ing a rendezvous in the Caribbean in March with other Canadian and British ships. They will return to Esquimalt early in May to begin immediately extensive training cruises for Reserve and R. C. N. new entries. A class of R. C. N. cadets, at present with the squadron, will return to Esquimalt in "Antigonish" on March 3rd The frigate, already a veteran of two years of training cruises, will continue that programme after reaching her home port.

The brand new Tribal class destroyer "Cayuga", her crew already heavily augmented by Reserves, sailed from Halifax, where she was built, on February 4. Reaching her new home port of Esquimalt in mid-March, she will "shake down" in preparation for training duties beginning a month later.

Aircraft Carrier

Largest and newest of all the Canadian warships, the aircraft carrier "Magnificent" will concentrate all summer on perfecting her intricate and highly specialized organization. Commissioning in Belfast, Ireland, sometime in April, she is expected to reach Halifax towards the end of May. A leave period and the establishment of her shore organization will bring her to mid-July, when she will put to sea for deck landing training of the two squadrons making up the 19th Carrier Air Group. The two other naval craft in commission but not participating in the summer's general training programme will be the frigate "St. Stephen" engaged on the Atlantic Weather Patrol, and the Algerine escort vessel "New Liskeard", which will be assigned to special duties after participating in the spring exercises.

Commissioned only last month after her completion in Halifax, the final addition to the Canadian-built Tribal destroyers, "Athabaskan", is due to follow "Cayuga" around to Esquimalt in the spring and will be engaged in regular reserve training cruises by summer. "Nootka", second of the Canadian Tribals, will said south from Halifax on February 16 to participate in the Caribbean fleet exercises and will return in time to commence Reserve training cruises by May 1. "Haida", also of the same class, and a famous fighting ship of the past war, will engage in a shakedown voyage early in April before assuming R. C. N. and R. C. N. (R) training duties on the 16th of that month.

Training Ship

A frigate with an outstanding record in anti-submarine warfare, the "Swansea", will come back into circulation in Halifax for the first time since being paid off in November 1945. She will be recommissioned specifically for training and will assume those duties on April 1. The Algerine "Portage", already an old hand in the business, will commence cruises with Reserves at the same time, following the track pioneered by her sister ship, "Wallaceburg" two years ago into the Great Lakes. This news has been received with particular satisfaction by naval divisions along the inland watercourse whose taste for a commissioned warship participating in local training activities was whetted by the "Wallaceburg" program.

Additional duties that will be assumed by either "Nootka" or "Haida" will be the part of plane guard when "Magnificent" begins her deck landing trials. It will, by long odds, be the saltiest season the peacetime R. C. N. has ever put in.

Braund To Take Two Patients

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 28 (CP).—John Braund, 78-year-old layman who claims to have effected a cure for cancer, today agreed to treat two Vancouver women who arrived here earlier this week.

Braund said that Mrs. Ruth McIntyre and Mrs. Anne Northam both are suffering from "dangerously advanced" cancers. The two women who flew across the Pacific this week, met Braund earlier today.

Braund originally had cabled the women not to come to Australia after they had requested treatment. His fame rocketted overnight when he made his claim to have found a cure for cancer.

Both women later told The Canadian Press they had much faith in Braund.

All Wait Experiment

Mrs. McIntyre said that before she left Vancouver, she had letters and telegrams from other cancer sufferers in Canada asking her to let them know whether Braund's methods were effective since they intended coming to Australia to seek his treatment.

Meanwhile Dr. E. S. Morris, Director-General of Public Health of New South Wales, reiterated his statement that cancer sufferers in other countries "bide their time" pending investigation into the "Braund method" of treatment.

A government committee, now sitting here, is investigating Braund's method and is expected to make a public statement within a few weeks.

Timmins In 'Red'

TIMMINS, Ont. — (CP). — This northern Ontario town of 29,000 population went $17,673 in the "red" during 1947, it was revealed in a report to town council. Revenue totalled $1,087,787 and expenditures amounted to $1,105,460. Practically every department exceeded its estimates.

OPEN PALESTINE DEBATE—Here is a general view of the security council of the United Nations as it opened the momentous session on the Palestine problem at Lake Success, N.Y. The question before the council is the enforcement of partition of the Holy Land into Arab and Jewish states. The United States' position, set forth by Warren Austin, is that the Big Five powers consult among themselves to determine whether a threat to world peace exists in Palestine before intervening with armed force. Austin said that the council's action should be "directed to keeping the peace and not to enforcing partition." Left to right about the arc are Russia's Andrei Gromyko; Britain's colonial secretary, Arthur Creech-Jones, who reaffirmed the British stand; Warren Austin as he announced the U.S. position; Argentina's Dr. Rudolfo Munoz; Belgium's Joseph Nisot, and Trygve Lie, secretary general of the United Nations.

Library To Get 5 Great Films

In order that the citizens of Peterborough may have the opportunity of seeing five of the world's greatest films the Peterborough Film Council has succeeded in arranging for a top-flight program.

Commencing March 5 a series of five films will be shown in the Public Library Auditorium. The first film will be "Mayerling" rated the best French film yet, featuring Danielle Darrieux and Charles Boyer. "Open City" will be shown March 19. This Italian film was considered to be the world's best film in 1946.

"Thirty-Nine Steps" will be shown April 9, featuring Madeline Carrol and Robert Donat. "Forgotten Village" by John Steinbeck with commentary by Burgess Meredith will be shown April 23, and on May 7 "Ivan the Terrible" directed by Eisenstein and musical score by Prokofieff will be shown.

In order to see the series of five, the public must become subscribers to the series, and the charge for the complete showing is $2.50. The auditorium will only accommodate 100 persons, and those interested in seeing these films are advised to get their memership tickets at as early a date as possible.

The Film Council of Peterborough has planned this program in order that films of other lands, other people and other cultures may be seen. A great many people have read of these films but have not had the opportunity to see them; on the other hand there are many people who have already seen them and have expressed a wish that they might have the chance to see them a second time.

Blame Mail Thefts On Montreal Gang

MONTREAL, Feb. 28 (CP). — The Post Office Department does not think much of Montrealers' home and business mail boxes.

The department blamed a rash of mail-box thefts on faulty boxes and an organized gang of thieves who lifted hundreds of letters last year, many of them cheques which were cashed under forged signatures.

A postal district survey in the city resulted in a statement that hundreds of homes and business establishments provide inadequate mail boxes making it comparatively simple matter for a thief to force open the box.

Police and postal authorities are co-operating to track down the gang and the post office warned householders to make sure their mail box was safe.

The best type of box is a letter slot about 4½ inches by 1¾ cut in the front door authorities said.

How many of these dollars have you?

Today a dollar may be harmful or helpful.

If it is spent in competition with many other dollars to buy goods that are scarce, it tends to drive prices up. So, if spent needlessly, it is a harmful dollar.

But if it is placed in life insurance for future needs, it does not compete in this way with other dollars.
In fact, part of it is reinvested in farms, industries and construction, thus helping produce more goods which, in turn, will tend to bring prices down. So it is a helpful dollar.

How fortunate that in Canada each year there are over two hundred and fifty million of these helpful life insurance dollars working against higher prices!

So when you buy life insurance to protect the future for yourself and your family, you are also helping to stabilize living costs.

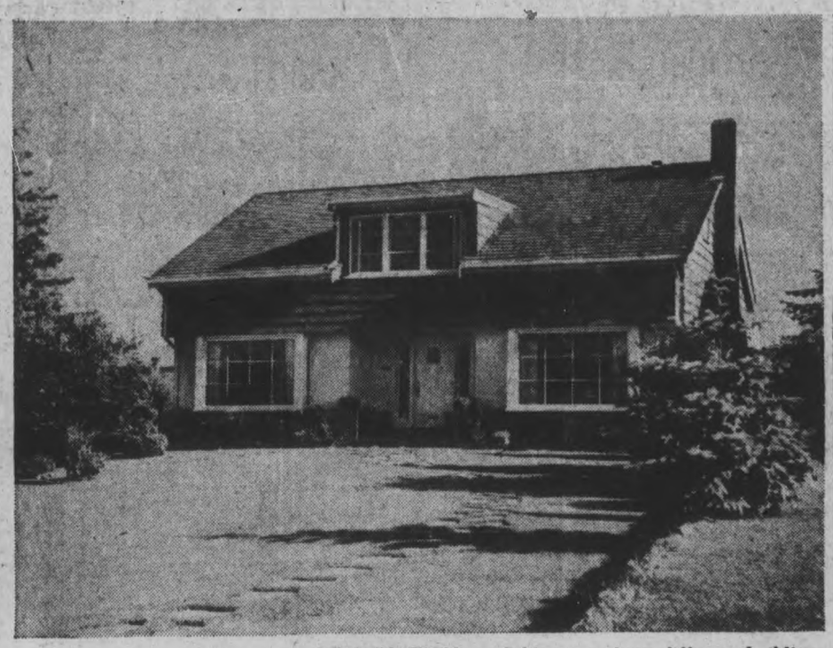
Women Give Cue To Exterior Home Decorators

"In getting away from conventional colors in exterior decoration," states a Canadian decorator, "a home owner runs the risk of appearing ridiculous to his neighbors. And," he continues, "frequently the neighbors are right."

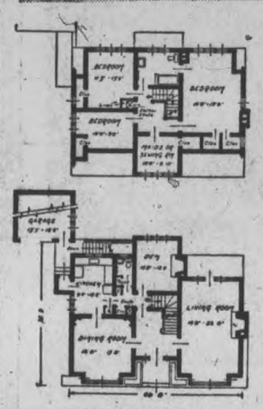
Exterior decoration is to the home, he claims, what make-up is to the young woman. A home-owner who will take the time to study the shape of his house for the most effective colors, is doing the same things as a young lady who carefully studies the shape of her face, then chooses her make-up to enhance the features.

Whereas an attractive head of hair is "women's crowning glory," says the decorator, color for the home takes its cue from the roof. The roof is the most dominating part of the house and a choice from over a hundred colors and blends of asphalt shingles must be made with care. Color will depend upon whether the roof is seen against a hill, against water, viewed looking down, or shaded by trees and taller buildings. Once the color is chosen, complementary colors and blends will be required for the rest of the house. A young lady with red hair, he says, will not choose cosmetics prepared for a brunette.

A young lady with a round face, he continues, dresses her eyebrows and cheek bones to make her face appear longer. A squatty house can be made to look taller with a bright roof and scarcely any contrasting trim on the windows and corners. A tall house can appear lower with a roof of a deeper color and with trim and shutters painted the same color.



To appear at the office with a hairdo and facial suitable only for evening wear is in poor taste, says the decorator, and to decorate one's house so that it clashes with the general construction and environment is equally in poor taste, and tends to make the whole effect appear ridiculous.



Getting Feeling Larger Rooms

Modern architecture has brought in many improvements in planning the small house. Planning with space rather than walls will make a more flexible arrangements which can be used for several purposes and will give a feeling of larger rooms. Furniture is lighter in weight and flexible in arrangement. The ability of the planner can affect the cost due to the factor of size. He can also affect the cost by his organization of the plan. Joists, for instance, come in lengths of even feet. A fourteen foot joist will span an opening of thirteen feet four inches, allowing a four-inch bearing at each end. Sensible planning with this in mind will save money in lumber and it will also save money in many other parts of the house if the sizes of materials, such as wall boards, lath, ceiling joists, rafters, bonding of concrete block, etc., are worked into the plan to avoid waste. The saving of money as it concerns the factor of size is the direct result of careful planning on the part of the architect after he and the owner have decided the minimum space that will be required for each function of the home.

BOMBING LOSSES

During the war 4,000,000 houses in Britain were destroyed or damaged by bombs, and total destruction amounted to $6,800,000,000.

FLOOR PLAN

COMBINATION — Seldon are three different building materials combined so successfully as here. Red brick gives way to white stucco and above this, broad clapboards of rough, knotty cedar stained a soft green-grey. Color and form seem to play an equally important part in this beautiful home, hence a photograph fails to do it full justice. R. A. D. Berwick is the architect. All told there are eight rooms . . . four on the first floor and four on the second. The plans show the architect's careful regard for livability and convenience. Good taste has been displayed in every detail, a poipt appreciated by discriminating homebuilders. Appliances Can Cause Mishaps

Don't read this if you want to be shocked—or possibly killed—but unsafe use of electricity and electrical appliances are causing more accidents every year, according to safety engineers.

They point out that even though electricity has become a great servant to the housewife, it must be handled with care and respect.

Unless you can answer "Yes" to all these questions, they suggest that corrective measures be taken immedately to remove potential danger:

Do you avoid replacing burned out fuses with coins, wires or other metals?

Are pull-chains over or near wash bowls and damp floors provided with insulating links?

Do you keep appliances and cords in good repair at all times?

Are electric motors in household appliances kept clean and free from dust and trash?

Are all electrical outlets out of reach of the bath tub?

Are you using the proper type of cord for all appliances?

Are all electrical circuits equipper with proper sizes fuses?

Has your wiring job been installed or approved by a competent electrician?

DO YOU require a MORTGAGE LOAN?

SIMPLE DESIGN ADDS BEAUTY TO HOME, MAKES DOLLAR STRETCH

Something Simple Now Required In Minimum Homes Plans Need Not Be Drab, Can Be Interesting

THE PROBLEM: How to obtain the most successful and pleasing exterior design for the minimum home.

THE SOLUTION: Combining simplicity with effective composition throughout, by the use of:

(a) Simple roof lines and care in the disposition of doors and windows.

(b) Good proportion between width and length of walls and their height.

(c) Simple variations and materials which lend interest to the wall areas without creating a restless appearance.

Simplicity in exterior design gives the small house the appearance of maximum size. The fewer different materials used on the exterior the better the appearance usually will be . . . several different materials, especially those which contrast in color and texture will break up the exterior into a series of small units or segments, making the house appear even smaller than it is.

Structural methods which minimize height are usually the most economical and will result in a small house of better proportions than when the house is high in relation to width and length. Exterior proportions are also improved by setting the house as low on the ground as possible.

Avoid Non-Essential 'Trimmings'

Appearance is generally improved by avoiding breaks in the roof lines at the eaves. It saves cost as well, Unnecessary gables and dormers, over-elaborate cornices and non-essential features can profitably be omitted.

Through proper spacing and grouping of doors and windows, even a rectangular house can be given character and pleasing variation from its neighbors. The size and location of windows and doors should be such that a pleasing relationship exists between wall openings and wall spaces. Corner windows often may be used effectively when the exterior design composition is well studied. These windows are usually advantageous as a means of securing increased wall space in small rooms and provide adequate light and ventilation.

Unless corner windows are used, windows of the usual type should not be placed too near the exterior corners, since this has the effect of making the exterior appear weak where it should appear solid and strong.

Can Be Made Interesting

A rectangular plan can often be made interesting in exterior appearance through the use of a well-proportioned porch, the entrance doorway, garden walls and fences and similar accessories. Bay windows add to the livability and enjoyment of the house, contribute to the exterior appearance and can be economically built. There is also the opportunity of combining a single material in different forms . . . in the case of wood, the use of flat boards, with or without moulded edges, vertical boards with battens and ordinary clapboards or shingles. Brick and stone may be combined or used with wood for interest in texture, but in non-contrasting colors to obtain a harmonious whole that will first appear to the eye as a single unit.

Attached Garage

If a garage is required and the size permits, it may be effectively attached to the small house. An attached garage has the effect of making the house appear larger by increasing the exterior mass of the building . . . also providing a more convenient location for the garage than when placed on the site some distance away. Through this use of the garage, a rectangular house may be given the same interest and appearance as that of the L-shaped house. When this is done the roof lines of the garage should be considered in relation to those of the house in order to obtain the best composition of building masses.

Unless the building budget will permit construction of a chimney of good proportion in relation to the size of the house, it is highly desirable to use an inside chimney . . . and also more economical. Chimneys containing one or two flues built of minimum size are too tall and narrow for good exterior appearance and when built on gable ends have the effect of dividing the house in two parts, thus destroying its unity and the effective appearance of width.

Livability of any home is enhanced by proper location of the house on the lot and the planning of the lot in relation to the house. The development of the plot need not be done all at once. By planning the location of lawn, garden, flower and shubbery areas in advance the site can be gradually improved as the additional outlay comes within the budget.

SAFETY IS FEATURE — The ultra-modern in community planning in Canada is shown in this airview of a large housing project near completion in the suburbs of Winnipeg. The outstanding feature of the design is the safety angle. Streets and walks are so arranged that children are protected from either heavy or fast traffic. Wildwood as it is called features houses priced from $6,500 to $9,500 built in loops around roads situated in the rear instead of the front. This innovation while it keeps children off busy traffic lanes it saves space and provides greater access to garages and tradesmen's entrances. At the front of each house the garden walk is connected to a common sidewalk which crosses the road at only a few carefully chosen intersections. These ideas are being followed in Peterborough's latest housing project the Brookdale subdivision on the Chemong Road.

RCMP Airplane Patrols Lonely Northern Country

EDMONTON, Feb. 20 (CP).—The modern methods employed by the R.C.M.P. to police and govern Canada's remote northland are typified by the sturdy Norseman aircraft known as CF-MPF which in two years of operation has covered hundreds of thousands of miles north along the Mackenzie River and into the islands of the Artic ocean.

For the two years the pilot has been Sgt. J. H. Reid, 25-year-old native of Sydney, N.S., who has flown out of Edmonton with the R. C. A. F. and the R. C. M. P. since 1941.

The engineer is Special Constable H. F. McCready, a war veteran who trained in the United States and served for several years as flight engineer with the U. S. forces in the Aleutians.

Sgt. Reid's flights are directed from the headquarters of "K" division here by radio and the system of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals.

To the experienced crew of the little aircraft forced landings, usually caused by unexpected weather conditions, are matters of course. Emergency landings average eight to 10 a year. The plane is equipped with skis for most of the flying season. Floats are used in the summer months when the lakes are open.

No Close Calls

Despite the danger of most of the plane's flights, its pilot reported no "close calls" during his 3,600 hours of northern flying time. The crew has never been stranded for any long period nor has the ship suffered serious damage in forced landings.

Prisoners being brought out are always under escort. So far none has undertake a desperate attempt to regain his freedom.

One result of the plane's trips is an improvement in the diet of officers at remote detachments. On every trip the aircraft carries as much fresh food as possible. Most supplies are transported aboard one or two boats a year, but such commodities as eggs and vegetables go in regularly by air.

Another service performed by the plane has been establishment of wood and food caches along the route of the lonely dog team patrols over the frozen tundra.

Working out of river posts, Sgt. Reid has carried fuel and frozen fish and caches them in prearranged spots for the use of constables on their periodic patrols. This practice greatly lightens the load carried by the patrolling officers on his trip of 600 to 800 miles.

In one trip, Sgt. Reid and Special Constable McCready see more north country than do most Canadians in a lifetime. And in the line of routine duty they convey through the Territories and Arctic the realization to the natives that the law of Canada is never far distant from any settlement.

Czechs Take Up Canadian Loan

OTTAWA, Feb. 28—(CP)—Financial, diplomatic and economic relations between Canada and Czechoslovakia now are under consideration by the government in view of political upheaval there, External Affairs Minister St. Laurent told the Commons yesterday.

"We will wait until we have more accurate and cooler information from Prague before we make any statement," he added in reply to a question from Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel).

To another question from Mr. Graydon as to whether the government endorsed the three-power statement by Britain, United States and France condemning the Czech Communist action in dominating the government, Mr. St. Laurent said no official information had yet been received on this.

Canada at present maintains diplomatic relations with Czechoslovakia, having an embassy in Prague. The Czechs have an embassy here.

On the financial side, Canada has made a loan of $19,000,000 to Czechoslovakia, of which $12,067,982 has been taken up.

Self-Denial

GOSHEN, Ind., Feb. 28—(AP)—Nine-year-old Harold Tinsley listened carefully last Sunday to Salvation Army Adjutant William C. Davis' plea for self-denial in Lent. Today, Davis received from Harold a package with a note saying, "Four por boys and girls in forin lands." The package contained 561 sticks of bubble gum, hoarded by Harold for several months.

SHE SAID NO — Theology and the theatre clashed head on, to wreck the marriage of Mrs. Daisy Pearse Stirm Duckworth (above), according to testimony in her separation in New York's supreme court. The husband, Willard Grant Duckworth, opposing her demand for $150 weekly alimony, charges that his wife violently objected to his plans to study theology and told him flatly: "I refuse to become a minister's wife." Mrs. Duckworth was once in the cast of "Junior Miss" and was a wartime entertainer for the boys in uniform.

Four Arrested

TORONTO, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Three men and a woman were arrested and charged with breaking into a doctor's house last night and stealing several thousand dollars worth of jewelry, clothing and household articles. The four gave their names as Angelo Salumei, 44; Violet Rispoli, 33; James and Sam Rispoli, brothers of the woman accused.

"GREAT COUNTRY"

Careful Designing of Home Can Bring About Savings

Savings by careful designing can be made in other ways than simply the uses of standard sizes of materials. Careful detailing of the construction of such parts as the eaves, doors, windows, etc., can make big differences in the cost. This applies largely to the millwork trade, where stock mouldings selected from the mill, stock windows and doors, will keep the cost of finished woodwork down. Also many items in the house can be left out at the first stage of the building. This would include built-in units which may be added by the owner later, the finishing of spare bedrooms and the basement, the painting of plaster on the second floor, and so on. A simple fireplace often looks better and is cheaper than an elaborate one. Stairs between partitions will save the cost of balusters. Stock window sizes will save on glass.

In general, the simpler the construction, the cheaper the cost. A rectangular house with a simple roof is cheaper than a home with wings and a cut-up roof. Modern architecture has shown that some of the interior partitions can be eliminated and plain, clean surfaces will look better than elaborately moulded ones. Only by analyzing every part of the house and asking yourself if you really need this can you make the maximum savings.

Meters Pay Off

HAMILTON, Feb. 28—(CP)—Parking meters pay off here. Civic officials estimate that the meters will take in $83,000 this year and that in 1949, with additional devices installed, collections may reach $100,000.

INTRIGUE — An ambitious and practical intrigue which might help to ease the difficult Palestine situation, is believed to be gaining considerable support among some United Nations officials at Lake Success, New York. The aim of the intrigue is to arrange that King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan takes over the land assigned to Palestine's Arabs under the UN plan of Holy Land partition. Many believe this would not only pacify the Arabs, but would also permit the Jews to organize their separate state without hindrance. It is rumored that certain American oil interests are not unconcerned in the plan.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Acts 16:9, 10; Romans 10:8-15; Ephesians 3:8-12

By Alfred J. Buescher

A vision appeared to Paul in the night and there stood a man from Macedonia saying to Paul, "Come over into Macedonia and help us."

Paul immediately got ready to go to Macedonia, for he thought, assuredly the Lord has called us to preach the gospel unto them.

Paul wrote to the Romans: "How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things?"

"Unto me is this grace given, that I should preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ."

MEMORY VERSE—Mark 16:15

Strive to Create Spiritual Attitude When in Church

REV E. R. JAMES

..I Was Glad When They Said Unto Me: Let Us Go Into The House Of The Lord. Ps. 122; 1.

Why do you go to church? A simple question but the right answer is full of instruction in the way of life. The great mass of church people would say that they go to church to "get good". The devil is never so pleased when he hears this answer. Such people will speak very highly of their minister and his helpful, uplifting sermons. We thank God for such sermons. But think of the numberless sermons preached every Sunday and try to see what good they do. They ought to be of tremendous influence in the uplift of the nation. But it is not so. Why?

The ancient psalmist who uttered these words—"I was glad when they said unto me; Let us go into House of the Lord:" would not say that he was going up to Jerusalem to hear the addresses of some famous Rabbi and take them home to his little village. He would be horrified at such a suggestion, not that he did not respect the Rabbi. But his ideal in going up to Jerusalem was to worship God; to give thanks for His wonderful revelation of Himself to Him and his people.

In a word worship means giving something to God; something of his thanksgiving to God Jehovah. One thing you may be sure that such a man going in this spirit will not return empty. He will draw near to God and God will draw near to him. He will open his mouth wide in thanksgiving and praise and God will fill it full of spiritual blessings.

This was the practice of the Apostolic Church. The Apostles went up and down the land preaching that Jesus is indeed the Christ, The Anointed of God. Those who accepted this truth were baptised and "they continued steadfastly in the Apostles" doctrine, fellowship and in the breaking of bread and in the prayers". They gathered together every Lord's Day to give God their praise thanksgiving and spiritual blessings were poured out upon them.

Do you prepare your mind and soul before you go to church? Do you kneel down and ask that you may offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God?

When you enter church do you greet God first, and then your brethren? When you enter church do you offer this prayer—"Let the words of my mouth and the meditations of my heart be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord. Pour spiritual blessings upon him who ministers in Word and Sacrament; through Jesus Christ Our Lord."

Dr. Otto, a famous German theologian, wrote an important book; "The idea of the Holy". He offers the opinion that primitive man had a deep sense of the presence of God. For this he invented a new word "Numinous" What a rebuke to the thoughtful Christian. Will you endeavour to develop this sense of awe. When you kneel down to pray place yourself consciously in the Presence and then offer your prayers. It will take time and effort to make this discovery. It will pay. For you are worshipping and slowly you will become like the God you worship. Your personality is changing and becoming like Jesus Christ, our Elder Brother.

Are you striving to create a spiritual atmosphere in your Church. What a change it would make if ten or twelve persons determined to develop that spiritual atmosphere. Then the outsider will sense it and exclaim:—"This is the House of God".

A saintly theologian lay a dying. An old friend called and asked:—"What is religion?" The answer in one word was:— ADORATION. What an ideal.

THOU SHALT WORSHIP THE LORD THY GOD.

World Mission of Church

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Lesson on the above topic for February 29 is Acts 16:9, 10; Romans 10:8-15; Ephesians 3:8-12, the Memory Verse being Mark 16: 15, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation.")

PAUL WAS at Troas, a seacoast town of Asia Minor. In the night he was awakened by a vision; a man stood before him, a Macedonian, and he said, "Come over into Macedonia, and help us."

Macedonia is the country generally designated as northern Greece, and Paul was sure that the Lord had sent this messenger to him because God wanted him to go to Macedonia to preach the gospel to those living there.

Paul lost no time in taking a boat and going first to Samothracia and from thence to Neapolis, then on to Philippi, the chief city of the country. This is Paul's second missionary journey With Paul were Silas, Timotheus and Luke, the later afterwards writing this account.

A boat was provided, and the four Christian missionaries were on their way, coming to Philippi, Macedonia's chief city, where they abode for several days. This was the first time a Christian missionary had set foot on Europe's soil; the first to carry gospel to what then was, and for many centuries remained, the great center of the western world. It was not easy assignment. They received kindness and hospitality from Lydia, seller of purple, but later were thrown into prison and beaten, but this is often the lot of those who bring the gospel to ignorant or bigoted people.

If the teacher draws on the board a picture of the type of boat in which Paul and his companions set out to go to Macedonia, showing also a map of Troas and Macedonia, it would make it interesting, especially for the younger children. Comparisons between the means of travel in Paul's day and in our own would also interest children, even through the subject is not new.

Paul Writes to the Romans

In a letter to the Romans, written in 60 A. D., Paul writes that his desire and prayer to God for Israel is that they might be saved. Ignorance will not perform the task, ignorance of God's righteousness, nor "going about to establish their own righteousness."

But what saith it? The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart: that is, the word of faith, which we preach;

"That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved.

"For with the heart man believeth righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation.

"For the scripture saith, whosoever believeth on Him shall not be ashamed." Then he goes on, on the subject that was a cause of discussion in the church — should the gospel be preached to Jews alone, or to Gentiles too? Paul says distinctly, "For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon Him.

"For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." Then he appeals to the missionaries in these words: How then shall they call on Him in whom they have not believe? and how shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?

"And how shall they preach, except they be sent? as it is written. How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things!"

Paul tells not only how much need there is of missionaries to bring these glad tidings, but also how beautiful such work is, and how rewarding, no matter how difficult and full of hardships.

Paul Is Humble

Writing to the Ephesians three years later, Paul refers to himself as "less than the least of all saints," but even so "is this grace given, that I should preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ;

"And to make all men see what is the fellowship of the mystery, which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who created all things by Jesus Christ . . .

"According to the eternal purpose which He purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord."

This is a rather difficult lesson for children, but it can be made interesting by pointing out Paul's zeal to bring the message of the Gospel to all the world, and his exhortation to the members of the early church, urging upon them the necessity of spreading the gospel.

More Attention To Details Needed In Plays

KINGSTON, Feb. 28 (CP). — More worthwhile plays and greater attention to details of production were urged upon high school drama groups here last night by Robertson Davies, adjudicator at the Queen's drama department's first annual secondary school drama festival.

The festival, first of its kind in Eastern Canada, opened in Convocation Hall with three one-act plays presented by Notre Dame Players of Kingston, Kingston Collegiate Vocational Institute Drama Club, and Ottawa High School of Commerce.

Both plays given by Kingston groups were unworthy of the talent of the players, Mr. Davies said. "The Girl From Nowhere," presented by Notre Dame players, was described as "commonplace." "High School Daze," the KCVI production, was pure rubbish which couldn't have been made worthwhile by the Old Vic or even the Moscow Arts Theatre."

Acting and production in each were good, but not enough attention was given to details, Mr. Davies said. Sheila Collins of the Notre Dame players and Anne Cooke and William Earle of the KCVI players were especially commended.

Praise For Ottawa Group

"Orange Blossom" by the Ottawa High School of Commerce was described as "admirably produced with great attention to detail." Climaxes were well led up to and fully realized.

Shirley Nevin, Joyce King, Dalton Carr and Shirley Rodger received special mention for their acting.

Open to all secondary schools in the region bounded by Ottawa, Peterborough, Cornwall and Belleville, the festival has been established at the instigation and under the general direction of Dr. William Angus, head of the Queen's University drama department.

Primary purpose, Dr. Angus said, is to encourage drama in secondary schools and to give players and directors the opportunity of hearing expert adjudication and of comparing their own efforts with those of other school groups. The plays are presented on a non-competitive basis.

Mr. Davies, chosen to adjudicate at the first festival, is himself well known as an author and playwright as well as editor of The Peterborough Examiner.

He is the author of 'Eros At Breakfast," one of the two prize winning plays at the Eastern Ontario regional drama festival here early this month.

CLASS IN CUTTERS—Fifty years ago a horse fancier in Boston sent the late George Graham a Gladstone show cutter in which Mr. Graham showed some of the finest hackneys in Canada. It is a two-place job, the back seat and foot board is pure swank but the high dashboard was designed to stop snowballs from horses' flying feet. Doris Hendry and Hazel Wilson appear to be taking Bob Hendry for a ride but the only thing missing is the horse.

RINKS CLOSE SATURDAY

Both pleasure skating rinks and hockey cushions will be closed for the season after Saturday night. The warm weather has caused them to be temporarily closed but the shutdown becomes official Saturday at midnight.

LAMB OR LION?

Worrying folks will watch the weather anxiously Sunday night as February merges into March. They will recall the old saw anent March coming in like a lamb and roaring out in lion-like fashion, or making a savage debut but a gambolling exit five and a half weeks later.

HOME FROM VIRGINIA

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Johnston left spring behind them in Virginia last week returning from nearly a month's visit to friends in that State. Melting snow and rain have held up much of the planting, although Mr. Johnston said he saw fields of young cabbage.

TWO SMALL FIRES REPORTED

A chimney fire was reported at 3.19 p.m. Friday afternoon from the residence of Samuel Clarke, 249 Simcoe St. Less than an hour later burning rubbish at the rear of 178 Charlotte St., Plaza Billiards, caused an alarm to be rung in. No damage.

PLOW CAME IN

Rubidge St. south today had seen nothing of the sidewalk snow cleaning contractor at 9 a.m. today. The snow began falling around midnight and was ankle deep at 7 a.m. today. Several comments were heard to the effect that civic pay cheques would be handed out undocked for the delayed job this morning. Citizens made their own path.

FEWER RURAL GIRLS

Don Milburn told the Exhibition Board Friday night there was "quite a scarcity of girls in the country" and added the cryptic expression "as some of us know." The girls section of junior department of the Exhibition used to be quite numerous, but there are signs of decided unbalance when the junior fair gets going again this year.

SPRING TRA-LA.

With old timers stating the earliest arrival for many years, crows made their appearance at Gore's Landing on Wednesday and by Friday, the raucous cawing was clear all around the village. The snow and ice are rapidly melting, with hills bare and Rice Lake covered with water. Now the betting is on when the first robin will arrive.

$178,121 Aid By Utilities In 16 Years

Mayor Ovens, Alderman Swanston and Sands carried out a mission of the council in a visit to the Utilities Commission Friday to ask whether the $5,000 increase in the water charge for fire protection could be reconsidered.

"If we were following our original agreement with the council," said Mr. G. S. Matthews on behalf of the Commission, "we could charge $36,000 this year. That is $11,000 more than the $25,000 we have had to ask for this year. The increase is based on the higher cost of operation, the extension of our water mains and the providing of additional hydrants.

The basis of our charge was established in 1931. It was to be one-third of the annual cost of running the waterworks, not including the filtration plant."

Mr. Matthews frankly told the deputation that "if we don't increase the charge for fire protection water we would have to raise our domestic water rates, and we don't want to do that."

Mr. Dobbin submitted a statement setting forth of calculated charges the Commission could have made to the council, the actual amount, the difference between those sums, and also the moneys granted to the council out of the waterworks surplus.

For the 16 years from 1933 to 1948 the total of the annual calculated charges was $414,804.71. The total actual charge to the council was $323,208.07. The difference in favor of the council was $91,596.64. And the aggregate of grants during that time was $86.525.31.

"We would have been in a position now to make a further grant to the council for our waterworks surplus," Mr. Matthews said, "but instead we decided to contribute $50,000 to the Civic Hospital building."

In 1933 the Commission could have charged $27,408. Their requisition was $25,408, an advantage to the council of $2,000.

In 1934 the calculated charge on the basis of the agreed percentage was $25,993; actual $24,000; difference in favor of council was $1,993.

The annual calculated charge declined steadily until 1942 when the Commission could have applied for $22,254.19, but was content with $18,000, saving the taxpayers $5,482.

The actual charge was reduced to $20,000 in 1936, and remained at that level until 1940 when it was cut to $18,000. For the next seven years the actual charge was $18,000. It was advanced to $20,000 last year and is now $25,000.

The difference to the advantage of the council was $5,979 in 1944; $8,148.61 in 1945; $9,996.92 in 1947; and this year is $11,430.20.

The council's deputation did not press their request after receiving the Commisison's statement that higher costs did not permit them to cut the fire protection charge back to $20,000.

Highways Heavy Crews Report

The general topic today was about the weather, as usual, everyone bemoaning the fact that the false spring weather had "packed up" for another round of cold and snow. Damp northeast winds brought snow and sleet after midnight and spotty drifting on the highways. A survey of the city's transportation centres told of heavy driving conditions but buses and truck transports came in through the night and early morning on time. By 9.00 a.m. one and one-quarter inches of snow had fallen which weather forecasters predict will continue throughout the day.

An intense disturbance over Iowa is causing all this change in a wide area extending from Detroit to Winnipeg. The storm centre is expected to move northwestward to bring somewhat lower temperatures on Sunday.

STUDY STANDARD FORMS

As a member of the executive of the provincial association of rural municipalities Reeve M. H. Johnston of North Monaghan was in Toronto Friday attending a meeting of representatives of several groups considering standard forms and manuals for municipal officers and administrators. They were from the Ontario Municipal Association, Assessors and Rural Municipalities. Means of providing newcomers into the municipal field with acceptable textbooks is one of the ideas in executive and department thinking. New members of councils, newly appointed officials and others coming into civic work are left largely to the slow process of learning by experience. It is an important service without guide books

Baby Pulls Electric Plug From Washer Bites Connection, Mouth Badly Burned

The 15-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Brioux, 748 Duffus Street, is in St. Joseph's Hospital here under observation for burns received when he placed a live electric cord-end in his mouth. The child had been playing in the kitchen while his mother, an English war-bride, was using the electric washer. Before she was aware of the child's actions, he had pulled the cord from the washing machine and placed it in his mouth.

At the hospital, it was discovered that his mouth had been badly burned by the electric current. He is being fed through a tube from his nose to stomach as a precaution against possible infection in the sensitive burned areas. It is reported that it will be some time before the actual extent of the injuries will be known.

Housewives Given Credit For Drop In Electric Power

The women of Peterborough have co-operated so substantially with the Utilities Commission in saving electric power this week that if "they will only keep up the good work" there should be no worry about Hydro interruption.

At its Friday afternoon meeting the Commission received from Ross L. Dobbin, manager, a tabulation of daily power consumption this week which showed a gratifying drop in the city's power load. To the housewives was given most of the credit. If they will continue to be careful about house lights and use of domestic machines, Peterborough should be spared any drastic interference by the Hydro.

Gordon Matthews (chairman), George A. Macdonald and Fred Hills were warmly grateful, but their feeling includes a request that the home lighting be based on this week's model of economy.

"In the meantime the days are growing longer and brighter," Mr. Matthews said.

Mr. Macdonald said De Laval Company had trimmed their lights and other power consumption as much as possible. "And I might say that I have never seen the Matthews house with so many dark windows as there were the other night."

City's Fuel Oil Last 16 Days

Utilities Commission still has 16 days' supply of fuel oil for the gas department, as reported Friday by R. L. Dobbin, manager. Mr. H. Kelly of Peterborough Fuel and Transfer Co., has been "helping out" with some deliveries recently, and the weather has been on the side of production to the extent that if it continues into March "we may accumulate some oil," Mr. G. S. Matthews wistfully remarked.

A letter from the City Trust Commission included its resolution that the proposed route of the 24-inch water main on its northern reach to the pumping station should not cross the former Hilliard farm, from east of Anson House to west of Queen Mary Hospital, but should be laid northerly on Langton St. From that point, permission would be given for the laying of the main, across the farm, which is owned by the city, from the vicinity of the hospital. Smith council has approved the proposed route through a corner of its township, and the rest of the route has yet to be arranged.

Utilities has been planning a more direct route across the farm as a means of avoiding a "bend" on the advice of Mr. Dobbin.

Several housing schemes have been suggested within the last year for the Hilliard farm, after purchase from the city. The opinion of the City Trust is that this property, spacious level land overlooking the river, lends itself to houses of better than average types and costs. Presumably that is one factor in withholding assent to the water main through the farm, as projected by Mr. Dobbin's plans.

MILL BURNS

CITY'S FIRST POWER CUT-OFF

Robert H. Saunders, who will begin his duties as chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission on March 1, was the victim of a gentle "rib" when he addressed the Community Fund workers in the C.G.E. cafeteria on Friday night. Mr. Saunders had decided to scout the bedevilled question of power cutoffs and shortages when he spoke; but he found it wasn't as easy as all that. When he rose to address the waiting audience some one threw the switch plunging the room into darkness for a couple of seconds. But the new hydro chairman showed he had brought his sense of humor along by joining in the general laughter.—D. W.

Penny-a-Day Campaign Starts

A feature of the Community Chest Drive now being conducted in the city is a "penny-a-day" campaign being carried on throughout the public, separate and high schools of Peterborough. The pupils will be asked to contribute to this united drive of 12 welfare and social agencies by bringing to the schools their pennies, which will be turned into the teachers and collected at the end of the drive, when the total will be announced.

The drive in the schools will last from Monday until Friday. Last year's total collections from this source were over $600 and it is hoped that the can be beaten this year.

Clare Collins is in charge of the schools drive.

Objective of $60,000 Asked For Twelve Agencies In One-week City Campaign

First shot in the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund campaign to raise $60,000 before March 5 as a means of financing some 12 local social agencies, was fired Friday night at a dinner meeting held in the CGE cafeteria. More than 300 persons, major and minor workers in the current campaign and heard guest speaker Robert Saunders, newly appointed chairman Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Comsion, extend his best wishes and express his belief that the objective be attained.

Ross L. Dobbin, chairman, said this eighth Community Fund Campaign was $10,000 more than last year's figure of $50,000. He said the increase was due to two reasons: the necessity of keeping in step with the mounting cost-of-living and an additional agency, still in process of organization, Visiting Homemaker Service.

"Since 1941 when this fund was organized we have raised in the neighborhood of $500,000," he said. "This is concrete evidence that the public approves of the fund."

Throughout his half-hour address Mr. Saunders kept returning to the theme that a community with a future must look after its children. Referring to the various agencies comprising the fund, he said, "all these organizations that do such wonderful jobs, are there largely due to the fact that care has not been taken of the young people."

"There is a greater need for work of these organizations today than at any time in history. It is work that cannot be done by a municipal organization; and it is work that would cost a tremendous amount of money if attempted."

In campaigns such as this the former Toronto mayor said he was always amazed and yet heartened by the multitude of people who were public spirited and were willing to work for othrs.

"I hope you will gain your objective, and I think you will," he said. "I hope that the people of this community realize this must be met for the benefit of boys and girls."

"Parents neglect children every day and they must be taken care of. I am glad to see there is no special regard for race, color or religion in this whole set-up."

From the days of his boyhood to the present, he said, there has been an increase in motor vehicles in Toronto from 6,500 to 167,000. He contended that facilities for the care of children were not commensurate.

"We in Toronto have been trying to catch up with the work that should have been done years before. Last year $250,000 was spent on some 33 community centres in that city "because we realized the children had been forgotten."

He congratulated Peterborough "on the strides made in this city." The population was increasing approximately 1,000 each year. He pointed out that municipalities are mutually interdependent. "The success of the city of Toronto depends on the success of every other municipality in this province, and vice versa."

A note of warning was added, however, when he said: "It is wonderful to have increased industries, population, and employment; but mark you, that with this advance many disadvantages and many social problems that did not exist in years gone by, will arise."

Social service costs have doubled in Toronto in the last five years, the cost of indigent patients soaring from $745,000 to $1,115,000. He mentioned the acute housing problem and the discomfort this overcrowding entails, particularly to children.

Mr. Saunders was introduced by Mayor Ovens, and was later thanked by Gordon S. Matthews. John H. Vernor presented him with an alarm clock suitable for use in a travelling kit.

The speaker shied clear of the present crisis in hydro electric power, but made one general statement: "It shall be my hope and remain my hope that I shall be able to convince the people of Ontario that the Hydro-Electric Commission belongs to the people of this province, and to convince municipal governments that it is a great enterprise."

Seated at the head table were Mr. Matthews, Rt. Rev. Bishop G. Berry, Judge S. L. Smoke, Mr. Dobbin, Mr. Saunders, Mayor Ovens, Mayor Hiram McCallum, and Rev. Dr. James Semple.

Mr. Dobbin thanked the management and staff of C.G.E. for providing the facilities and the meal without charge.

The Salvation Army Band under Bandsmaster Gerald Routly entertained with musical selections during the dinner period.

150,000 Vets Have Taken Rehab Training

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 (CP). — Canada is getting the greatest injection of skilled hands and brains in its history through operation of vocational training and university courses for ex-service men and women.

In this, politics has gone out the window, say officials of the federal department of veterans' affairs, with Dominion and Provincial governments — Liberals, Conservative, C.C.F. and Social Credit—co-operating to the full.

Some 150,000 will have been trained when the program ends; 92,000 vocationally, of whom 16,000 still are in training; and 58,000 in universities and colleges, with 32,000 still in attendance. In addition 15,000 are taking correspondence courses. Of the total, 10,000 are women, 7,000 vocational and 3,000 college.

Building and mechanical trades are most popular in vocational courses to produce steam-fitters, sheet-metal workers, masons, plasterers, plumbers, carpenters, bricklayers, electricians. About 400 trades taught, 150 in schools, the remainder "on the job"—book-keepers, draftsmen, clerks, barbers, actors, dancers; whatever a veteran may wish to go into, even to a clarinetist who has appeared in a command performance before the Duchess of Luxembourg.

College Students

Current college students include 12,000 in arts and science; 6,000 engineering; 2,500 commerce; 1,500 agriculture; 1,500 law; 900 medicine; 500 dentistry.

The first trickle started in 1943; the peak came in late 1946; virtually the last will be through in the early 1950's. Last date for application was Dec. 31, except for pensioners and patients now in hospital.

Results:

Eighty per cent of those who have completed their courses are employed in occupations for which they were trained; only five per cent are among occasional unemployed.

In the last college academic year 87 per cent passed; 13 per cent failed. One university's survey showed all of 210 recent veteran graduates employed at salaries averaging more than $2,000 a year.

Arthur W. Crawford, director of training for the department of veterans' affairs, says of the students:

"They are doing far better than ever could have been hoped for, and in turn are giving something to the colleges.

"The ex-servicemen, several years older than students just coming out of high school, have brought a new maturity to the class-rooms; they are quicker to challenge established ideas and to question them in the light of their own experiences.

"Married men show firmer purpose than those with fewer responsibilities.

"Universities too are to be congratulated. They didn't say 'come and take your turn' when faced with a flood which doubled their enrolments. They improvised — some virtually built new communities; others put army huts on their campuses. Thus we have been able to take care of all applications almost without delay, except in medicine and dentistry which offer special problems.

Paid While Studying

Trainees and students are paid while studying, and allowances to married veterans were increased recently, retroactive to Jan. 1.

The present scale is: single veterans $60 monthly; married $90 monthly, plus $18 for the first child, $14 for the second, $12 for the third; $10 for each additional child. After completing one year students may borrow up to $500 a year, and a maximum of $2,000 over the course.

Vocational instruction is given through Canadian Vocational Training, set up through Dominion - Provincial co-operation before the war. It was intended for War Emergency Training to find personnel for war plants, especially in replacing men of service age.

Now it operates training for veterans, and the federal minister of labor is advised by a council representing provincial departments of education, organized labor, manufacturers, women's organizations and the general community. Cost is borne through the federal department of labor, but the work is done through provincial staffs.

Some of the schools across Canada handled as many as 5,000 persons at a time at the peak of vocational training, operating day and night classes. College and university courses are given in every province in some 40 institutions.

Direct vocational and university training is augmented by part-time instruction and by correspondence courses and the department of veterans' affairs recently took over more than 90 correspondence courses formerly given by the Canadian Legion Educational Services.

Training in Hospitals

There is Institutional Training in hospitals and convalescent centres, including bedside instruction, as one aspect of "physical medicine"—applying the term to rebuilding not only the body but who "whole man."

A Counselling Service attempts to send men into the work for which they are best suited, and sometimes to persuade them to stay out of lines for which they have little aptitude or in which employment is limited.

"There is no use training 3,000 shoemakers if there is employment for only 300," an official commented.

Nearly all take their courses in Canada, but where facilities are not available or particular post-graduate work is required, they may study elsewhere. About 500 (127 vocational, 369 university) have been approved for Britain and northwest Europe, and about 2,900 (1,094 vocation, 1,814 university) for the United States.

A large group in Europe and the United States are post-graduate medical students, but other studies run from dry cleaning to nuclear physics.

"The United States Veterans' Administration and universities are treating our boys like their own," a department official said.

The influx of skills into the stream of Canadian life is expected to do much to solve a situation which had been a worry — the relatively few trained workmen who had been coming along to replace craftsmen passing out of industry. What the university-trained men will mean to Canadian professional and scientific life lies in a hopeful future.

SURVIVES THREE HOURS IN ATLANTIC—Thomas Montanez, 32-year-old ship's carpenter, is shown as he arrived in New York aboard his ship, the SS Santa Clara, after his rescue from a three-hour swim in the Caribbean. Montanez fell overboard and was not missed until the ship had gone over the horizon. Skillful navigation by the captain, John Fordan, plus the sharp eyes of a passenger, picked the still floating Montanez up in time for a small boat to be lowered and bring him back aboard. Shown are, from left to right: Able Seaman Raimundo Rivera of Brooklyn, who dived from the lifeboat to pick Montanez up; Captain John Fordan of the Santa Clara, who called the rescue a thousand-to-one shot; Thomas Montanez, who credited his rescue to the power of prayer; Mr. Norbert Berghoff of Fort Wayne, Ind., who first sighted Montanez.

Czechs Warn Newspaperman

PRAGUE, Feb. 28 (AP).—The Information Ministry threatened foreign newspapermen today with action if they violate "good international relations."

British, American, French and Belgian correspondents met with Dr. Oskar Kosta, Press Chief of the Foreign Ministry and head of the Information Ministry's Press section.

"In case of further violations of international good will, the Ministry of Information will have to take proper measures," Kosta told the reporters.

He demanded that reporters rely upon official information.

Klinger objected to use of the term "Reds" for Communists and the term "squads" for action committees, whose formation he called a "big political event."

Klinger said judgment of news stories would be on the basis of "whether it is bad reporting or whether it was an accident like all of us have."

GROWING UP TO BE ANOTHER HITLER?—Will the young lad at left grow up to be another Hitler? During the war he was taken from his home in France and forced into labor in Germany. Compare him with the Canadian youngster at right. Canadian children did not suffer from the shock and destruction of war. They are not crippled with disease and physical hunger. They grow up healthy and happy in a free nation. Realizing their good fortune, Canadian school children right across Canada are busy collecting dimes in various school projects to help their suffering classmates in the war-devastated countries by contributing their share to the Canadian Appeal for Children campaign.

Claims Husband Beat Her Badly

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 (CP). — Judgment was reserved until next Wednesday in the case of Mrs Edna Emery, who took the witness stand today to defend herself against charge of neglecting her four young children.

The decision came at the conclusion of testimony from several witnesses, including Mrs. Emery's husband, Leo, who appeared under protection of The Canada Evidence Act. Mr. Emery has been held in custody on a similar charge, and Magistrate Austin O'Connor announced hearing of his case next Wednesday. Bail for Mr. Emery has been lowered from $1,000 to $500. Mrs. Emery will remain free on bail of $1,000.

Before a crowded court-room, Mrs. Emery took the stand, dressed in the up-to-date muskrat coat she has worn throughout the trial.

Mrs. Emery testified she had tried to provide adequate clothing for the children.

She charged her husband, in an intoxicated condition, beat her "an average of two or three times a week," sometimes knocking her head against the wall until she was insensible.

No Malice Intended Dismiss Libel Case

CORNWALL, Feb. 28 — (CP) — A verdict of no libel was returned yesterday by an Ontario Supreme Court jury in an action brought against Standard-Freeholders Limited by Mrs. Oswald Legault of Cornwall.

The case arose from a news story published by the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder in April 1946.

The story said Mrs. Legault spent a night in jail. Actually she was released shortly after she was locked up, on payment of court costs.

Costs of the action were assessed against the plaintiff.

In his charge to the jury, Mr. Justice J. Keiller Mackay, said the article was a justifiable report of a judicial proceeding. He declared there was "not one iota of malice intended."

NO AUSTERITY IN FOOTBALL—England may be going without proper food and clothing, but while there's football the average Briton can be comparatively happy for a few hours a week. Snow-covered ground and bitter cold failed to daunt the spirit of these fans who lined up for many blocks outside the grounds of Tottenham, London, all night in hope of getting tickets to the game where the English soccer cup was at stake.

Peterborough's One Big Community Drive Of The Year Is Now In Progress

The City of Peterborough's Community Drive — the one great effort of the year — in which one appeal for funds is made instead of twelve individual collections — started yesterday. Money from this fund has financed the work of our social services in the past and this work must be continued strongly now — backed by the financial help of every citizen.

The Objective is $60,000

CITIZENS OF PETERBOROUGH—

In Peterborough there is a great need for extended social service work . . . and this work requires considerable funds.

All of the twelve agencies carry on worthwhile work . . . work which is necessary for the good of the community and about which little is ever known. They all depend upon the Community Fund for their finances.

I have every confidence that the people of Peterborough appreciate the service these organizations provide and that you will financially assist them when your canvasser approaches you for your donations.

'Twas "Imported" Rat

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP). — The presence of a rat in this southern Alberta city which prides itself on being free of the rodents caused consternation until M. L. Friend, assistant sanitary inspector, discovered a cleaning crew had found a dead rat in a railway car and, as a joke, had placed it at a downtown intersection.

Mercury In February Dropped To 28 Below Then To Even The Score Moved Up To 38

February had everything this year in the line of erratic action (and inaction). It was colder—and warmer—than the some month in 1947. It had less snow and more rain. It was mean and munificent by turns—although it followed its traditional pattern by leaning toward the "mean" side of the scale.

Snowfall during the month was less than three inches, a mere flurry compared to the 18 inches of wintery white wetness which descended on the city in February last year . . . and there was another day to do it in this year, too.

Highlight of the weather's chequered character in February was the superstititon-studded 13th, which did everything but permit a visitation of black cats from the skies to enevelop Peterborough in its harrowed cloud. Combining a whirlwind campaign of ice and freezing rain, the 13th will be long remembered by the luckless thousands (including most of us) who managed to go afoul of the downright miserable transportation conditions—pedestrians, bus passengers, cyclists (some of whom it is jokingly reported, actually reached their destination).

Towards the latter part of the month, the innate goodness of nature made itself manifest (kind of) for a brief period. The sun shone; much of the snow and ice left for good; some hardy souls, filled with an unquenchable optimism, even ventured forth timidly wearing their "spring" ensembles.

The climax to February was typical of the whole month. Just to prove there was no suggestion of laxness of sympathy, with her dying breaths she gasped to the weatherman: "Cloudy and milder." As a clincher, it snowed Thursday.

Wednesday of this week saw the highest temperature of the month, a torrid 38 degrees above zero. About two weeks before that, the same mercury was chattering away at 28 below zero. Both these outdo the figures of February last year, which managed to reach 37 above, but could drop only to a "moderate" 16 below at its coldest.

The low of 28 below on the 10th was also the coldest of the winter — yet.

During the month, the weather reached such importance by its effect on every phase of living that it warranted the front page headlines of newspapers twice directly, and several other days with the grim accompanist of cold weather — disastrous fires.

Coldest spot reported in The Examiner's "cold days" thermometer recordings was Maynooth, which struggled through an unearthly 48 below around the 9th and 10th.

World Rice Deficit Forecast By Expert

WINNIPEG, Feb. 28 (CP), — There will be an over-all world rice deficit of about 136,000,000 bushels this year, it is predicted by James McAnsh, head of the cereals section, economical and statistical branch of the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization.

Mr. McAnsh, a former grain editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, made this statement in Winnipeg, en route to the Philippines where he will attend an FAO conference on rise production and nutrition.

Though rice production has climbed to 90 per cent of prewar output since the end of the war, he said, exports have failed to keep pace and amount to abou: 37 per cent of pre-war.

The reason for the gap * between production and export is found in a rapid increase in the populations of rice-consuming countries, he said.

The rice-deficiency countries of India, Malaya, Ceylon, Hong Kong and China want more rice and the rice-exporting countries of Burma, Siam and French Indo-China have smaller amounts of rice to spare after their domestic needs have been satisfied.

Suggest Metering Water

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Owen Sound — population 14,000—will have to spend more than $328,000 on capital equipment during the next five years, or institute metering of water, chairman A. A. Kennedy told the Utilities Commission. Metering would discourage wasteful use of water, he said.

Must Hold Fort On His Feet Senate Ruling

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. — (CP). — Precedent and tradition rather than written rules provide a striking instance of man's inhumanity to man in the United States Senate where a member, perhaps old and wobbly, may be forced to stand on his feet four hours to deliver a speech he could make in one hour.

It arises from the understanding that once a senator gets the nod from the presiding officer he has the floor only until he resumes his seat.

This is how it works out:

Senator Blank has prepared a speech on the St. Lawrence Seaway and Power project and has arranged with the party leaders and presiding officer that he will get the floor immediately after opening formalities of Monday's sitting which starts at noon.

He gets the nod from the chair and stands up to his paper piled desk, but immediately a dozen or more senators are on their feet, each clamoring for Senator Blank to yield just a moment for a unanimous consent request or some such reason that "will take only a matter of seconds."

The senator yields and sometimes it is for a simple request or bills accompanied by windy explanations through which Senator Blank, pained and wearied and impatient, shifts from one foot to the other, leans and shrugs and stretches—but does not sit down on his well-padded chair.

One Hour Later

Finally, often an hour after he first got the floor, Senator Blank launches into his speech. The throng of senators has dwindled.

His troubles are not yet over. Those who bother to remain are interested in the speech either as an opponent anxious to handicap the speaker, or as a supporter, anxious to help him.

So he is frequently asked to "yield," and if he doesn't he is considered lacking in co-operation or downright mean, and if he does, he may open the way for some opponent to speak several minutes and put him off the track of his carefully prepared speech.

If it is a friendly interruption he may welcome it as a chance to rest his vocal chords, but not his weary frame. He still stays on his feet.

Under the rules the member who holds the floor may yield only for a simple question or a parliamentary inquiry. But in practice the "questions" are often long-winded interventions.

The point of order is seldom raised, but it is useful when a senator is filibustering. Then he may prime friends to interrupt him so that he may rest his tongue, but not his body, and in such cases his opponents raise the point that he can yield only for a question and the chair must admit the point.

Perhaps anyone who speaks for an hour or more deserves this sort of punishment. But it seems cruel treatment even for a long-winded senator.

N.S. Salvage Tug Heads For Bermuda

HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 28 (CP) —Although admittedly enthused at the prospect of a daily dip in the balmy Caribbean, Capt. Royden Dykeman, salty skipper of an ocean-going tugboat, knows that his sojourn in Bermuda waters won't be an entire lark.

The non-committal salt who went to sea at 17 and got his master's ticket at 21, the minimum age, has sailed for Bermuda in command of the Foundation Lillian, a 1,800-horsepower salvage craft originally built for the United States Navy.

While Bermuda-based he'll probably operate mostly in southern lanes, but distress calls may send him speeding anywhere a tug can go.

HUNGRIER AND CROSSER THAN EVER

Your insurance premium is divided three ways. The largest part goes into your own savings fund.* A small part is used to pay its proportionate share of the Company's operating expenses. Another small part is used to help make up the balance for those who die before their savings funds have been built up to the full face value of their policies.

If you yourself die before your savings fund is sufficient to pay the full face value of your policy — then the other policy-holders will likewise contribute the balance needed. If the premium you pay is higher than is necessary, the excess is returned to you by way of dividends.

This is the basic policy of life insurance by which men co-operate mutually to protect their families against the hazards of life.

If you drop out of this co-operative venture then your savings fund is returned to you.

*The exception is "term" insurance where no savings fund is built up.

Portugal Land of Plenty In Midst of Needy Europe

By STUART UNDERHILL

LISBON, Feb. 28—(CP).—Portugal, one of the little European countries that came through the Second World War comparatively unbruised, lives in a st[illegible] plenty that is matched in few other parts of the weary continent. Market stalls are stacked with food and store windows crowded with American luxury goods which, more than anything else, represent to Europeans today the luxuries of a far-off world.

Glistening American cars race through the sunlit streets, adding their strident horn blasts to the din that makes every day in Lisbon sound like New Year's Eve on Times Square.

Recently the government has tightened restrictions on American imports but as yet there is no visible sign of decrease in the supply of nylons, cosmetics and electrical goods that Portuguese read about and admire in American magazines and movies.

The American and British influence is probably stronger than in any other country in Europe. British commercial relations have existed for centuries, and now the big aircraft that make Lisbon's up-to-date airport a European landfall bring a steady flow of visitors from the United States.

In the big hotels English is heard more often than Portuguese and almost every downtown newstand has as many British and American publications as Portuguese.

The luxury goods so lavishly displayed remain out of reach of the great mass of 8,000,000 Portuguese, however. Living standards are still low compared with the western world, though they are higher than they have ever been in Portugal.

Improve Villages

Remote villages now can be reached in a few hours over good new roads. In the villages themselves, old cottages occupied for centuries are being replaced by modern houses.

The Salazar government is making steady progress with a house and school building campaign. Workers can purchase the new houses on a long-term basis with payments amounting to about $8 a month. Much new dwelling construction is evident on the outskirts of Lisbon.

Thousands still live in comparatively primitive conditions in old dwellings hanging over narrow, cobbled streets that twist up the hills. Diets are frugal, more often than not consisting of bread, lentils and fish stew.

There is grumbling among the people about high prices—which have in fact been sharply lowered by controls — but on the whole more smiles are seen than scowls. Women and young girls with cheerful faces weaves through the crowds, balancing huge bundles of laundry or baskets of fruit and vegetables on their heads.

Transportation officials complain their planning has provided enough additional street-cars yearly to keep up with the population increase, but not enough to offset added numbers who now can afford to ride instead of walk.

New Sailor Play Wins Acclaim From Critics

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (CP). — Hats off to "Mister Roberts," the stage adaptation of Thomas Heggen's book about the crew of a ship engaged in the dreary monotony of bringing up supplies in the back areas of the Pacific, hundreds of miles from the nearest fighting zones.

Here is a superb study of the effects of this tedious existence on a mettlesome crew of men. It is easily the leading candidate for the best play about the Second World War.

"Mister Roberts" is filled with gusty, rowdy humor. Its central characters are Lieut. Doug. Roberts, a popular officer who is chafing to get into the shooting war; the ship's doctor, who maintains the morale of himself and his friends by giving them grain alcohol to drink; Ensign Pulver, who boasts of his feminine conquests, and the captain, who is cordially disliked by everybody.

Superb Teamwork

Technically speaking, Joshua Logan and Heggen, who wrote the script, may not have achieved a play. But they have written a salty, absorbing study of the lives of men compelled to carry out dull duties. Joe Mielziner has provided splendid settings for this newcomer at the Alvin Theatre.

The cast, headed by Henry Fonda, gives a superb exhibition of teamwork under Logan's sure-handed direction.

Fonda Excellent

Fonda, back on Broadway after a long stay in Hollywood, is excellent in his role of the frustrated, unhappy Roberts. David Wayne, until recently the engaging Leprachaun in "Finian's Rainbow," is triumphant as Ensign Pulver, and these performances are matched by those of Robert Keith as the doctor and William Harrigan as the unpopular captain.

Critics Enthusiastic

New York's drama critics unlimbered seldom-used superlatives in praise for "Mister Roberts." Louis Kronenberger of PM called it "A good show enhanced by a wonderful production" and predicted it would prove "the most popular comedy Broadway has seen in years."

Former Road Show Trouper Runs For Vice-President

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 — (CP). — A former road show trouper and one-time munitions worker will preside over the United States Senate and stand next in line for the Presidency if Henry Wallace gets himself elected next November. Senator Glen H. Taylor (Dem.—Ida.), who fixed his eyes on Congress when he was leading his family band of entertainers through small communities of the Northwest, has become Wallace's running-mate on the third party ticket.

Taylor won his place in the Senate in 1944 after two unsuccessful tries for election to Congress.

He did it with little financial or other backing except the support of a mass of disgruntled electors whom he canvassed with music, personal appearances in all the back concessions, and thousands of letters laboriously written by hand.

Handsome, Enthusiastic

When Taylor came to Washington for the session in January, 1945, he was bursting with enthusiasm, handsome and relaxed. He had made the grade and he was anxious to get in and fight for efficient government.

He brought his pretty wife and three smart young boys, all of them able to sing and play instruments, and put on a show at the drop of a 10-gallon hat.

So, his introduction to Washington and to the front pages of the whole country, as a Senator, was a posed picture on the Capitol steps singing a parody of a cowboy lament having to do with his need for "a home near the Capitol dome" in crowded Washington.

Now, after three years of frustration that comes to eager young men who reach Congress with ideals of service, he has lost a little of his matinee idol appearance. He is still straight and dapper, but his face is pale and a little drawn and his curly hair is thinning.

Staunch Wallace Man

Taylor immediately revealed himself as a staunch supporter of Henry Wallace. Post-war problems found him a bitter critic of the administration's foreign policy.

He has seldom, if ever, found anything publicly to criticize in the attitude or operations of the Russian government.

"Crooning Cowboy"

He was dubbed 'the crooning cowboy" when he first came here and the name, in variations, has clung to him. He worked in munition factories on the west coast early in the war.

Last fall he gained considerable notoriety when he started a horseback ride from the west coast to Washington to draw attention to his criticisms of the administration's foreign policy which he, like Wallace, says leads to war, presumably with Russia.

Taylor rode only about 275 miles, then loaded his horses in a van and drove to within a few miles of Washington when he again mounted and rode to the capital.

Now he says the Democratic party has "left" him to go over to "Wall Street and the militarists." He will run for vice-president with Wallace but can hold his seat in the senate.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By J. R. Scott

A new lease on life...

At one time the Prong-horned Antelope ranged from Alberta to Mexico in numbers comparable with those of the Bison. But over-hunting threatened the survival of the "Prong Horns" until vast sanctuaries were established for their protection in Alberta and Manitoba. In these refuges their numbers increased and they have since spread into Saskatchewan—a tribute to far-sighted conservation authorities, showing how effective conservational measures can be in preserving a species from extinction. To promote public understanding of the need for conservation, interesting authoritative literature and full-colour reprints of our wildlife pictures, without advertising, are available free by writing to The Carling Conservation Club, Waterloo, Ontario.

On the other hand, protection was not established in time to save the Cuban Tricolour Macaw from fading into oblivion. It was hunted mainly for food and became extinct around 1864.

Should Teach Democracy Conclusion of Soroptimists

A most timely address on a subject about which too many know too little was given Friday evening for benefit of Soroptimist Club members and their friends attending the dinner meeting at Hooper's palm room. The speaker, Dr. Eldon Ray, master of history at the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, said he has found that the young people are really thinking, deep down in spite of their nonchalant attitude, and they want personal opinions on democracy and world affairs discussed in class.

"Should democracy be taught?" he asked. "Can the democratic part of the world remain democratic—a question we would all like to have answered." He reminded listeners of the disputes in world affairs, in trade unions, and among the workers who are seeking economic safety. Above all there is the soul-searching cry of youth which sees a future dim and foreboding. Are we to be victims once more? "All this is indicative of the confusion in our thinking," said Dr. Ray.

It is customary to hear democracy described as freedom of speech, the press, religious beliefs, and the right to do as one pleases provided one does not infringe on the same rights of others. Dr. Ray said: "I claim if democracy is just these things, it is a ritual and meaningless. There must be a spirit behind it which comes from faith and knowledge — knowledge that comes from teaching and the inculcation of the ideals upon which it is based."

"How necessary to teach democracy!"

One hundred years ago, the speaker recalled, there were uprisings against dictatorial rule in Europe which won for the individual emancipation from class and corporal restraint. Though the ideas failed to bring about democracy there, they spread to the new world where it was taken up by the pioneer atmosphere of "worth, not birth" and was taught through all channels. "Especially since 1920 there has been a profound change toward democracy in Canada" but, he pointed out that no attempt was made to teach it. "Self-evident truths are not accepted by students," said Dr. Ray, "unless the subject is taught it is simply passed over."

He spoke of the people who have a cynical attitude toward life as a passing show as "debunkers" who weaken the democratic way. He said "No one has the right to impose his opinions on others, but refraining from guiding or influencing has produced a chaos of social disintegration."

"Our lack of convictions made possible the bids of the Nazis. Now we are face to face with another country which has stronger convictions than ours." Putting in words the growing thought that we may not avoid a war with Russia, the speaker said we would be forced to draw inspiration, idealism and support from the past for the reservoirs have been drained. "Unless democracy is taught we will have nothing to call on in the future."

Miss Florence Scott expressed the appreciation of the members. Introduction of the speaker was made by Miss Genevieve Sullivan.

Several important matters of business were brought before the members by President Mrs. Enith Scott. Miss G. Clark, Miss G. Sullivan, and Mrs. M. Thompson were appointed to attend a meeting of service club representatives for the purpose of getting organization of the Canadian Cancer Society under way.

Most Feted Bride-to-Be Weds Elmira Officer Today

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. (CP)—The wedding here today of Flying Officer C. George Mattusch of Ottawa and Elmira, Ont., to Anita Cajigas has drawn more public interest than any social event of recent years.

The bride, daughter of a Canadian-born mother and Puerto Rican born father, is one of the most beautiful and popular of Washington's younger society.

Her father, Dr. Tomas Cajigas, is a pathologist of international prominence who has practiced here since his graduation from George Washington University in 1918.

Her mother, who was Annabella Paul, was born in the Hamlet of Snow Road north of Ottawa but came to the United States to live when she was 12 years old.

President Truman's wife and their daughter, Margaret, a close friend of the bride, headed a guest list which included most of the most prominent people in Washington.

The Episcopal Church of the Epiphany was to be the scene of the quiet Lenten ceremony with Rev. Charles W. Shearin officiating. Lenten custom dictated only a minimum of church decoration.

More than 1,000 guests were invited to the reception in the Statler Hotel following the four o'clock ceremony. Two great ballrooms were lavishly decorated and provisioned for a reception of almost unprecedented brilliance.

Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice of the United States, headed a group of wives of cabinet ministers and diplomats assisting at the reception.

Bride and groom are both 26 years old. Tall and strikingly handsome, Mattusch is son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mattusch of Elmira, descendants of an Alsatian family.

He served in the United Kingdom, Gibraltar and Malta during the war and now is in the permanent RCAF with headquarters intelligence branch in Ottawa where they will live.

The couple met here last October when Mattusch was on a tour of duty with the Canadian joint staff mission, and their engagement was announced at Christmas. Since then Miss Cajigas has been recipient of almost daily entertainment and has been the most feted bride-to-be in the memory of local society writers.

The bride's dress is of white satin with train and seed pearl trimmings. Her wedding veil is is topped with a lace tiara, loaned by a wedding guest, former Premier Camille Chautemps of France, who received it from the late Queen Elizabeth of the Belgians.

Dr. Cajigas was to give the bride away. His eldest son, Dr. Tomas Cajigas, was to be best man. The matron of honor, in a gown of American beauty tint, was to be Mrs. James MacPherson of Washington.

The eight bridesmaids were to be garbed in gowns of hyacinthe and ice blues. Ushers appointed include a group of air force officers of the Canadian Joint Mission.

The guest list includes the Canadian ambassador and Mrs. Hume Wrong.

The groom's parents, two sisters and a large group of friends and relatives from Elmira and vicinity are in Washington for the wedding.

After a two-week southern tour in an automobile, which was a gift of the bride's parents, the couple will motor to Ottawa to live.

Couple Mark Anniversary

NORWOOD, Feb. 28—(ENS)—About 20 relatives sat down to a supper table centred with a three-tier wedding cake, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jenkins, the occasion was the 40th anniversary of their wedding. Those present were Mrs. Jacob Gardner, Mrs. Thomas Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Herb. McMillan, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Buck and Rita, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Rork Ferguson, Miss Lila Engisch, Mrs. George Peoples and Marie, Mrs. Keith Thompson and Bill Connell. During the evening more friends and neighbors joined the gathering (about 50).

Mrs. Roy Baker read an address after Mrs. Samuel Buchanan had presented they with an electric table lamp.

Quebec Woman 104 Years Old

BEEBE, Que., Feb. 28. (CP)—Mrs. Emma Tyron Moir of Beebe who, but for a quirk of destiny might be on the eve of her 26th birthday celebration, is 104 years old today.

This grand old lady of the Quebec-Vermont border community missed being a leap year "baby" by just one day. That's why she merits 104 candles on her birthday cake instead of 26.

Born in 1844 when Queen Victoria was still in the early years of her reign, Mrs. Moir has been a resident of the eastern townships all of her life.

Confederation was still 23 years away when Mrs. Moir was born at Clarenceville, Que. She moved with her family to Stanstead in 1859 and a few years later married John W. Moir of Graniteville who died in 1905.

She moved to Beebe Junction in 1918 and now resides here with her son-in-law and only daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Boulais.

Mrs. Moir enjoys good health, reads newspapers, writes a clear hand and enjoys listening to the radio. She knits steadily and last year sold more than 100 of her own knitted garments, proceeds of which she turned over to the United Church.

Chapter News

Monthly meeting of Peterborough Municipal Chapter IODE was held Thursday evening, in the YWCA green room with the regent, Mrs. A. W. Turner, presiding.

Nineteen food parcels went forward to Britain this month and regular monthly shipments will continue to be sent from the Order.

Fifteen sets of seven book-of-the-month club selections are being ordered from IODE headquarters and will be placed in local institutions free of charge. This work is under the supervision of the child and family welfare division of the Order.

Nominating committee consisting of Mrs. G. A. Barns, Mrs. G. H. Cutmore and Mrs. G. R. Melton will present their report on nomination of officers for the coming year at the annual meeting.

The Jeanette Scott Chapter fashion parade on March 4 in Brock St. Arena is the outstanding social event for next week. The Peter Robinson Chapter are having Mrs. H. M. Aiken, radio commentator, who will give an interesting address on "The Women of the World" in George St. Sunday school auditorium on March 15. In addition to their guest speaker, the Chapter will present a fashion parade of period gowns. On March 10, the Otonabee Chapter is holding a bridge in the YWCA.

Of a cheerful optimistic disposition, Mrs. Moir attributes her longevity to the fact that she does not worry. Her mother lived to be 101.

Of Interest to Women

Hundred Years Since Women Started Fight for Equality

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (CP)—Millions of American women voting for president this year will mark the 100th anniversary of the first organized battle to to give them the franchise right.

The battle began July 19, 1848, when the world's first women's rights convention met in the village of Seneca Falls, N.Y. But the spark that started the smouldering fire was lit eight years before that.

Early in the 19th century, some American women, who hitherto had taken no part in public affairs, began to work and speak for the abolition of slavery. Eight went as accredited delegates to the world anti-slavery convention in London in the summer of 1840.

Among them was the Philadelphia Quaker, Lucretia Mott. Also among those attending was Elizabeth Cady Stanton, who, as a child, had cut from her father's law books laws unfavorable to women. She was the bride of a convention delegate, Henry Stanton.

Women delegates to a world convention were unheard of in Europe. But meeting had scarcely convened when it split on the question of whether women delegates should be admitted. When the question was put to a vote the women lost, and the accredited women delegates, who had come 3,000 miles, were shown to seats behind a curtained bar, separating them from the rest.

Mrs. Mott and Mrs. Stanton, meeting after the slavery convention, resolved to hold another for women's rights. Eight years passed before they could meet and crystallize their plans.

Successful Convention

Then they called the women's rights convention July 19 and 20 in the Wesleyan chapel at Seneca Falls, where Mrs. Stanton lived. Before the meeting the women worked feverishly to draw up a declaration of sentiments.

The convention was a big success. The declaration of sentiments with attached grievances was read, discussed and adopted: "We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men and women are created equal. . . ."

Seventy two years later, on Aug. 26, 1920, the 19th amendment giving women the vote went into effect. The century of 1848-1948 also saw the women win the right to hold office, own and control property, collect wages make a will, practise a profession, share the guardianship of their children, and be a witness after marriage.

They gained the right to freedom of speech, freedom to organize, freedom to petition, freedom to follow conscience in the matter of religion, greater economic opportunities, higher wages, equal education with men, equal representation, equality in marriage rights, equality in the social state.

In this election year national women's organizations urge women to consider these words of Carrie Chapman Catt in "Victory," (the National American Women Suffrage Association history of the battle for women's rights):

"What now, women of America? . . . . Another century calls you. Side by side with men citizens it is for you to rejuvenate the republic, revivify its faith and replenish the fires of human freedom . . . . The next century must disclose what liberty really means, how it may be preserved in order that it may benefit the entire human race. . . . Will you, free women of America, lead on to that ideal democracy never yet attained, but which alone salvage threatened civilization?"

For Sunday, February 29

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds assurance of outstanding success and achievement, with probable honors, dignities and tokens of preferment from superiors, employers or others in influential places. This may be owing to some unique talent, an exceptional insight in scholarship, science, invention or other creative expression beyond the ordinary or conventional. Genius and originality are given force by a deep and enduring studious nature and worthy character.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for unusual progress and advancement with honors, distinction and dramatic experiences in connection with unique talents, originality, daring or innovation, meriting preferment or public acclaim, with promotion and favors. It is a propitous time for dramatic fulfillment or unusual recognition in creative arts and ingenuity, backed up by industry, application and sustained research and study. Romance and high adventure crown conspicuous rewards and unique enterprise.

A child born on this day is richly endowed with creative talent skills and ingenuity, with fitting recognition for its exceptional enterprise, study and genius. Public acclaim is among its rewards.

For Monday, February 30

Monday's astrological forecast is for a time of distraction and excitement under urge of the emotions, impulses and dramatic situations outside the realm of the commonplace and conventional. This might concern the social, affectional or romantic life, or seek to find expression along purely creative lines, of more than ordinary genius. However, the definite promise of success and high adventure could be blocked by rash, impetuous and turbulent moves, with clear judgment set aside for reckless conclusions. Personal magnetism is accentuated and could prove most decisive.

On the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year in which their own personal resources, talents, ingenuity and magnetic appeal could have a major place in determining the future, its place and fortunes. Talents and skill outside the ordinary could be manipulated to overwhelming advantage with radical and distinctive force. Unique ideas of startling force could be put over by the sheer force of personal magnetism or inventive genius. Nevertheless a tendency to rash and excitable urges might warp the judgment and undermine success by emotional or wild impulses, or by turmoil rather than calm rationalizing of strange situations.

A child born on this day may have unique talents, skills and ideas, sustained by a magnetic personality and unusual influence. But all might be lost by strange impulses or turbulent emotions rather than clear thinking and cool conduct.

Mannish Touch Accented In London's Sport Togs

BY MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 28 (CP)— New look coats, suits and dresses may emphasize lines that are full and flowing, but today's slacks, shorts and bathing suits go to the opposite extremes.

Slacks at Jaeger's spring shows had a masculine look with a slight feminine twist. Cut neatly to the figure with mascculine brusqueness of line, the legs were notably narrower than they have been for some time, giving a feminine slimmness to the leg. Checks, tartans and Bedford cord were favored.

One example was a scarlet Bedford cord with narrow legs and self-colored cummerbund knotted at the waist.

Brightly cheerful were the Buchanan tartan slacks in the same style with ¾-sleeved jersey of bright yellow wool.

Jerseys had wide sleeves narrowing to the waist or three-quarter length, straight necklines and the vertical sloppy-Joe look with turned-up bottoms. When jerseys were not worn over the slacks cummerbunds were the order of the day, in self or contrast-colors.

Knee-length and calf-length trousers also were used in these and the slacks turn-ups were most popular. Bolero and box jackets were used to complete the ensemble.

A full slope-shouldered, white box jacket with a vertical blue stripe and turn-up bottom was worn over very brief, masculine cut, white shorts also having turn-up bottoms.

The normal width in leg was shown in black and white check that conveyed the impression of ease and comfort. With other designers the normal width was the popular one and linen was favored a great deal.

Tan and Mustard

A linen slack in a tan with normal leg width, narrow waistband, very slight stomach gathering and turn-ups was combined with a mustard blouse of the same linen by Laeta Ramage.

Formal bathing suits were designed to complement the built-in brassiere. Beach robes had full skirts, occasional stand-up collars and wide sleeves.

Striping was popular in the suits — horizontal, vertical, diagonal, herringbone, jazz, or seawave. Patterning was often created by panelling the stripes in various different ways. One elastic white satin suit had a vertical gold lame stripe and front skirt.

"Rage" was the suggestive name of a slimming, dark blue suit with white bobble trimming which had a large bobble-trimmed hat, beach robe and bag to match.

Reminiscent of a deck chair was the vertical stripes pink and white suit with short self-colored frill on front skirt, back leg and brassiere. "Flirtation," a sky-blue suit with horizontal cut rib, front skirt and tie belt cuold be worn strapless.

Skirts were used in front only, belts were narrow, tied in front, materials plain or ribbed in wool, elastic in satin.

Stripes were occasionally created by stitching and floral designs were used both in wool and satin.

HUMAN RELATIONS
Children Should Be Taught Art Of Practical Living

✧ ✧ ✧

When it comes to book learning, as the old-fashioned phrase goes, the great majority of parents are almost fanatically determined to educate their children. They have a superstitious belief that if they can only send their youngsters to school, and especially if they can send them to a high-priced college, it will inevitably secure them fame and fortune and enable them to live without doing any kind of hard work.

Dorothy Dix

Now no one with any intelligence whatever undervalues an education. It opens the gates of knowledge to use and illuminates all life. It is a tool with which we work our way to the achievement of our ambitions. It is a solace in our troubles and an added joy to our happiness. The educated man and woman are rich, whether they have money or not.

So it is no wonder that parents are anxious to give their children a good education; but why do we narrow education down to what one learns in the school room, when there is such a vital need for practical knowledge that will help us solve the everyday problems of life? Why is the boy who graduates in all the ologies and isms considered better educated than the one who knows how to run a big business? And why is it more of an accomplishment for a girl to be able to strum a little on a piano than for her to be an expert with the pots and pans?

Diplomacy Always Useful

I am not disparaging the higher education. Far from it. I am only wondering why we do not consider it necessary to include in the school curriculum teaching our children the things they are going to need most in life?

Take, for instance, such a basic matter as being able to get along with other people. You would think that parents would grind that into their children while they are still in the cradle. But they don't. They let them act like little hellions and leave it to some unfortunate schoolmarm to civilize them. Yet no one is so stupid as not to know that the ability to sell yourself to your fellow creatures is one of the most valuable assets that any man or woman can have.

How many mothers do you know who ever even try to teach their daughters how to handle the problems of adolescence? Practically none. Mother may be a college graduate and have won an MA degree, but she doesn't know how to be a Ma. She and Sally are not even well enough acquainted with each other to talk confidentially, so the poor little bobby-soxer stumbles along trying to find her way in life, and only too often falls into the pit just because her mother didn't teach her how to play the love game.

Nearly all girls marry, and the chances are that they are going to have to do their own housework and be their own baby-sitters and all the rest of it. Oftener than not they have been trained to a trade or profession, but nobody has taught them how to make an edible biscuit or put on a diaper, and by the time they have taught themselves how to be good wives and run homes they have generally given their husbands stomach ulcers.

And aren't practically all the tragedies of delinquent children and unfaithful husbands and wives and the breaking up of homes due to men and women never having been taught even the A B C's of marriage and how to deal diplomatically with each other's faults and foibles? Every bride and groom think that the knowledge of how to be happy though married comes by Nature, but it doesn't. It is the knowhow that does it.

The reason that widows and widowers are a preferred risk as husbands and wives is because they have graduated, cum laude, in the school of marriage.

New Procedure Speeds Divorce For Servicemen

By STUART UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 28.—(CP)—An accumulation of divorce applications which threatened to clog British courts indefinitely has been largely cleared away by a "mass production" system of obtaining decrees that is dissolving the marriages of servicemen at the rate of almost 20,000 a year.

Partly the speedup is due to revised procedure which has shortened the period of waiting between the time when a divorce is granted and it becomes absolute, and the extension of divorce powers to local courts.

Of equal importance has been the establishment throughout the country of highly-trained legal teams, appointed by the Law Society, which was chosen by the Government to organize and operate the scheme.

"In March, 1946, it was estimated there were some 40,000 service cases which had to be dealt with," T. G. Lund, secretary of the Law Society, said in an interview. "At one time the estimates ran as high as 45,000, but it seems that actually they will amount to about 35,000.

"By the end of last year well over 15,000 absolute decrees had been granted. The society had about 16,700 cases in hand, most of them approaching their final stages. There were only 413 new cases, compared with 3,139 in December, 1946."

The society had been asked to complete its work within two years, and "it seems clear that the arrears of service cases should be disposed of well within the specific time."

Staff Enlarged

When the society's divorce department took on its assignment in 1946 it had a staff of about 100 solicitors and clerical workers. This was quickly expanded to 700.

Offices were opened in provincial centres like Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester and Leeds to handle applications from residents of those cities. Staffs were trained to a rigid system, so that if it were necessary to interchange personnel, there wouldn't be delay in operation.

A reduction from six months to six weeks in the waiting period between decree nisi and decree absolute, and the extension to provincial courts of authority to hear divorces, further aided the progress.

Financing the scheme, which is available to anyone with service connections under the rank of sergeant — including wives of servicemen, or servicemen who have been named co-respondents —costs the Government about £200,000 ($800,000) a year. The petitioner's fee works out between $12 and $15.

In service cases, most of the applicants are men who returned from overseas to find their wives had formed other associations. But in civilian cases—the society also has a Poor Persons department—the petitioner is more often a woman.

Lund says in his opinion the massive total of divorce applications betokens no moral collapse, but reflects the dislocation which the war effected in the lives of thousands of persons who ordinarily would have carried on placidly with their mates.

SHIP-TO-SHORE PIPELINE — Salvage crew uses specially rigged pipeline to remove 80,000 bushels of grain from the ice-coated Canadian freighter William C. Warren, aground in Lake Huron near Rogers City, Mich. Vessel ran aground in Nov., 1947, while en route from Fort William to Toronto. Efforts to free ship failed and crew left it after first flooding the engine room to anchor vessel firmly. A salvage company bought the cargo.

Say Film Actors In 2nd Spot Among Beefers

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28 (AP).—Next to baseball club managers, the world's greatest beefers are film actors.

This conclusion can be reached by any movie reporter who spends a few years on the studio beat. For instance, this week I listened to John Payne telling why he left his 20-Fox contract, which owed him $130,000 for the remainder of a year's term:

"It was worth it. I can make more money free-lancing, and I'm much happier away from the complete disagreements that marred my stay at the studio.

"Despite the fact that over 60 per cent of producers and directors are former actors, they don't give an actor credit for knowing anything about scripts. More aggravating is the practice of letting an actor warm up for a part, and then telling him someone else will do it and he will start another role the next day.

Loyal and Obedient.

"The studio bosses tell you they made you a star and you should be loyal and obedient. They say, 'You help us out and do this role and you can have your pick next time.' Next time never seems to come.

"I'm tired of studio reneging and broken promises."

Payne's plaint is typical. Briefly catalogued, here are the most common beefs from actors:

1. No choice of roles. (See above, or anybody at Warners.)
2. Roles not big enough. (Gene Tierney, who refused "Unfaithfully Yours" and was replaced by Linda Darnell.)
3. No loan-outs to other studios. (Van Johnson, others.)
4. Other stars getting favored roles. (Dana Andrews, who says he have long played second fiddle to Gregory Peck.)
5. No cut on loan-out fees. (Bill Holden, Red Skelton.)
6. Tight-laced, long-term contracts. (Larry Parks.)
7. Being typed. (Maureen O'Hara, Jane Russell.)
8. Getting inferior billing. (Maria Contez, who sued over her "The Exile" billing.)
9. Not enough money. (Name any actor.)

May Take 20 Years To End Perennial Wheat Tests

SASKATOON, Feb. 28—(CP)—University of Saskatchewan scientists estimate 10 or 20 years may be needed for completion of experiments that hold staggering possibilities for western agriculture—development of perennial wheat.

Cautious researchers will make few predictions except that plenty of time and a fair amount of luck are involved in crossing thousands of wheat and grass plants to obtain a bread wheat that will come up every spring without seeding.

But many agriculturists say perennial wheat, if developed, might be a shot in the arm for western farming.

A perennial wheat would mean a tremendous annual saving in seed and labor costs. The heavy root structure characteristic of perennial plants would aid soil and moisture conservation—vital on the Prairies with uncertain rains and persistent winds that sweep away previous topsoil. The straw probably would have higher nutritional value for the soil than would straw from annual wheat.

Achievements to date are growing in a greenhouse plot comprising less than 50 square feet. From crosses of wheat with a hardy native grass made in 1938 Prof. L. H. Shebeski has a few prize perennial plants with normalw heat heads, but a stalk that stays green even after the head has ripened.

But the plants are too tender for rigorous western climates and before the strain is ready for the farm resistance to cold, drought, insects and disease must be bred into successive generations.

With only the best specimens of each generation, suitable for further breeding, Prof. Shebeski said: "It is very improbable that a perennial wheat of economic importance for Western Canadian agriculture will be produced in the next decade or two."

The work started in Canada in 1938 was interrupted by war in 1941 and resumed in 1945. Similar experiments began in Russia in 1928.

The original cross was made from agropyron elongatum, a native grass, and a Chinese variety of wheat and the first generation again bred to Chinese. The result was a wheat like perennial plant, not hardy enough to survive outside a greenhouse, but resistant to most types of leaf and stem rust.

Great Was The Fall

Alone in the office, Mr. Hollway pulled up the chair—and fell flat on his back. The chair, used by all premiers since 1909, had finaly given up the ghost.

AUDITORS' REPORT TO THE SHAREHOLDERS

MELCHERS DISTILLERIES, LIMITED, Montreal.

We have examined the books of account and financial records of Melchers Distilleries, Limited for the year ended 31st December, 1947 and have received all the information and explanations required by us.
The inventories of Spirits, Raw Materials and Supplies on hand have been certified to be correct by responsible officials of the Company.
The Dominion Income Tax Department has intimated to the Company that in computing the amount of profits to be assessed for the year 1943 and for subsequent years, it proposes to disallow as deductions from taxable income a substantial portion of the amounts provided for depreciation in those years. The liability for taxes as shown on the above Balance Sheet does not include any provision for possible taxes that may be payable in this connection.
Subject to the foregoing we certify that, in our opinion, the above Balance Sheet as at 31st December, 1947 sets forth a true and correct view of the financial position of the Company at that date, according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us, and as shown by the books of the Company.

Montreal, 26th January, 1948.

P. S. ROSS & SONS, Chartered Accountants.

To the Shareholders:

Your Directors submit herewith the Nineteenth Annual Report of your Company covering its operations during the fiscal year ended December 31st, 1947.

During the past year, the major improvements and extensions commenced two years ago were completed. The new steam plant is the most modern and up-to-date of its kind and some manufacturers that supplied equipment have been using it for demonstration purposes. It is operating most satisfactorily and is effecting a considerable saving of labour. We now have not only sufficient steam for present requirements but ample to take care of expansion for many years to come. The new whisky barrel maturing warehouse has been completed and is being filled from past and present productions. Various major repairs, alterations and enlargements were also undertaken and have been completed. The major portion of the capital expenditures were necessitated by the relentless forcing of our old equipment for the maximum production of war commodities. These improvements will enable your Company to increase its production and maturing capacities.

Automatic machinery is being installed in the bottling departments which will save a considerable amount of labour and provide for greatly increased output. Part of this equipment has already been received and the balance is expected within the next three or four months.

All these undertakings necessitated a large outlay of cash, amounting to over $600,000.00 during the last two years, approximately half of which was financed out of working capital and the balance by a bank loan which the Company intends to repay as rapidly as possible.

The Balance Sheet reflects a satisfactory financial condition, Current Assets of $1,635,432.16 exceeding Current Liabilities of $634,770.29 by over $1,000,000.00.

The Net Profit for the year, after deducting Depreciation and making provision for Income and Excess Profits Taxes, was $163,153.05. Payment of the 6% cumulative preferential dividends required $75,000.00, and there remains a balance of $88,153.05 to be added to Earned Surplus Account.

Sales are returning to a more normal basis although rationing of whiskies still continues in order to tide-over the non-productive gap of the war years.

Due to further increases in whisky values and in the replacement values of buildings, machinery and equipment, the amount of fire insurance carried has again been increased in order to give full protection in this respect.

Labour relations between the Company and its employees are amicable and the working agreement with the Union was renewed effective November 1st, 1947 for the period of one (1) year.

Shareholders are reminded that it is in their own interest to encourage the purchase of their Company's leading brands:

Your Directors wish to take this opportunity of expressing their appreciation for the faithful work of the officials and employees of the Company during the year just closed.

Respectfully submitted,
On behalf of the Board of Directors,
V. MARCHAND,
President.

LEARN HOW TO REVERSE

IT IS DIFFICULT for some pretty fair players to learn how to apply what experts call "reverse dummy" play to a deal. That term means simply that the declarer treats the dummy as the master hand and sets it up instead of setting up his own holding. This reversal is especially important with some suit contracts, whereby the declarer employs his own trumps for ruffing and uses those in the dummy for trump leads. Maybe it will help if we present a deal "upside down" as compared to the customary position.

	♠ A K Q 4 ♥ K 9 7 5 4 ♦ A K J 3 ♣ None
♠ 8 7 5 3 ♥ 8 6 ♦ 8 5 4 ♣ A 8 7 2	N W E S	♠ 6 ♥ A J 10 ♦ 9 7 2 ♣ Q J 10 6 4 3
	♠ J 10 9 2 ♥ Q 3 2 ♦ Q 10 6 ♣ K 9 5

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	2 ♣	2 ♥	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♦	Pass	5 ♦	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	5 ♠	Pass
6 ♠

East led the club Q against that funny bidding, the K and A covering and the spade A ruffing it. Now please consider the South hand as if it were the declarer's and North's the dummy. That will help the average player to catch the idea of reverse play. Under this plan, South's trumps will be used for trump leads and North's for whatever ruffing is done.

The declarer is pretty sure East must have had the heart A for his one bid, so to the second lead brings the heart 4 from North to the 10 and Q. Now he ruffs the club 9 with the spade 4, leads the diamond 3 to the 10 and then eliminates South's last club, the 5, by ruffing with the spade K.

He lays down North's last trump, the Q, goes to the South with the diamond J to the Q and lays down the spade J, 10 and 9 to clear West of trumps. The diamond A, followed by the K brings a discard of the heart 3 and the last trick is given up to the heart A.

Study will show that if North tries to set up his own hand, he can't possibly do it against West's holding of four trumps.

Why should a defender false-card in his leads, plays and discards against a grand slam more freely than he would against a lower contract?

Seaway Project Shelved; Will Fight On

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. (AP) —United States Senate backers of the St. Lawrence Seaway project vowed today "to carry on the fight" despite their third defeat in 14 years.

After more than a month's debate on the bitterly-disputed bill, the Senate voted yesterday 57 to 30 to send it back to he Foreign Relations Committee for further study.

"This obviously means," Senator George Aiken (Rep. Vt.) told reporters, "that the bill can't come up again this year.

"But the proponents are going to keep fighting for it until it does pass."

Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.), another advocate said there is "no question" that the bill will be reintroduced "as soon as practicable.

"We do not consider yesterday's action by the Senate a defeat. It was simply a political manoeuvre that worked."

The bill provided that the St. Lawrence River be made navigable to ocean-going ng to connect the Great La the Atlantic. It also pro tting up a 2,200,000-horsepo ydro-electric plant at Massena, NY. The United States and Canada were to split the costs, with the American share estimated at $500,000,000.

Senator H. Cabot Lodge (Rep. Mass.), who headed the anti-seaway forces expressed "deep satisfaction" with the vote. His decision to support the motion to send the bill back to committee, rather than to try for an outright defeat, was because "I felt I could get more votes that way."

Five New Members Join Rebecca Lodge

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 28. — (ENS).—Degrees were conferred on five new members of the Loch Lomond Rebecca lodge at a meeting Thursday night. Mrs. Edwin Wynn, Noble Grand Sister, had charge of the proceedings. A large number attended and were served lunch under the convenership of Sister Ruth Craighead and her committee.

deaths, particularly among thee very old and the very young. Sometimes they had difficulty in finding men strong to carry up to the churchyard the coffins of those who had died. In that year they noticed in the Fenelon district that the mosquitoes had been a dreadful plague.

In the spring of 1846, settlers along the Ouse in the Westwood neighborhood were buying quinine as a matter of course...30 grs. for 2/6. Many took the bitter dose by licking it up from the palm of the hand, and men getting out the timber and logs stood shaking in the water, till on the worst day of the "shakes" they were forced to give in. The price of some of the medicines known to Mrs. Traill were ague mixture at 5/- a bottle, castor oil at 1/6, calomel and jalop powders at a penny apiece, salts at 8d. a pound, senna at 3d. Tea was 5 to 7/6 a lb. while coffee was only a shilling or one and six. An emetic was 6d. a remedy named Apoldedoc was 9 d. Moffat's Pills cost 1/3, Copper's Pills, 1/9, Balsam of Cherry was more expensive at 7/6. Pain extractor cost 3/9. Sulphur was a general remedy at 6d. Pepper was ¼ a pound.

Because of the prevalence of this ailment the attendance of children at school was very irregular; and many, both young and old, dragged themselves through life, wrecks of their former selves owing to lake-fever or ague.

HAVELOCK, Feb. 28—(ENS)—Honoring Miss Barbara Watson, whose marriage to Mr. William Cartwright of town will take place early in March, a surprise party was held by her fellow workers of the local Bell Telephone exchange, at the home of Mrs. A. Russell on Wednesday evening.

Piano selections were rendered by Mrs. Allan Tucker and a very enjoyable time was spent in games. A dainty lunch was served from a table centred with a miniature bride and groom.

Drew Outlines Growth Highway System

TORONTO, Feb. 28—(CP)—Premier Drew last night outlined growth of the provincial highway system in a recorded address prepared for delivery over Ontario radio stations and said the development began "when the Queen's Rangers drove Yonge St. through the bush from Muddy York to Lake Simcoe as a military road to provide an inland route to the fur country."

The premier said the program reached a peak with the recent opening of the "spectacular new highway from Vermilion Lake to Red Lake, which pushed our northern highway frontier back more than 100 miles in less than a year."

The premier continued: "In the years between those two events, this province spent almost $900,000,000 to build and maintain more than 76,000 miles of roads."

Premier Drew said the government recognized that the best way to expand the system was to allow local control of roads at the county and township level.

Construction was being pressed forward at a rate never attempted in the past.

"It is our policy to do this on a pay-as-you-go basis. In this, as in many other features of road-building, we have learned many valuable lessons from experience. We are applying them, in the light of up-to-date scientific knowledge, to the problems of the present and at the same time looking forward with ever-increasing confidence to the great developments of the future.

"Just as an example of the changes in the problems tackled by this department, we are at present studying the possibility of constructing flight strips at highway intersections on the outskirts of towns and cities which have no landing fields for aircraft."

TORONTO. — Expressing dissatisfaction at the Federal Government's proposed increase in the basic rate of war disability pensions, the Toronto branch of the War Amputations of Canada has asked that in case of 100 per cent disability, the rates be raised to $100. Garage Operators Given Warning

TORONTO, Feb. 28—(CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario last night told the annual meeting of the Ontario Garage Operators' Association that all Canadians should throw light on Communist aims and prevent them from influencing children. He also urged labor unions to oust Communist party members from executive positions.

He said there was a lesson to be learned from what has happened in Czechoslovakia in the last two days when a coup gave Communists control of the country.

"We are inclined to think of a Communist as a person who is only a little different from the rest of us because his political views are different.

"Yet we have a vigorous Communist party in Canada and there is no doubt as to its purpose. Tim Buck, Communist national leader, has stated, to use his own words, that the object is to open the door to revolution by force through political strikes and to set up a Soviet Canada."

"Gigantic Monopoly"

OTTAWA (CP). — Passage of a private Bill to authorize the Bell Telephone Company to increase its capitalization from $150,000,000 to $500,000,000 was blocked in the Commons last night by John R. MacNicol (PC-Toronto Davenport) who termed the corporation a "gigantic monopoly."

County Farm Notes

—By HARRY THEOBALD

Perth County Farmer Recommends Hybrid Corn, "Crop With A Future In Ontario" — Artificial Breeding Meeting Tuesday, March 2nd At YMCA — Attractive Program For Threshermen's Dinner.

G. W. Keffer, president, and several of the directors of the Maple Cattle Breeders Association, are coming to the meeting Tuesday, March 2 at 1:30 p.m. in the YMCA to discuss with Peterborough dairy farmers the operation of the Maple artificial insemination unit and the terms of membership that have been offered to Peterborough and Victoria breeders.

Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, says this is one of the most important occasions for the local dairy industry in a long time. As reported from the recent visit of a Peterborough delegation to the Maple establishment, it is at present confined to the Holstein breed, but plans are under consideration for extension to Jerseys and Ayrshires.

"This meeting is of special importance to the average farmer who is aiming at increasing his herd but probably has not been able to buy the type of sire he would like to have," Mr. Paterson said. "It is planned for giving full and direct information about the system that is in effect, and I am hoping that there will be a big attendance of farmers to hear about it.

A basic condition is that we must have at least 1,000 cows listed from this county. The same applies to Victoria. There are now five counties in the Maple association, York, Simcoe, Halton, Ontario and Peel. Our Peterborough delegation was very favorably impressed by what they saw at Maple, the type of farmers as officers, and the numerous young herd at the farm of one of the Ontario county members which they visited on their way home. This is a general invitation to farmers to come out and get the facts for themselves."

A FARMER'S TESTS OF CORN

"What I am trying to do is to point out the possibilities of corn as a grain crop in sections of the province where it is not established," said Ray Arbogast of Stratford in his paper entitled "Three Years' Tests with Hybrid Corn", at the convention of the Ontario Crop Improvement Association.

That assertion of purpose identified the agricultural audience to whom Mr. Arbogast was directing the results of his own work and his experience therefrom. And, this was he concluding statement: "If you want to do your utmost to help reach the 50,000,000 bus. of grain increase that Col. Kennedy and his Department have asked for this year, then produce as many pounds of feed per acre as you can by growing for yourself and encouraging the farmers in your local communities,— a few acres of corn for grain, the crop with a future in Ontario."

Mr. Arbogast said he had been testing different varieties of hybrid corn for nine years. "The first six years I was working only with silage corn, but for the last three years I have been testing varieties for grain purposes. Last year I had 28 varieties in all, nine for silage and eighteen for grain."

After enumerating the varieties he used, with comments on most of them, Mr. Arbogast proceeded to "look at the yield of corn as compared with other cereal grains."

More Pounds of Grain

"I feel that corn will yield more bushels per acre than any of the three main cereal grains under any conditions. Our best field of oats last year was Beaver, good enough to win first prize in a field crop competition. It yielded 75 bus. (oats) per acre, while the highest yield of corn was 78. Did you ever stop to consider how many pounds of grain per acre you were getting, rather than bushels?

If you had yields of 50 bus. of oats, barley and corn per acre,— from the oats you would have 1,700 lbs. of grain and from the corn 2,800 lbs. of grain. What farmer couldn't use the extra 1,100 lbs. of grain per acre! I thought it might be interesting to know how many pounds of grain one receives from one pound of seed.

I took two varieties, Canadian bred 150 and 250. I received just one pound of seed of each from Dr. T. M. Stevenson of Central Experimental Farm. The one pound sowed two rows 40 rods long. I picked each kind, shelled them, and after weighing found that I had 148 lbs. of grain from the "150" and 183 lbs. of grain from the one lb. of "250" seeds. For comparison, one lb. of seed wheat will give you about 23 lbs. of grain; 1 lb. of oats about 25 lbs.; and 1 lb. of barley about 27 lbs. of grain.

As to the accuracy of yield tests, in the case of "Can. bred 150", which yielded at the rate of 56 bus. to the acre, according to the test I should have had 150 lbs. of grain from the two rows, and I actually weighed out 148 lbs. In the case of "Can. bred 250 (also corn), which yielded 65 bus. per acre, I should have had 185 lbs., but actually had 183 lbs. So the yield test in this case was very close to 100 per cent correct.

Greater Food Content

Let us consider the food value of these crops. We are told that corn contains almost twice as many food nutrients as either oats, barley or wheat, even if you get 10 to 15 bus. less per acre. With corn you would still be growing more food nutrients. I believe this is a very important factor, and should be given every consideration when we are trying to increase the total grain production in Ontario by 50,000,-

I know from my own experience these last three years we have been feeding corn, that we are getting better results than previously from our hens and hogs. I could name at least a dozen farmers in our district feeding corn for the first time this winter who are well pleased with the results. One man told me he was getting 35 eggs from 200 hens. He started mixing 20 lbs. of corn to a bag of laying mash, and now is getting over 100 eggs a day. I know that is an extreme case, but look at the extra profit farmers would make if they got one dozen or so more eggs a day, or their hogs to market at six mos. instead of seven.

Tardy Recogniton

Some of you may ask, if those things are true why haven't we been growing more corn for grain. Speaking frankly, I don't know why we have this lack of recognition of the value of corn. I do know of instances in Perth county, as well as in others, of some farmers who started growing husking corn for a cash crop, and they were using too late a maturity variety. The results were poor quality and mouldy corn.

The main thing to consider is to choose a variety that will mature in time to give you good hard corn. An important factor is soil fertility. You may grow a fair crop of corn from soil that is in fair shape, but you will get extra special results from soil that is in an excellent state of productivity...Some farmers say as a reason or excuse that "corn costs too much" or "too much work", or "my father grew oats and barley and I'll do the same"...In this day and age when science is doing so much for agriculture in the way of crop research we Ontario farmers should be ready to pick up new ideas as they come along, not 20 or 30 years later."

Several of the hybrid varieties Mr. Abrogast discussed may be of local interest.

Two Stevenson Hybrids

The 'Can. Bred 150' was the earliest hybrid, maturing in about 75 days. It is one of two new varieties developed by Dr. Stevenson at the Exeperimental Farm, Ottawa, and, so far, seed is available only for experimental purposes. It has a fairly long stalk, grows quite fast, although it has a slight tendency to sucker. It was very free from smut and hand-husked easily. The ears were much more uniform than most other varieties, gave a yield of 56 bus. shelled corn per acre, with a shelling percentage of 82.

The next in maturity was "Can. 240"—about 78 days. Strength of stalk was poor, and it tended to sucker heavily. Although it yielded 52 bus. per acre, shelling percentage was 79. I believe this hybrid would do as well as any on very poor soil or in a late season.

"Can. 250", the other hybrid developed by Dr. Stevenson, matured in 80 days. I have nothing but praise for this new variety. It was fast grower, started quickly and was a few inches taller than anything else through the growing season. It had a very clean, strong stalk, and produced good, strong, uniform ears, and was quite easy to husk. Probably the best point, however, considering the maturity was the yield, 65 bus. per acre. Shelling percentage was 83."

Mr. W. W. Dawson of Otonabee recently told The Examiner that he was entirely satisfied with the hybrid corn he grew last year. He combined it and spread the grain on a barn floor to accelerate drying. "I haven't had any trouble with it. In fact I don't think I needed to spread it, and I am still feeding it." Mr. Dawson intends to sow another acreage this season.

LIVESTOCK COMMISSIONER

Announcement is made by Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, of the appointment of William P. Watson, as Livestock Commissioner for Ontario, to succeed the late Louis O'Neill, who passed away recently. Mr. Watson's promotion from the position of assistant director of the live stock branch is well-merited, and brings to a key position in the Department of Agriculture another official young in years but old in experience

In the last two years Mr. Watson has travelled widely in the interests of the Livestock Branch of the Department. He made a trip to Mexico to study the possibilities of export of breeding livestock to that country. He visited Britain and Denmark to study markets for Ontario hogs and the production methods in these countries. He also visited several of the large artificial insemination units in the United States, gathering information which has been put to good use in establishing an artificial breeding policy in Ontario.

In making the announcement, Hon. Mr. Kennedy said:

"Bill Watson is progressive in his approach to livestock problems, and Ontario is fortunate in having a man of his calibre to provide the leadership which will keep this province on top in the sphere of livestock."

EXPORTS TO BRITAIN

The large part that Canada has taken in providing Britain with foodstuffs is revealed in United Kingdom trade returns, for the calendar year 1947, according to a recent issue of Foreign Trade. Of all the flour imported by Britain during the year, Canada supplied 72 per cent; Canadian wheat represented 82 per cent of the British imports; oats 90 per cent; bacon 73 per cent; cheese 12 per cent, and condensed milk 20 per cent.

THRESHERMEN'S DINNER

Mr. Francis Flood, agricultural attache of the United States embassy, Ottawa, will be the speaker at the convention dinner of the Eastern Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen in the Canadian Legion hall March 17.

It is said of Mr. Flood that he knows more about Canada than do most Canadians. He has been in every province and even beyond them into the northern territories. A globe traveller, he lived six months among the head hunters of Borneo.

The Threshermen have again persuaded the women of Stewart's Hall to cater for the dinner, and there will be dancing later. They have been holding their conventions here for years, and farmers who have attended the dinners are advised to get their tickets early. Art McIntyre has the arrangements in hand.

+ + +

FARMERS WEEK

The Threshermen are meeting here during the four days of the Quinte Seed Fair which has been enlarged by a bacon show. F. C. Paterson reported yesterday that the prize list is in print, and the show at the Exhibition Park with displays of seed grain, bacon, farm machinery and other equipment is going to make a new record in Seed Fair interest and usefulness.

Space in the former drill hall will be crowded with exhibits. J. C. Steckley of the experimental farm at Ridgetown will talk on hybrid corn March 19, Friday afternoon; OAC and Dominion Government are bringing displays of attractions to farmers.

Those details are only a foretaste of the program that is in preparation. W. H. Porter of Farmers Advocate will be the speaker at the Seed Fair dinner in the basement of George St. United Church Friday, March 19.

THE SUCCESSFUL FARMER

A successful farmer is certainly not measured by his bank account alone, according to the response of rural groups to the Forum broadcast of Feb. 16: "Are Farmers Business Men?" A successful farmer is one who at the end of the trail has left his community a better place in which to live.

"He was likely what people called a good citizen, having raised a good family that would be a credit to his name. He lived a happy and enjoyable life as a good neighbor, and last but not least he left the soil on his farm in better condition than it was when he took over.

Several groups said his success would likely be attributed to several factors, probably the most important of these would be, a good cheerful, sympathetic wife, coupled with good management. One group indicated good management would include a wife of this calibre. Good soil was one of the chief attributes to success along with health to correspond.

Blink Bonnie in Oxford considers a successful farmer must be a businness man. This means he must do things co-operatively to reap financial benefits. Practically all Forums agreed it was advantageous to keep books, for numerous reasons, but it is hard to put into practice, saying there just aren't enough hours in a day."

+ + +

FARM IN MACHINE AGE

Farm Radio Forum subject on Monday night is: "What the Machine Has Done to Us." Some of the effects mentioned by the Forum Guide are: Increased the output of the individual farmer; made farming more highly skilled, and a more specialized occupation; improved farm management and soil cultivation practice; increased the drift of population from the country to the city; decreased drudgery but caused more nervous strain; and mechanization leads to greatly enlarged investment in equipment.

SAVE ON SIRES

Why spend money on a bull, up in the hundreds of dollars at least? Why pay the cost of feeding him, say $150 a year, do the work, run the risk of taking care of him? Those are suggestions in the circular letter of M. H. Winter, agricultural representative in Victoria County, announcing a meeting in Lindsay Monday, March 1, to discuss the proposal of Peterborough and Victoria farmers lining up with the Maple Cattle Breeders' Association in their artificial insemination establishment. They have seven Holstein sires, son and grandsons of Lonelm Texal Fayne which has some 40 qualified daughters. The dams of six of these sires have produced an average of 19,480 pounds of milk, with an average of 4 per cent test. The highest production of a dam was 25,284 pounds. The Peterborough meeting is Tuesday.

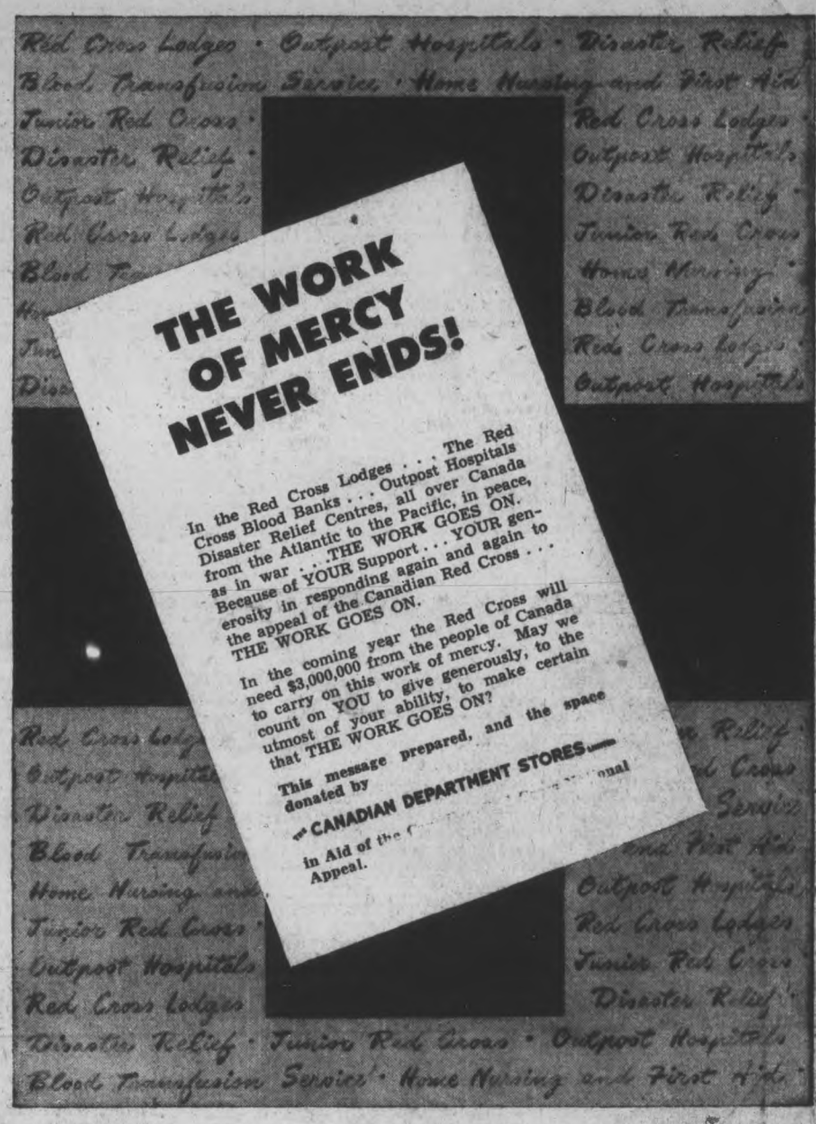
+ + +

WEEK'S MEETINGS

Plans for 1948 will be discussed by Peterborough Crop Improvement Association at a meeting Friday, March 5, at 1:30 p.m. They will also review the preparations for "Farmers' Week," March 17-20. Ken Fallis of the Crops Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture is expected to be present.

Turkey growers are meeting again Monday night, and the other event in the week's calendar is the artificial insemination meeting on Tuesday at 1:30, at the YMCA.

PLAN CALF CLUB



Junior Farmers have accepted an assignment of recruiting youngsters for this year's calf club which will receive the further interest of the agricultural committee of Kiwanis Club. There will be a preliminary dinner for the boys, and probably girls, and their fathers, as guests of the Kiwanis who are also offering a day's motor trip to the club members who carry through their work to Achievement Day.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED

Turkey breeders appointed the following local committee this week to study grading, box-packing, and other phases of farm specialty: Lionel Brown, Jack Coulter, E. C. Braund, Mrs. J. Moon, Port Hope, and F. C. Paterson. Improvement of marketing practice is one of the developments which district breeders are aiming at.
